SOUTH AFRICAN CRISIS

One Story From There Represents the Boers as Wavering.

A CONCILIATORY MESSAGE.

But Other Opinions Are That the Transvaal Will Begin the Fighting Soon.

Troops Continue to Leave Cape Town for Kimberley—The Uitlander Press Sees Nothing But War Ahead—Nothing Definitely Known of When Cabinet Meets.

London, Sept. 19.—There is an unverified Cape Town rumor to-day that the Boers have delivered another message to the British High Commissioner, Sir Alfred Milner, more conciliatory than yesterday's reply. The rumor, however, fails to obtain much credence and is not taken as in anyway mitigating the seriousness of the crisis.

The Uitlander press sees nothing but war ahead and urges the Uitlanders to leave immediately.

The London press is now inclined to take the view that the recent action on the part of the Boers does not make war a certainty, though it does place the British Cabinet in a position where it must take steps so aggressive that war or utter, ignominousous submission will be the only alternatives remaining to the Transvaal, and is by no means so persistent in urging the Government to move hastily, except in the matter of hurrying troops to the probable scene of action.

The Pall Mall Gazette prints a despatch from Cape Town which says: "The general impression is that the Boers will at once take the initiative, and an attack is expected at any hour."

Troops continue to leave Cape Town for Kimberley and the north, and the first-class cruiser Terrible, sailing from Portsmouth for China, to-day is reported to have been ordered to go by way of Cape Town instead of Suez.

Londay, Tuesday, Sept. 19. — Mr. Chamberlain came to London from Birmingham yesterday afternoon, and spent the evening at the Colonial Office. While there he received a despatch from Lord Salisbury, who is at Hatfield House, and sent a special messenger with despatches to the Premier. There has been a lively interchange of despatches between the Foreign, War, and Colonial Offices, but no summons has yet been issued for a Cabinet Council.

Long despatches were sent last evening to the Viceroy of India, Lord Curzon; and to the British High Commissioner in South Africa, Sir Alfred Milner.

Field Marshal Lord Wolseley returned to London yesterday, and immediately repaired to the War Office where he remained busily employed the greater part of the day.

War risks on consignments to the Transvaal were quoted at a premium of 50 per cent. yesterday, and all the markets were very sensitive and excited.

The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: "It is reported here that Mr. Conyngham Greene, British diplomatic agent at Pretoria, fears that an attempt will be made to dynamite the British agency."

Boers Mass Troops.

The special despatches from South Africa confirm the report telegraphed yesterday that the Boers are massing artillery in positions commanding Laing's Neck. Small Boer detachments occupy positions above Buffalo river.

The members of the Afrikander Band in Cape Town intend to convene the Bund in Congress to consider the situation. A Bloemfontein paper reports the dismissal of several Englishmen from the Bloemfontein Police Force because of their refusal to promise to serve on the Commando.

A Cape Town despatch says: Boer spies infest all the border towns. Two thousand troops will be despatched to Kimberley within a week; 500 started to-night and other will go forward to-morrow.

The Daily Telegraph publishes a communication from a military correspondent, who, discussing the effect of the Orange Free State throwing its lot in with the Transvaal, says: "In the event of war, this will greatly increase our difficulties, and will lengthen the duration of the campaign, but the work will be accomplished, and the Union Jack will float over consolidated South Africa between the Zambesi and the Cape. The principal danger which besets the British position is a of hostilities, enabling the Boers to secure a few minor successes, which would bring down upon us every Dutchman in South Africa; and, probably, the statement that the Boers are sending compressed forage to the Natal border seems to signify that they will not wait for new grass, but are preparing for an immediate advance. For this we certainly are not yet prepared. It is doubtful if a few troops and volunteers now in Natal could even maintain the defensive."

The Cape frontier, from Mafeking to Kimberley, including the diamond fields, is practically defenceless, and a combined attack by the Orange Free State and the Transvaal might result in disaster and the retreat of our forces toward Durban, leaving the border towns in the hands of the enemy. Small wonder is it that these towns are alarmed. The movement of British troops into Natal has not begun a moment too soon."

Why let a chance like this one go?
Give up ambition, chocolate hued;
Come where there waits for you the dough.
We'll get for you a chance to do
A cakewalk in a minstrel show!

THE FASHION PLATE.

Straight, full skirts continue to be used in making up sheer transparent summer textiles for slender waists.

The new corded taffeta silks in a great variety of summer colorings and effects are in favor for making up dressy shirt waists.

The black and white striped fabrics in silk or silk and wool effects, which impart length and slenderness to the figure, are uncommonly handsome and varied in design this year.

On many of the costumes of foulard, figured taffeta or surah, drap de chine, drap d'ete, summer costume cloth, etc., the waist is belted at the back and on the sides, but in front is in jacket style, with tabbed ends falling below the waist line.

One of the most graceful summer models for a rather full figure, to use in making up organdie muslin, dimity, batiste and similar goods, is the new seven gored model, with a pretty demitrain, to be made up separately over a foundation skirt of exactly the same shape.

Skirts with closings at the side instead of at the back are now the most favored. If so arranged, the round waist or basque fronts can be permanently fastened to the skirt at the back, thus avoiding the time and trouble necessarily given to a waist and skirt differently laced or hooked.

White veiling or barege may be as elaborately trimmed as a white organdie. It will have as cool an effect, be nearly as comfortable on a hot day as cotton, and during a sudden change in the temperature the light wool gown will give the needed protection.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Kyrle Bellew denies the rumor that he is coming to the United States with Henry Irving.

Rose Coghlan, who plays in "Mlle. Fifi," has patented a sunshade for use at the seashore.

Digby Bell is to be seen in "Arizona." Next season he will be in one of Charles Frohman's companies.

Phoebe Davies has a belt made from Mauser shells found on dead Spaniards after the fight on San Juan hill.

Since Calve has her tombstone and Sarah Bernhardt her coffin, why do not certain would be players go and bury themselves?

At the Filipino theaters of Manila it is the custom to show appreciation by tossing coins on the stage in lieu of bouquets.

Venie Bennett, sister to the late Alice Atherton and widow of the comedian John A. Mackey, will appear in the vaudeville theaters.

As an instance of how the romantic drama has revived abroad, no less than six companies are touring England with "The King's Musketeer."

It is stated that Reginald De Koven has received about $75,000 from "Robin Hood." Barrie will probably take $100,000 or more from "The Little Minister."

Aubrey Boucicault, who plays the husband in "Mlle. Fifi," is said to have inherited some of his father's talent as a playwright and is now finishing two plays which may be produced next season.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

A folding stepladder has recently come into use in which the legs and step supports are hinged at the center to close up when not in use, allowing the ladder to be stored in about half the space of the old ladder.

A carving knife sharpener and fork guard are combined in a Pennsylvanian's patent, the upper portion of the guard having two disks carried on spindles to rotate as the edge of the knife is drawn between them.

In a new bicycle tire the resiliency is obtained by hollowing the face of the rim deeply and stretching a strip of fabric across the face, with a ring of rubber or other flexible material suspended in the center of the fabric.

A pneumatic axle bearing for vehicles has been patented to take the place of inflated tires on road wagons, being less liable to puncture, the weight being carried by pneumatic rings placed inside drums surrounding the axle.

THE BOOKMAKERS.

Margaret Deland says she reads economics, history and the newspapers for instruction and novels only for entertainment.

R. W. Chambers, when not writing books, gives his time to many fads. He collects butterflies, designs uniforms and keeps up his painting.

Max Pemberton, the author, is also a good business man and combines with his literary labors the London agency for an American publishing house. His home in West Hampstead is an ideal place.

Dr. Conan Doyle, it is reported, intends to contest a seat in parliament. Meanwhile he is turning into a playwright. He has just brought out a play (a domestic drama called "Halves") in Scotland and is about to produce another.

Shopgirl's Hard Lot.

Persons complain that shopgirls do not jump actively to wait upon them when they enter a store. Why not? The other day I saw a girl approach a respectably dressed woman of middle age—that's 35—and heard her ask over the counter, "What would you like, ma'am?"

To this polite attention I was shocked to hear the woman reply: "You shut up! Don't you talk to me! I can ask for what I want, and I don't want any impudence from clerks!"

A few rebuffs from such creatures are quite enough to sour the ardor of any shopgirl.

BIG MONEY FOR CHARITY.

New York, Sept. 19.—Cornelius Vanderbilt's vast estate must remain tied up until Alfred Vanderbilt, his second son, can arrive home from Japan, and in the meantime Wm. K. Vanderbilt will manage the property as he has done practically ever since his brother's first illness, three years ago.

Assuming that the estate will amount to $100,000,000, and that it will be devised to the direct heirs, it will pay an inheritance tax to the state of $1,000,000, of which one per cent. or $10,000 will go to Controller Coler, to compensate him for the cost of collection. Another tax upon the estate will be collected as a war tax for the Federal Treasury. The law provides for a tax of two and one-quarter per cent. on bequests of $1,000,000 or more to the children of the testator, four and one-half per cent. on legacies to nephews and neices, and fifteen per cent. on bequests to others than blood relations. If the estate is $100,000,000, therefore, the Government tax will be at least $2,500,000, so that to the state and the nation $3,500,000 will be paid before the property is divided.

The sum that will actually be paid may reach $4,000,000, as the estate collects five per cent. on collateral bequests. This will probably be the largest tax ever levied on an estate in this country.

New facts in regard to Mr. Vanderbilt's private charities, concerning which he always observed the greatest secrecy, are becoming known. Senator Depew said last night that he probably dispensed $500,000 a year in these benefactions.

Ponton Up for Trial.

Cobourg, Sept. 19.—The Ponton affair is not the cause celebre it was at Napanee. The hotels are not crowded and the public are not partisan. There is a general opinion that nothing more than strict justice should be dispensed.

The court room is reserved solely for jurors and witnesses and the public will not have a chance to see the trial until it is in its final stages.

There are seventy-two jurors on the panel.

Most of the witnesses are already in town, including Mackie, Roach, and the two Queen's evidencers, Pare and Holden.

Ponton is putting up at the Dunham Hotel, where he is directly under the wing of his counsel, Mr E Gus Porter. Of course he is under surveillance.

Wilkes and Doherty, the two Pinkerton men, are not expected to arrive until tomorrow.

It looks this morning as if the trial would start this afternoon, Chancellor Boyd having announced his readiness to take up a non-jury case for the short morning session.

It is understood that counsel on both sides would have preferred the case to begin on Wednesday.

He Couldn't Help It.

"That boy of mine," said the angry father, "is just a natural born fool."

"Of course," retorted the neighbor, and there was that in his tone that made the father want to climb the fence and go after him.—Chicago Post.

It is said that in many Welsh villages the yew tree and the church are of the same age, the one being planted when the other was built.

True Boston Culture.

"Fifty cents for this beautiful little vase," called the auctioneer. "Going, going for 50. Do I hear 55 for this beautiful little vase?" and no one thought anything about the auctioneer or the vase which went for 50 cents until another one was put up, an immense affair of cloisonne. "Now we will show you an exquisite piece, not to be duplicated in this country," he went on. "An exquisite cloisonne varse"—and there the Wellesley girl said excitedly to her companion:

"Now, that is what I call true Boston culture. Would you expect a man of that kind to make such a delicate distinction? He must have been educated at a woman's college. When he is selling a 50 cent article, he says vase in the ordinary way, with the long sound of the 'a,' but when he comes to a big piece of cloisonne it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over $10 in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday vase."—New York Times.

Crocodile Tears.

The expression "crocodile tears" can be found in almost every European language, but it is doubtful if one in a thousand of those who use it have an idea of its origin. We are told in the Bestiary of Guillaume le Clerc that when the crocodile finds an unwary traveler it devours him, but afterward weeps over him all the rest of its life. This is very evidently the allusion in "Othello," "Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile" (1, 257).

There is another version of the fable, however, which is more often referred to in literature, and according to which the crocodile sheds tears in order to allure the traveler to destruction. Shakespeare alludes to this in the passage where he tells how > the mournful crocodile

> With sorrow snares relenting passengers.
> —2 Henry VI., iii, 1, 226.

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. A Big Sale of Republic Stocks

THE FAIRFAX CO., OF REPUBLIC, J. J. Brown, Pres., Willis Monaine Treas., after securing the Jim. Hill claim ajoining it on the north, sampled the ledge and W. H. Stowell reports on this cropping $16 80 in gold, immediately upon the result becoming known in Republic, a Mining Supt., through our agent there, Tom. Angel, negotiated the purchase of $1,000 worth of Treasurer's stock, the company has authorized me to place a small amount of this stock at 3½cts. Remember the Fairfax and Jim. Hill are less than 800 feet from the Mountain Lion, which is now $1.08 per share, and is an investment at that. The Fairfax at 3½ cts., is a speculation. Work is to be pushed.

St. John's Harvest Festival.

This Thursday, 21st, is the day appointed for St. John's Harvest Festival. The service of Holy Communion will be held at 10 a. m. and the evening Festival Service at 8 p. m.

The church is being decorated today with representative products of the harvest, and special music has been provided by the choir. The old well known harvest hymns will be sung.

An address will be given by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt of Omemee. Mr. Langfeldt is a German by birth and education and served in the German army. He came to this country only a few years ago and is a graduate of Wycliffe College. All seats will be free and everyone is heartily invited to attend.

CENTRAL EXHIBITION.

Promises to Be the Best Show Ever Held in Peterborough.

The coming Peterborough Central Exhibition, Sept. 26, 27 and 28 has excellent promise of being the best of the series.

The management have made arrangements for four speeding events to be put on the afternoons of Wednesday and Thursday, the chief days of the Exhibition. One consists of the novelty Race in which the competing horses are required to walk once, trot once and run twice around the track. Entry free to members, best three in five heats.

The Green Purse Race is open to either trotting or pacing and the Farmers and Double Team Race are on similar conditions. These four events will be competed for on the small track inside the Exhibition grounds.

Other attractions on a larger scale on the platform in front of the grand stand will consist of all the principal events generally held at first class exhibitions. The entries are coming in in large numbers.

The Dog Show promises to be one of the most attractive special features as over a hundred entries have already been made.

Besides having the 57th Battalion Band present, arrangements have been made whereby the Cornelius & Taylor Co., will give performances in front of the grand stand. Their specialties are a comical Chinese laundry act and a side splitting trick house turn.

The grounds will be open on Wednesday evening when the price of admission will include entrance into the Dog Show.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Laid Against a Young Man From Chandos Township.

A young man by the name of Watson, from Chandos, in the employ of Mr. Allen Elmhirst, of Percy Township, has fallen into the hands of the law for removing milk from other people's cans and putting it into the can of his employer. For some time Mrs. D. Callaghan, who sends her milk to the Ormond cheese factory, and weights the same before doing so, found there was something wrong as there was considerable difference between the factory's and her weights. Mr. Noonan who draws the milk and generally leaves several cans on Mr. Elmhirst's stand while he gathers up those beyond, set a watch, and succeeded in unravelling the mystery and caught Wilson dipping the milk into Elmhirst's can. Watson at once left his employer but was run down and caught near Norwood by Constable Wright and Mr. Noonan and was safely locked up in the Hastings cooler. A charge was laid before Mr. John Thackery, J. P., of Alnwick, which was heard on Monday when the accused was committed for trial. His employer offered to settle the difficulty by paying all costs and making good any deficiency in loss of milk, but it came too late to be settled out of court.—Hastings Star.

A Handsome Window.

The store windows are commencing to put on a gay fall appearance. That of Messrs. Robert Fair & Co., is especially handsome, and was viewed by many yesterday. The display is entirely the arrangement of Mr. Walter Squires, and not only has he reflected credit upon himself as a window-dresser but upon the store in general. In the window are displayed all the latest novelties in fall wear and the artistic way in which the goods are displayed, adds additional splendour to them.

A Special Prize.

Mr. W. J. Green, secretary of the Central Exhibition, received a card yesterday from Mr. Alf. Brown, of Picton, offering a special prize of five barrels of Queenston Cement by Isaac Usher & Son for best herd of dairy cows—thoroughbreds and grade eligible to compete. The donation includes all information for laying same by Mr. Alf. Brown, the genial agent at Picton.

...To Think Well Means...

Success

Healthy Brains

ARE MADE BY

Grape-Nuts

THE STUDY OF FOOD.

When a man knows that he depends on food alone from which to make his brains and that his success in life is largely owing to the kind of brains he has, it would seem the part of wisdom to study food a bit.

All men do not have the opportunity to make a careful analytical study of the subject and are satisfied to have the food experts attend to this for them.

A food especially made to supply the nourishing elements needed to rebuild the brain and nervous centres bears the name Grape-Nuts, and if used for ten days or two weeks produces a sturdy, substantial and powerful condition of the thinking machinery, enabling one to do things, to make money or succeed in whatever enterprise is reasonably undertaken.

Systematic, logical, concentrated thinking is the one requisite to success and that needs good, healthy brains, well nourished, and the waste supplied each day. Grape-Nuts makes their energy known to the user and being in the form of a delicious food they have become a welcome addition to the tables of brainy people in all parts of the country.

Mr. Bailey took Ballyduff at 11 1-8c for August, and 11 3-16c for September. Mr. Cook offered 11 3-16c for Bensfort and Mr Whitton made this 11 1-4c, which was accepted.

Mr. Rollins offered Myrtle 11 3-16c, Belleville inspection, and it was accepted. Mr. Whitton gave Mt. Pleasant 11 3-8c, Belleville inspection. This was accepted.

The Board then adjourned.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Read the Times Bookstore advertisement, which appears in another column, and you will be interested.

Mr. Sam Purser, of Buckhorn, brought a lunge to town yesterday, which is now to be seen in Phillips & Co's window, which measured 3 feet 10 inches in length and weighed 22 pounds. It is a monster, and puts us in mind of the fish we used to catch in our younger days.

Adam Dobbin came down from the gaol yesterday and asked the Police Magistrate for another term on the hill. He was accommodated.

Our genial and popular lumberman's employing agent is doing a big business this season. He has secured hundreds of men for the woods and has orders for many more. To-morrow he will leave for Georgian Bay with 60 men.

Pupils attending the Public schools cost in Peterborough an average of $11.50 each. This is very high. In many towns the average cost is little more than half. Economy in the School Board is needed.

The total expenditure to date on account of sewers is $58,348.49.

The leaves are tumbling o'er the lawn,
  The smoke is curling high ;
The blissful summer days are gone,
  Jack Frost is lurking nigh.
A blush haze is on the hill,
  The autumn days have come,
And, far away, the cider mill
  Gives forth its merry hum.
The eager horses nibble at
  The last green spears of grass,
But the thing which worries me is that
  It's costing more for gas.

New grain is being marketed freely, and the buyers have their men on the lookout. There promises to be brisk competition.

Mr. J. E. Schwartz, of Pittsburg, Pa., who has been making Port Hope his summer home for some years, has announced his intention of building a $10,000 residence there next season.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Thos. P. Whyte, who has been visiting in town, left for her home in Chicago to-day. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Charles Stapleton.

Mr. Michael Collins, of the Post Office Department, Ottawa, who has been visiting relatives in Ennismore, is spending a few days in town.

Miss Gerty Bacon, Wescott street, has returned from California after an absence of two years.

Mr. J. H. Brandon, of Fenelon Falls, is in town, the guest of his sister, Mrs W H Robertson.

Mr. W. J. Young, of Young's Point, was in town yesterday.

Messrs. Wm. Croft and R. J. Winch drove down to Cobourg yesterday to take in the Ponton trial.

The many friends of Rev. S. J. Shorey will regret to learn that he is confined to his residence through a cold.

Mr. R. Brennan, who holds a good position in Cravenhurst, is on a visit to his family in Ashburnham.

HEART SIGNALS

Quick as a Flash They Appear, but Just as Quickly will They Vanish Under the Healing Spell of Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart.

When the breath is short—when you tire easily—when there is palpitation—when there is smothering sensation—and dropsical tendency—all these indicate heart weakness, and are the danger signals if you procrastinate. Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart is saving lives which in many cases have been proclaimed by eminent physicians as beyond hope. It will relieve most acute cases in thirty minutes, and patience and the remedy will cure any case of heart trouble in existence.

OBITUARY.

The Late Mrs. J. H. McWilliams.

Mrs. J. H. McWilliams of Lakefield, passed away on Saturday evening at the age of 61 years. The deceased was only seriously ill for a couple of weeks, but she had never recovered from an attack of la Grippe. She was Miss Mary Jane McElwain, daughter of the late Matthew McElwain, and was married in 1864. She has been a resident of Lakefield for the past 26 years, enjoying the high esteem of the community in which she lived, and a faithful member of the congregation of the Presbyterian church, Lakefield, she will be sadly missed. Mrs. McWilliams leaves behind her a husband and family of seven, five sons and two and two daughters. The sons are R. J., of Peterborough; M. H. of Ottawa; George of Rapid City, Man.; Bert of Smith Falls and Fred, who lives at home. The daughters are Mrs. A. McCormack, Winnipeg and Miss Effie, who resides at home. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon. The remains were followed to the Lakefield cemetery by a large concourse of friends of the family and of the community generally, who thus testified to the excellence of the qualities of character which endeared the late Mrs. McWilliams to all who knew her.

With characteristic imbecility the French Government is wishing Dreyfus out of the country, instead of securing him as an attraction for the Paris Exposition.

Roach Corroborates Holden as Far as He Stayed in the Game.

THEY DID NOT TRUST PARE

Various Trips to Napanee, and Alleged Meetings With Ponton There.

With Holden and Mackie, Roach Went to Napanee and Met Ponton, Who Gave Them the of Side Door of the Bank—They Could Not Open Door of Vault.

Cobourg, Sept. 21.—In re-examining Held = Mr. Osler brou h out the point in the big convict's career where he had tried to reform. He was given a fresh start after his last term in the penitentiary, but was hounded by private detectives. For fourteen years no charge was brought against him but the detectives caused him to lose job after job by telling his employers that he was a jail-bird. Being warned in Montreal that unless he got work he would be arrested as a vagrant, he turned back into his old ways and undertook the bank robbery.

Two farmers were examined as to a young man they had seen at different times, near Napanee, talking to two other men, but they could not identify Ponton, or say the other men were Pare and Holden.

Fred Russell, a rail way hand, corroborated Holden as to his visit with Pare to Napanee to dig up the money, and an Indian named Hill swore that Pare and Holden stopped at his house on the night of the first attemp to rob the bank.

Then the Crown played its latest card, and John T. Roach, the mysterious fourth man took the stand. Roach has the appearance of an old criminal though he is only 26, and his position did not embarrass him in the least. His statement, he said, was made voluntarily, without promise of reward. Roach began by telling how in 1897, while in Montreal, Holden told him about an affair up west, where a man was willing that a bank should be robbed with his help. He was asked to go up to Napanee, and after talking it all over he decided to go. With Holden he went to the Dominion Hotel in Belleville, the proprietor of which was Mr. MMackie. Holden and he went upstairs to a room and there met Robert Mackie and "White" Mackie. They talked over plans to rob the Dominion Bank at Napanee by drilling a hole through the safe door. It was understood that the vault door was to be open.

With Holden and Mackie, Roach went to Napanee and met Ponton, who gave them a key to the side door of the bank. They went into the bank, but could not get the cap off the vault door and went out again. They went to the Paisley House, where Mackie had a talk with Ponton. A second journey was made to the bank. Ponton going in first. He reported everything "all right," and the crooks followed him in and tried to drill a hole in the safe, but could not. They then went back to Belleville on a freight train.

The next day they found Mackie had had his feet frozen. That night Holden and Roach went again to Napanee, and after much trouble, as described by Holden with the dog, started again to drill the safe, failing again. Then other schemes were thought of, among them the capture of Durand and forcing the combination from him. A decoy letter was to be written purporting to be from a girl, to lure Durand to a lonely spot, but, before it could be used Mackie found that the Belleville police were suspicious of Holden, and the latter, with Roach, went back to Montreal.

Roach spent several weeks in Montreal, and then letters from Robert Mackie began to arrive, asking him to come up and to bring Pare with him. "I know Pare," said Roach; that is, I had met him, and I went to his sister's house several times but he was out of town Finally I found him and told him about the bank, and we decided to go up. At Belleville they came to a quarrel. Pare wanted to see Ponton. and Holden did not want it. He carried messages from Pare to Ronton—messages that told Ponton what to do to gain information of the safe combination. It was finally left to a vote as to whether Pare should see Ronton, and the vote decided that the two men should meet.

Then we all had an argument. Each of the crowd seemed to want to be the man to count the money after the bank was robbed. They seemed to be afraid that Pare would steal some of the money. There was a good many differences. Pare wanted to be general and Holden wanted to be general. Pare was the high supreme schemer. He wanted to be allowed in the bank at the noon hour, while Ponton was alone, for the purpose of securing a look at the combination. Ponton was afraid of this, and said that in case any one entered the bank while pare was there, he, Pare, would have to hold up Ronton to save the bank teller, and would have to submit to arrest for trying to rob the bank. When Pare heard this he turned all kinds of colors and refused.

Roach told of Ponton bringing some wax to Pare and the latter making an impression therefrom.

Ponton found it impossible to master the combination, and told the gang during one of his visits to the camp outside the town that he would have to wait till Mr. Baines went fishing. Another attempt was made to get into the bank at night, in which Roach and Mackie were instructed to decoy Constable Perry by acting suspiciously so that he would follow them away off on another street, but they failed in this.

Then Roach got sick of the job and left.

The young crook wound up his story by describing Ponton's room. He told of having written to Ponton demanding a share of money if the bank was robbed. He never got anything of the $1,000 which Pare left for him.

Suing the Town.

Several actions for damages against the corporation are threatened in connection with the levels of the new sidewalks. The Times was told yesterday that an action would be begun in a few days and damages placed at a high figure. In such an event is the cost in connection therewith chargeable against the property affected in the same proportion as the walks? Our experience with corporation law suits is not very encouraging. Is this why the Council proposes to change its solicitor?

A Distinguished Visitor.

Lord Fitzgibbon, Chief Justice of the Court of Appeal in Ireland, passed through town on Saturday to Stony Lake, where he spent Sunday. He returned on Monday

On the War Path.

The disclosures made in connection with the new walks, first published in the Times, caused somewhat of a sensation. Yesterday the Mayor and several members of the Council spent a portion of the day in interviewing the contractors, and endavoring to get at the facts. That grave irregularities exist every one believes. The Times is in favor of referring the whole matter to the County Judge. It is the only correct way of dealing with the case.

Local Talent Abroad.

An entertainment was held in Downeyville, Tuesday evening under the auspices of the literary society of that place. Mr. T. J. Begley, of town, acted as chairman, and Mr. Dan Simons contributed several humorous numbers to the programme, including his giraffe speciality. Rev. Father F. O'Sullivan gave a short address during the evening. The other clergymen present were Rev. Father Phelan, Lindsay, and Rev. Father Scanlon, formerly of the cathedral.

WANT TO TEST THE ACT.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT SUBMITS QUESTIONS TO THE COURT

And the Judges Will Decide as to Who May Participate in the Argument—For the Lord's Day Alliance.

The Court of Appeal has received a list of questions sent down by the Ontario Government regarding the Lord's Day Act, arising out of the suggested legislation. The questions summarized are:

Has the Ontario Legislature power to amend the Lord's Day Act?

Has the Legislature power to prohibit worldly labor, business or work in connection with the operation of lines of steam or other ships, railways, canals, telegraphs and other works and undertakings to which the exclusive legislative authority of the Dominion Parliament extends under the British North American Act?

Do the words "other persons whatsoever" in the Act include all classes of persons other than those ennumerated?

Are individuals who do the labor for corporations prohibited whether the corporations are or are not within the prohibition?

Do the words "conveying travellers" apply exclusively to the carrying to or towards their destination of persons who are in the course of a journey at the commencement of the Lord's Day?

Do the words "work of necessity" apply so as to include the doing of that which is necessary for the care or preservation of property so as to prevent irreparable damag other than mere loss of time for the period during which the prohibition extends? If so, is the necessity contemplated by the statute only that which arises for the exigency of particular and occasional circumstances, or may such necessity grow out of, or be incident to a particular manufacture, trade or calling? If such necessity may grow out of, or be incident to a particular manufacture, trade or calling, do the words "work of necessity" apply exclusively to doings on the Lord's Day of that without which the particular manufacture, trade or calling cannot successfully be carried on during the remaining days of the week?

FENELON WATER POWER

THE VILLAGERS OPPOSED TO TRANSMISSION.

A Letter from a Prominent Citizen Says the Village Council Will Oppose the Scheme Tooth and Nail by Law suit.

The Lindsay Post says:—As our people are deeply concerned in the successful carrying out of the Burleigh Falls-Peterborough-Lindsay and Fenelon Falls-Lindsay power transmission schemes, the following excerpt from a letter received by us from a well-known Fenelon Falls citizen will no doubt prove interesting:—

Messrs. Needler and Sadter, who, some time ago, purchased the water power here in order to transmit the same to Lindsay for the purpose of light, heat and power in that town, have now quite a number of men employed and are already making good headway with their work. The old wooden penstock and sluice-ways, which have been considered unequal to the occasion, have been torn down, and in their stead stronger and more permanent ones of stone are already being built. But, are not these gentlemen

Reckoning Without Their Host?

Your correspondent believes they are. No doubt they bought the water, and no no one said they have not paid for it; but it appears they have still to learn that there are some other little formalities to be gone through with before they are sufficiently well in possession of the situation to make connection between here and the right of way they profess to control from Fenelon Falls to Lindsay. They have told us they do not have to treat with us for any privileges, that all the water power shall be used in Lindsay, and for our impudence in daring to want anything for the franchise for our streets not one spoonfull shall be left behind. Some people are saying that the

to anyone to place poles on their property. Your correspondent cannot say as to the reliability of this information, but one thing, however, is certain—and Messrs Needler and Sadler may depend upon it, that your correspondent has it on best authority—that the moment an attempt is made to place a wire across the public highway, no matter how high above, or how far below, will promptly be served, at the instance of our Reeve and Council, who have instructed their Lindsay and Toronto solicitors to take every action in the matter to stop these gentlemen in their high-handed performance, and, if necessary, teach them that, although they begun by using lots of powder, and bombarding the town, we can give them powder of another kind which may possibly cost them very many times more than the powder they are now using.

An Injunction

BOERS ARE BOASTING

A Report From Their London Organ That They Have 52,000 Men.

THE FREE STATE IS UGLY.

The Devonshire Regiment and a Squadron of 19th Hussars, Together With Major General Hunter Have Sailed From Bombay for the Cape.

Pretoria, Sept. 21.—Gen. Joubert the Boer commander-in-chief, is quoted as saying in an inetrview: "The situation is serious. Probably the heaviest fighting would occur on the Natal border. The British are likely to attempt to invade the Transvaal by way of the Vanreinans Pass."

Urgent messages are reaching the Rand from members who are demanding authority for the Boers to mass at strategic points.

London, Sept. 21.—The London edition of the Standard and the Digger News, of Johannesburg, gave out a cable despatch to-day, purporting to be from Johannesburg, saying that the returns from the field cornets of the Transvaal and Orange Free State shows that 52,000 burghers are ready to take the field at short notice.

They Call It Treason.

The speech of Sir William Vernon Harcourt and the message of the Cape Town Afrikander members of Parliament to President Kruger have proved "Red Rags" to the "war at any price" party.

The Cape papers declare the action of the members of Parliament amounts almost to treason, and the same terms are applied to Sir William Vernon Harcourt's remarks by the English anti-Boer papers

Those who claim the situation has not yet passed the Rubicon of pacific negotiations, see in President's Kruger's answer to the Afrikanders a genuine desire to avoid hostilities.

Preparations for war continue energetically on both sides. The Boers are laagering and British troops are reaching Kimberly and Ladysmith, the onward march of the latter being marked by enthusiastic ovations from the scared inhabitants and hordes hurrying southward for safety.

Boers Ready To Raid.

The latest report of Boer activity emanates from Newcastle, Natal, saying that he Transvaal forces are encamped at Zandsprint and intend to raid immediately after they understand that Mr. Chamberlain's reply is not satisfactory.

The British army nursing service sails from Southampton to-morrow, and Major-General French sails Saturday for Durban, Natal, to command the cavalry brigade.

The answer of President Steyn, of the Orange Free State, to Sir Alfred Milner, is not regarded as a satisfactory explanation of the Free State's position and by no means dissipates the increased seriousness with which the situation is regarded.

Troops Sail For The Cape.

Bombay, Sept. 21.—Major-General Hunter and his staff, with the Devonshire regiment and a squadron of the 19th Hussars, have sailed for the Cape.

REBUFF TO BRITAIN.

Cape Town, Sept. 21.—Sir Alfred Milner's despatch to President Steyn, informing him that the British and Transvaal Governments are still hopeful of a friendly settlement, and that should this hope be disappointed, he looks to the Orange Free State to preserve strict neutrality and to prevent military intervention by any of its citizens, is dated September 19, and says:

"I am prepared to give formal assurance that, in such case, the integrity of the Orange Free States to will be respected under all conditions. So far as her Majesty's Government is aware, there is absolutely no cause to justify any disturbance of the between Great Britain and the Orange Free State. Her Majesty's Government is animated by the most friendly sentiments toward the Orange Free State, and there is no truth in any suggestion that her Majesty's Government desires to impair the independence of that republic."

The Reply Not Favorable.

"The Government of the Orange Free State shares her Majesty's Government's hopefulness of a friendly settlement and does not even now see that force is the only solution. Looking to the state of apprehension in South Africa, the Orange Free State Government regrets the despatch of troops, but will do all it can to allay excitement. If the course pursued, following upon other military preparations on their borders should, as is not improbable, be regarded by the burghers as a menace to the Orange Free State and cause a strong feeling of mistrust, and should unwished for developments arise therefrom, the responsibility will not rest with my Government. I will submit your excellency's telegram to the Volksraad early."

He also says his Government would view with deep regret any disturbances of those friendly relations which had always existed between Great Britain and the Orange Free State.

APPEALING TO KRUGER.

Cape Town, Sept. 20.—Delayed in transmission—At a meeting of the Afrikander members of Parliament today, Mr. Neethling presided. The following telegram was despatched to President Kruger.

"We, Afrikanders members of Parliament, thoroughly sympathise with our Afrikkander relatives in their troubles. While appreciating the concessions already made in the interests of peace, we beg to urge the expediency of doing the utmost, short of sacrificing independence, to avert the horrors of war. While agreeing that the joint enquiry proposed by Mr. Chamberlain cannot be asked as a matter of right, we believe such a commission will provide a way out of the difficulties which are fast approaching a crisis with results which might prove fatal, not only to the Transvaal and our Free State brethern, but also to the Afrikander party of Cape Colony.

"In the presence of immediate danger and the momentous issues awaiting the decision of your honor, the Executive and the Volksraad, even the risk of being misunderstood, is of minor importance. We beg your honor to lay these words, only dictated by a keen sense of our common interests and risks, privately before the Executive and Volksraad."

Kruger's Thankks.

This message which was signed by fifty-three members of Parliament, received the following reply from President Kruger:

"I wish you and other sympathizers will notice, as you have doubtless already seen by the reply of the Imperial Government, that we have, according to your desire considered the matter and accepted the invitation of the joint commission. Why the acceptance was delayed is shown by the despatches published. I wish to thank you and other friends once more, from my heart, for the manner in which you have aided our efforts for a pacific and satisfactory solution. Finally, I express the hope that your work and ours will not be fruitless."

The meeting also adopted a resolution to the effect that it had heard with satisfaction that the Executive of the Transvaal and accepted the invitation of the joint enquiry and trusted the acceptance would render an outbreak of hostilities practically impossible.

Strike at Fort William?

Toronto, Sept. 21.—A report at the Board of Trade this afternoon said that the C.P.R. freight handlers at Fort William, following the example of their brothers at Owen Sound have gone on strike.

The cause was not known, but presumably it is a demand for increased wages.

At this season a large quantity of freight is moving by water and the time, just as the grain begins to move and it is desired to rush through as much as possible before the close of navigation, is especially opportune for the men to strike, but annoying to the company.

This strike, if it is general and continues, will, of course, tie up the company's boat service and cause the idleness of the freight handlers at the eastern end of the route, Owen Sound.

The Canadian Pacific will in this emergency rush its freight through by the all-rail route.

Sir Charles Won't Change.

Ottawa, Sept. 21.—A press despatch from Halifax states that Sir Charles Tupper will run in his old constituency of Cumberland at the next general election. Mr. Dickey having declined to contest the constituency. Your correspondent has it on the best of authority that the statement is absolutely without foundation. Sir Charles Tupper will run for his present constituency of Cape Breton, and it is generally expected that Mr. Dickey will be the Conservative standard-bearer in Cumberland.

A Crazy Frenchman.

Algiers, Sept. 21.—After dispersing the crowds that had gathered in the vicinity of the villa just outside the town in which Max Regis, formerly Mayor of Algiers and a notorious Jew-baiter, had barricaded himself with a party of adherents causing a riot, the police remained around the villa through the early hours of the morning. Absolute silence prevailed, but in the obscurity could be seen the sentinels placed by Max Regis in the garden behind bushes, with guns on their shoulders.

A Pointer on Elections.

Ottawa, Sept. 21.—The Dominion Voters' Lists will not be ready for use before the early part of December and if there is any delay in receiving the lists from the municipalities they will not be ready then.

This ought to be remembered when the general election is spoken of.

The Government would be able to get them out earlier by putting on an extra number of hands, but so far nothing of the kind is talked of. Sir Wilfrid Laurier returned here this morning from Strathroy, where he was speaking at the fair.

Sudden Death.

Miss Maggie McNevan, one of the oldest residents of Otonabee, died very suddenly on Tuesday last. She had been in town and was returning home in the evening when she was suddenly taken ill. She was carried into Mr. John Renwick's and a doctor summoned, but she was beyond medical aid, and died shortly after. The deceased lady was seventy-seven years of age, and came to Otonabee with her parents, who were among the earliest settlers, when only two years of age.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPTEMBER 22, 1899

THE PLAIN ENGLISH OF IT.

Bredren," said the distinfuished colored preacher, "when God made de first man out of the slime of the earth he placed him 'gainst de fence to dry."

"Stop dat," retorted the preacher with emphasis, "sich questions as dat would upset any system of theology."

This was rather an arbutrary way of disposing of a difficulty, yet it was not a whit more so than Ald. Langford's way of dealing with the crookedness in regard to our street contracts. Mr. Langford accepted the position of chairman of the Works Committee, and in doing so put himself in a place of responsibility and trust. That he should have permitted the gross irregularities which are alleged to have occurred in connection with the contracts, is not at all creditable either to himself or the Committee under him.

The Times is in favor of referring the entire matter in regard to the pavements and bridges to the Judge to investigate. This is the only proper course to pursue. It will then be discovered how matters really are.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Good morning.

•• •• ••

It will soon be truly said of the British lion that it beats the Dutch.

•• •• ••

The new walkks built by the Council this year will be used to run some of the Aldermen out next January.

•• •• ••

•• •• ••

Ald. Langford refuses to take all the credit of running the Works Committee. Like his rheumatism, it is a joint affair.

•• •• ••

When the Engineer's friends, the contractors, tell him they'll pull him through his difficulty with the Council, it looks as if they intended to pull him by the leg.

•• •• ••

The ratepayers are wondering what new sensational developments are to come next. Unless there is a change of sentiment, the Aldermen will have a chance to do a little wondering on their own account in January.

Day Work the Cheapest.

Ald. Langford says that the walks that are being laid by day work is costing 16 cents per foot as compared with 14 cents and a fraction, which is the contract price. Perhaps the difference is more than accounted for by reason of the fact that the proper grade and amount of cement is being used by the day men.

Superstructure Too Low.

Mr. C. Huffman has written the Council calling attention to the fact that the superstructure of the new bridge on Dalhousie street is too low to admit of carrying off spring freshets, and gave notice of holding the town responsible for damages resulting therefrom. This is another of the blunders of the present management of our streets and bridges. The ratepayers are becoming indignant over so much of this sort of work.

In India.

The Times is in receipt of some papers from India, in which we find the following "personal": "Mr. and Mrs. Thambyanyagampillai are now on a visit to Kovilkudrirruppu. Mr. Thambyanyagampillai is the son of Judge G. S. Arianaygampillai, and son-in-law of A. Jamalliaammudaliar."

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and easy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my dernedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

The Hint That Failed.

The landlady looked solemnly in the direction of the delinquent one.

"It's a rule in this house to pay as you go," said she.

The delinquent one smiled.

"It's a good plan," said he. "You get it all in a bunch then or nothing."—Syracuse Herald.

The men-of-war of the ancient Romans had a crew of about 225 men, of which 174 were oarsmen working on three decks. The speed of these vessels was about [illegible] an hour in fair weather.

Can She Save Them?

Many a poor mother who feels that those she holds most precious are gradually slipping away from her over the terrible precipice of disease, would be thankful to know what Dr. Pierce's wonderful "Golden Medical Discovery" has done to restore thousands of weak and wasted children to complete rounded, rosy, healthy, activity and life.

"My little girl had a severe attack of fever," writes Mrs. Wm. S. Vollmer, of Concord, Cabarrus Co., N. C., in a letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. "I had two physicians for her. She had a very bad cough, raised a great deal, and had wasted to a mere skeleton; only her feet and ankles were swollen. I knew what Dr. Pierce's medicines had done for us before so I commenced giving her 'Golden Medical Discovery' and a 'Pellet' occasionally.

"In a few days I noticed the fever was less; her cough gradually grew better, expectoration grew less; in a few days she sat up in bed, and soon she could take a few steps. She kept on improving slowly and after a few weeks the swelling in feet and ankles went down, and she kept on step by step until she got well. This is more than two years ago.

"Last winter, Lula (my oldest daughter) had Grippe very badly. Her physician was uneasy; he told me to be very careful or she would have pneumonia. She was left with an awful cough. I gave her 'Golden Medical Discovery' and it cured her cough. I will be pleased to have my letter published. If persons wishing to know more about the great benefits we have received from using Dr. Pierce's medicines will write, enclosing stamp, I will gladly answer."

If mothers will only write to Dr. Pierce concerning the ailments of their family he will send them sound and valuable advice in a plain sealed envelope, and without any charge whatever. His remarkably wide experience has qualified him to deal with diseases which baffle the local practitioner.

The Theater in China.

The dresses are magnificent, as bewilderingly curious as any stage manager at home ever conceived. All the talking is in strained falsetto, and there are yelling and posturing and wailing and confusion. Suddenly the band breaks in with an awful crash—such a marvelous band, five drums and ten pairs of cymbals—such a deafening smashing and banging! With hoarse screams dozens of imps, green faced and yellow eyed and horned, rush on the stage and gyrate and flout banners and draw up in lines and swing partners and set to places. An ochre faced, villainous chief demon, a heap of fantasticalness, twirls like a teetotum, and there is more banging and jumping and swinging and mad pandemonium, and the cymbals and the drums rend the air. It is terrific. At it again, with mighty clatter and heavings, spinning, flag waving, contortioning—it is the accumulated uproar of the world all pressed into one Chinese theater.

You sit tight, with fixed gaze, waiting for the drums of your ears to crack, and when the top of your head is about to fly off there is one awful thunderous bang, and the demon king, chorus, orchestra, the whole crowd, fall, flop, and the act is over.—Travel.

Of No Use.

"In announcing the collection," remarked the pastor, "I shall repeat that he who giveth unto the poor lendeth unto the Lord, only adding that the Lord has no use for brass buttons, except as mementos of the donors!"—Detroit Journal.

Following are extracts from the report of Capt T. H. Trethewey, M.E., upon the Company's properties which are now being vigorously developed, and upon which will be installed the 6 dr compressor plant, which was purchased from the Canadian Rand Drill Co. on the 5th inst. for immediate delivery.

MR. TRETHEWEY SAYS:

"The vein on these properties is well defined, and, where exposed by the workings near the line between the Western H and Virginia, averages fully 18 ft. in width. The gauge consists of a somewhat crushed and iron-stained quartz, sparingly mineralized with Galena, Copper and Iron Pyrites, with here and there small amount of Blend and Graphite disseminated throughou

"On the Western Hill, a a shaft has been sunk to a depth of 27 ft. on the foot wall, and the ledge has been exposed by cross cut to its full width; it here appears to be divided into hanging and foot wall portions by a seam of somewhat decomposed clay material which appears to dip toward the hanging wall, cutting out the leaner and allowing the richer portions of the vei to increase with depth."

"Samples taken in this shaft, across an 8 ft. face lying next to the foot wall, gave an average return of $7.00 in Gold an $1.35 in Silver, making a total of $8.35 per ton, while the balance of the vein gave a return of $2.00 in Gold and 70 cents in Silver making a total of $2.70 per ton for a width of ten feet, so that $5.25 may be considered a fair average for the full width of the vein.

"The conclusion I have drawn after a thorough examination and study of the facts as here presented is, that judicious devel opement should locate extensive bodies of pay ore, as even if only the 8 ft. next to the foot wall be extracted, the values continuing in depth as there is no reason why they should not, while leaner portions may be encountered they could be left in the mine to support the walls, and you would still have a proposition of unlimited tonnage well worthy of judicious expenditure in exposing its resources."

"The general conditions, elevation, etc., are so favorable that mining operations can be carried on for many years by simply tunnelling into the mountain and following the trend of the vein, and hundreds of thousands of tons of ore can readily be made available without the use of hoisting or pumping machinery."

"Situated as these claims are about 2100 ft. above the bank of the Okanagan River, with a natural outlet for Ærial or other tramway, and only about three miles from the "Black Hawk" Claim, which is within easy reach of the river, the question of transportation of ore from the mine to the mill could be easily arranged."

"With an electric plant established at Dog Falls, which is possibly ten miles distant, ample power could be generated at a nominal cost for all purposes, and by adopting the most modern methods of mining, milling and concentrating, together with an unlimited supply of ore, the cost of production should be reduced to a minimum."

"If the present promising assurances are borne out, the opening up of the three levels could develope at least a three years' supply of ore for a plant of large capacity, and I would stongly recommend the erection and installation of a mill of not less than from 250 to 300 tons daily capacity."

"With cheap power an unlimited supply of ore and a plant capable of handling the quantity I have suggested, the cost of mining and milling ought not to exceed from $1.50 to $2.00 per ton, and under capable management it should be kept within the lower limits."

"Thus even if the lowest values, $3.05 be taken as a basis of calculation and allowing that 85 p. c. of this can be savec would yield a profit of $1.09 for each ton of ore treated but I am of opinion that much higher values may be confidently expec and if there is a profit winner in the camp, all conditions considered, this one can be conscientiously recommended to the inves public."

At the next Annual Meeting of the Company, which will be held on the 6th d of November next, several of Montreal's most prominent business men will acc Directorship.

POOR JADED FRANCE!

Dreyfusards to Continue the Agitation Against the Generals.

THEY NOW SEEK REVENGE

And Will Not Allow Peace to be Bought With Pardon of Dreyfus.

"Pardon; What Then?"—Leading Organ of the Dreyfusard Party Publishes an Article by a Distinguished Journalist Who Was a Leader in the Revision Movement.

Paris, Sept. 20.—The Aurore, the leading organ of the Dreyfusard [illegible] to-day publishes an article by Mr Francis de Pressense, the distinguished journalist, who from the first was a leader in the revision movement. The article is headed, "Pardon—and what afterward?"

The writer says: "If the President, by pardoning Dreyfus, wishes to spare France the ineffaceable shame of a judicial crime, this exercise of his prerogative called mercy, so far from impairing the necessary work of justice, will only prepare and facilitate it, for we must speak straight out.

Will Not Stop Agitation.

"If it was imagined that immunity for criminals could be purchased by pardoning innocent men; if it was thought that the friends of law would barter amnesty to the scoundrels who perpetrated these crimes for the bruised body of the man from whom they have torn out the soul, then we throw from us this degrading and deceitful offer. Dreyfus would be the first to reject as an infamy such traffic with his honor.

"No. The pardoning of Dreyfus can only be the natural, legitimate, and spontaneous action by which the representatives of the civil power refuse to associate themselves with the obstinate iniquity committed by the military judges.

After The Generals.

"As for us, we shall pursue with increased ardor the task of public salvation to which we have devoted ourselves. There have been crimes and offenses committed in obscurity, by a gang of Pretorian conspirators with Mercier at its head. We are going to pursue more energetically than ever the work of obtaining their chastisement."

M Pressense goes on to declare that when the Generals have been punished the Dreyfusards will continue the campaign "until courts-martial have been abolished, and iron fires have been carried into the sores of the diplomatic corps and society."

The foregoing article clearly outlines the militant attitude of the Dreyfusards and shows that France will not be allowed to rest quietly, even though Dreyfus be set at liberty.

An anti-Dreyfusard organ publishes a long story asserting that President Loubet signed the decree of pardon a week ago, after an interview between M. Joseph Reinach and the Premier, M. Waldeck-Rousseau, the result of which was that the latter insisted upon the President signing the degree, which was done, the paper declared at the Cabinet Council September 12.

This story is improbable, its object obviously being to bring discredit upon the President and the premier, by making it appear that they are completely "under the thumb of the Jews." It can be regarded as certain that the decree was only signed yesterday, because it could not be signed until the Court of Revision had given its decision on the Dreyfus appeal, or until Dreyfus had withdrawn the appeal.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Write for catalogue No. 30 to the COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, No. 313 Main street Buffalo, N. Y.

Subtle Power of Happiness.

"Next to the art of living justly and kindly with our fellows comes the art of maintaining a life of happiness and tranquillity," writes the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis of "The Secrets of a Happy Life" in The Ladies' Home Journal, "for the soul was made for joy and good cheer. Life is a school; labor and sorrow, victory and defeat toil together as teachers, but happiness is life's aim and graduating point. Next to the duty of self denial comes the duty of delight. What ripeness is to an orange, what song is to the lark, what culture and refinement are to the intellect, that happiness is to the soul. As vulgarity and ignorance betoken a neglected mind, so unhappiness and misery proclaim the neglected heart

"The normal nature will keep strong and fresh the chords that vibrate joy. Depression and worry take the nerve out of man's arm, take the keen edge from his mind, rob life of its victory, for unhappiness wins no battles, gloom invents no tool, wretchedness writes no drama. Earth's great achievements represent those whose hearts sang over the tasks. To meet [illegible] with [illegible], defeat with faith, ingratitude with charity, is not an easy thing. Nothing requires so much wisdom, practice and skill as learning how to live habitually above the distemperatures of life."

OUTWITTING AN ELEPHANT

A Hunter Saved by His Knowledge of the Beast's Habits.

Only those familiar with the "manners and customs" of the elephant have any idea what a nimble creature it really is. Massive and slow footed as it looks, it is capable, when roused, of feats that would be difficult for much fleeter animals. Especially is this the case with African elephants, which, though taller, are generally lighter than their Asiatic brethren. Moreover, accustomed for ages to lead a wild life and often depending on their alertness and speed of foot for their very existence, they have acquired a skill in gymnastics which has occasionally taken even old elephant hunters by surprise.

In illustration of this fact we are reminded of a story told by one of the sportsmen in Africa. He was "out after elephants" and had just fired at and wounded a magnificent specimen. Unfortunately for him, he had only succeeded in slightly wounding it, when, infuriated by the attack, it turned and charged him. It was a terrifying sight. With its enormous ears spread out like sails and emitting shrill notes of rage, it came thundering over the ground like a runaway locomotive. The hunter fired another shot, but missed. His nerve was shaken, and, throwing down his "express" rifle, he sought safety in flight. Near at hand was a steep hill, and to this he directed his steps, for, being but slightly acquainted with the climbing powers of the elephant, he thought his pursuer might be baffled by the steepness of the ascent.

It was a terrible disappointment to find that the elephant could climb a hill just as quickly as the hunter, nimble runner as he was. The fugitive, indeed, would have soon been overtaken if he had not thought of a really ingenious ruse. He knew that elephants never run, or even walk, down a steep incline, but always crouch down, gather their feet together, lean well back and slide down. Just as the ferocious animal had got within a few yards of him, therefore, the wily hunter suddenly doubled and ran down the hill again.

Quick as a flash the elephant turned, gathered himself together and, trumpeting with baffled rage, slid down after his victim. The hunter had just time to spring out of the way as the great beast came "tobogganing" after him, smashing trees and shrubs and carrying everything before it like an avalanche. Then, once more the hunter dashed to the top of the hill, while the elephant, unable to stop itself, went careering down to the very foot, where, apparently feeling very sore and disappointed, it rose and walked wearily back to its native woods.—Chums.

Odd Disasters.

In an English coal mine a few years ago a callous youth viciously pricked a pony with his penknife. The wounded animal kicked out furiously, overturning and breaking several safety lamps. The naked flames fed the foul gases in the air and created an appalling explosion, which wrought the death of over a hundred miners.

Sun rays, shining through a decanter of water on to the cartridge of a loaded rifle, slew a sleeping man on a lounge near by. The innocent owner of the rifle was arraigned for the supposed crime and was sentenced to death, when the testimony of a shrewd detective solved the mystery and secured his reprieve.

A German family, seven in number, lost their lives by a somewhat unique accident. They slept in one large apartment, lighted by gas. Before retiring the father hung his overcoat above the gas burner. During the night this garment slipped and fell on the tap, turning the gas full on and so suffocating the slumbering inmates.

His Prerogative.

Speaking about speeches in the senate, Don Cameron had the record for the senator with the longest service and the shortest speech. The then senator from Pennsylvania spent a good deal of time in the senate chamber, but he always lolled around in his chair, apparently taking no interest in the proceedings. The whole session seemed to bore him until late in the afternoon, when he used to put enough energy in himself to rise in his seat and say to the vice president, "I move the senate adjourn." Toward the end of his service in the senate Mr. Cameron seemed to consider this motion his prerogative, and no one disputed his claim, as it seemed to be the only way of recording his presence.

The new walkks built by the Council this year will be used to run some of the Aldermen out next January.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing [illegible] evening's entertainment. Other so-[illegible] talking machines reproduce only records of [illegible] subjects specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

BRITISH CABINET MEETS

On Friday and Will Then Discuss What to Do With Kruger.

MORE BRITISH TROOPS GO.

Arrangements Completed for Sending an Army Corps to South Africa.

The Arrest of Boer Officials by the Portuguese is Likely to Create Serious Complications—Uitlanders are Weary of the Tension and Want Negotiations Broken.

London, Sept. 20.—The Transvaal and Orange Free State officials are urging the British residents to leave Pretoria, as they fear that the young Africanders may get out of hand.

More Btitish Troops.

It is said arrangements have been completed for sending a full army corps to South Africa.

The Transvaal has just got 1,600,000 cartridges from Orange Free State.

Kruger Wants Mediation.

It is said Kruger has unofficially approached three Europea powers, asking for their good offices and also that the Netherlands is privately trying to arrange a peaceful solution.

Boers Indignant.

Pretoria became excited and indignant at the receipt of rumors launched in London that Great Britain contemplates proposing a new convention, demanding that the Transvaal forts be dismantled and burghers partially disarmed. If it was true, said Secretary Reitz, war would be inevitable.

The Free State commandants are discussing the position with the Transvaal commandant general.

The meeting of the Free State's Volksraad to-morrow (Thursday) will have an important influence upon the situation.

War With Afghans?

A curious rumor is spreading in the lower ranks of the army that Great Britain will be involved with Afghanstan as well as the Transvaal.

A rumor from Pietermaritzburg, Natal, says that the Boers have purchased cyanide of potassium to poison the streams in the Transvaal likely to be used by British troops.

Boer troops now control both the Beira and Newcastle railways as they enter Transvaal territory.

The Stubborn Parliament.

A despatch to the Central News from Pietermaritzbuag, Natal, says that trustworthy advices from Pretoria indicate that the Governments of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State are in favor of a peaceful settlement by the acceptance of the British proposals. The Volksraad of the Transvaal refuses, however, to sanction a settlement on this basis. President Kruger, knowing that he can depend on a large body of popular support, may resort to a coup d'etat, proroguing the Volksraad and continuing the negotiations himself.

Complications.

Cape Town, Sept. 20.—The arrest of Boer officials by the Portuguese is regarded as likely to cause serious complications.

The Bund of women is preparing a peace appeal to Queen Victoria.

Martial Law.

London, Sept. 20.—The second edition of the Times prints a despatch from Johannesburg, dated yesterday, saying:

"Outwardly, Johannesburg is quiet. The prevailing feeling, however, is one of intense uneasiness, owing to the possibility of martial law being proclaimed at any moment. It probably will be proclaimed at the end of the week. It is said that when this is done the Government will insist on all persons unfavorable to the Boers leaving within 48 hours."

MEN OF MARK.

President McKinley finds little leisure for light reading, but is a careful student of the newspapers.

Joseph Leiter has by no means decided to drop the stock market. He is a constant visitor to Wall street.

J. Pierpont Morgan is an expert pool player and an evening rarely passes when he does not enjoy an after dinner game.

Joel Chandler Harris, Georgia's famous author, breeder and poet, is to have an exhibit of Jersey cattle at the Paris exposition.

Senator Clark has just bought in Paris, for his Washington house, an old stained glass window, once the property of the Countess de Jauze, for $30,000.

Sims Reeves says he lost $400,000 during his career as a public singer because he was too conscientious to appear on the stage unless sure he could do his best.

Ex-Representative Ben T. Cable is to furnish much of the money for the building of a chapter house for the Zeta Psi fraternity at the University of Michigan.

The Russian Prince Cantacuzene, whose betrothal to Miss Julia Grant has just been announced, has retired to his Russian estates to make preparations for the reception of his bride.

Before Rear Admiral Kautz left for Samoa a young woman asked him whether he had ever "felt afraid in battle." "Once," he answered. "A stray ball knocked my cigar out of my mouth and there wasn't another aboard."

The late ex-Governor Flower was once asked by a less successful financier how to succeed in Wall street. "By working harder than at any other trade or profession on earth," was the answer. "But won't that wear you out?" "Not before your time."

Mayor Moir of Scranton was years ago a journeyman tailor in Philadelphia. John Ross of the former city needed a workman, and Mr. Moir, being recommended, was offered inducements to go to Scranton. In February last Mr. Moir was elected chief executive of the city.

Henry G. Kittredge, editor of the Textile World, Boston, has been appointed assistant director of textiles for the commissioner general of the United States to the Paris exposition of 1900. Mr. Kittredge has long been identified with the textile industries of the United States.

Russell Sage is no friend of the camera, and very rarely is it that a photographer is quick enough to get a snap shot of the millionaire. As for sitting for a picture, that has probably occurred less frequently during the millionaire's long life than that of any other equally prominent man in the country.

TOWN TOPICS.

The curfew bell was rung last night at 8:30 o'clock. Nothing sensational resulted. It just rang; that was all.—Freeport Bulletin.

The companies are selling their gas so cheaply in New York that several of the metropolitan newspapers are filled with it every day.—Detroit Journal.

Buffalo is to have a new union station to cost $6,000,000, with a waiting room 80 by 225 feet, that will be the largest in the world. How about this, Boston?—Gardiner Reporter-Journal.

Buffalo is in a flutter over an extremely wicked Midway that it expects to have at the Pan American exposition, and can't think of a suitable name for it. Why not call it Hamburg Paradise?—Rochester Democrat.

All because of a blessed war to the knife squabble between rival companies New York is now enjoying 65 cent gas. Father Knickerbocker will be a weak old gentleman if he lets them restore the higher rate.

MOTIVES AND METHODS.

A Missouri girl killed herself because her sweetheart had gone to the war.

Because his mother would not let him go in swimming an Arkansas boy cut his throat.

Forked branches of an apple tree were used as a noose by a Stroudsburg (Pa.) suicide.

Champagne with arsenic in it was used by a San Francisco man as a means of self destruction.

Her husband wanted to move, and she did not. That led a Connecticut woman to drink poison.

Fearing that his wife would scold him for getting home late a newly made London bridegroom committed suicide.

"Ah, to see the moon at a distance of one meter," was the note left by a Paris suicide explaining his motive for death.

THE CYNIC.

After a man has told you his troubles you know more about his kin.

You will find a loafer leech attached to every industrious man or woman.

An honest man is one who admits that his baldness is due to old age and not to sickness.

Every bridegroom finds an excuse to return from his wedding journey sooner than originally planned.

Every circus man lays all his plans on the assumption that the people are chumps. Every circus man gets rich.

After the people have worked themselves to death to raise a preacher's salary, he decides that he can do better elsewhere and resigns.

It would be interesting to know how much longer the week should be, in order that the men may find their Sunday underwear ready without fussing.—Atchison Globe.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Work of laying the cable from Vancouver to Fanning island and thence to Australia and New Zealand will begin this summer, it is announced.

The new Nernst electric light dispenses with the usual vacuum bulb and replaces the hairlike filament with a short bar of refractory material, thereby greatly increasing the light and cheapening the cost.

Experiments have been made lately by French government officials with a new telephone, which enables persons to converse without putting their mouth and ear to the apparatus, the words being distinctly audible in any part of the room.

CRIMINAL ANIMALS.

A Naturalist's Study of Thoroughly Wicked Wild Beasts.

E. Seton Thompson, naturalist to the government of Manitoba, gives in his book, "Wild Animals I Have Known," some curious examples of depravity among wild beasts.

The best story is that of the New Mexican wolf who led a band that killed a cow a day for five years. Finally the ranchers offered $1,000 for this wolf's pelt. He was easily distinguished. His track was an inch wider than that of other wolves.

A professional wolf hunter tried to earn the bounty, but the wolves killed his dogs, and he gave it up. Then Mr. Thompson took the case. He melted cheese in the fat of a heifer in a china dish, cut it into lumps with a bone knife to avoid the taint of metal and put in strychnine and cyanide in odor proof capsules. He wore gloves steeped in cow's blood and avoided breathing on the baits.

The baits were picked up. He followed the track and found that the wolf had laid all four together and scattered dirt over them.

The wolves then took to killing sheep. Traps were set to the number of 130 in different parts of the ranch. The trails of the big wolf and of the pack were traced up to one set of traps, and the doings of the leader were marked in the dust.

He had stopped the rest, warned by scent, and scratched around the trap till he found the buried chain and picket. On another part of the ranch he entered an H-shaped series of traps and detected the danger. The trail showed that he had slowly backed out on his own track, putting each paw down backward until out of the dangerous ground. He had then sprung some of the traps by scratching clods and stones backward at them with his hind feet.

He was at last caught by dragging over the traps the body of a female wolf, the scent of which he followed.

No more skillful criminal than this wolf was ever known. Old Eph, a lame grisly, which in two years ruined half the hog raisers in the Sacramento valley by his wasteful love of pork, was a close second. A bobtailed wolf kept the whole city of Paris in terror for ten years at the beginning of the fourteenth century, and the Lochnee panther, in India, killed 300 human beings in less than two years.

A famous rogue dog of Derbyshire was conspicuous by its faithful care of sheep in the daytime, but was savage and ugly toward men strangers. It slept in the house and was never suspected, though sheep worrying took place on the farms near.

At last it was tracked in the snow from a fold where 20 sheep had been killed to the farm where it lived, the dog having forgotten that the track would show, though it took partial means to conceal it by running along the top of a stone wall.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

All Roads Lead to the Dressmaker.

Mr. Hornbill—Do you know, darling, I could pick you out of a crowd of women just by your style!

Mrs. Hornbill—I don't wonder, and me with this same old dress for the last two years!

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, costly imported and often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sickness to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the aching step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fire of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so death gathers in his chances.

A FAITHFUL DOG.

Its Owner Realized Its Worth, as Well He Might.

"Well, I wouldn't have believed it," exclaimed Jones in astonishment as he dropped in to see Smith the other evening and was met in the hall by a St. Bernard dog.

"Wouldn't have believed what?" asked Smith.

"Why, that you'd have a dog in your house," continued Jones. "It belongs to one of your neighbors, I suppose?"

"No, sir; that's my dog," replied Smith proudly.

"You don't really mean it, old man? Why, I've known you now for five years, and you've always had a marked aversion for dogs."

"Yes, I did have until lately, but I wouldn't be without one now. This brute is a noble, faithful fellow, and I wouldn't take $100 spot cash for"—

But at this juncture he was interrupted by his wife calling down over the banister: "Henry Smith, who was it that scattered these cigar ashes all over my dresser?"

"It must have been the dog, my dear," was his reply.

"And who was it that dropped these apple peelings on the floor?" she demanded.

"The dog, my dear," answered Smith.

"And there's a bottle of mucilage spilled on the hall carpet up here too. Is that some of your work, Henry?"

"No my dear; the dog's to blame for that."

"And, goodness gracious," she continued angrily, "if some one hasn't been whittling up here again! How many times have I told you not to do that in the house?"

"But I had nothing to do with it, my dear. The dog's been up there probably chewing a stick."

"Well, it's a burning shame the way this house is mussed up. Your collars and ties are scattered all over the rooms."

"Are they, my dear? That dog's been up there again then. Yes," continued Smith as he drew his friend into the parlor, "I wouldn't take a big pot of money for that dog. Why, the noble fellow saves me about 20 jawings a week."

"So I see," chuckled Jones, "and you bet I'll have one before noon tomorrow." —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Deceived by a Thread.

As we came in on a Big Four train from Delaware we noticed a well barbered and highly scented "young man of the period" complacently admiring a fine pair of patent leather shoes which were elevated on the seat in front of him. Finally he espied a thread on one of his shoes, and, seizing it, he gently drew it to him. It seemed to be quite long, so he wound around it his kid gloved hand. After getting quite a knot of it he found it was fast to his side, and, glancing along his leg, he discovered that he had unraveled one seam of his trousers leg, which hung in a loose flap. The last we saw of him he had borrowed two pins from the conductor and was retreating sidewise toward the smoking car with horror [illegible] plainly depicted [illegible]

A Big Sale of Republic Stocks

THE FAIRFAX CO., OF REPUBLIC, J. J. Brown, Pres., Willis Memaine Treas., after securing the Jim. Hill claim, adjoining it on the north, sampled the ledge and W. H. Stowell reports on this cropping $16.80 in gold, immediately upon the result becoming known in Republic, a Mining Supt., through our agent there, Texas Angel, negotiated the purchase of $1,000 worth of Treasurer's stock, the company has authorized me to place a small amount of this stock at 3½cts. Remember the Fairfax and Jim. Hill are less than 800 feet from the Mountain Lion, which is now $1.00 per share, and is an investment at that. The Fairfax at 3½ cts., is a speculation. Work is to be pushed.

The famous ox weighing two tons which has been exhibited at Toronto, Ottawa and other leading fairs, will be shown at the Peterborough Central next week. Its height is 6 feet and length 12 feet. It was raised at Fergus, county of Wellington, and is one of the wonders of the world.

Acetylene Gas Explosion.

On Saturday evening last Mr Joseph Doughty, of Lakefield, had his hand badly injured and his face burned by an explosion of acetylene gas. Some of the gas generated in a water pipe of the machine. His clothing was also set on fire in the explosion, but he was fortunate in that the injuries were not as serious as they might easily have been in such a case.

FIRST-FRUITS OF HARVEST.

Pretty Service at St. John's Church Last Evening.

St. John's church was filled to its utmost seating capacity last evening on the occasion of the annual harvest home. The interior was prettily decorated with fruit, flowers and vegetables, which, together with the festive altar hangings and bright lights, lent a pretty and cheerful appearance. The service was bright and hearty, and the music rendered by the choir, under the leadership of Mr Rodgers, rendered that portion of the service in a manner which showed evidence of careful practice. Prayers were read by Revs. H Symonds and W L Armitage. The service for the occasion was Plummer in E flat, and the anthem, "Ye Shall Dwell in the Land," Stainer, Mrs Seward taking the solo. Besides the Rector the following clergy were present:—Revs Symonds, Armitage, Archibald, Landfeldt, Stevenson and Mr Owens.

Rev Mr Landfeldt delivered the sermon, which was eloquent and impressive, and his German accent sounded very pleasant to his listeners.

At the conclusion of the service the organist played several choice selections, while those present viewed the decorations.

The service will be repeated both morning and evening next Sunday.

WEDDING BELLS.

Finnie-Hall.

A pretty wedding took place on Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. Edward Finnie, No. 19 Conger street, when his second daughter, Miss Effie, was united in marriage to Mr. John Hall, of Smith, son of Mr. John Hall of that township. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Torrance, in the presence of only the near relatives of the contracting parties. The bride looked most charming in a pretty fawn costume, and was assisted by Miss Tena Hall, sister of the groom. Mr. Herman Finnie, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Stevenson-Hawkins.

A very pleasing ceremony took place yesterday morning at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Miss Bridget Stevenson of Ashburnham, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Thos. Bouguard Hawkins, formerly of London, Eng. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father O'Sullivan. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Kate Stevenson, while Mr. Jos. Barrie, of Lindsay, a cousin of the bride, acted as groomsman.

Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple departed for their wedding tour. When they return they will take up their residence in Ashburnham.

Morton-Smith.

A quiet wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at the Charlotte street church parsonage when Mr. Joseph Morton and Miss Hattie Smith, both of Cavan, were united in marriage by Rev. D. O. Crossley. Mr. L. J. Fallis of town and Miss Graham of Ebenezer, assisted during the ceremony. There are many who will wish Mr. and Mrs. Morton a happy and prosperous future.

At 90 Years.

The death occurred yesterday morning of one of the oldest residents of the county in the person of Mrs Charlotte Moore, wife of the late Wm Henry Moore, of Smith, at 90 years of age. The surviving children are Charles and Miss Thomasine, of the homestead; W H Moore, of town; F D Moore, of Lindsay, and John K Moore, of North Monaghan. The funeral will take place on Saturday at 12 noon, proceeding to the Little Lake cemetery.

Good Livers

WHAT THEY ARE

COMPOSITION OF THE FAMOUS NEW FOOD

A wide spread interest has been created among good livers, as to the composition of Grape-Nuts, the new food that has come into popular use of late. It has long been known to physicians, chemists and food experts, that the starchy portion of entire wheat flour and barley is transformed into a true and very choice sugar, by the act of intestinal digestion in the human body. This sugar is identical with, and is known as grape-sugar, and it is in condition for immediate transformation into blood and the necessary structure from which the delicate nerve centers are built up.

A food expert of the Postum Cereal Co., Lim., Battle Creek, Mich., followed a line of experiments until he produced the food called Grape-Nuts, of which grape-sugar forms the principal part, and it is produced by following out Nature's processes, in a mechanical way.

The food has a charming flavor and can be served instantly either cold with cream, or, by pouring hot milk or cream over it, one finds a hot mush at once.

TO ARRIVE THIS EVENING.

The Remains of the Late Mr. Fitzgerald Expected to Night.

It is expected that the remains of the late Mr. Fitzgerald will reach town this evening per C.P.R. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon, from the family residence at 2.30 p.m.

A post card was received from Dickson Jewitt, by Mr. Herb. Snowden, written on Tuesday evening, in which no mention was made of the accident; so that it must have occurred on Monday. Mr. Jewett states that they were out the day before, and had excellent luck, having bagged nine ducks, some wild geese, and a number of mud hens. He says that the wild geese are there in millions, but at present are flying high. "Dick" concludes his epistle by saying that "everything is lovely."

One on Inspector Walker.

The Times received the following from an anonymous source, written in a neat feminine hand. We give it for what it is worth:

"In a recent examination in one of the Peterborough schools, Inspector Walker was examining a class of little girls, taking for his object lesson a bird. After the little ones had answered the questions he put to them about the feathers, bill, feet, wings, etc., to his satisfaction, he put a question which he thought might puzzle them. "Now my little girls," he said. "tell me this: What is it a bird can do which I am unable to do?" (waiting the answer "fly.") For several moments the little ones thought, but could give no answer. At last a bright little girl held out her hand. "Well my little girl, what is it?" "Lay an egg, sir." The inspector was carried home in a dead faint.

Hard on the Tramps.

At the police court yesterday morning James Wilson was charged with vagrancy. He got six months. He was a stranger, had never been in town before, pleaded to be let go and stated that he would never come back. But evil days have fallen upon the hoboes and they are being cut right and left all over the province.

A Breakdown.

While Mr C Leary was driving a party of visitors to Chemong, and when a mile or two out the kingbolt of the rig dropped out and there was a spill. Fortunately Mr Leary was able to control the horses. The party returned to town on foot.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Mr and Mrs W A Kindred and family, of the Temperance House, desire to express, through the Times, their sincere thanks to their many friends for their extreme kindness and sympathy during their recent troubles.

Adam Watson, manager of the oatmeal department of the Flavelle mills, Lindsay, fell yesterday from the second story of the mill to the ground below, a distance of 20 feet, and received a severe shaking up.

Mr G E Whiten will act as official judge of the fine arts exhibit at the Peterborough Central exhibition.

Mr Jas Wood, of Otonabee, who was seriously injured by being kicked by a horse, was slightly improved yesterday.

Samuel McGill, fishery overseer for the townships of Ops and Mariposa, Victoria county, has resigned and Edward Burns, of the township of Ops, has been appointed in his place.

An eight-year-old boy named Wm. Fallen was arrested by High County Constable Cochrane yesterday afternoon on a charge of stealing a cuff link from the shirt of one of the golfers on the Auburn links. The boy lives in Douro just outside the town.

The Times has a letter from a writer dealing with civic affairs, but it does not bear the name of the writer, hence it cannot appear.

Mr Ot. Dunn is fitting up the Southern Hotel prior to opening the same as a public house.

The servant girl problem has become a serious one, and hotelkeepers and large employers of help the country over are at their wits' end to keep things going. The coming of good times has only accentuated the difficulty, as girls who formerly were content to work faithfully for a reasonable wage are flocking to the United States, where higher wages are paid and where life can be enjoyed to the fullest extent. In conversation with a hotelman from the east, who came here yesterday seeking help, he said that in a very short time he expected to have to hire young lads and train them as dining room waiters.

PERSONAL.

Mr Thos Sadler, of Lindsay, was in town yesterday.

Miss Lizzie Tucker, Reid street, left yesterday for a visit to Montreal.

Miss Bessie Cameron, of Port Hope, is the guest of Mrs A R Lamb, Sherbrooke street.

Miss Mabel Metheral has returned from a visit to Milwaukee. She was accompanied home by her sister, Mrs P Moscrip, and children.

Mr W J Minore, C P R agent at Indian River, near Norwood, was in town yesterday on his way from Bobcaygeon, where he had been visiting his wife's parents, Mr and Mrs Wm Kennedy.

Mr George H Howson, the energetic and popular district representative of the Northern Insurance Company, was in Lindsay yesterday on business.

THE COAL COMBINE.

The Local Dealers Are Said to Have Entered Into a Combine.

The price of coal has advanced to $6.50 per ton. This is a tremendous jump from former prices. There is no reason why coal should be higher in Peterborough than it is in other places, similarly situated. In Ottawa, for instance, the dealers entered into an arrangement to fix the price at $6.25—it had been selling at $5.75, but some of the coal men refused to enter the combine and the arrangement fell through. The Times is informed that the prices range in the surrounding towns, from $6.50 to $6.00, and in no place is $6.50 charged.

THREE OF A KIND.

How Local Jokers and Punsters Take a Crack at Each Other.

Yesterday three of Peterborough's practical jokers and punsters met at Ormond & Walsh's corner. Said Dan:

"I found an egg in my coal bin this morning. That's a queer place for a hen to lay in.

Sol—"Just the place, my boy, just the place."

Dan—"Just the place?"

Sol—"Why, certainly. If your hens begin to lay in coal for you we won't need to mind how the price goes."

•• •• ••

"I have a good story, the truth of which I vouch for," said Mr. Snowdown. "You see, I keep a sort of a henery in connection with the hotel. My man-of-all-work is a genius in a way, and he goes over to the Times office for a bundle of old newspapers every day. These he soaks in buttermilk, (I have a cow that gives nine quarts of buttermilk daily) and feeds them to the hens. The papers are mostly old copies of the Times. The result of the feeding is a wonderful breed of extra large eggs, out of which are hatched chickens as intelligent as they are large. It was only the other day that I noticed my chickens over in front of Bob White's trying to scratch the cement out of the new sidewalks. They were evidently trying to see if the cement used was the Star or Ensign grade."

•• •• ••

"That reminds me," said Mr. Bob Fair, "of an incident that occurred in my young days, and was indellibly impressed on my memory.

"A gentleman possessed of more money than education was invited to address the Sabbath School of which I was a member, when a boy. I never quite forgot his utterances on that occasion.

"Well, children," said he, "I'se not used to public speyking; but I remember when I was a lad I was very fond of hearing a story. Shall I tell ye a story?"

The children consenting he proceeded.

"Once upon a time, many years ago there was a lad, a very good lad, who went regularly to Sunday school, and niver missed. But one Sunday afternoon, as he was gawin' to school two bad boys met him, and persuaded him to gan birdsnesting wiv 'em. So they went alang by the riverside, and by and by they came tiv a tree, and in the tree, on a branch which overhung the watter, was a nest. The two bad lads sent the good lad to climb the tree and fetch the eggs. Up he went and got on the branch, farther and farther, and just as he was reaching out his hand to tak' the nest the branch brok', and he fell into the river and was drooned."

After waiting a few moments to allow his hearers to thoroughly grasp the full extent of the catastrophe, he resumed with:

"Children, the story is true, for the lad that was drooned was me!"

Gravelle Solves Several Combinations in Court at Cobourg.

LALIES TESTIFY TO ALIBI.

Miss Davey States That Ponton Left the House at Eleven O'Clock.

Mr. Gravelle, With a Four-wheel Combination, Demonstrates in Court That He Can Open Lock With Different Numbers—His Evidence Will Have Weight With Jury.

Cobourg, Sept. 22.—The Ponton defence resumed this morning. The first few witnesses were uneventful, and the legal argument over the production of Rare as a witness was postponed for the time being.

G. M. MacAuley, a Napanee barrister, testified that Ponton spent the evening of April 24, 1896, from 7.30 until 11 o'clock at Mr. Davey's house. This is the night on which Holden confesses they talked about resurrecting Ponton's buried treasure, and sent John Mason to fetch Ponton from the party.

Mrs. MacAuley corroborated her husband. This lady keeps a diary, and her husband's movements for that evening—and perhaps for many other evenings—were accurately tabulated.

Miss Lulu Davey also had this particular Sunday evening firmly lodged in her mind. She knew that Mr. Ponton left with Miss Newbury at 11 o'clock sharp. That was closing hour at the Davey House, and Miss Newbury always stayed the limit. This witness was very positive.

Mr. Osler quoted her previous testimony: "At the sixth stroke of the clock he goes." He was, of course, Mr. Ponton, was well aware of the closing hour.

"Is that right?" asked Mr. Osler.

"Certainly," said Miss Davey.

Miss Jessie MacLean was at the Davey residence from 8 p.m. until 11, and had Mr. Ponton under her eye most of the time. As a test of memory, Mr. Osler asked if she could recall the text at Church that night. The young lady confessed that it had slipped her mind.

Mr. Osler said that her logic should be summarized in this way: "Because I saw a yellow dog coming down the street on Wednesday, therefore I remember that I went to bed at 11 o'clock the following Sunday."

A Fellow Clerk's Evidence.

Walter H. Green, a junior at the Napanee bank at the time of the burglary, gave an account of his association with Ponton. He thought that Mr. Durand and Mr Baines were the only ones who had the combination of the safe. He and Mr. Ponton knew the combination of the vault. On the night of the burglary witness had locked the vault, and he and Mr. Baines were the last to leave the bank.

Mr Porter refused to call Rare as a defence witness and the Crown had no need of his services. The court decided that if called, it must be by one side or the other, and so the audience was cheated of a sight of the notorious malefactor.

Mr. Arthur Gravelle, the amateur safe expert, who has won a deal of notoriety in connection with the case, was the next witness. He was armed with a four-wheel Sargent and Greenleaf combination lock, whose mechanism he explained to the court and jury. Mr. Gravelle gave the sign that the doubters have been looking for. Chancellor Boyd is interested in combination locks, and he overruled Mr. Osler's objections to practical demonstrations.

"The safe," said Mr. Porter, "was set on the combination 39 66, 80, 43. How is that combination?"

"It's an easy one," said Mr. Gravelle.

"Are there any other numbers on which the lock can be opened?"

"Yes; on 24 20, 80, 43."

"Yes; on 24; 20, 80, 43."

"Do it," said Mr. Porter, and the whole audience watched the operation breathlessly.

Mr. Gravelle set his lock on the Napanee bank combination, and proceeded to open it by his own set of numbers.

"To the right 24," called off Mr. Porter, "To the left 20; to the right 80, to the left 43." and the lock is opened.

So it was, but on the second set of numbers, 40, 72, 80, 43, Mr. Gravelle failed three times, and finally had to give it up. Although the weels were in line, the lever would not drop, and the lock remained engaged.

"Is there another set of numbers that will do it?"

"Yes," said Mr. Gravelle. "Take the set, 39, 94, 80, 43."

"All right," said Mr. Porter. "Do it."

Again Mr. Gravelle's thin right hand twisted the knob too and fro, and as the last number was called off. Presto! the thing was unlocked.

Having remarked that there were thousands of sets of four numbers that would unlock the combination, Mr. Gravelle went on to demonstrate that he could do the trick with three numbers. He took the set 20, 81 and 41, and in a minute the thing was done.

This was the end of the object lesson. Undoubtedly it had an immense impression on the jury although the value of the evidence is not direct.

SOUTH AFRICAN CRISIS

British Cabinet Meets But Result of Deliberations Unknown.

GERMANY TAKES A HAND?

The Kaiser's Ambassador Holds a Conference With Lord Salisbury.

A Report That Britain Will Take Possession of Delagoa Bay—Orange Free State Will Support the Transvaal—A Boer Raid is Looked For—A Vigorous Line Adopted

London, Sept. 22.—A large crowd gathered early to-day in Downing street, and cheered the members of the Cabinet, who met at 12.30, Mr Chamberlain receiving the lion's share of the applause.

Money From Rothschild.

Previously, Lord Rothschild visited Mr Balfour, an unusual circumstance, which is said to be in connection with the money difficulties the Government is encountering regarding the prospective military campaign.

Vigorous Line Adopted.

The Cabinet meeting ended at 2.40 p m, and the Ministers were cheered as they came out of the Foreign Office. Nothing transpired regarding the action taken, though the general imsression spread that a vigorous line had been adopted.

The Secretary of State for War, the Marquis of Lansdowne, and the First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr George J Goschen, immediately proceeded to the War Office.

Angry at Afrikanders.

When the Cabinet went into session no new developments in the Transvaal situation had transpired. The despatches from the Cape continued of a war-like tone and voiced the indignation of the British contingent against the Orange Free State and Afrikander attitudes.

The impression current here, though not based on anything tangible, was that, publicly, the Cabinet would only take steps tending to protract negotiations, while secretly it would prepare the details of an aggressive campaign, perhaps deciding to convoke Parliament, though it was scarcely believed the latter determination would be announced immediately.

Boer Raid Looked For.

News from South Africa is eagerly awaited, as many think the Cabinet Council will immediately be followed by a Boer raid.

GOT DELAGO BAY?

Allahabad, British India, Sept. 22.—The Pioneer to-day prints a despatch saying negotiations have been concluded by Great Britain for taking possession of Delagoa Bay, November.

GERMANY TAKES A HAND?

London, Sept. 22.—Immediately after the Cabinet council the German Ambassador, Count von Hatzfeldt-Wildenburg, visited Lord Salisbury, and had a long conference with him. The fact that a similar visit immediately followed the previous Cabinet Council leads some persons to attach significance to it, and to infer that Emperor William of Germany is taking an active part in Transvaal affairs.

The official German press, however, has been so outspoken in telling President Kruger that he need not expect German aid, that it is scarcely possible to attach credence to this interference. It is much more probable that the question of Delago Bay was discussed.

Many rumors are current regarding the result of the Cabinet Council, all professing to be based on good sources But these are vague and contradictory. One news agency announces that immediate and decisive action has not been decided upon.

STEYN ACTS UGLY.

Bloemfontein, Orange Free State Sept 22.—The Volksraad met with a full attendance, President M. T. Steyn, read a carefully prepared speech in which he said President Kruger had made proposals which, although refused by the British High Commissioner, were unanimously considered throughout the Orange Free State to be exceedingly fair. He said the Transvaal had been deceived by the British diplomatic agent at Pretoria, Mr. Greene, and practically accused the Imperial Government of a breach of faith. He said he was disclined to advise the Transvaal Government to accept the latest British demands. The present critical state of affairs could not be a matter of indifference to the Orange Free State, was bound by treaty to afford assistance to the Transvaal and he had therefore convened the Volksraad to decide what attitude should be taken.

Towing Logs.

The steamer City of Peterborough is engaged in towing for the Rathbun Company. She will, as soon as the work is completed go into winter quarters.

The Water Rates.

Under the contract between the Town and the Water Company, consumers are entitled to a reduction of 10 per cent. since June 1898. This the Company dispute, claiming that the discount is only given when the amount is paid to the Company within the specified time. It is said that some of the ratepayers propose to sue for the recovery of the ten per cent, which was paid in ignorance of the existing contract.

Time to Halt.

Ald. Hall was quite right in asking the council to call a halt in the street expenditure for the present, until we had time to see where we are at. The money expended this year is enormous, and must cause an increase in the rate. There is certainly no sense in tearing up good walks in order to put down the new.

Rascally Trick.

Mr. G. W. Mulligan, reported to the police that he had been struck with a stone that was thrown at him through a open window in the Lakefield train yesterday. He has a very badly discolored eye as a result of the cowardly blow. The eye is inflamed, and he may be obliged to nurse it for a few days in a room from which the light is excluded.

Just For Instance.

There are many peculiar and rather funny stories going the rounds among the boys of the town these days. The Times learned a rather ridiculous one yesterday, and it gives it to our readers. It appears that genial Frank Fairen has been or was working for the Government at Hastings where a dredging contract was under way. Frank had to leave his dredge in a canoe occasionally to get to and from the shore. During one of these trips it happened that someone in authority had a dog on the dredge, and the canine, just for a joke, jumped into the canoe. The story does not relate where the accident occurred, nor has the spot been buoyed in order that the event may be handed down to the coming generations. Anyway, Mr. Dog got a playful freak on, and an upset occurred in about three feet of water, his dogship swam ashore and gamboled around barking profusely at the man in the water. The bather, thinking the dog mad was afraid to go ashore and remained in the water, and remainded in the water until the dog's owner whistled and the fun was over. Frank seems none the worse for his experience except that he has to buy cigars for friends in order to square the joke.

MR FITZGERALD'S DEATH

Full Particulars of the Sad Accident at Buffalo Lake.

NO BLAME TO ANYBODY.

Mr. Fitzgerald Was Only Slightly Wounded, Heart Failure Set In.

Dickson Jewett Relates the Facts of the Sad Event to a Times Representative Last Evening—Mr. Fitzgerald Able to Walk to Camp—Died on Monday Evening.

The remains of the late Mr. Tobias Fitzgerald reached Peterborough at eight o'clock last night, accompanied by Messrs. D. Jewett and C. Gutterson, and were taken at once to the family residence, Charlotte-st. Quite a number of people were at the station when the train arrived.

Messrs. Jewett and Gutterson were taken at once to the Snowden House, where their arrival was eagerly awaited by a number of citizens. The two young men had the appearance of having had a hard time of it. They were travel-stained and weary looking. They were ushered into the dining room soon after their arrival, and it was here the Times interviewed them.

"We arrived at our destination about 4 p. m. on Saturday afternoon," said Dickson Jewett, when requested to relate the facts. "We got up one tent and Gutterson and the driver who brought us over to Buffalo Lake from Moosejaw, went off to get some hay from some of the settlers. Mr Fitzgerald wanted to go shooting, and I did not care about it as I knew we would get enough shooting before we got through. However, after some persuasion I went. We had a 19 foot canoe, which we took with us from Peterborough, and we got in, Mr. Fitzgerald taking the stern. We got several geese, and by this time the others arrived at camp. They hailed us and we paddled to shore and took them on board. I was in the bow, Gutterson and the driver next, and Mr Fitzgerald in the stern. We paddled out and hid amongst the rushes. We saw three geese flying towards us, and Mr. Fitzgerald took his gun to shoot. He was sitting on the stern seat, and I was standing up so as to draw a "line" on the geese and to shoot in case he missed, shutting one eye. Mr. Fitzgerald, as I said before, was sitting down at this time. I closed my left eye and took aim. I saw that Mr. Fitzgerald missed the geese, so I fired, when to my horror, he fell over on the side of the boat. He rose up as soon as he fired and my shot grazed his head. In horror we tied a handkerchief around the wound and hurried ashore. He was quite strong and had no difficulty in walking to the camp. He then changed his clothes while we sent the driver for a physician. The doctor came and dressed the wound, which was on the right side above the ear. He put in two stitches and assured us that Mr Fitzgerald would be all right right in a few days. When he got to bed Mr Fitzgerald told us to keep his extremities warm, as he was afraid of his heart.

"That was on Saturday night. We kept watch over him all night and on Sunday. About 11 on Sunday night we concluded that he was not so well and sent one of the settlers, who came to help us, for the doctor. On Monday evening at 8.25 he passed away without a struggle. We could hardly believe that he was gone so quickly did he die. He never lost consciousness, or did he appear to suffer. The doctor had said on Monday that he was not so bad as we thought he was and attributed his death to affection of the heart. As soon as we realized our irreparable loss we engaged an undertaker and had the body embalmed. We left Moosejaw at 9 a m Wednesday morning, and came straight through as fast as the train would bring us."

Mr Jewett further stated that Mr Fitzgerald assured him when starting out that he would do the paddling and would not do any shooting. None of the shot lodged in the head, merely passing it and leaving a flesh wound, not even touching the skull.

Both young men appear to be terribly broken up over the sad ending of their expedition.

Sudden Death.

A very sudden death took place at Bethany on Thursday evening last, in that of Mrs. Robert E. Byers. Mrs. Byers was busy doing her work at six o'clock, when she felt herself taking sick, and made a remark to a neighbour who chanced to be present, that she was going to have a turning on her stomach. The doctor was sent for, but before he made his appearance, she had expired, inside of an hour's time. When her husband, who was at the barn, was informed, he was nearly prostrate with grief. She was followed to her last resting place at Graham's cemetery on Sunday by a very large host of friends and relatives. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved husband and son.

LARGE DEATH RATE

In the Province During the Month of August—Comparisons Made.

The death rate of the province for the month of August is unusually large for this season of the year. The returns received at the Provincial Board of Health show that 2,069 deaths occurred in August. This number was only passed once—in February of this year. There was a falling off in consumption in August from July of seven, the total for the month past being 171 deaths. Measles, which caused 15 deaths, is the highest in four years. In July there were only four deaths and in June 5. Typhoid fever was also the highest in four years, there being 54 deaths, as against 15 in July and 13 in June. Scarlet fever carried eight people away in August, and diphtheria 24, as against 20 in July. Whooping cough was responsible for the demise of 15, and only six the month before.

Returns were received from 97 per cent of the population of the province.

Tour of Inspection.

Dr. Bingham, Medical Health Officer, and Chief Roszel, Sanitary Inspector, made a tour of the southern part of the town yesterday, inspecting things in general. They paid particular attention to the Matthews pork packing establishment and the cattle shipping yards of Mr H P Kennedy. Both places were found to be in excellent condition, everything being clean and neat.

CENTRAL EXHIBITION.

The Mammoth White Ox "Fergus."

The mammoth white ox, "Fergus," which attracted so much attention at the Industrial Exhibition, Toronto, will be one of the many specially attractive features at the Central Exhibition here next week. This great tribute to the fertility of Canadian soil, is not quite a rod in length—twelve feet, and stands eighteen hands high.

SPORTING ITEMS.

Baseball.

The local base ball team played fifteen games in all during the season, ten of which were victories. The total number of runs scored was 196 as against 135.

Rugby.

Everything is in readiness for the game this afternoon between the local men and the Port Hope team. This is the first game of the season, and everybody is a little curious to know just what kind of material the Peterborough boys are composed of. It is the opinion of all that they are stronger this year than ever before, but they will have to hustle to climb over the Port Hope aggregation. Game starts at 3 o'clock.

A Good Move.

An American schoolboard has adopted a plan by which a special hour in the day is set apart for interviews between teachers and parents. The idea is a good one. There is not nearly enough communication of this kind, and the result is that parents sometimes have a very imperfect idea of what the children are doing, and mistakes are made which could be easily rectified by a few minutes' conversation. At present parents are a little shy about making visits to the school for fear of interrupting the work, and when they do make such visits it is usually when matters have reached a crisis. What is wanted is to establish a custom of visiting the school, say, once a week, as a matter of course.

Fishery Overseers.

A meeting of all the local Fishery Overseers was held on Thursday (afternoon last, at Mr. J. B. McWilliams' office where Mr. Thwaite, the district overseer, met the same gentlemen for the purpose of eliciting information as to the fisheries, etc., in their several localities. Mr. Thwaite said that he was well pleased with his trip, and the information gathered by him would be very useful to the Department of Fisheries. The following overseers were present at the meeting: Messrs. Joseph Yelland, T. Nichols, J. Moore, McIntire, P. Shewen, J. Brown and W. Steele, of Simcoe.

A Railway to the North.

Mr. P. W. C. Shewan, the popular and efficient clerk of Burleigh and Anstruther has been in town for several days on business connected with the municipality. He told the Times that the people of the north were being joined by those in the east, in their efforts to secure a line of railway to Apsley from Norwood. Arrangements are just about completed for sending a large and influential deputation to wait on the C P R. authorities in Montreal next month. The people of the north are fully determined to have an outlet, and are very much encouraged with the present prospects.

With the Sick.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Geo Carton deeply sympathies with them in the serious illness of their only son who is suffering from lung trouble. During his prolonged illness he has been tenderly cared for, and everything that affection can do to alleviate his suffering has been done. While there is life there is hope, and the large number of friends, of the young man, who is a general favorite, will continue to pray for his ultimate recovery.

Morning Times

CANADIANS TO THE FRONT

Canadians are catching the war fever in earnest. The appeal of Col. Sam Hughes, M. P., of Lindsay, is a patriotic one and appeals to all lovers of British institutions. The gallant Col. has sent out a letter to the newspapers in which he offers to devote his sword in defence of the rights of the British settlers in the Transvaal. He wishes to raise a Canadian corps for service in South Africa, and asks those who are desirous of enrolling men and serving with him on active service to assist the Imperial forces in South Africa, each to be good enough to write to him, stating fully (a) qualifications; (b) age; (c) physical condition; (d) the number and quality of the men each can enroll and (e) the number of days required for mobilization after notice. Lt.-Col. Hughes states that Hon. Mr. Tarte will help them to raise warriors in Quebec.

We see by the Toronto papers that an Ontario regiment has already taken the iniative, these are the 12th York Rangers. Lt.-Col. Lloyd has written out an application, offering the services of the 12th York Rangers, but it has not yet gone through the proper official channels.

Officers of other regiments are showing warlike interest. The 57th Battalion is hardly in a position to take action, but there is no reason why some of the members should not send in their applications to Col. Hughes. When the Reil rebellion occurred, Peterboro' was well represented on the military field. In 1866, the year of the Fenian Raid, a thousand men were enrolled in Peterborough, several hundred of whom went to the front.

By all means, let Peterborough be well represented in Col. Hughe's regiment.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

Municipal ownership of public franchises is receiving a good deal of attention all over Ontario these days. The Ottawa Electric Light Company has offered to sell out its business to the city for $1,241,740, being the total of its capital stock at par and its bonded and other indebtedness. Its profits last year paid the interest on the debt, and 6 per cent. on the stock. Ottawa thus gets a chance to make an experiment in municipal ownership under very favorable circumstances.

In Woodstock a special committee is at work studying out the question, while the Express of that town comes out flatly in favor of municipal ownership.

The comparatively small town of Orillia, is expending $75,000 in a very comprehensive system for supplying electricity for lighting and power purposes, from which the town expects to derive a large revenue and at the same time, reduce the cost for street lighting and to its consuming citizens by fifty per cent. from what they have hitherto been paying.

Nine years ago the town of Picton established an electric lighting system of its own, and so satisfactory have been the results that a few weeks ago the ratepayers passed a by-law to expend an additional sum of $15,000 in adding to and improving the old plant, which had cost $18,000.

The population of Picton is about 3,500 and the revenue from private consumers is estimated at $5,000 per annum, which will be sufficent to pay off the existing debt on account of the old plant, and the cost of the projected movement is less than fifteen years, besides giving the town lights for its streets during that time, for which only $1,200 a year is allowed.

Peterborough will hardly be in a position to take over the water works, as suggested next year, if her enormous expenditure for streets is to continue. It is not clear to us just what is being gained by the extension of the sewers so far into suburbs. A line must be drawn somewhere.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Good morning.

Col. Sam Hughes, doubtless represents the fighting qualities of the average Canadian Editor. While the gallant Colonel is willing to command a regiment in the coming struggle with the Boers, the editor of this g. f. j. in order not to be outdone in patriotism, hereby gives notice that he is prepared to take command of a full brigade, in order to bring the little unpleasantness with Mr. Kruger to a speedy termination. N. B.—It is understood that the general officer next in command will conduct field operations in front of the enemy.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The present czar is the only Romanoff without talent for music. His father was an excellent soloist on the cornet.

The queen of England and the czar of Russia own beautiful typewriters of white enamel and gold with keys of ivory. The queen regent of Spain is said to use one for her correspondence.

When the Princess of Wales was in Rome a few weeks ago, she passed incognito as "Mrs. Smith." Under this excellent disguise of names she and her daughters dined at a restaurant, taking their turn at being served and having a good time generally.

Kaiser Wilhelm has purchased the castle of Lichtenburg, near Leutzelstein, in Alsace, as a companion property to his chateau of Urville in Lorraine. He will spend a part of each year in these places, thus helping on the work of Germanizing the conquered provinces.

To Crisp Lettuce Leaves.

Do you know how to crisp lettuce leaves? A most simple process, but one rarely adopted judging by the wilted stuff we generally see served. A gentleman of the old school was my teacher, and while yet a mere maid I was promoted to the proud dignity of crisping the lettuce.

First carefully separate the leaves from the stalk, discarding discolored and imperfect ones and leaving untouched the tiny hearts; lay them all in cool, clear water for awhile, all morning if you choose; pick them over a couple of times before serving; wash one by one and lay in a wire basket if you have one; if not, a clean, soft towel will answer; gather the ends and sides loosely in your hand and lightly shake the lettuce; then put the leaves in a colander, which you set in the refrigerator, but not on the ice. Leave until needed, when you will find the lettuce deliciously cool and crisp enough to crack. Never cut the leaves. If very large, divide with the fingers into smaller pieces.—What to Eat.

Vastly Different.

As will be seen, it makes a great difference how one uses the muscular resources at one's command.

A member of an athletic club, after swimming the length of the large tank in the basement of the institution, came out puffing and blowing, apparently exhausted.

"You don't manage your breathing right," said the swimming instructor. "It ought not to tire you so. As to the upper part of your body, including your arms, you use exactly the same muscles, and in very much the same way, in swimming as in sawing wood."

"No, sir!" gasped the swimmer. "When it comes to sawing wood, I use the muscles of some other man."—Youth's Companion.

ONLY NATURAL CURE

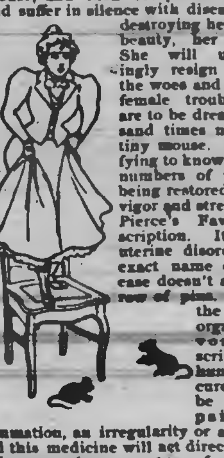
Most medical men know that the pineapple contains a quantity of vegetable pepsin. This product is invaluable, because it exerts a wonderful power in the digestion of all kinds of food. Science has now consolidated this grand essence into tablets, and thus, within reach of everyone, is a veritable panacea for all stomach ills.

Dr. Van Stan's Pineapple Tablets are the most important advance for the prevention and cure of sickness in the last thousand years. A good digestion is the basis of health, and all may have it by the faithful use of these marvellous tablets. Box of 60 Tablets 35 cents. Sold by Ormond & Walsh & H. S. McDonald.

DANGERS REAL AND FANCIED.

The average woman will scream with terror at the sight of an innocent little mouse, and then complacently sit down and suffer in silence with diseases that are destroying her youth, her beauty, her very life. She will uncomplainingly resign herself to the woes and miseries of female troubles, which are to be dreaded a thousand times more than a tiny mouse. It is gratifying to know that untold numbers of women are being restored to perfect vigor and strength by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures all uterine disorders. The exact name of the disease doesn't amount to a row of pins. If it is in the womanly organs, "Favorite Prescription" will hunt it out and cure it. It can be a drain, a pain, an inflammation, an irregularity or a weakness, and this medicine will act directly upon it, and restore the organs to perfectly healthy action. It prepares the girl to become a woman; the wife to become a mother, the middle-aged to pass the "turn of life" in safety. It is not a "cure-all" but a medicine for women only, and is the prescription of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., the world-famed specialist in the treatment of disorders of women. Any reader of this paper may consult Dr. Pierce free by mail. Write him if your local physicians do not seem to understand your case.



Mrs. W. J. Kidder, of Hill Dale Farm, (Enosburg Center), Enosburg, Vt., writes: "During the past year I found myself pregnant and in rapidly failing health. I suffered dreadfully from bloating and urinary difficulty. I was growing perceptibly weaker each day and suffered much sharp pain at times. I felt that something must be done. I sought your advice and received a prompt reply. I followed your directions and took twelve bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and also followed your instructions. I began to improve immediately, my health became excellent, and I could do all my own work (we live on a good sized farm). I walked and rode all I could, and enjoyed it. I had a short, easy confinement and have a healthy baby boy."

Following are extracts from the report of Capt. T. H. Trethewey, M.E., upon the Company's properties which are now being vigorously developed, and upon which will be installed the 6 drill compressor plant, which was purchased from the Canadian Rand Drill Co. on the 5th inst. for immediate delivery.

MR. TRETHEWEY SAYS;

"The vein on these properties is well defined, and, where exposed by the workings near the line between the Western Hill and Virginia, averages fully 18 ft. in width. The gauge consists of a somewhat crushed and iron-stained quartz, sparingly mineralized with Galena, Copper and Iron Pyrites, with here and there small amount of Blend and Graphite disseminated throughout."

"On the Western Hill, a a shaft has been sunk to a depth of 27 ft. on the foot wall, and the ledge has been exposed by a cross cut to its full width; it here appears to be divided into hanging and foot wall portions by a seam of somewhat decomposed clay material which appears to dip toward the hanging wall, cutting out the leaner and allowing the richer portions of the vein to increase with depth."

"Samples taken in this shaft, across an 8 ft. face lying next to the foot wall, gave an average return of $7.00 in Gold and $1.35 in Silver, making a total of $8.35 per ton, while the balance of the vein gave a return of $2.00 in Gold and 70 cents in Silver, making a total of $2.70 per ton for a width of ten feet, so that $5.25 may be considered a fair average for the full width of the vein."

"The conclusion I have drawn after a thorough examination and study of the facts as here presented is, that judicious developement should locate extensive bodies of pay ore, as even if only the 8 ft. next to the foot wall be extracted, the values continuing in depth as there is no reason why they should not, while leaner portions may be encountered they could be left in the mine to support the walls, and you would still have a proposition of unlimited tonnage well worthy of judicious expenditure in exposing its resources."

"The general conditions, elevation, etc., are so favorable that mining operations can be carried on for many years by simply tunnelling into the mountain and following the trend of the vein, and hundreds of thousands of tons of ore can readily be made available without the use of hoisting or pumping machinery."

"Situated as these claims are about 2000 ft. above the bank of the Okanagan River, with a natural outlet for Ærial or other tramway, and only about three miles from the "Black Hawk" Claim, which is within easy reach of the river, the question of transportation of ore from the mine to the mill could be easily arranged."

"With an electric plant established at Dog Falls, which is possibly ten miles distant, ample power could be generated at a nominal cost for all purposes, and by adopting the most modern methods of mining, milling and concentrating, together with an unlimited supyly of ore, the cost of production should be reduced to a minimum."

"If the present promising assurances are borne out, the opening up of the three levels could develope at least a three years' supply of ore for a plant of large capacity, and I would stongly recomend the erection and installation of a mill of not less than from 250 to 300 tons daily capacity."

"With cheap power an unlimited supply of ore and a plant capable of handling the quantity I have suggested, the cost of mining and milling ought not to exceed from $1.50 to $2.00 per ton, and under capable management it should be kept within the lower limits."

"Thus even if the lowest values, $3.05 be taken as a basis of calculation and allowing that 85 p. c. of this can be saved, it would yield a profit of $1.09 for each ton of ore treated, but I am of opinion that much higher values may be confidently expected, and if there is a profit winner in the camp, all conditions considered, this one can be conscientiously recommended to the investing public."

At the next Annual Meeting of the Company, which will be held on the 6th day of November next, several of Montreal's most prominent business men will accept Directorship.

A CROOK TESTIFIES

Roach Corroborates Holden as Far as He Syayed in the Game.

THEY DID NOT TRUST PARE

Various Trips to Napanee, and Alleged Meetings With Ponton There.

With Holden and Mackie, Roach Went to Napanee and Met Ponton, Who Gave Them the of Side Door of the Bank—They Could Not Open Door of Vault.

Cobourg, Sept. 21.—In re-examin[illegible] Field a Mr [illegible] in the big convict's career where he had tried to reform. He was given fresh start after his last term in the penitentiary, but was hounded by private detectives. For fourteen years no charge was brought against him but the detectives caused him to lose job after job by telling his employers that he was a jail-bird. Being warned in Montreal that unless he got work he would be arrested as a vagrant, he turned back into his old ways and undertook the bank robbery.

Two farmers were examined as to a young man they had seen at different times, near Napanee, talking to two other men, but they could not identify Ponton, or say the other men were Pare and Holden.

Fred Russell, a railway hand, corroborated Holden as to his visit with Pare to Napanee to dig up the money, and an Indian named Hill swore that Pare and Holden stopped at his house on the night of the first attemp to rob the bank.

Then the Crown played its latest card, and John T. Roach, the mysterious fourth man took the stand. Roach has the appearance of an old criminal though he is only 26, and his position did not embarrass him in the least. His statement, he said, was made voluntarily, without promise of reward. Roach began by telling how in 1897, while in Montreal, Holden told him about an affair up west, where a man was willing that a bank should be robbed with his help. He was asked to go up to Napanee, and after talking it all over he decided to go. With Holden he went to the Dominion Hotel in Belleville, the proprietor of which was Mr. M.Mackie. Holden and he went upstairs to a room and there met Robert Mackie and "Whale" Mackie. They talked over plans to rob the Dominion Bank at Napanee by drilling a hole through the safe door. It was understood that the vault door was to be open.

With Holden and Mackie, Roach went to Napanee and met Ponton, who gave them a key to the side door of the bank. They went into the bank, but could not get the cap off the vault door and went out again. They went to the Paisley House, where Mackie had a talk with Ponton. A second journey was made to the bank, Ponton going in first. He reported everything "all right," and the crooks followed him in and tried to drill a hole in the safe, but could not. They then went back to Belleville on a freight train.

The next day they found Mackie had had his feet frozen. That night Holden and Roach went again to Napanee, and after much trouble, as described by Holden, with the dog, started again to drill the safe, failing again. Then other schemes were thought of, among them the capture of Durand and forcing the combination from him. A decoy letter was to be written purporting to be from a girl, to lure Durand to a lonely spot, but, before it could be used Mackie found that the Belleville police were suspicious of Holden, and the latter, with Roach, went back to Montreal.

Roach spent several weeks in Montreal, and then letters from Robert Mackie began to arrive, asking him to come up and to bring Pare with him. "I know Pare," said Roach; that is, I had met him, and I went to his sister's house several times but he was out of town. Finally I found him and told him about the bank, and we decided to go up. At Belleville they came to a quarrel. Pare wanted to see Ponton, and Holden did not want it. He carried messages from Pare to Ponton—messages that told Ponton what to do to gain information of the safe combination. It was finally left to a vote as to whether Pare should see Ponton, and the vote decided that the two men should meet.

Then we all had an argument. Each of the crowd seemed to want to be the man to count the money after the bank was robbed. They seemed to be afraid that Pare would steal some of the money. There was a good many differences. Pare wanted to be general and Holden wanted to be general. Pare was the high supreme schemer. He wanted to be allowed in the bank at the noon hour, while Ponton was alone, for the purpose of securing a look at the combination. Ponton was afraid of this, and said that in case any one entered the bank while Pare was there, he, Pare, would have to hold up Ponton to save the bank teller, and would have to submit to arrest for trying to rob the bank. When Pare heard this he turned all kinds of colors and refused.

Roach told of Ponton bringing some wax to Pare and the latter making an impression therefrom.

Ponton found it impossible to master the combination, and told the gang during one of his visits to the camp outside the town that he would have to wait till Mr. Baines went fishing. Another attempt was made to get into the bank at night, in which Roach and Mackie were instructed to decoy Constable Perry by acting suspiciously so that he would follow them away off on another street, but they failed in this.

Then Roach got sick of the job and left.

The young crook wound up his story by describing Ponton's room. He told of having written to Ponton demanding a share of money if the bank was robbed. He never got anything of the $1,600 which Pare left for him.

Strike at Fort William ?

Toronto, Sept. 21.—A report at the Board of Trade this afternoon said that the C.P.R. freight handlers at Fort William, following the example of their brothers at Owen Sound have gone on strike.

The cause was not known, but presumably it is a demand for increased wages.

At this season a large quantity of freight is moving by water and the time, just as the grain begins to move and it is desired to rush through as much as possible before the close of navigation, is especially opportune for the men to strike, but annoying to the company.

This strike, if it is general and continues, will, of course, tie up the company's boat service and cause the idleness of the freight handlers at the eastern end of the route Owen Sound.

The Canadian Pacific will in this emergency rush its freight through by the all-rail route.

He Just Made Up His Mind to Kill That Town of St. Joe.

"Ah'm come back home for some clothes, an Ah want 'em wahm," said a tall young negro to a Walnut street haberdasher one day last spring. "Ah'm jes' agoin to kill that town of St. Joe. Show me the heatedest clothes yo' got in the house."

He was not cool as to raiment to start with. His overcoat was cream colored, overlaid with pearl buttons the size of those small butter plates still in use in restaurants. His trousers were green and ended in yellow shoes with brown shot silk tops. His hat was light blue, mottled in brown; his gloves were red and his cane heavily silvered.

"Can't no St. Joe nigger tell me Ah come from Raytown," he muttered. "Ah goes up to St. Joe to work, and the coons there laugh at me and tell me Ah ain't from Kansas City, because mah clothes is so inconspicuous, and Ah just save up mah money, and Ah'm agoin back to kill the town. Now what I want is some underclothes and socks and shirts and things that are the wahmest you've got."

"How will these do?" asked the haberdasher, exposing some scarlet hosiery, banded with wide white stripes.

"That's it. That's the kind of clothes Ah want. They ain't nothin in St. Joe like that. Lemme look at them underwear."

He inspected some red underwear with white stripes, some of baby blue with pink stripes and others of green with blue, black and red stripes. He bought neckscarfs of every shade of red, blue and green and of the most bewildering patterns. His purchases included zebra collars and pale pink shirts, diamond scarfpins at 25 cents each, but with $85 of [illegible], and a brown waistcoat with scarlet moons emblazoned on it.

"Ah've got 'em dead," he exclaimed when he had finished. "They've ceased to live. When Ah get back to that town of St. Joe they'll ask me if I come from Raytown, will they? Ah'm agoin to take back to that little ole burg such wahm clothes that they'll meet me with the fish department. That town's dead now, and Ah've killed it."

How Wealth Is Carried.

"It is rather amusing," remarked the head of the biggest bureau de change in London to the writer, "to notice the various methods in which men of different nationalities carry their worldly wealth. The Englishman carries his all loose in his right hand trousers pocket—gold, silver and copper all mixed up together. He pulls a handful of the mixture out of his pocket in a large, opulent way and selects the coins he has need of. The American carries his wad of bills in a peculiar long, narrow pocketbook, in which the greenbacks lie flat; the Frenchman makes use of a leather purse with no distinguishing characteristics, while the German uses one gayly embroidered in silk by the fair hands of some Lottchen or Minna.

"The half civilized capitalist from some torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly devised pockets to baffle the gentlemen with the light fingers. Some of these belts are very expensive. The Italian of the poorer classes ties up his little fortune in a gayly colored handkerchief secured with many knots, which he secretes in some mysterious manner about his clothes. A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding place for his savings."—London Answers.

A Crazy Frenchman.

Algiers, Sept. 21.—After dispersing the crowds that had gathered in the vicinity of the villa just outside the town in which Max Regis, formerly Mayor of Algiers and a notorious Jew-baiter, had barricaded himself with a party of adherents causing a riot, the police remained around the villa through the early hours of the morning. Absolute silence prevailed, but in the obscurity could be seen the sentinels placed by Max Regis in the garden behind bushes, with guns on their shoulders.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. THE CYNIC.

All of us are very clever in finding excuses for not working more.

The most sensible woman will "put on" a little before a preacher.

A man is not really prominent until he has officiated at three prominent funerals.

Some women who never work for anything else will work like slaves for a church.

An old maid dearly loves to watch a quarrel between a husband and wife to see how it comes out.

If a man truly loves his wife, he is very apt to become confidential and tell her a lot of stories on the other fellows.

In talking it is well to know that people will not remember what you are saying unless they can use it against you.

A man always rises in his own estimation when he gets on familiar terms with a person of whom he once stood in awe.

There probably never was a woman too good to try to pass her children off as under age when traveling on the railroad.—Atchison Globe.

WEATHER PROPHETS.

Peacocks are reliable weather prophets. Before a storm the gaudy birds become restless and clamorous.

The green woodpecker is said to laugh his "Ya-ha-ha" in different, more liquid tones when rain is coming, and especially gifted persons claim his cry really changes to "rain, rain, rain!"

In Dorsetshire, England, they foretell storms by the flight of the rooks. When they are pitch falling or playing at tumbling, diving and wheeling in the air, they say a storm is due.

Sea fowl are very clever in foretelling a storm. To a sailor bad weather means wind, and to a landsman it means rain, but the screaming of the water birds usually foretells a change of some sort for the worse in the prevailing weather.

THREE OF A KIND.

How Local Jokers and Punsters Take a Crack at Each Other.

Yesterday three of Peterborough's practical jokers and punsters met at Ormond & Walsh's corner. Said Dan:

"I found an egg in my coal bin this morning. That's a queer place for a hen to lay in.

Sol—"Just the place, my boy, just the place."

Dan—"Just the place?"

Sol—"Why, certainly. If your hens begin to lay in coal for you we won't need to mind how the price goes."

•• •• ••

"I have a good story, the truth of which I vouch for," said Mr. Snowdown. "You see, I keep a sort of a hennery in connection with the hotel. My [illegible] way, and he goes over to the Times office for a bundle of old newspapers every day. These he soaks in buttermilk, (I have a cow that gives nine quarts of buttermilk daily) and feeds them to the hens. The papers are mostly old copies of the Times. The result of the feeding is a wonderful breed of extra large eggs, out of which are hatched chickens as intelligent as they are large. It was only the other day that I noticed my chickens over in front of Bob White's trying to scratch the cement out of the new sidewalks. They were evidently trying to see if the cement used was the Star or Ensign grade."

•• •• ••

"That reminds me," said Mr. Bob Fair, of an incident that occurred in my young days, and was indelibly impressed on my memory.

"A gentleman possessed of more money than education was invited to address the Sabbath School of which I was a member when a boy. I never quite forgot his utterances on that occasion.

"Well, children," said he, "I's not used to public speyking; but I remember when I was a lad I was very fond of hearing a story. Shall I tell ye a story?"

The children consenting he proceeded.

"Once upon a time, many years ago there was a lad, a very good lad, who went regularly to Sunday school, and nivver missed. But one Sunday afternoon, as he was gawin' to school two bad boys met him, and persuaded him to gan birdnesting wiv 'em. So they went alang by the riverside, and by and by they came tiv a tree, and in the tree, on a branch which overhung the watter, was a nest. The two bad lads sent the good lad to climb the tree and fetch the eggs. Up he went and got on the branch, farther and farther, and just as he was reaching out his hand to tak' the nest the branch brok', and he fell into the river and was drooned."

After waiting a few moments to allow his hearers to thoroughly grasp the full extent of the catastrophe, he resumed with:

"Children, the story is true, for the lad that was drooned was me!"

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired and often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sickness to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the aching step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the joy of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so [illegible] gathers in his cheques.

VINEGAR, THEN LEAD.

"I think my most exciting official experience," said Captain J. E. Stone, formerly United States postal inspector, "was at the town of Carbonville, Colo., in 1879. It was a star route post, and there was much complaint about the nonreceipt of mail, so I went over to investigate.

"The postmaster was a man named Wilson, who kept a general store, and the postoffice consisted of a soap box on the end of his counter. When mail arrived, it was dumped in, and every fellow helped himself, an arrangement that worked well enough until a chap known as Black Hills Pete came to town. Pete disturbed the entire system. When he didn't get a letter himself, he would tear up several others on the principle that misery loves company, and, being a notorious desperado, nobody dared interfere. I got the facts, and as the mail came in that evening I took a seat in the corner and awaited developments, first ordering the box removed.

"A little after dark the miners from camp began to assemble, and presently in came Black Hills Pete. He was a big brute of a fellow, and I saw at once there was going to be trouble. 'Where's that letter box?' he demanded of Wilson. 'I've ordered him not to use it any more,' I said, getting up. 'Who the blank blank are you?' roared Peter. 'I'm the inspector,' I replied. 'Well, you get me that box quick,' he retorted, and, seeing him reach toward his pocket, I made a grab for my gun; but, as bad luck would have it, the confounded thing caught in the holster.

"In a twinkling he had me covered, but before he could turn loose a quavering voice called out: 'Pete! Oh, Pete!' The desperado glared around, and there stood Wilson holding a large tin squirt gun used for drawing liquors. The sight was so ludicrous that the bully burst into a guffaw, and as he did so Wilson let drive the piston and hurled about a quart of the strongest kind of vinegar squarely into his face. The stuff blinded him, and before he could recover himself the storekeeper had two bullets in his shoulder.

"That's the true story of the strangest fight that ever occurred in the west. Pete recovered, but before he could be arrested was spirited away by friends to New Mexico. His right name was Luther Coleman, and there is a warrant now standing against him for destroying United States mail matter. After the episode I have narrated there was no further trouble at the Carbonville postoffice."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WOMEN OF NOTE.

Mrs. James M. Barrie, wife of the author of "The Little Minister," is said to be a very pretty woman.

Mme. Navarro's (Mary Anderson's) sister is Mother Dominica, a nun in the Convent of the Assumption in London.

Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer disposes of some $75,000 each year on her whims and never asks the price of an article that strikes her fancy, but orders it sent home.

Erie, Kan., has two newspapers edited by women. Mrs. Belle Harbaugh edits The Republican-Record and Miss Elizabeth Frazier has charge of the Erie Sentinel.

Helen Gould's income is the largest of any unmarried woman in the country. She does not spend much on herself. On churches and charities she spends $100,000 a year.

Mme. Loubet greatly resembles her friend, Mme. Carnot, in her charitable tendencies. She disposes of large sums among the poor, and is a regular visitor at the hospitals.

Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, formerly Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, is said to be the most extravagant woman in society. She spends quite $100,000 each year on trifles and knickknacks.

Mrs. S. V. Harkness of New York city, formerly of Cleveland, has offered to build a chapel at the College For Women of the Western Reserve university in Cleveland. She had previously founded a biblical professorship in that college.

The young Duchess of Marlborough and several other ladies of much wealth and rank are going in for falconry. It is an expensive form of sport, an ordinary hawk costing as much as $500 and requiring quite an outlay for maintenance and training.

Mrs. William Rockefeller's hobby is for carnations, one of the greenhouses at her country place at Scarborough-on-the-Hudson being devoted exclusively to their culture. She is said to spend thousands of dollars every year for the plants she imports for her own pleasure.

At a public dress rehearsal of a new play in Paris Mme. Casimir-Perier, wife of the former president of the French republic, was requested to remove her hat, but declined to do so. When she learned that the rule would be enforced in her case as in all others, she left the theater in disgust.

Lady Randolph Churchill is thus described by T. P. O'Connor in his weekly: She is still a very pretty woman. Her raven black hair does not show a single thread of gray; her figure is slight and svelte, and the deep, dark blue eyes have all their vivacity undimmed by their years of tears. She is certainly one of the most widely accomplished women of her time.

They Keep One Eye Shut.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mine, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, noting his surprise, explained the matter. He said the candles belonging to the tarateros (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but where, nevertheless, the tarateros see well enough not to run their heads against the rocks, but, on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures.

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpse of light they drop the eyelid of one eye and keep this down while they are discharging their ore and until they have redescended the shaft.

When they are again in the dark, they open the eye kept hitherto in reserve and at once see everything distinctly, while the other eye, previously open and somewhat blinded by the daylight, perceives nothing at all.

MANDY'S QUICK WIT

UNCLE JOHN'S MODEL WIFE WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

An Exciting Race That Was Grandly Won When It Seemed Surely Lost Just Because This Clever Woman "Seen Her Duty, and She Done It."

"My wife," remarked Uncle John Angus with an air of pride and proprietorship, somewhat more prevalent among young husbands in their honeymoons than among old ones who have been married for 50 years or more, as Uncle John was—"my wife is one uv them women the Lord only makes a few uv, and them mighty scatterin. She's jist es good natured and happy now as she wuz when I courted her, but Mandy ain't all mush and spoon victuals, and there's times when she has to be handled with keer er somethin will be sp'iled. She's got temper a-plenty, and she ain't afeered uv the old serpent himself. I mind one thing she done once that I'll never fergit ef I live to be older than the parson's wife's bonnet.

"In them days Mandy weighed a hunderd and eighty-seven pounds in her stockin feet, and I wuz only a scant hunderd and forty. We had on the farm all the time seven er eight head uv fine horses, and one winter we had a pair uv 4-year-olds that we prided ourselves pertickeler on, for they had been takin premiums at the fair every year since they wuz yearlin's. They had speed, too, and we thought they couldn't be beat by anything in that neck uv woods, but a neighbor uv ours named Hall—everybody knowed Jim Hall, jist like they knowed me—had a pair he had bought in the next county that he offered to bet a cow and calf could beat ours hands down. He used to let 'em out past our place to kind uv tantalize us, and I tell you they wuzn't a funeral percession by a long ways, but Mandy used to laugh and say we'd show him something when the goin got good.

"You see, it was along in November then, and the roads hadn't froze yet. The first snow come in December with a mighty cold spell followin and hangin on, and in about a week er ten days we had fine sleighin, and one afternoon Mandy said she guessed we ought to hitch up the bays and go out for some air and exercise. That was enough for me, and I had the team to the cutter and out at the gate waitin fer the lady in less than no time.

"The team wuz feelin as frisky as kittens, and the way they slung the snow and spun over the road would stir the blood in a wooden man. When we got to the turnpike, where the folks usually let their teams out, I guess there wuz a dozen er more movin up and down at a slippin gait, and we sailed right in among 'em, and in about seven minutes we passed everything on the road.

"Jim Hall wusn't out with his team, and I could see that Mandy wuz gittin anxious, though she wuzn't sayin much. The road leadin to Jim's place struck the pike about 200 yards from the upper turn, and there wus no sign uv him as we passed, and we didn't see him as we come back, but just after we got by his road we heard a clatter up the pike, and, by crackey, there wus Jim a-comin lickety split. I guess he'd been to the postoffice, and the way he wus comin after us wus like a mink after chickens. Mandy took one look over her shoulder and told me to let 'em go for all they wuz wuth. I didn't need to be coaxed, and by the time she had said the words we wus fairly flyin over the smooth snow track, and Jim wus comin right behind us too. For the first few rods we gained on him, then he begun to creep up on us in spite uv all we could do. Everybody on the road knowed how me and Jim set store by our teams, and they pulled out to one side and give us all the room there wus.

"I shook up my beauties as I felt him drawin up on me, but shakin wusn't enough, and I touched 'em once er twice with the whip, but Jim jist sared back on his strings, lookin like destruction smilin at desolation, and kept a-comin. When his horses' heads passed our dashboard and I could see the snort in their noses, I got kind uv sick and thought I'd have to let go, but Mandy nerved me up, and I hung on and leaned away forrard as if that would help some. By this time Jim's horses had their heads even with mine, and I held him there for a minute or such a matter, but jist as I begun to have a hope that it might be a neck and neck at the finish Mandy reached for the line next to her, and, with a sudden jerk, she pulled the team off to one side uv the road, where the snow wus in a high drift, and Jim went ahead with a yell that made my ears stand out like windmill flappers.

"I wus that dazed for a minute at Mandy that I couldn't do a lick, and, deacon though I wus, I'm afeerd I'd a-used language that wouldn't have sounded exactly right in Sunday school, but before I had a chance to make a move Mandy made a flyin leap over the side uv the sleigh and lit in the deep snow. Then I wus dazeder than ever and had some kind uv an idee that we'd been struck by an earthquake or something and Mandy wus killed, and I must go back after her and dig her out. But the team had their senses with them, and when they felt they had nigh two hunderd pounds less load to haul than before Mandy jumped they didn't stop to see what had happened, but let theirselves out on a spurt that wus chuck full uv chain lightnin, and out uv the snowdrift I could hear Mandy scream: 'Go it, John; you're all right now.'

"And so I wus, and so wus Mandy, for before Jim knowed that anything had happened I wus up with him, alongside, neck and neck, nose and nose, ahead and past, and when I pulled up at the toll gate he wus ten lengths behind and too much surprised to even cuss.

"Mandy wus in the middle uv the road brushin the snow out uv her clothes and waitin fer me as I come back, and when I said I'd give her a new silk dress for that she said it wus only what any wife ought to do for her husband, but she couldn't prove it by showin me where any other wife had ever done it, and I made her take the dress in spite av herself. That's the kind uff a heroine my wife is," and Uncle John went down into his inside pocket and fished out a quaint, old fashioned daguerreotype in a brand new gilt frame.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Picture, Not Paint.

An art patron one day came into Turner's studio when the artist was already famous. He looked at a picture and asked what was the price. The artist named the sum he had set upon it.

"What," exclaimed the buyer, "all those golden sovereigns for so much paint!"

"Oh," replied Turner, "it's paint you are buying? I thought it was pictures. Here," producing a half quart tube of color, "I'll let you have that cheap. Make your own terms," and, turning his back on the astonished patron, he went on [illegible]

"MY FRIENDS DESPAIR."

La Grippe and Nervous Prostration Had Brought Captain Copp Near to Death—South American Nervine was the Life Saver.

"I was ailing for nearly four years with nervous prostration. I tried many remedies and was treated by physicians without any permanent benefit. A year ago I took la grippe, which greatly aggravated my trouble. My friends despaired of my recovery. I was induced to try South American Nervine, and rejoiced to get almost instant relief. I have used four bottles and feel myself completely cured. I believe its the best remedy known for the nerves and blood." Wm. M. Copp, Newcastle, N. B. Sold by Ormond & Walsh & H. S. McDonald.

If you would live well, eat well, that is, make sensible selection of your food.

The body must have all of the seventeen ingredients required in building up a body or disease sets in.

Grape-Nuts are made from wheat and barley, selected and so handled in the processes of manufacture as to change the starch into grape sugar, hence the first part of the name.

They combine all the needed elements to combine with Oxygen, Water and Albumen to reconstruct and maintain the body in perfect health. Grape-Nuts Food is the most scientifically made article for human consumption ever produced, and will make clear its healthful claims to any user.

MILLINERY OPENINGS.

RICH DISPLAY OF NOVELTIES IN THE LEADING STORES.

Messrs. Richard Hall & Sons and Cressman's the Two Points of Attraction This Season.

The handsome millinery show rooms at Richard Hall & Son's dry goods house, looked their handsomest on the past three days, the young ladies of the department having decorated them beautifully and arranged the display of hats and bonnets to excellent advantage for the benefit of their opening day callers. And the young ladies have a show to be proud of. Among the beautiful shades which will prevail in millinery trimmings, faded tones of velvet, castor hue, soft browns, greys, blues and faded green or lizard tones, resida, mure and rouen are much noticed. Birds, fancy quills, curved wings, breasts and butterflies, chiffons, mousseline de soie and velvets are the leading materials for trimming, and they admit of immense variety of dainty make up which the hats and bonnets shown reveal to good advantage.

Every year the art of trimming reaches a higher degree of excellence and demands a more artistic conception in combination of material and color effects, which will result in a ravishing affair that will be a dream of beauty, and will make a plain woman look handsome and a good looking one divine. Velvets—plain, mirror and fancy velvets especially—are used on all of the best patterns. A new feature is the folded chiffons of silk facing on the brims. They give a soft background for the face and are the loveliest things imaginable. The velvets and silks are draped, corded and twisted. Chiffon is used extensively. Large birds' wings and feathers novelties of all kinds are also used. The feather butterfly, being perhaps the newest, is in vogue. The new French ornaments of enamel in pastel colors are very effective in trimming. Wide ribbons in taffeta and ornamental satins are knotted, twisted and made in big bows. Applique of all materials is used for the soft crowns. The Pheasant Breast and Grebe in natural and black and the Hackle feather are used extensively. The favorite shapes are the large turban and the new picture hat, with drooping brim front and back, with demi plumes. Also the Russian toque and turban. To describe the numerous hats would be impossible, as they are real gems and works of art. Miss Currie has excelled herself. Her ability as an artist is well known. Her efforts, combined with those of the best trimmers in Canada, are a complete success. Mourning and children's goods are especially remembered, also a large assortment of velvets, plain, corduroy, mirror and fancy velvets with patterns. Ostrich plumes and fancy feather sprays are shown, and ever conceivable novelty that goes to make a grand success in millinery.

The firm's dress goods department contains a full stock of black silk blister crepons, all wool blister goods, poplins, whip cords and serge suitings. In colored goods are shown French broadcloths, Blenheim suitings in Queen's blue, cyrano, castors and other popular shades, covert suitings, French poplins, navy court serges and English shrunk and unspottable goods imported direct.

In the mantle department jackets of the stylish lengths are shown in castor shades with strappings and velvet collars, double breasted and satin lined, with pearl buttons. Three-quarter length capes of black beaver, with flounce and sable collar, and elaborately braided, are very popular. Skirts of all kinds, all made up in the premises are shown in poplins of new and pretty patterns, and in new flaring patterns, in all shades.

The linen department is fully stocked with every class of fine linen goods. A special feature is the fine English satin quilts and Eiderdown comforters.

CRESSMAN'S.

The commodious premises of Mr. Cressman's always contain much that is fascinating to the fair sex, but this season they seem to have surpassed all previous efforts in the magnitude and variety of their stock. The large store is literally packed with goods in their various lines, and it seems to us it would be a most fastidious taste that could not be satisfied from their stock.

We sometimes forget the importance of such a store as Cressman's being situated in our midst as a distributing centre for the products of the world's great manufactories. Almost every manufacturing country of any note is represented in their stock. There are piles of beautifully fine linen direct from the looms of Ireland and Scotland; lovely silks from France, England, Switzerland and Italy; dress goods and cloths from Great Britain, France and Germany; silks and rugs from China and Japan; fancy trimmings, buttons, buckles, etc., from Bohemia and Austria; curtains, laces and embroidered goods from Switzerland, etc., etc., all gathered together at our very doors by this enterprising house.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday being the formal opening days for the autumn season, there were a great many visitors, and the courteous staff of clerks were kept busy showing the new goods.

The millinery department, which was the centre of attraction, was tastefully decorated with ribbons, silks and trimmings suitable for millinery, as well as a number of beautiful palms and other plants.

It is essentially a milliner's season, there being a great quantity of work on the hats. Plain and mirror velvets, Taffeta silks, Liberty satins and Felts are much used in making up, and some of these have rows and rows of silk stitching, all done in the workrooms, which makes a pretty effect. Chiffons are also used freely, daintily puffed and gathered, and will be sure to have a great run. A great many of the new hats have the Tam o' Shanter crown. The feathered tribe again supplies a large proportion of the garniture for millinery. Gulls and other large birds are used, as well as a great many smaller birds; also quills of all kinds, Pheasants' breasts, Butterflies, Ostrich feather, Osprey and Hackles are shown in great profusion. A few hats had dainty strips of mink fur on them and some were trimmed with Grebe. Wide plain ribbons are also much used combined with very pretty new styles in jet steel, gold and rhinestone buckles and ornaments. Some handsome buckles were shown in the new pastel colorings.

The colors this season are much more subdued than for some time past. The soft tints of Castor, Browns, Greys and Black and White will be the leaders.

There was an extensive display of Walking Hats and Sailors, which are much more trimmed than formerly, Pheasants' wings and soft quills being used on them in great abundance. These will replace the Rough Riders, which are now on the wane. One of the prettiest hats seen in New York was a trimmed Sailor, the price of which was $20.

A number of Pattern Hats were shown from the well known modistes of Paris and New York, but those designed by Miss Cook and her able staff of designers were quite as much admired and are only a minimum of the price of the imported ones.

There was also a pretty lot of children's headwear and a quantity of men's headgear and a quantity of mourning millinery.

Mr Cressman has made preparations for a large trade this season, and we have no doubt from the beautiful goods shown that their expectations will be fully realized.

Mr. Jimmy Spellman has been on a duck shooting trip to Rice Lake in company with Charlie Fowlds and Tom Fraser, of Hastings. They had poor luck, as the ducks are very scarce. The party propose to make another attempt next week.

DOURO'S LATE TREASURER.

At a special meeting of the Douro Council, the following memorial was passed by a standing vote of the members of the council. A copy was ordered to be engrossed and forwarded to the family of the late Mr. Leahy. The memorial was as follows:

That, whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to remove by death John Leahy, who for the past half century filled the office of Councillor, Collector and Tresurer, in rotation, holding the latter position for a period of 42 years,

And whereas, the Municipal Council of the Township of Douro is desirous of paying its tribute of respect to his memory:

Therefore, be it resolved that this Council do now record its deep sense of the loss sustained and its feeling of esteem and affection for the courteous and kindly gentleman, who has been removed from a sphere of great usefulness to the community. During his long term of office he has endeared himself to the people who came to regard him as a personal friend as well as a public servant. His gentlemanly unassuming manners, and the conscientous discharge of his duties made for him a name that will not soon be forgotten.

Be it therefore resolved that this Council do attend the funeral in a body, that this resolution be taken by a standing vote and entered upon the minutes, and that a copy be forwarded to the family of the late Treasurer with the assurance that they have the earnest and heartfelt sympathy of each member of the Council and of the community at large in the hour of their great and irreparable loss which they have sustained.

S THE POPE A TOOL?

PLOT TO DESTROY FRANCE.

He Hits a Hard Crack at the High High Church Party in England.

Rev. Hugh Price Hughes Says That Infamous Wretches Who Figured in Dreyfus Affair Were Pupils of Jesuit College and Furnished Examples of Loyola's Ethics.

London, Sept. 23.—Rev Hugh Price Hughes, ex-president of the British Methodist Conference, in the course of an address in St. James' Hall, delivered a scathing denunciation of the Jesuit order. His address was entitled: "Inwardness and moral of the Dreyfus infamy."

Never, he said, has there been a more menacing sign of the age than the unspeakable infamy perpetrated by five military scoundrels at Rennes. But to understand its significance history must be rolled back to 1521, when a Spanish soldier of high rank, Ignatius Loyola, having been wounded in battle, suddenly resolved to change his method of warfare and become a soldier of the Pope, and forthwith organized a society totally different from any ecclesiastically organization in the Latin, or any other church, on three fundamental principles. As all the scounrels figuring in the Dreyfus business have been pupils of Jesuits they furnished scientic illustration of the working of Loyola's ethics, especially in the person of the president of the first court martial, who said that he read only one of the secret documents, and then, having been given the lie direct, did not deny the documents had been read by his clerk. The end has been thought to justify lying, forgery, and attempted assassination.

The one virtue in the ethical system of the Jesuits was obedience at all hazards and at all costs to ecclesiastical external authority. This battle on behalf of absolute obedience throughout the Latin Church, though not completely successful, has been theoretically and so far as the hierarchy is concerned, quite won, as the Dreyfus case had shown, for even the Pope himself, though presumably honest and upright, was simply a tool in the hands of the general of the Jesuits, as his culpable silence throughout these iniquitous proceedings had proved. The Jesuits were as a canker at the core of France. Though nominally forbidden the country, they are supreme, and are plotting to destroy the Republic and restore the Duke of Orleans or Victor Napoleon, using, wisely, education as the instrument in moulding influential people. The infamous wretches who had figured in this vile business were all the product of Jesuit colleges. Boisdeffre and Mercier being now under the spiritual direction of the same priest. Think of the infamous way they tried to murder Picquart, who listened to the voice of conscience. And all that had followed from France allowing the Jesuit to be supreme in her military councils. England now has occasion to beware of a Jesuit invasion under guise of Anglicanism. Many of the clergy now, after the decision of the two Archbishops, were simply giving a surface loyalty, their intention being to keep the letter of the law while desirable, and then to resume old operations when possibly there may be a more complacent authority a Cantebury.

WAY OF THE TRANSGRESSOR.

He is Leading a Dog's Life, Eking Out His Existence.

London, Sept. 23.—An anonymous book of poems, just published in London, is being much praised by the reviewers for the purity, beauty and strength of the verses, while people wondered at the identity of the author. It is now learned that Lord Alfred Douglas wrote them. They were first published in Paris under his own name, but they were brought here anonymously fearing the effect of the scandal caused by Lord Douglas' connection with the Oscar Wilde case. Lord Douglas is living quietly in England with his mother, having separated from Wilde, who is living a dog's life in Paris, eking out his existence on a small annuity and a few dollars he can make by writing. Wilde recently negotiated with an American theatrical manager for the sale of a new play, but nothing resulted from it. Wilde's boys, whom no one has seen since the trial, are at school in England, cared for by an uncle. One of them is being educated for the Roman Catholic priesthood.

CAPE ASSEMBLY MEMBERS ACCUSED OF TREASON!

Mr. Cecil Rhodes Charges the Dutch Section of Cape Assembly With Betraying Great Britain.

BRITAIN WILL MAKE HER OWN TERMS NOW.

The Transvaal Government Having Rejected All Her Offers, She Will Now Proceed to Formulate Her Own Plans.

London, Sept. 23.—A special despatch from Cape Town to-day, says there was an extraordinary scene in the Assembly Friday, during the debate on the registration of voters' bill. Mr. Cecil Rhodes, who hitherto has deprecated the possibility of hostilities, repeated the statement that several members had "accepted money for electioneering purposes from the Transvaal Government, with which England is now on the verge of war."

The statement created a great impression. Later, speaking on the same bill, Mr. Rhodes pointedly indicated that some of the members were practically guilty of treason, that they were supporters of a Ministerial party who lives entirely on offal," and were "nothing more than political scavengers." He called on the Premier to hold there in check.

A SNATCH VICTORY.

London, Sept. 23.—The sands in Mr. Chamberlain's hour glass are running out but very leisurely, much too slowly, in fact, for the jingo party.

The Morning Post, editorially, warns the Government that it runs a twofolded risk by its renewed hesitancy first, of exhausting the patience of the loyalists in South Africa; second of its supporters at home, who are not too enthusiastic over its previous dealings with Imperial questions.

The paper adds: "The fact remains that President Kruger has been given another period of grace, thanks, primarily, to the fact that we are not yet prepared for war. But, also, probably, to Lord Salisbury's moderating influence on Mr. Chamberlain's impetuosity. It may be taken for granted that the Transvaal has at least until October 6 to decide as no doubt it will be allowed a week to consider Great Britain's new proposals, which cannot be presented until after the next Cabinet council. By this time the attidue of the Orange Free State will be known. Whilst the hostility of the Free State will be of future advantage by opening an easier way to Pretoria, It is a great, present danger of taking the British forces by surprise before their preparations are concluded. It is asserted at Cape Town that the combined Transvaal and Orange Free State tactics are to prevent the British advance from the Natal border and assume the offensive against British territory from along the unprotected Orange River border. President Kruger's hope is thus to get a snach victory, as in 1881, and secure easy terms for peace. An interesting note in connection with the attitude of the Afrikanders is that Secretary of State Reitz is Premier Schreiner's brother-in-law.

OFFICERS SAIL FOR THE CAPE.

London, Sept. 23.—The departure of more officers for the Cape and the denial of the Portuguese Minister that Great Britain is to take Delagoa Bay, are the only developments in the Transvaal situation this morning. The Cabinet Ministers have left town. Their action yesterday evoked nothing extraordinary in the way of comment. The expectation that their meeting would be followed by a border outbreak has, so far, been unfulfilled though the news from Johannesburg tells of unrest that is not assuring.

In spite of the Portuguese Minister's denial, there is good reason to believe Great Britain will lease Delagoa Bay.

The most notable among the officers who sailed to-day was Major-General [illegible]. A number of staff officers, special service officers and war correspondents accompanied him.

WILL MANUFACTURE A CAUSE.

Cape Town, Sept. 23.—The Onsland, the Afrikander Bund organ, commenting on the British Cabinet meeting, heads its articles, "More demands; more troops, more dumdum bullets." It says there is no casus belli, but that the British troops on the border are likely to make one, and hopes the Afrikanders' protest will be heeded before is too late.

At a meeting of 48 progressive members of the Assembly yesterday evening resolutions were passed deprecating encouraging the Transvaal and pledging the Imperial Government the strongest support.

WILL SUBMIT HER OWN PLAN.

London, Sept. 23.—As yet no official statement of the result of yesterday's Cabinet meeting has been made, but the following advice, obtained apparently from official quarters, has been received:

"A despatch will be sent to the Government of the South African Republic in answer to its recent despatch and a strong protest will be made against the accusation of bad faith against Mr. Greene. The despatch now sent expresses profound regret because of the Refusal of the South African Republic of the offer of her Majesty's Government, and states that her Majesty's Government will now proceed to formulate its own proposals for a settlement. These proposals will be considered at a latter Cabinet meeting. The despatch also firmly insists on a repudiation of the Transvaal's claims to the status of a foreign State."

In reference to the new terms that will be proposed to the Transvaal, the Daily Chronicle says they will be of a much more far reaching character than the previous ones. They may even aim at the consolidation of the whole of South Africa into a Dominion in which there shall be no room for doubt as to the authority of the paramount power and the solidarity of interests without regard to conventions.

The Chronicle adds that the Cabinet will probably allow the Transvaal a week to consider its propositions. Until the latter are formulated there will be no movement of troops in England or India except of those already notified. If an answer is not received by October 8, General Sir Redvers Buller will embark for South Africa, and an army corps will be put in motion.

Arrested a Doctor.

Walkerton, Sept. 23.—Detective Patrick Rafferman arrested Dr. Holmes on a charge of using threats to compel a patient named Mrs. Walthers to settle her account for medical attendance. The offence is said to have been committed on the 17th of May, 1897. Mrs. Walthers, who was then living with friends in Formosa, left shortly afterwards for the United States, but returned a few days ago.

VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY

Jury at Cobourg Decides the Case in About Fifty Minutes.

THE JUDGE FAVORS PONTON.

Holden Receives Four Years, Pare Three, and Roach Goes Free.

Crown's Case Stronger Than at the Previous Trial, and Defence Depend on the Jury Weighing Evidence of Criminals Against That of Reputable Citizens.

Cobourg, Sept. 23.—The jury in the case of the Queen versus William H. Ponton, charged with the theft of $33,140.50 from the Dominion Bank at Napanee, where he was employed as teller, on August 28th, 1897, retired at quarter to twelve this morning to consider their verdict, and returned into court at thirty-five minutes past twelve—or in fifty minutes—with a verdict of "Not guilty."

Cobourg, Ont., Sept. 23—For hours before the court opened this morning the corridors leading to the auditorium were crowded with citizens and country people, anxious to hear Mr. Osler present his combination of evidence to the jury.

The Crown's case is stronger than at the previous trial, and the defence are depending on the jury weighing the evidence of criminals against that of reputable citizens.

Mr. Osler stated that the case for the prisoner was well put by his counsel. The Crown must show the jury that their theory has been sustained.

Taking up the case without the accomplices' evidence, the Crown prosecutor said that it should be carefully considered, and sees how it fits together. He referred to the story of Mrs. McGee regarding the noises in Ponton's room, and the voice saying, "Oh, dear, oh, dear." Was that the voice [illegible] ... on it. There seems in all this enquiry to have arisen no breath of suspicion of any other officer in the bank.

[illegible] by the prisoner is sworn by Mr. Haines. A key, found in a cell occupied by Pare exactly fitted the impression. Defence witnesses admit the key and the impression were similar. The key may have been made from the impression produced in court, as it is possible to make a hundred impressions on paper with the thumb. The officers who found the impressions are not paid by results, and counsel has not proven that the paper was placed there by detectives.

Was entry made of the bank independent of an inside agency? There had been no evidence to show this. Those who bored the hole in the safe got through the combination of the vault, which the prisoner had. Those who bored the hole got into the premises without breaking a lock. Does not that indicate that whoever made that hole in the safe exactly opposite the bolt, was admitted there by someone who knew the inside working of the institution? The men who committed the burglary got through the two combinations. Mr. Baines' compartment was broken into, showing that if the robbers had made an impression key, and had it with them that night, it did not work. They had to resort to a jimmy. The other compartment was opened by a key, and that key was carried by the prisoner, Ponton.

Referring to the opening of a combination, Mr. Gravelle's testimony was not worth considering. His system was formed on the geometrical philosophy of figures, and it is not likely that Pare was taught this. Then there was the testimony of the minister. Who was Mr. Vanankan? He was of a highly sensitive organization, and consequently was able to bring the tumblers into line by his sense of touch and sound. The lock of the Dominion Bank safe was a modern one, and the tumblers are carried on a wheel until the last number is reached before they drop into the slot, consequently the operator with a sense of touch would be unable to work such a lock.

A question of importance to be considered was the knowledge of these burglars of matters known only to men inside the bank. How did these professional burglars know about the boxes? How did they get their information? For the first time it has been shown that a shortage existed in the prisoner's accounts. It was an error, and was corrected. How did Holden know of this shortage? How did he know that it had been rectified?

Then there is the evidence of Fraser, the [illegible] man. How did Holden know of this withdrawal? There is no chance to make a guess on the subject. He must have learned it from inside.

There were many instances showing the knowledge of the professional burglars of matters in the bank, which they ought not to have known, and which they could only obtain from the inside.

Dwelling on the habits of the prisoner and his financial position at the time of the robbery, the Crown prosecutor stated that a man with a small salary cannot go to races, play poker, frequent bars and other places, on a small salary. These are expenses which must be met and the money obtained in some manner. The prisoner, it is said had $60 saved in 1896. Why, then, had he to borrow when he left Toronto?

Coming to the time of the burglary, how is it that he paid out accounts amounting to over $100, when, according to his statements made to people in the bank and detectives, he only had $24 in his possession at the time.

Taking up the evidence of the criminals, Mr. Osler said it was a pathetic picture, that of Holden in the box. Here was a man who had been endeavoring to live a good life. The truth is what is wanted, no more, no less, and his story of the robbery, by its exactness, cannot be a concocted one. It is for the jury to find whether the stories fit in with the other circumstances, and if so, it is for them to make their finding according. The evidence of the distribution of money at Belleville may be eliminated. It was only a detail which proved the story as told by the burglars. How did the missing $5 bills turn up in the vicinity of Belleville in such large quantities, and being traced to friends of the prisoner? This was the plant which had been prepared by the professional burglars.

The Judge Sums Up.

Sir John Boyd, in summing up, referred to the position of the Crown and the jury, both of whom represented the public. Many criminals are brought to punishment by the evidence given by fellow-criminals. There has been seventy-seven witnesses examined, and the story told gives the jury a good idea of the manner in which the evidence should be considered. The one important question to decide upon was whether the robbery had been committed by the tramps working on the town lines or by burglars, with the assistance of some one in the bank.

If the evidence of the safe experts for the defence was to be relied upon there was a possibility that the prisoner had not anything to do with the robbery. But if the evidence of Holden and Roach was relied upon, there was proof that Ponton was one that could give the information, and there was no evidence produced which pointed to any other member of the staff being in a position to give the information.

It does not always follow that because witness has been dishonest that he is distrustful. The law has found it necessary to use criminals in some cases as Crown witnesses, and if their evidence is corroborated or aided by other material evidence the jury should take this evidence on which to mean a verdict.

The Chancellor then dwelt with the different points in this evidence, and showed how the story of Roach agreed with that of Holden. "There is no doubt there was a great laxity in the management of the bank at Napanee where card-playing and other irregularities were allowed to exist. That, however, has nothing to do with the case. You know, gentlemen, as much about the case as the witnesses who gave the evidence, and the case now rests with you," concluded the Chancellor.

A Disappearance Not Mysterious.

Toronto, Sept. 23rd.—Esplanade Constable Williams, with several assistants, spent this morning dragging for the body of a man who was supposed to have drowned himself from Dufferin-st. wharf yesterday afternoon, but up to noon no corpse had been discovered.

Yesterday afternoon a lady named Mrs Coverhill, who is visiting in the city with friends in Dunn avenue, while sitting with some children a little distance from Dufferin street wharf, saw a man on the wharf acting strange as she thought, by filling his pockets with stones, and suddenly jumped off the wharf, apparently into the water. Mrs Coverhill became alarmed and gave information to Mr John Chambers, Park Commissioner.

A close search, however last night and this morning failed to find any trace of the missing man, though for all around the vicinity of his disappearance the water is perfectly clear and everything on the bottom can be distinctly seen. It is probable the man stepped under the wharf for a few minutes and did not go into the water at all.

During the absence of Mrs Coverhill he may have walked away without being noticed.

Killed by a Kick.

A fatal accident happened Friday evening on the farm of Mr. Richard Moore, a farmer living a few miles west of Lindsay, by which John Robertson, brother of Mr. Andrew Robertson, implement agent of Lindsay, lost his life. Robertson, who was employed by Mr. Moore on the farm, was hitching a spirited team of horses to a waggon, when one of the animals suddenly kicked him in the side, killing him instantly. The horses then ran away, and it was some little time before the body was discovered. It was found that several ribs had been broken by the kick.

An Example.

Dear Times,—As your widely read paper is accustomed to record matters of this kind I give you the following, which occurred in a school not far from Peterborough : The teacher requested one of her little pupils to go to the blackboard and write a sentence thereon containing the word "delight." A lad only a short time out of the kindergarten stepped to the front of the room and wrote, in a large, sprawling hand, these words: "The wind blowed so hard it put out de light.

CANADA AND DEWEY.

Nothing could show the extent to which the head of Columbia has been turned by the war more than her adoration of the hero Dewey. What did the hero, Dewey, and his comrades do? They sat in almost perfect safety and destroyed at long range a line of helpless tubs with some hundreds of the poor Spaniards who manned them and who alone had any opportunity of showing heroism on the occasion. So perfectly secure did the Americans feel that they adjourned to breakfast in the middle of their sport. There was among them a single casualty; and had they all gone tiger hunting one casualty at last would probably have occurred.

For this, however, Dewey is declared to be the equal to the great seamen who conquered on the terrible days at Aboukir, Copenhagen, and Trafalgar. If he were so inclined he might probably be elected President of the United States.

Canada could not possibly take part in the celebration of Dewey's triumph without an evident breach of courtesy towards Spain, a friendly nation which has done Canada no wrong. Spain, let it be remembered, though deprived of her possessions in this hemisphere, is still a Mediterranean power, decayed at present, but capable of restoration. The British Government will hardly thank the Canadian Government for making her an implacable enemy.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Good morning.

The people of Ashburnham plainly showed, when a union with the town was proposed, that they wanted none of it, although there is still much discussion over it. The only thing connecting the two municipalities is the bridge and the telephone, and there are lots of talk over that.

Ultimately no doubt England would knock spots out of the Boer. And one of the choicest spots is the Transvaal.

A few bright rays of light that England sees in the shadow cast by the African war cloud are those reflected from the gold and diamonds.

Possibly it's hopeless to ever expect money to be absent in elections. For that matter the very bonfires show they've barrels to burn after they are over.

Talking of education, Peterborough has comparatively little school room, but it has plenty room for improvement in financial conduct of the Board of Trustees.

THE CYNIC.

All of us are very clever in finding excuses for not working more.

A man is not really prominent until he has officiated at three prominent funerals.

Some women who never work for anything else will work like slaves for a church.

An old maid dearly loves to watch a quarrel between a husband and wife to see how it comes out.

If a man truly loves his wife, he is very apt to become confidential and tell her a lot of stories on the other fellows.

In talking it is well to know that people will not remember what you are saying unless they can use it against you.

A man always rises in his own estimation when he gets on familiar terms with a person of whom he once stood in awe.

There probably never was a woman too good to try to pass her children off as under age when traveling on the railroad.—Atchison Globe.

WEATHER PROPHETS.

The green woodpecker is said to laugh his "Ya-ha-ha" in different, more liquid tones when rain is coming, and especially gifted persons claim his cry really changes to "rain, rain, rain!"

In Dorsetshire, England, they foretell storms by the flight of the rooks. When they are pitch falling or playing at tumbling, diving and wheeling in the air, they say a storm is due.

Sea fowl are very clever in foretelling a storm. To a sailor bad weather means wind, and to a landsman it means rain, but the screaming of the water birds usually foretells a change of some sort for the worse in the prevailing weather.

THE WEAPON OF SCIENCE.

The man with a spear and shield may seem a terrible fellow to one who meets him empty handed or with only the same sort of an equipment with which to oppose him, but where does either of them stand before a modern rifle? Any disease may be deadly enough when you have no adequate means at hand to confront it. Plenty of people die every day of curable diseases, simply because the stereotyped, routine, senseless methods and remedies usually employed are not half-way equal to the occasion.

But when a truly scientific remedy like Dr. Pierce's great "Golden Medical Discovery" is brought to bear upon the complaints which it is designed to cure, it penetrates the tough hide-bound armor of obstinate disease with the same unerring accuracy and power with which a modern rifle penetrates a savage shield.

"I had been doctoring and using patent medicine for about a year and a half, being unable to work most of the time," says John L. Coughenour, Esq., of Glensavage, Somerset Co., Pa. "The doctor said I had heart disease and indigestion. It began with a choking and oppressed feeling in the chest. I seemed to be raw from my throat clear down into my stomach. My appetite was usually poor, and I was as weak and nervous as though I had been starved out for months. My heart kept throbbing continually and I was short of breath.

"Finally I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for advice and he informed me that I had indigestion and torpid liver. I did not think that diagnosis was right, but I ordered six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and began its use. After using three bottles I began to improve steadily and soon went to work; and I have been working ever since."

For obstinate constipation Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most perfect medicine ever devised. They give prompt, comfortable, permanent relief.

Following are extracts from the report of Capt. T. H. Trethewey, M.E., upon the Company's properties which are now being vigorously developed, and upon which will be installed the 6 drill compressor plant, which was purchased from the Canadicn Rand Drill Co. on the 5th inst. for immediate delivery.

MR. TRETHEWEY SAYS:

"The vein on these properties is well defined, and, where exposed by the workings near the line between the Western Hill and Virginia, averages fully 18 ft. in width. The gauge consists of a somewhat crushed and iron-stained quartz, sparingly mineralized with Galena, Copper and Iron Pyrites, with here and there small amount of Blend and Graphite disseminated throughout."

"On the Western Hill, a a shaft has been sunk to a depth of 27 ft. on the foot wall, and the ledge has been exposed by a cross-cut to its full width; it here appears to be divided into hanging and foot wall portions by a seam of somewhat decomposed clay material which appears to dip toward the hanging wall, cutting out the leaner and allowing the richer portions of the vein to increase with depth."

"Samples taken in this shaft, across an 8 ft. face lying next to the foot wall, gave an average return of $7.00 in Gold and $1.35 in Silver, making a total of $8.35 per ton, while the balance of the vein gave a return of $2.00 in Gold and 70 cents in Silver, making a total of $2.70 per ton for a width of ten feet, so that $5.25 may be considered a fair average for the full width of the vein."

"The conclusion I have drawn after a thorough examination and study of the facts as here presented is, that judicious developement should locate extensive bodies of pay ore, as even if only the 8 ft. next to the foot wall be extracted, the values continuing in depth as there is no reason why they should not, while leaner portions may be encountered they could be left in the mine to support the walls, and you would still have a proposition of unlimited tonnage well worthy of judicious expenditure in exposing its resources."

"The general conditions, elevation, etc., are so favorable that mining operations can be carried on for many years by simply tunnelling into the mountain and following the trend of the vein, and hundreds of thousands of tons of ore can readily be made available without the use of hoisting or pumping machinery."

"Situated as these claims are about 2000 ft. above the bank of the Okanagan River, with a natural outlet for Ærial or other tramway, and only about three miles from the "Black Hawk" Claim, which is within easy reach of the river, the question of transportation of ore from the mine to the mill could be easily arranged."

"With an electric plant established at Dog Falls, which is possibly ten miles distant, ample power could be generated at a nominal cost for all purposes, and by adopting the most modern methods of mining, milling and concentrating, together with an unlimited supply of ore, the cost of production should be reduced to a minimum."

"If the present promising assurances are borne out, the opening up of the three levels could develope at least a three years' supply of ore for a plant of large capacity, and I would strongly recomend the erection and installation of a mill of not less than from 250 to 300 tons daily capacity."

"With cheap power an unlimited supply of ore and a plant capable of handling the quantity I have suggested, the cost of mining and milling ought not to exceed from $1.50 to $2.00 per ton, and under capable management it should be kept within the lower limits."

"Thus even if the lowest values, $3.05 be taken as a basis of calculation and allowing that 85 p. c. of this can be saved, it would yield a profit of $1.09 for each ton of ore treated, but I am of opinion that much higher values may be confidently expected, and if there is a profit winner in the camp, all conditions considered, this one can be conscientiously recommended to the investing public."

At the next Annual Meeting of the Company, which will be held on the 6th day of November next, several of Montreal's most prominent business men will accept Directorship.

EXPERT AT SAFE LOCKS

Gravelle Solves Several Combinations in Court at Cobourg.

LALIES TESTIFY TO ALIBI.

Miss Davey States That Ponton Left the House at Eleven O'Clock.

Mr. Gravelle, With a Four-wheel Combination, Demonstrates in Court That He Can Open Lock With Different Numbers—His Evidence Will Have Weight With Jury.

Cobourg, Sept. 22.—The Ponton defence resumed this morning. The first few witnesses were uneventful and the legal argument over the production of Pare as a witness was postponed for the time being.

C. D. MacAuley, a Napanee barrister testified that Ponton spent the evening of April 24, 1898, from 7.30 until 11 o'clock at Mr. Davey's house. This is the night on which Holden declares they talked about resurrecting Ponton's buried treasure, and sent John Nicole to fetch Ponton from the party.

Mrs. MacAuley corroborated her husband. This lady keeps a diary, and her husband's movements for that evening—and perhaps for many other evenings—were accurately tabulated.

Miss Lulu Davey also had this particular Sunday evening firmly lodged in her mind. She knew that Mr. Ponton left with Miss Newbury at 11 o'clock sharp. That was closing hour at the Davey House, and Miss Newbury always stayed the limit. This witness was very positive.

Mr. Osler quoted her previous testimony: "At the sixth stroke of the clock he rose." He was, of course, Mr. Ponton, was well aware of the closing hour.

"Is that right?" asked Mr. Osler.

"Certainly," said Miss Davey.

Miss Jessie MacLean was at the Davey residence from 8 p.m. until 11, and had Mr. Ponton under her eye most of the time. As a test of memory Mr. Osler asked if she could recall the text at Church that night. The young lady confessed that it had slipped her mind.

Mr. Osler said that her logic should be summarized in this way: "Because I saw a yellow dog coming down the street on Wednesday, therefore I am well sure that I went to bed at 11 o'clock the following Sunday."

A Fallow Clerk's Evidence.

Walter H. Green, a junior at the Napanee bank at the time of the burglary, gave an account of his association with Ponton. He thought that Mr. Durand and Mr. Baines were the only ones who had the combination of the safe. He and Mr. Ponton knew the combination of the vault. On the night of the burglary witness had locked the vault, and he and Mr. Baines were the last to leave the bank.

Mr. Porter refused to call Pare as a defence witness, and the Crown had no need of his services. The court decided that if called, it must be by one side or the other, and so the audience was cheated of a sight of this notorious malefactor.

Mr. Arthur Gravelle, the amateur safe expert, who has won a deal of notoriety in connection with the case, was the next witness. He was armed with a four-wheel Sargent and Greenleaf combination lock, which mechanism he explained to the court and jury. Mr. Gravelle gave the clew that the doubters have been looking for. Chancellor Boyd is interested in combination locks and he overruled Mr. Osler's objections to practical demonstrations.

"The safe," said Mr. Porter, "was set on the combination 20, 66, 90, 43. How is that combination?"

"It's an easy one," said Mr. Gravelle.

"Are there any other numbers on which the lock can be opened?"

"Yes, on 24, 20, 90, 43."

"Yes, on 24, 20, 90, 43."

"Do it," said Mr. Porter, and the whole audience watched the operation breathlessly.

Mr. Gravelle set his lock on the Napanee bank combination and proceeded to open it by his own set of numbers.

"To the right 24," called off Mr. Porter. "To the left 20; to the right 90; to the left 43," and the lock is opened.

So it was, but on the second set of numbers, 40, 72, 90, 43, Mr. Gravelle failed three times, and finally had to give it up. Although the weels were in line the lever would not drop, and the lock remained engaged.

"Is there another set of numbers that will do it?"

"Yes," said Mr. Gravelle. "Take the set, 30, 94, 90, 43."

"All right," said Mr. Porter. "Do it."

Again Mr. Gravelle's thin right hand twisted the knob too and fro, and as the last number was called off, Presto! the thing was unlocked.

Having remarked that there were thousands of sets of four numbers that would unlock the combination, Mr. Gravelle went on to demonstrate that he could do the trick with three numbers. He took the set 20, 81 and 44, and in a minute the thing was done.

This was the end of the object lesson. Undoubtedly it had an immense impression on the jury although the value of the evidence is not direct.

THE MAGICAL MIRROR

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY A WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentous Pictures Reflected In Its Oval Surface, Although It Will Not Work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our prosaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the sacred secrets and ceremonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery. While there she managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomless depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface; then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gazer recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac. By the mail two days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his home, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in shape; a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth.

The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the asphaltum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the best known material for absorption of the aura of the human body, and this is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, airy chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post.

The Birds Save Us.

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the bugs and slugs would simply eat up orchards and crops.

WOMEN OF NOTE.

Mrs. James M. Barrie, wife of the author of "The Little Minister," is said to be a very pretty woman.

Mme. Navarro's (Mary Anderson's) sister is Mother Dominica, a nun in the Convent of the Assumption in London.

Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer disposes of some $75,000 each year on her whims and never asks the price of an article that strikes her fancy, but orders it sent home.

Erie, Kan., has two newspapers edited by women. Mrs. Belle Harbaugh edits The Republican-Record and Miss Elizabeth Frazier has charge of the Erie Sentinel.

Helen Gould's income is the largest of any unmarried woman in the country. She does not spend much on herself. On churches and charities she spends $100,000 a year.

Mme. Loubet greatly resembles her friend, Mme. Carnot, in her charitable tendencies. She disposes of large sums among the poor, and is a regular visitor at the hospitals.

Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, formerly Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, is said to be the most extravagant woman in society. She spends quite $100,000 each year on trifles and knickknacks.

Mrs. S. V. Harkness of New York city, formerly of Cleveland, has offered to build a chapel at the College For Women of the Western Reserve university in Cleveland. She had previously founded a biblical professorship in that college.

The young Duchess of Marlborough and several other ladies of much wealth and rank are going in for falconry. It is an expensive form of sport, an ordinary hawk costing as much as $500 and requiring quite an outlay for maintenance and training.

Mrs. William Rockefeller's hobby is for carnations, one of the greenhouses at her country place at Scarborough-on-the-Hudson being devoted exclusively to their culture. She is said to spend thousands of dollars every year for the plants she imports for her own pleasure.

At a public dress rehearsal of a new play in Paris Mme. Casimir-Perier, wife of the former president of the French republic, was requested to remove her hat, but declined to do so. When she learned that the rule would be enforced in her case as in all others, she left the theater in disgust.

Lady Randolph Churchill is thus described by T. P. O'Connor in his weekly: She is still a very pretty woman. Her raven black hair does not show a single thread of gray; her figure is slight and svelte, and the deep, dark blue eyes have all their vivacity undimmed by their years of tears. She is certainly one of the most widely accomplished women of her time.

EUGENE FIELD AND TABOR.

How the Humorist Made Life a Burden For the Millionaire.

"Up to middle age the late Senator Tabor's life was one of great hardship," said a former resident of the Silver State, "and when he suddenly became fabulously rich he plunged into luxuries like a starving man wading into a banquet. One of his early freaks was the purchase of several magnificent lace nightrobes which cost $100 apiece and which he kept locked up in a safe during the day. Eugene Field was editor of the Denver Tribune at the time, and these lace nightrobes made him simply hysterical. He wrote column upon column about them, describing the garments in detail, with numerous diagrams depicting sections fore and aft. The diagrams were hideous affairs, which Field carved out himself with a penknife on the back of old wood type. He used to describe how Tabor would forget the combination of the safe and sit up, shivering and naked, half the night trying to remember the right figures.

"Altogether he kept Denver in a roar for weeks and made Tabor so wild that one day he rushed into his office, snatched the unfortunate nightrobes out of their compartment and tore them to threads. 'There, now!' he exclaimed, wiping his forehead and kicking the tattered fragments into a corner, 'I hope that fool will be satisfied. I'll be hanged if I ain't going to get a gunny sack,' he continued, 'cut some holes in the end for my head and arms, and then sleep in it for the rest of my life!'

"When Tabor was appointed to the senate to fill an unexpired term of exactly 20 days, Field broke loose again and had all kinds of fun with the old man. He declared that Tabor opposed the tariff bill on the ground that it encouraged lawlessness in the west. 'I don't know this tariff bill,' he reported the senator as saying in a speech, 'but we have entirely too many of 'em out where I live. There's Wild Bill and Pecos Bill and Billy the Kid—all no good. If you let Tariff Bill have everything to do with the custom house he is liable to steal the Atlantic ocean.' Many of the honest frontier folk took these flights of fancy seriously, and drove Tabor nearly distracted by long letters of remonstrance, urging him to read up and get posted, so as not to disgrace the state.

"At the expiration of the senator's brief term he circulated an autograph album among his fellow members, and the incident tickled Field immensely. He gave what purported to be a copy of the 'sentiments' inscribed in the volume by the different statesmen—such things as 'When this you see, remember me, Roscoe Conkling,' and 'Sure as the moss grows 'round a stump you are my darling sugar lump—I mean chump—George F. Hoar,' and similar nonsense, all of which maddened his victim.

"I think 'Gene Field was the only man Tabor never forgave, for in spite of his gaunt, forbidding exterior, the miner magnate was as tender hearted as a girl. He was really full of sterling qualities, and in his proper sphere he would have been anything but grotesque. One thing is sure—if every fellow he helped in secret would have joined his funeral procession he would have gone to his grave like an emperor of old."

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

SOUTH AFRICAN CRISIS

British Cabinet Meets But Result of Deliberations Unknown.

GERMANY TAKES A HAND?

The Kaiser's Ambassador Holds a Conference With Lord Salisbury.

A Report That Britain Will Take Possession of Delagoa Bay—Orange Free State Will Support the Transvaal—A Boer Raid is Looked For—A Vigorous Line Adopted.

London, Sept. 22.—A large crowd gathered early to-day in Downing street, and cheered the members of the Cabinet, who met at 12.30, Mr Chamberlain receiving the lion's share of the applause.

Money From Rothschild.

Previously, Lord Rothschild visited Mr Balfour, an unusual circumstance, which is said to be in connection with the money difficulties the Government is encountering regarding the prospective military campaign.

Vigorous Line Adopted.

The Cabinet meeting ended at 2.40 m, and the Ministers were cheered as they came out of the Foreign Office. Nothing transpired regarding the action taken, though the general impression spread that a vigorous line had been adopted.

The Secretary of State for War, the Marquis of Lansdowne, and the First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr George J Goschen, immediately proceeded to the War Office.

Angry at Afrikanders.

When the Cabinet went into session no new developments in the Transvaal situation had transpired. The despatches from the Cape continued of a war-like tone and voiced the indignation of the British contingent against the Orange Free State and Afrikander attitudes.

The impression current here, though not based on anything tangible, was that, publicly, the Cabinet would only take steps tending to protract negotiations, while secretly it would prepare the details of an aggressive campaign, perhaps deciding to convoke Parliament, though it was scarcely believed the latter determination would be announced immediately.

Boer Raid Looked For.

News from South Africa is eagerly awaited, as many think the Cabinet Council will immediately be followed by a Boer raid.

GOT DELAGO BAY!

Allahabad, British India, Sept. 22—The Pioneer to-day prints a despatch saying negotiations have been concluded by Great Britain for taking possession of Delagoa Bay, November.

GERMANY TAKES A HAND!

London, Sept. 22.—Immediately after the Cabinet Council the German Ambassador, Count von Hatzfeldt-Wildenburg, visited Lord Salisbury, and had a long conference with him. The fact that a similar visit immediately followed the previous Cabinet council leads some persons to attach significance to it, and to infer that Emperor William of Germany is taking an active part in Transvaal affairs.

The official German press, however, has been so outspoken in telling President Kruger that he need no expect German aid that it is scarcely possible to attach credence to these inferences. It is much more probable that the question of Delagoa Bay was discussed.

Many rumors are current regarding the result of the Cabinet Council, all professing to be based on good sources. But they are vague and contradictory. One news agency announces that immediate and decisive action has not been decided upon.

A preliminary survey of the route of the projected line from Haliburton to Whitney has just been completed. The Globe says the final survey will be made this fall.

A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

The Victim Was the Samoan King Malietoa and the Victor an American Naval Officer—The Jack Pot That Caused the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymaster in the navy with King Malietoa several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever indulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kalakaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little brush on this line. Well, Malietoa's opportunity to test his belief came one day when an American man-of-war—never mind which one—sailed into the harbor at Apia. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the fullest extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an assistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malietoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Malietoa requested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Malietoa had almost phenomenal luck, winning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a smile of pleasure and triumph combined, announced that he would open it $20 worth. Every player staid. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Malietoa showed his blood by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others staid. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped out. After the king's last raise the paymaster hesitated a moment, put his cigar to one side and shoved $50 to the middle of the mahogany.

"The king put up the equivalent in Chilean silver dollars, the currency of the islands, and, drawing a small sack from his pocket, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Samoa, amounting to $70 in silver. The paymaster's face grew serious, and he looked at his royal opponent in a hesitating, puzzled sort of way. Could this be a Samoan Ah Sin he had run against? Had this kingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evening? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance some of it in finding out.

"After a few moments of undecision he drew $579 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malietoa gave a gasp and called for a glass of kava to steady his nerves. This he gulped down and announced that he was out of funds, requesting at the same time that the paymaster take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smiling and looking fixedly at the pot. Then the excited monarch offered to put up the island of Manono, one of the finest in the Samoan group, against the $500. To this the paymaster consented, and a transfer deed of the property, duly signed, attested by the trader, who was a notary public, and witnessed by the other two officers, was put in the pot. Then the king called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four aces and a five spot.

"With a look of horror and a Samoan wail of despair, his majesty exposed to view three kings, an eight spot and a deuce. Then he fell off his chair in a faint, the excitement having been too much for his nerves. Kava in copious quantities brought him around sufficiently to enable his removal to his own castle. The paymaster shoveled his money into a sack and placed it in the trader's iron safe, but the deed for the island he carefully placed in his pocket.

"Next morning the details of the big poker game were known to nearly every inhabitant of the place, and the German and English consuls sent official communications to the American consul protesting in most emphatic terms against the action of the king in disposing of the island of Manono to an American or to any one else, and warning the consul that unless the paymaster returned the deed for the island to the king at once they would direct the attention of their respective governments to the case.

"Here was a pretty state of affairs. The officer had, no doubt, won the island fairly, and the king's action was binding, but in the tension in which Samoan affairs were at that time the German and English governments would only too willingly have taken advantage of the circumstances as an excuse for international complications, ending ultimately in a disastrous way to American interests.

"The facts were fully explained to the paymaster, and on the promise of Malietoa that he would give the officer a number of fine mats and other Samoan articles of value the deed was returned to the king and destroyed. By mutual consent of the consuls and others interested the affair was hushed up in every way and was thus allowed to die out. Malietoa took an oath that he would never again play poker."

Reciprocal.

"Yes, sir," remarked the amiable man, "I look to see an Englishman come over here and drop his h's once in awhile."

"Yes," answered the man who had been to Epsom downs, "and he likes to see us go over there and drop our —all d's."

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. They are taken in at Mr. Caleb Davis's Shop, at the Fortification; Mr. Andrew Gillespie's, near Dr. Clark's; Mr. Andrew Randale's, near Phillips's Wharf; and Mr. John Boies's in Long Lane; Mr. Frothingham's in Charleston; Mr. Williams's in Marblehead; Mr. Ellson's in Salem; Mr. John Harris's in Newbury; Mr. Daniel Fowle's in Portsmouth; and at the Paper Mill in Milton.

"Rags are as Beauties, which concealed lie;
But when in Paper, how it charms the Eye;
Pray save Rags, new Beauties to discover.
For Paper truly, every one's a Lover:
By th' Pen and Press such Knowledge is displayed,
As wouldn't exist if Paper was not made.
Wisdom of Things, mysterious, divine,
Illustriously doth on Paper shine."

But They Weren't Civilized.

Traveling in southern India, one day I was taken into the country to see tapioca roots gathered and ground for use. The adults working in the grove, men and women, had each a rag around the loins, but the boys and girls, with their black, glossy skins, were free of all incumbrance.

Our guide explained to these people that we were from a country so far away and so different from theirs that the waters were sometimes made solid by the extreme cold and we could walk upon them; that sometimes it was so intensely cold that the rain was frozen into particles and lay on the earth so deep that people could not walk through it, and that three and four layers of heavy clothes had to be worn.

This happy people, as our guide told us, wondered why we staid there, why we did not come and enjoy life in their favored clime.—Andrew Carnegie in North American Review

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. STEYN ACTS UGLY.

Bloemfontein, Orange Free State, Sept. 22.—The Volksraad met with a full attendance. President M. T. Steyn, read a carefully prepared speech in which he said President Kruger had made proposals which, although refused by the British High Commissioner, were unanimously considered throughout the Orange Free State to be exceedingly fair. He said the Transvaal had been deceived by the British diplomatic agent at Pretoria, Mr. Greene, and practically accused the Imperial Government of a breach of faith. He said he was disclined to advise the Transvaal Government to accept the latest British demands. The present critical state of affairs could not be a matter of indifference to the Orange Free State was bound by treaty to afford assistance to the Transvaal and he had therefore convened the Volksraad to decide what attitude should be taken.

CRIMINAL ANIMALS.

E. Seton Thompson, naturalist to the government of Manitoba, gives in his book, "Wild Animals I Have Known," some curious examples of depravity among wild beasts.

The best story is that of the New Mexican wolf who led a band that killed a cow a day for five years. Finally the ranchers offered $1,000 for this wolf's pelt. He was easily distinguished. His track was an inch wider than that of other wolves.

A professional wolf hunter tried to earn the bounty, but the wolves killed his dogs, and he gave it up. Then Mr. Thompson took the case. He melted cheese in the fat of a heifer in a china dish, cut it into lumps with a bone knife to avoid the taint of metal and put in strychnine and cyanide in odor proof capsules. He wore gloves steeped in cow's blood and avoided breathing on the baits.

The baits were picked up. He followed the track and found that the wolf had laid all four together and scattered dirt over them.

The wolves then took to killing sheep. Traps were set to the number of 130 in different parts of the ranch. The trails of the big wolf and of the pack were traced up to one set of traps, and the doings of the leader were marked in the dust.

He had stopped the rest, warned by scent, and scratched around the trap till he found the buried chain and picket. On another part of the ranch he entered an H-shaped series of traps and detected the danger. The trail showed that he had slowly backed out on his own track, putting each paw down backward until out of the dangerous ground. He had then sprung some of the traps by scratching clods and stones backward at them with his [illegible] feet.

He was at last caught by dragging over the traps the body of a female wolf, the scent of which he followed.

No more skillful criminal than this wolf was ever known. Old Eph, a lame grizzly, which in two years ruined half the hog raisers in the Sacramento valley by his wasteful love of pork, was a close second. A bobtailed wolf kept the whole city of Paris in terror for ten years at the beginning of the fourteenth century, and the Lochnee panther, in India, killed 300 human beings in less than two years.

A famous rogue dog of Derbyshire was conspicuous by its faithful care of sheep in the daytime, but was savage and ugly toward men strangers. It slept in the house and was never suspected, though sheep worrying took place on the farms near.

At last it was tracked in the [illegible] from a fold where 20 sheep had been killed to the farm where it lived, the dog having forgotten that the track would show, though it took partial means to conceal it by running along the top of a stone wall.

Generally when a hen desires to sit at this time it is best to allow her to do so. The hatching and raising of a brood will put her in better condition for laying.—St. Louis Republic.

OUTWITTING AN ELEPHANT.

A Hunter Saved by His Knowledge of the Beast's Habits.

Only those familiar with the "manners and customs" of the elephant have any idea what a nimble creature it really is. Massive and slow footed as it looks, it is capable, when roused, of feats that would be difficult for much fleeter animals. Especially is this the case with African elephants, which, though taller, are generally lighter than their Asiatic brethren. Moreover, accustomed for ages to lead a wild life and often depending on their alertness and speed of foot for their very existence, they have acquired a skill in gymnastics which has occasionally taken even old elephant hunters by surprise.

In illustration of this fact we are reminded of a story told by one of the sportsmen in Africa. He was "out after elephants" and had just fired at and wounded a magnificent specimen. Unfortunately for him, he had only succeeded in slightly wounding it, when, infuriated by the attack, it turned and charged him. It was a terrifying sight. With its enormous ears spread out like sails and emitting shrill notes of rage, it came thundering over the ground like a runaway locomotive. The hunter fired another shot, but missed. His nerve was shaken, and, throwing down his "express" rifle, he sought safety in flight. Near at hand was a steep hill, and to this he directed his steps, for, being but slightly acquainted with the climbing powers of the elephant, he thought his pursuer might be baffled by the steepness of the ascent.

It was a terrible disappointment to find that the elephant could climb a hill just as quickly as the hunter, nimble runner as he was. The fugitive, indeed, would have soon been overtaken if he had not thought of a really ingenious ruse. He knew that elephants never run, or even walk, down a steep incline, but always crouch down, gather their feet together, lean well back and slide down. Just as the ferocious animal had got within a few yards of him, therefore, the wily hunter suddenly doubled and ran down the hill again.

Quick as a flash the elephant turned, gathered himself together and, trumpeting with baffled rage, slid down after his victim. The hunter had just time to spring out of the way as the great beast came "tobogganing" after him, smashing trees and shrubs and carrying everything before it like an avalanche. Then once more the hunter dashed to the top of the hill, while the elephant, unable to stop itself, went careering down to the very foot, where, apparently feeling very sore and disappointed, it rose and walked wearily back to its native woods.—Chums.

Odd Disasters.

In an English coal mine a few years ago a callous youth viciously pricked a pony with his penknife. The wounded animal kicked out furiously, overturning and breaking several safety lamps. The naked flames fed the foul gases in the air and created an appalling explosion, which wrought the death of over a hundred miners.

Sun rays, shining through a decanter of water on to the cartridge of a loaded rifle, slew a sleeping man on a lounge near by. The innocent owner of the rifle was arraigned for the supposed crime and was sentenced to death, when the testimony of a shrewd detective solved the mystery and secured his reprieve.

A German family, seven in number, lost their lives by a somewhat unique accident. They slept in one large apartment, lighted by gas. Before retiring the father hung his overcoat above the gas burner. During the night this garment slipped and fell on the tap, turning the gas full on and so suffocating the slumbering inmates.

ON THE TROLLEY.

The red is melting in the river,
The red is dying in the sky,
The evening star begins to quiver,
Belated birds go darting by—
Come, let us follow, follow, follow,
And find how fine it is to fly.

By pine woods where when noon was sunny,
The air with spicy balsams flowed,
By gardens full of sweets and honey
Where summer long the rose has glowed,
By weary wife and loitering lover,
Come, flash along the river road.

The forest wall across the river
Darkens within the curling tide,
The fragrant winds about us shiver,
We rock, we race, we rush, we ride,
Thrilled with the sweep of airy motion
And glad because the world is wide!

The night soars up the purple spaces,
The whirling winds divide the deep,
Strange gleams are on familiar places,
Swift lightnings underneath us leap,
As forward flying, flying, flying,
Upon the thunderbolt we sweep!

A hunting horn at a sale in London fetched 6,300 guineas. It is an ordinary cow's horn beautifully enameled, the subjects depicted being hunting scenes. It is about 350 years old.

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and sassy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave those floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say, that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my dernedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

The Hint That Failed.

The landlady looked solemnly in the direction of the delinquent one.

"It's a rule in this house to pay as you go," said she.

The delinquent one smiled.

"It's a good plan," said he. "You get it all in a bunch then or nothing."—Syracuse Herald.

CRIMINAL ANIMALS.

A Naturalist's Study of Thoroughly Wicked Wild Beasts.

E. Seton Thompson, naturalist to the government of Manitoba, gives in his book, "Wild Animals I Have Known," some curious examples of depravity among wild beasts.

The best story is that of the New Mexican wolf who led a band that killed a cow a day for five years. Finally the ranchers offered $1,000 for this wolf's pelt. He was easily distinguished. His track was an inch wider than that of other wolves.

A professional wolf hunter tried to earn the bounty, but the wolves killed his dogs, and he gave it up. Then Mr. Thompson took the case. He melted cheese in the fat of a heifer in a china dish, cut it into lumps with a bone knife to avoid the taint of metal and put in strychnine and cyanide in odor proof capsules. He wore gloves steeped in cow's blood and avoided breathing on the baits.

The baits were picked up. He followed the track and found that the wolf had laid all four together and scattered dirt over them.

The wolves then took to killing sheep. Traps were set to the number of 130 in different parts of the ranch. The trails of the big wolf and of the pack were traced up to one set of traps, and the doings of the leader were marked in the dust.

He had stopped the rest, warned by scent, and scratched around the trap till he found the buried chain and picket. On another part of the ranch he entered an H-shaped series of traps and detected the danger. The trail showed that he had slowly backed out on his own track, putting each paw down backward until out of the dangerous ground. He had then sprung some of the traps by scratching clods and stones backward at them with his hind feet.

He was at last caught by dragging over the traps the body of a female wolf, the scent of which he followed.

No more skillful criminal than this wolf was ever known. Old Eph, a lame grizzly, which in two years ruined half the hog raisers in the Sacramento valley by his wasteful love of pork, was a close second. A bobtailed wolf kept the whole city of Paris in terror for ten years at the beginning of the fourteenth century, and the Lochnee panther, in India, killed 300 human beings in less than two years.

A famous rogue dog of Derbyshire was conspicuous by its faithful care of sheep in the daytime, but was savage and ugly toward men strangers. It slept in the house and was never suspected, though sheep worrying took place on the farms near.

At last it was tracked in the snow from a fold where 20 sheep had been killed to the farm where it lived, the dog having forgotten that the track would show, though it took partial means to conceal it by running along the top of a stone wall.

Generally when a hen desires to sit at this time it is best to allow her to do so. The hatching and raising of a brood will put her in better condition for laying.—St. Louis Republic.

OUTWITTING AN ELEPHANT.

A Hunter Saved by His Knowledge of the Beast's Habits.

Only those familiar with the "manners and customs" of the elephant have any idea what a nimble creature it really is. Massive and slow footed as it looks, it is capable, when roused, of feats that would be difficult for much fleeter animals. Especially is this the case with African elephants, which, though taller, are generally lighter than their Asiatic brethren. Moreover, accustomed for ages to lead a wild life and often depending on their alertness and speed of foot for their very existence, they have acquired a skill in gymnastics which has occasionally taken even old elephant hunters by surprise.

In illustration of this fact we are reminded of a story told by one of the sportsmen in Africa. He was "out after elephants" and had just fired at and wounded a magnificent specimen. Unfortunately for him, he had only succeeded in slightly wounding it, when, infuriated by the attack, it turned and charged him. It was a terrifying sight. With its enormous ears spread out like sails and emitting shrill notes of rage, it came thundering over the ground like a runaway locomotive. The hunter fired another shot, but missed. His nerve was shaken, and, throwing down his "express" rifle, he sought safety in flight. Near at hand was a steep hill, and to this he directed his steps, for, being but slightly acquainted with the climbing powers of the elephant, he thought his pursuer might be baffled by the steepness of the ascent.

It was a terrible disappointment to find that the elephant could climb a hill just as quickly as the hunter, nimble runner as he was. The fugitive, indeed, would have soon been overtaken if he had not thought of a really ingenious ruse. He knew that elephants never run, or even walk, down a steep incline, but always crouch down, gather their feet together, lean well back and slide down. Just as the ferocious animal had got within a few yards of him, therefore, the wily hunter suddenly doubled and ran down the hill again.

Quick as a flash the elephant turned, gathered himself together and, trumpeting with baffled rage, slid down after his victim. The hunter had just time to spring out of the way as the great beast came "tobogganing" after him, smashing trees and shrubs and carrying everything before it like an avalanche. Then once more the hunter dashed to the top of the hill, while the elephant, unable to stop itself, went careering down to the very foot, where, apparently feeling very sore and disappointed, it rose and walked wearily back to its native woods.—Chums.

Odd Disasters.

In an English coal mine a few years ago a callous youth viciously pricked a pony with his penknife. The wounded animal kicked out furiously, overturning and breaking several safety lamps. The naked flames fed the foul gases in the air and created an appalling explosion, which wrought the death of over a hundred miners.

Sun rays, shining through a decanter of water on to the cartridge of a loaded rifle, slew a sleeping man on a lounge near by. The innocent owner of the rifle was arraigned for the supposed crime and was sentenced to death, when the testimony of a shrewd detective solved the mystery and secured his reprieve.

A German family, seven in number, lost their lives by a somewhat unique accident. They slept in one large apartment, lighted by gas. Before retiring the father hung his overcoat above the gas burner. During the night this garment slipped and fell on the tap, turning the gas full on and so suffocating the slumbering inmates.

ON THE TROLLEY.

The red is melting in the river,
The red is dying in the sky,
The evening star begins to quiver,
Belated birds go darting by—
Come, let us follow, follow, follow,
And find how fine it is to fly.

By pine woods where when noon was sunny,
The air with spicy balsams flowed,
By gardens full of sweets and honey
Where summer long the rose has glowed,
By weary wife and loitering lover,
Come, flash along the river road.

The forest wall across the river
Darkens within the curling tide,
The fragrant winds about us shiver,
We rock, we race, we rush, we ride,
Thrilled with the sweep of airy motion
And glad because the world is wide!

The night soars up the purple spaces,
The whirling winds divide the deep,
Strange gleams are on familiar places,
Swift lightnings underneath us leap,
As forward flying, flying, flying,
Upon the thunderbolt we sweep!

A hunting horn at a sale in London fetched 6,300 guineas. It is an ordinary cow's horn beautifully enameled, the subjects depicted being hunting scenes. It is about 350 years old.

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and easy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave those floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my dernedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

THE TRANSVAAL QUESTION.

Mr. D. W. Dumble Has Written the Following Letter For Publication.]

Sir,—I notice in your paper, copied from the Globe, a letter signed "J. H. Burnham," and dated from Peterborough. It is headed "A word for the Boers," but it is foolish and unmanly slur upon the Right Honourable Joseph Chamberlain, Colonial Secretary and upon the Canadian Parliament. It ill becomes a citizen of our grand empire to speak of a man whose history has been one of honorable and very marked service, first for his own city and then for the empire, a man of very striking ability—of very great independence and wisdom, as exemplified in his break from Gladstone and party in maintenance of his opinion in reference to home rule, I say it ill becomes Mr. J. H. Burnham to speak of such a man as "Brummagem Joe."

There are 70,000 British subjects in the Transvaal whose energy has made the country rich, whose taxes have lifted the Boers out of poverty, but who are treated worse than the Israelities were by old Pharaoh. The British people ask for them fair treatment and their fellow countrymen in the colonies, as part of the whole body who sympathise when one member is wounded, tell to Kruger and the world at large that the Britons throughout the world are one people. The continental powers of Europe are jealous of Britain. They cannot know too soon that blood is thicker than water, and that the greater Britain is larger than Albion.

There was a time when the sentiment of the colonies was not considered as of moment—that day at least—and now there is but one heart and one pulse—and is a proud thing to be a Briton—though his home may be in the smallest colony.

Canada through her Parliament did well in the interests of peace to tell Paul Kruger and his Boers that the power he was defying was a people that girdled the globe. A people that breathed an air of freedom and demanded for their fellowcountrymen everywhere, the rights which the civilization of the age and the habit of free people made as vital as the air in which Britons were nurtured.

Another Toronto Daily.

The prospectus of the Standard Newspaper Company, of Toronto, has been received. It states that the amount of capital to be asked for before business is commenced will be $75,000, but publication may begin when $25,000 is received. The paper will be sold for a cent, and the cost of running a daily issue of 10,000 copies for the year is estimated at $55,000. From this amount the receipts from subscriptions and advertisements will be deducted. No more than $5,000 stock will be allotted to any one subscriber.

A Laugh on the Chief.

An amusing incident occurred on the market square the other day. The Chief of Police happening to come along noticed a farmer with a load of what he took for potatoes, and espied a small bag among the lot. Now, potatoes should go 90 lbs. to the bag. "Here," said the Chief, sharply, "put that bag on your shoulder and fetch it to the scales." The man did so, and the Chief in his important official voice said, 'Baptie, weigh that bag." The weight was found to be only 60 pounds. While this was going on a large crowd had gathered around. "Here, get another bag," ordered the Chief, and the man departed to do so. In the meantime some one suggested that the bag contained apples, and the Chief upon investigation found such to be the case. "Hold on there, hold on," shouted the now crestfallen Chief, as the man was bringing another bag to the scales, and the great man looked as though he would sink into the ground as the crowd laughed and jeered at him. Take heed, oh mighty Chief, and next time inquire what bags contain, lest you rue it.

TO SLEEP SOUND

Leave Off the Coffee.

A city solicitor for a grocery in Americus, Georgia, reports that in calling upon a Mrs. W. F. Marsh, found her complaining greatly about the loss of sleep and nervousness in the family. He suggested that perhaps the trouble was caused by coffee drinking, and advised that they use Postum Food Coffee in its place. A box of the new Food Coffee was sent down to them and at a call the second day, Mrs. Marsh stated that about three o'clock in the morning she was suddenly awakened by her husband jumping up to dress, stating that he must get out to work. She looked at the clock and told him it was only three o'clock and he must have made a mistake. He said he felt there was certainly something wrong with the clock for he had slept his usual time, was perfectly refreshed and had his night's rest out. The good sound sleep continued night after night after leaving off the coffee and using in its place the Postum Cereal Food Coffee.

The solicitor further says, "I told the experience of Mr. and Mrs. Marsh to Mr. H. F. Davenport, and after the first night's trial, he told me he had never slept better in years. Mrs. Davenport was in the store this afternoon, pronouncing it wonderful.

"Some of the doctors here are strong advocates of Postum Food Coffee. One lady, Mrs. W. H. Heward, buys it by the dollar's worth, and is getting all her friends and acquaintances to use it. The president of one of our banks uses Postum Cereal Food Coffee to the exclusion of all other beverages. It meets with the approval of some of our best citizens."—T. W. Callaway, of Oakwood Grocery, Americus, Ga.

A FEW TIMELY POINTERS.

Sportsmen Should Paste These Rules and Regulations in Their Hats.

The season has come when the nimrod cleans his gun, replenishes his ammunition, calls his dog, and goes a-shooting. Now every year amendments are made to our game laws, so in order to keep posted, it is well for those who hunt or angle, to seek a knowledge of what the law really provides for.

License.

No person, not a resident of Ontario may hunt or kill any bird or animal in this province without first procuring a non-resident license, signed by the Chief Game Warden and countersigned by the Commissioner, or Deputy of Crown Lands. Fee $25. This license permits the hunter to take out of the province fifty brace of ducks and two deer, under certain regulations.

Residents of Ontario.

must first produce a license before hunting deer; the license must be carried upon the person and produced at any time when requested. Fee. $2.

Deer and other Game.

Open season. 1 to 15 September days inclusive. They must be killed on land, entering, in or leaving the water, except in that part of the county of Bruce, known as the Indian Peninsula, where the water killing is prohibited. Only two deer may be killed by one person, and they may not be taken out unless a license tag be attached. Moose, elk, reindeer caribou, may not be hunted before Oct. 25, 1900. Hounds are not permitted to run at large during the close season, where deer are found, and any dog found running deer during the close season may be shot at sight at anyone, who will not be liable for damages for so doing.

Ducks, open season, 1st September to 15th December both days inclusive.

Geese and Swain, open season, 15th September to May 1st, the following year, both days inclusive.

Muskrats, open season from January 1st to May 1st. May not be shot in April.

SCHOOL ARBITRATION.

Arbitrators Hear Evidence This Morning and Reserve a Decision.

An arbitration took place on Friday morning at the Court House in regard to school matters in Burleigh and Cavendish townships.

The arbitrators were Judge Weller, Warden Hawthorne and County School Inspector J. Coyle Brown.

It appears that some time ago the residents of the south-eastern section of Burleigh requested the council of the united townships to establish a school section in their vicinity, claiming that there were sufficient children so situated as to attend the school, to warrant the organization of a school section. The council of the united counties refused to entertain the request, on the grounds that the school population available was insufficient to maintain a school, which would, therefore, be inordinately expensive.

The present proceedings arose over an appeal to the county council in the form of a petition, against the decision of the Burleigh council refusing to set apart the school section. The petition was signed by Thomas Hull and others.

At the June session of the council the petition was referred to an arbitration board consisting of the above named gentlemen.

The arbitrators were not sure of their jurisdiction in the matter, but they proceed to take the evidence that was offered to-day, reserving their decision, pending a submission of the matter to the Minister of Education, upon whose reply, the decision of the arbitrators, will, subject doubtless to the evidence, it is said, very largely depends.

A similar case was dealt with in regard to Cavendish. The residents of Cavendish North applied for a section which was refused, but in this case the petitioners were not in any section. The decision was also reserved in this case, though the contention was stronger than that of Burleigh, there being twenty-five children of school age needing school accommodation.

Kitchener Prepares an Immediate Expedition to Fight Him.

ABYSSINIAN INTERFERENCE.

King Menelek Has Bulk of His Big Army Mobilized and is Concentrating in a Perfectly Aimless Manner Unless He Entertains Designs of Interference.

London, Sept. 25.—According to a despatch to the Daily Telegraph from Cairo, General Lord Kitchener, Governor-General of the Soudan, is preparing for an immediate expedition against the Khalifa.

New York, Sept. 24.—The London correspondent of the Sun says: General Lord Kitchener, Sidar of the Egyptian army, after somewhat prolonged and mysterious expeditions to the remote regions of the Soudan, is back again in Khartoum, and is understood to be devising a great scheme for capturing the Khalifa.

The Khalifa has largely increased his following and has been able to suppress several small risings of chiefs personally hostile to him. He is certainly getting arms and ammunition via Abyssinia, and the latter fact goes far to explain General Lord Kitchener's anxiety.

General Lord Kitchener's chief anxiety, however, is believed to be the dubious attitude of the Abyssinians in connection with which he has sent to London reports which the Government would scarcely like to have published. King Menelek has the bulk of his big army mobilized, and is concentrating his troops at points in a manner perfectly aimless unless he entertains the design of interfering with General Lord Kitchener's plans.

Capt Harrington, British agent to Menelek's court, was recently in London. He has been instructed to sound the king warmly and to promise kind consideration of his views. King Menelek is a prickly customer and the British policy at this moment is to humor him.

THE GENERAL SAYS NO

COLONEL COSBY DENIES IT.

He Has Received No Word That the Kilties Cannot Go to New York.

Commander of the 48th Has Implicit Confidence That the Minister of Militia Will Place No Obstacle in the Way to Accept the Invitation of Americans.

Ottawa, Sept. 25.—The application of the 48th. Highlanders for permission to proceed to New York to participate in the Dewey reception reached Ottawa only this morning. Within five minutes after it had been laid before the Major General he had ordered the following despatch to the officer commanding Military District No. 2:

"General officer commanding does not approve of 48th Highlanders taking part in celebration in honor of Admiral Dewey's victory over Spain, a power friendly to Great Britain."

Toronto, Sept. 25.—It was announced this morning that the 48th Highlanders would not be granted permission to visit New York and take part in the reception to Admiral Dewey. It is contended that although Dewey is said to be the central figure in the New York celebration, the demonstration will really be a glorification of the United States victories in the Spanish-American war.

Lieut-Col. Cosby was seen by The News this morning and stated that the report was absurd. He had not received any notification from Ottawa to the effect that the Kilties would not be allowed to go to New York, and had already the promise of Dr Borden, which he thought was sufficient to warrant them in making arrangements for the trip. He had implicit faith in the Minister of Militia, and was confident that nothing would be placed in the way to accept the invitation of the Americans.

CHEERS FOR JOE, HISSES FOR PAUL!

ALL EYEs TURNED UPON ORANGE FREE STATE.

Next Big News Will be the Decision Arrived at by the Raad of the Orange Free State, Whose Secret Deliberation is Expected to Close To-morrow.

London, Sept. 25.—Another week has opened with the Transvaal situation marking time. No news has yet been received of the delivery at Pretoria of the last British despatch. The next big news will be the decision arrived at by the Raad of the Orange Free State, whose secret deliberation is expected to close to-morrow, and it will come as a great surprise if the Raad does not decide to link arms with the Transvaal.

There is little actual war news to-day. The papers recapitulate the British and Transvaal military preparations. Neither the jingoes nor the anti-war party are very proud of yesterday's affair on Trafalgar Square, which proved nothing except that a mob is always "jingo."

A telegram received from Calcutta announces the departure of the transport Scidhana for South Africa, and the last transport for the Cape leaves India to-morrow.

The Army Corps.

All preparations have now been made at Aldershot for the quick despatch to South Africa of a complete army corps of 40,000 men.

The cavalry depots at home have been requisitioned for 17,000 horses, which are being collected at Chatham for shipment. The requirements for transport and cavalry are 11,836 horses, and the remainder are set aside for casualties.

British agents are scouring the Continent buying horses to take the place of those requisitioned from the cavalry depots. The London Omnibus Company and the principal carrying companies have been asked by the War Office to sell their surplus horses, and they have to some extent complied.

Recruiting is being energetically carried on in all the great manufacturing and agricultural centres, and the war fever is stimulated to supply recruits, chiefly in London, where the increase this week is 35 per cent.

"The most powerful empire in the world has been exercising itself some months over the misdeeds of a community consisting of about 30,000 farmers and their friends. At the end of that period the Government which is responsible for its affairs is no more able to bring its policy to the test than it was when a paper war was first proclaimed by Sir Alfred Milner and engineered by the capitalists of the Rand.

"This is the highly edifying commanding position in which the British Empire stands:

"We have more than half our colonists in Cape Colony in a moral revolt against us.

"We have two Dutch republics in combination against Mr. Chamberlain's policy—which, by the way, is occasionally confused in the minds of some of our contemporaries with allegiance to the Queen.

"We congratulate Lord Salisbury on his position. It is one eminently calculated to adorn the career and glorify the closing years of the most fortunate reign in English history."

But the most important press auxiliary Mr. Chamberlain has secured is the Roseberyite Daily News, which is according him steady semi-independent support and putting the [illegible] case in a temperate and plausible shape.

The Daily Chronicle is a courageous advocate of peace, while the Boer case is daily presented in lengthy cables from Pretoria by a special correspondent of The Manchester Guardian, the most enterprising and influential of all the British provincial journals.

STRIFE AT A PEACE-MEETING.

London, Sept. 25.—The pro-Boer anti-war demonstration in Trafalgar Square, London, on Saturday evening developed into an enthusiastic anti-Boer pro-war demonstration. Thousands assembled but not to support the speakers. On the contrary, the crowd waved Union Jacks and sang the National Anthem and Rule Britannia, like mighty invocations. The speakers, who were quite inaudible, were received with groans, dried apples, eggs and other missiles. There were cheers for Mr. Chamberlain and hisses for President Kruger. The list of speakers included none of special mention, most of them being labor leaders or Socialists. Their attempts to put their resolutions to a vote were the merest dumb show.

The shouldering of a veteran and a marine, their hands clasped, in a procession around the square provoked frantic enthusiasm, and was altogether an impressive incident, the multitudes bursting into the song "Soldiers of the Queen."

Finally the crowd became so uproarious that the mounted police were called to clear the square. Batons were freely used, several persons were trodden upon by the horses, and thirty arrests were made. The opponents of the meeting finally proposed resolutions in support of the Government's policy, which were carried amid wild enthusiasm.

In the evening the promoters of the demonstration held a private meeting and decided to hold another peace meeting in one of the largest metropolitan halls at an early date.

The latest despatches from Pietermaritzburg make it certain that the Orange Free State will support the Transvaal in the case of war. It is believed that the protracted session of the Raad is due entirely to the consideration and elaboration of measures for defence and the mobilization of troops. No rain has fallen in either Republic, and it is doubtful whether the Boers can commence hostilities before the end of October.

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Manchester Guardian, a pro-Boer organ says: "Both President Steyn and Mr. Fischer, of the Orange Free State Executive, inform me that the Volksraad is absolutely unanimous that the two Republics should stand or fall together.

"President Steyn said: 'Suppose we remained neutral, and the Transvaal was conquered. It is not likely that we would be long permitted to stand outside British control. Let a rich gold field be discovered, and what would become of us?'"

ELECTIONS IN JANUARY

Conservative Organ Claims This Course Was Agreed Upon at a Recent

CONFERENCE IN MONTREAL

And There is Not Likely to be Another Session of Parliament.

The Information Was Obtained From One of the Leading Quebec Liberals Who is in the Secrets of the Party, and Who Assisted at the Said Conference.

Mail and Empire Special.

Montreal, Sept. 25.—As a result of the conference between Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr Tarte and other prominent Liberals here, it is learned that it has been practically decided to hold the general elections some time in January, and that there is not likely to be another session of Parliament. The information was obtained from one of the leading Quebec Liberals, who is in the inner secrets of the party and who assisted at the conference.

It has been agreed that it will be better to make an immediate appeal to the people than to run the risk of further exposures at another session of Parliament. Mr Tarte's utterances ridiculing the idea of an election are understood simply to be in the nature of a bluff, and his declaration of lavish expenditure only strengthens the belief in an early appeal to the country. The question of Mr Tarte's health is one that is at present causing considerable speculation in political circles. If Mr Tarte were a private individual so personal a matter as his health might be left to the privacy of his home, but as Mr Tarte is the organizing force of the Administration, and as all the Government's plans depend upon his will, the question of his health is really one of vital importance.

Now, the question arises, will Mr Tarte be able to take an active part in the campaign, that cannot now be delayed for many months? Whether he will or not depends, of course, altogether on the state of his health. Mr Tarte himself declares that he never felt better in his life. But the plain truth is that such is not the case. Mr Tarte, as a matter of fact, is a very sick man, and it is a question whether he will ever be completely restored to health. The operation that he underwent in France was a very critical one, and the healing process is not likely to be complete for some time. Owing to the nature of the operation Mr Tarte will have to exercise the greatest care, and it will be entirely out of the question for him to take any active part in an electioneering campaign.

ANGLO-GERMAN ENRENTE.

Two Countries Will Act Together Against Rabah, the Arab Napoleon.

London, Sept. 25.—It is learned from well-informed sources that a kind of mutual understanding has been arrived at between the British and German Governments with regard to the attitude which one or either of these powers might be called upon to adopt, under certain contingencies, towards Rabah, the Arab Napoleon, who is still understood to have his headquarters at Dikwa, just within the Cameroons Hinterland. In well informed quarters some sort of military demonstration in the region affected by Rabah's action before the end of the year is persistently spoken of, and it may be regarded as pretty certain that October or November will see the beginning of operations of a military and exploring character in the Binue region.

MISSION BURNED DOWN.

Disturbances in Liberia Result in the Destruction of Mission and Other Property by Natives.

Liberpool, Sept. 25.—The mail steamer Bonny, of the Elder, Dempster line, has just arrived in the Mersey from West Africa. News from Liberia, Northwest Africa, shows that the Gebroes had burnt down the Protestant Mission station at Ballabo, one of the oldest mission churches in the colony. The Gorbo tribe also demolished about 20 houses at Big Town. King Saby, head of the Cape Balmas tribe, is reported to have destroyed the houses of Messrs Hoffmann and Drury stationed at Obdobo. This king was showing a most unfriendly feeling towards the Liberian Government.

SERVED TWO MONARCHS.

Death of George Bartlett Removes a Link With the Past.

London, Sept. 25.—Another link with the past is severed by the death of Mr. George Bartlett, who for some sixty years was head feeder at the Royal kennels at Ascot. Mr. Bartlett, who was ninety years of age, was appointed by warrant of King George IV., and on Queen Victoria coming to the throne he received another warrant. Those warrants are not now given for royal appointments. Mr. Bartlett was a man of magnificent physique, and his stalwart figure was well known to the followers of Her Majesty's stag hounds.

Dewdney's Whiskey.

SUIT FOR CONSPIRACY

Chief Justice Meredith Hears a Strange Case at the Assize Court.

ARMSTRONG WANTS $2,000

He Paid $16 to Settle a Charge of of Which He Was Innocent.

But Was Afterwards Charged With Theft of That Amount, Arrested, and Acquitted by the Magistrate—He Now Seeks Damages for Conspiracy and False Arrest

Toronto, Sept. 25.—Chief Justice Meredith and a Jury listened on one of the strangest stories ever told in the Court House this morning, when the suit of Armstrong v. McGee was called. Barrister Irving appeared for the plaintiff Lewis Armstrong, and in opening to the jury he gave the following particulars of the case:

Lewis Armstrong, who worked for Thos. H. Richards, butcher, called on the night of March 22 at the store of McGee, a West End grocer, to get Richards' groceries and deliver some meat for a man named Cragg. The defendants say that while he was around there some money was taken out of McGee's till. Armstrong drove McGee down to No. 6 police station in his wagon and the latter told of his loss. Detective Verney was put on the case.

Barrister Irving proceeded to state that on Sunday night—the following night—McGee and Richards had a conversation after it Ricards called on the Armstrong. He told Mrs. Armstrong in the presence of young Armstrong that Detective Verney had secured enough evidence to prove that Armstrong had taken the money, some $16, and could send him to penitentiary. He advised restitution, and Mrs. Armstrong in spite of her son's protestations of innocence, offered to pay the $16 rather than have such a charge laid against him.

"Detective Verney had no such evidence and never said he had," said Barrister Irving.

The next day Monday, Armstrong, accompanied by Richards, called on McGee and in the presence of Mrs. Mary McGee offered the money. McGee refused it unless Armstrong confessed the theft. The latter refused at first, but after hearing this his mother persuaded him to go and "say anything."

The next stage was that Armstrong left town to work for his uncle near Detroit. While there McGee, who had accepted the $16, laid information against him for theft, and word was sent across the border. Armstrong immediately returned and faced the charge at the Police Court. He was acquitted by Col. Denison.

The outcome is that he is suing Mr. and Mrs McGee and Richards for $2,000 damages for conspiracy and false arrest. W. R. Smythe and D. D. Grierson appeared for the defendents.

AN ENGLISH BRIGAND.

London, Sept. 25.—A despatch says, that a remarkably bad specimen of an Englishman, named Alfredo Rayson, has just, writes a Montevideo correspondent, been captured by Argentine troops at General Villegas, in the province of Buenos Ayres.

Rayson was born in London early in the seventies, and ten years later was taken to Mercedes, Argentina, where he was placed at school to learn Spanish. Two years later he went to Junin as telegraph boy, but in the year 1894 he left for General Villegas, where he associated with the worst class of Gauchos who recognized him as the cleverest and most unscrupulous thief in the province.

For the past four years he has been leader of a band of "white" Indians, who have committed murders, "bailed up" travellers, assaulted women, raided cattle, and committed shocking excesses.

Some weeks ago, however, a cavalry detachment was sent to the district to break up the gang if possible, and the soldiers succeeded in doing this by capturing Rayson, who is now under lock and key on a preliminary charge of stealing 1,600 head of cattle.

POLICEMAN A BURGLAR.

London, Sept. 25.—A Constable in the Ashton-under-Lyne force, named Fred Frank White, is blamed for a long series of burglaries. At the local police court he was accused of having stolen £20 odd from a grocer's shop last July; £10 in gold and silver from the same shop in August; silver spoons, sugar tongs, forks, etc., from a furniture shop last Easter, and 7s. 9d. from the Cosmopolitan restaurant last week. There were many other charges but only these were dealt with.

Detective Tolson and others stated in evidence that money had been missed from the restaurant, and a watch was set, marked coin being placed in the till. White was seen to enter with a skeleton key and take the money at four in the morning. His house was searched, and £30 in cash and a host of articles were found. He has now been committed for trial.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, SEPTEMBER 26, 1899

THE DATE OF THANKSGIVING.

The date is fixed late each year by the Dominion government, because Montreal, Ottawa and Kingston forwarders object to a holiday before the closing of the canals, which take place early in November. The forwarders say the loss of a day during the closing weeks of navigation would never do.

Between the public and the forwarders, the government has favored the latter, and we guess will continue to do so.

People need hardly waste their breath; if the Thanksgiving holiday does not continue to be hung up till the biting weather of the close of November, the prophet is a Dutchman.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Good morning.

Toronto Conservative papers are talking of "the popularity Mr Whitney gains every time he appears before an audience." If Mr Whitney wants popularity which will win at the polls, let him get up in the Legislature to talk and vote against free railway subsidies and general corporate aggression upon municipal interests

Subtle Power of Happiness.

"Next to the art of living justly and kindly with our fellows comes the art of maintaining a life of happiness and tranquillity," writes the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis of "The Secrets of a Happy Life" in The Ladies' Home Journal, "for the soul was made for joy and good cheer. Life is a school; labor and sorrow, victory and defeat toil together as teachers, but happiness is life's aim and graduating point. Next to the duty of self denial comes the duty of delight. What ripeness is to an orange, what song is to the lark, what culture and refinement are to the intellect, that happiness is to the soul. As vulgarity and ignorance betoken a neglected mind, so unhappiness and misery proclaim the neglected heart.

"The normal nature will keep strong and fresh the chords that vibrate joy. Depression and worry take the nerve out of man's arm, take the keen edge from his mind, rob life of its victory, for unhappiness wins no battles, gloom invents no tool, wretchedness writes no drama. Earth's great achievements represent those whose hearts sang over the tasks. To meet storm with calm, defeat with faith, ingratitude with charity, is not an easy thing. Nothing requires so much wisdom, practice and skill as learning how to live habitually above the distemperatures of life."

The Unattainable One.

He—Why, a pretty girl can make her choice of four out of every five men she meets!

She—But it's the fifth that she wants.—[illegible] Life.

A bundle of spider webs, not larger than a buckshot and weighing less than a drachm, would, if straightened out and untangled, reach a distance of 350 miles.

HIS HAIR TURNED WHITE.

Peculiar Experience of the Man Who Dealt in High Explosives.

"But your face is not scarred! It would seem that an explosion"—

"An impending explosion it was. Two years ago I was the most successful well shooter in America. I could make the oil loosen up where others had failed. The secret lay in the explosives I employed. I made them myself and had the business down fine. At that time I went to New York to figure on a big blasting contract that would have made me a pile. I failed to make the arrangement, and the very day the negotiations fell through I started suddenly for England on a similar mission.

"'Is there such a thing as high explosives ripening?' asked the Englishman I was accompanying on the second day of our voyage.

"The question brought me to my feet and caused an exclamation of horror to escape from my lips. Many explosives undergo a ripening process, which adds greatly to their destructive power, at the same time decidedly increasing the danger of handling them. That made by me was this character. Indeed 25 days after it compounded it was almost certain to [illegible]ode of its own volition, so to speak. [illegible] on the upper shelf of the checkroom [illegible] New York hotel I had left a large grip containing a 20 pound can of this compound, the ripening of which meant destruction and death.

"For an hour I was almost in a state of frenzy, freely denouncing myself as a multimurderer. In vain I drew an awful picture of the devastation that would overwhelm a certain New York hotel in exactly 17 days and called upon the captain to put his ship about. He promised to transfer me to a west bound steamer if an opportunity presented itself, but fortune failed me, and I was obliged to cross the ocean. On the morning of the twenty-fifth day of the life of my ripening high explosive I sprang from a carriage and rushed into the hotel.

"No reprieved murderer ever experienced greater joy than I did as I saw the last of the terrible fluid disappear in a catch basin. Ten minutes later I started back from the mirror of the hotel bar, where I had gone for a 'bracer,' in absolute dismay. My jet black hair had turned white as snow."

VETERANS UNDER FIRE.

The Reason They Don't Stoop When the Bullets Are Flying.

"The temptation to stoop when under fire is almost irresistible," said a veteran, "and that accounts for so many of the wounds received by raw troops. You see, when a man happens to be hit in a stooping posture the chances are that the bullet plows right through his body from end to end. On the other hand, if he is standing erect, the probabilities are in favor of the wound being slight, anyhow not mortal. Old soldiers are well aware of this, and while they will drop flat and hunt cover every chance they get they never stoop.

"After a soldier has been in a few engagements he learns such tricks, and, as far as the rest of it is concerned, he becomes simply a fatalist. There is nothing strange about it, for almost all his experiences appear to lend color to that doctrine. For instance, he never dodges, because he has seen men dodge and get killed when it really seemed as if they had reached for the bullet. In fact, the strangest things are continually happening, all apparently the pure whim of chance.

"I remember near Petersburg a comrade of mine, as brave a fellow as ever lived, took refuge behind a little hut. He was worn out under fire and wanted to get a moment's breathing space. Twenty feet in the rear and a little to one side was a pile of crossties full of wrought iron nails. A bullet came along, splintered a tie and drove out one of the nails at right angles. The jagged iron struck my chum in the side, penetrated his kidneys and killed him.

"That's the blind chance of war, and after getting a few such object lessons a fellow is apt to acquire a sort of sang froid that is immensely impressive to a recruit. It isn't because he has a contempt for danger; he has merely learned the folly of trying to evade it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

New York has established a state college of forestry. One of its labors will be to replant the tracts denuded of pine and other valuable conifers. It set out a large area this spring and is rearing 3,000,000 seedling pines for future use.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How They Used to Kill.

In repairing an old house in Dartford, England, not long ago the workmen found several ancient death warrants, bearing the signature of the Duke of Portland, minister of King George III. One of them, dated June, 1798, gives an idea of what legal hanging and quartering were like in those days It runs:

"Whereas, James O'Coigley, having been attainted of high treason and had sentence passed upon him to be drawn upon a hurdle to the place of execution and to be there hanged by the neck, but not until he is dead, but that, being alive, he shall be taken down and his bowels taken out and burned before his face, that his head shall be severed from his body and his body divided into four parts, and that his head and body shall be disposed of as we think fit, and whereas we think fit to remit that part of the sentence directing the burning of his bowels and dividing the body into four parts, our will and pleasure is that he shall be drawn and hanged and have his head severed from his body."

How He Misunderstood.

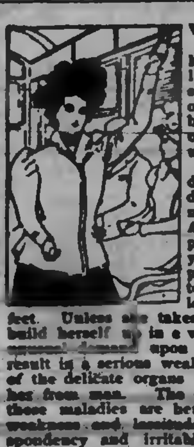
There were loud cries from a man in the back of the hall, and the cornetist went at it again.

There were more cries from other parts of the hall, but, with that one still ringing in his ears, the cornetist kept it up.

"What are you trying to do?" asked the manager. "That's no encore."

"No encore!" exclaimed the cornetist when he had been induced to finish off. "Didn't that man back there yell, 'Toot, man!' four or five times?"

"Not any," answered the manager. "He's a Scotchman, and what he said was, 'Hoot, mon!'"



Weary Woman Stands Up.—The hard-worked saleslady—the tired shopper, the worn-out mother with babe in arms—they one and all stand up. Man, chivalrous man, sits down. This is the daily spectacle in modern street cars. Any competent physician will tell you that woman is peculiarly unfitted to bear the strain of long hours upon her feet. Unless she takes special pains to build herself up in a womanly way, this unusual demand upon her strength will result in a serious weakness and disease of the delicate organs which distinguish her from man. The encroachments of these maladies are heralded by general weakness and lassitude, headaches, despondency and irritability, weak back, pains and dragging-down sensations. Neglect of these symptoms means invalidism, insanity or early death.

There is a remedy that will so strengthen and build up woman's special organism, that she may withstand the strain of long hours upon her feet, and escape the maladies that would destroy her general health and her capability as a wife and mother. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It builds up the muscles that support and strengthen the organs peculiar to the sex. It enables her to stand without feeling pulled down and without pain or extreme weariness. It cures all womanly weakness and disease. It fits her not only for work, but for healthy, happy wifehood and motherhood.

Mrs. Claus Nelson, of Pico Heights, Los Angeles, Cal., Box 31, writes: "I had female trouble, and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, together with the advice given in his book, cured me of five years' sickness."

Following are extracts from the report of Capt. T. H. Trethewey, M.E., upon the Company's properties which are now being vigorously developed, and upon which will be installed the 6 drill compressor plant, which was purchased from the Canadicn Rand Drill Co. on the 5th inst. for immediate delivery.

MR. TRETHEWEY SAYS:

"The vein on these properties is well defined, and, where exposed by the workings near the line between the Western Hill and Virginia, averages fully 18 ft. in width. The gauge consists of a somewhat crushed and iron-stained quartz, sparingly mineralized with Galena, Copper and Iron Pyrites, with here and there small amount of Blend and Graphite disseminated throughout."

"On the Western Hill, a a shaft has been sunk to a depth of 27 ft. on the foot wall, and the ledge has been exposed by a cross-cut to its full width; it here appears to be divided into hanging and foot wall portions by a seam of somewhat decomposed clay material which appears to dip toward the hanging wall, cutting out the leaner and allowing the richer portions of the vein to increase with depth."

"Samples taken in this shaft, across an 8 ft. face lying next to the foot wall, gave an average return of $7.00 in Gold and $1.35 in Silver, making a total of $8.35 per ton, while the balance of the vein gave a return of $2.00 in Gold and 70 cents in Silver, making a total of $2.70 per ton for a width of ten feet, so that $5.25 may be considered a fair average for the full width of the vein."

"The conclusion I have drawn after a thorough examination and study of the facts as here presented is, that judicious development should locate extensive bodies of pay ore, as even if only the 8 ft. next to the foot wall be extracted, the values continuing in depth as there is no reason why they should not, while leaner portions may be encountered they could be left in the mine to support the walls, and you would still have a proposition of unlimited tonnage well worthy of judicious expenditure in exposing its resources."

"The general conditions, elevation, etc., are so favorable that mining operations can be carried on for many years by simply tunnelling into the mountain and following the trend of the vein, and hundreds of thousands of tons of ore can readily be made available without the use of hoisting or pumping machinery."

"Situated as these claims are about 2000 ft. above the bank of the Okanagan River, with a natural outlet for Ærial or other tramway, and only about three miles from the "Black Hawk" Claim, which is within easy reach of the river, the question of transportation of ore from the mine to the mill could be easily arranged."

"With an electric plant established at Dog Falls, which is possibly ten miles distant, ample power could be generated at a nominal cost for all purposes, and by adopting the most modern methods of mining, milling and concentrating, together with an unlimited supply of ore, the cost of production should be reduced to a minimum."

"If the present promising assurances are borne out, the opening up of the three levels could develope at least a three years' supply of ore for a plant of large capacity, and I would stongly recomend the erection and installation of a mill of not less than from 200 to 300 tons daily capacity."

"With cheap power an unlimited supply of ore and a plant capable of handling the quantity I have suggested, the cost of mining and milling ought not to exceed from $1.50 to $2.00 per ton, and under capable management it should be kept within the lower limits."

"Thus even if the lowest values, $3.05 be taken as a basis of calculation and allowing that 85 p. c. of this can be saved, it would yield a profit of $1.09 for each ton of ore treated, but I am of opinion that much higher values may be confidently expected, and if there is a profit winner in the camp, all conditions considered, this one can be conscientiously recommended to the investing public."

At the next Annual Meeting of the Company, which will be held on the 6th day of November next, several of Montreal's most prominent business men will accept Directorship.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

WAY OF THE TRANSGRESSOR.

He is Leading a Dog's Life, Eking Out His Existence.

London, Sept. 23.—An anonymous book of poems, just published in London, is being much praised by the reviewers for the purity, beauty and strength of the verses, while people wondered at the identity of the author. It is now learned that Lord Alfred Douglas wrote them. They were first published in Paris under his own name, but they were brought here anonymously, fearing the effect of the scandal caused by Lord Douglas' connection with the Oscar Wilde case. Lord Douglas is living quietly in England with his mother, having separated from Wilde, who is living a dog's life in Paris, eking out his existence on a small annuity and a few dollars he can make by writing. Wilde recently negotiated with an American theatrical manager for the sale of a new play, but nothing resulted from it. Wilde's boys, whom no one has seen since the trial, are at school in England, cared for by an uncle. One of them is being educated for the Roman Catholic priesthood.

A Disappearance Not Mysterious.

Toronto, Sept. 23rd.—Esplanade Constable Williams, with several assistants, spent this morning dragging for the body of a man who was supposed to have drowned himself from Dufferin-st. wharf yesterday afternoon, but up to noon no corpse had been discovered.

Yesterday afternoon a lady named Mrs Coverhill, who is visiting in the city with friends in Dunn avenue, while sitting with some children a little distance from Dufferin street wharf, saw a man on the wharf acting strange as she thought, by filling his pockets with stones, and suddenly jumped off the wharf, apparently into the water. Mrs Coverhill became alarmed and gave information to Mr John Chambers, Park Commissioner.

A close search, however last night and this morning failed to find any trace of the missing man, though for all around the vicinity of his disappearance the water is perfectly clear and everything on the bottom can be distinctly seen. It is probable the man stepped under the wharf for a few minutes and did not go into the water at all.

During the absence of Mrs Coverhill he may have walked away without being noticed.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the graphophone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a graphophone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Killed By a Kick.

A fatal accident happened Friday evening on the farm of Mr. Richard Moore, a farmer living a few miles west of Lindsay, by which John Robertson, brother of Mr. Andrew Robertson, implement agent of Lindsay, lost his life. Robertson, who was employed by Mr. Moore on the farm, was hitching a spirited team of horses to a waggon, when one of the animals suddenly kicked him in the side, killing him instantly. The horses then ran away, and it was some little time before the body was discovered. It was found that several ribs had been broken by the kick.

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and easy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my arrival in this house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one [illegible] bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my darnedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

The Hint That Failed.

The landlady looked solemnly in the direction of the delinquent one.

"It's a rule in this house to pay as you go," said she.

The delinquent one smiled.

"It's a good plan," said he. "You get it all in a bunch then or nothing."—Syracuse Herald.

WILLING TO PAY FOR IT.

What Uncle Bill Wanted the Newspaper Publisher to Do.

A number of newspaper men were exchanging reminiscences a few days ago in a Court street inn. One of them, by the way, was an ex-publisher—that is to say, he once owned and edited a paper in the upper section of the state. One of his subscribers was William Makepeace Thackeray Willington, whose neighbors called him "Uncle Bill" to save time and labor.

"One day Uncle Bill walked into my office," said the former publisher. "He placed his whip in a corner and removed his hat. He asked if I was the editor. I pleaded guilty. 'Shake,' said he. 'I am glad to know ye. When I was a young feller, I used to do some writin myself.'

"Uncle Bill lapsed into silence and did some solid thinking for several minutes. Then he resumed the conversation. He said he liked the appearance of The Banner of Freedom mighty well and hoped it was not only bringing me fame, but money also. Naturally my bosom swelled with pride. The old man said he had only a few minutes to spare, and, before leaving, he wished to ask a favor. I supposed that he was about to spring a little poem which he had dashed off all by himself, but that wasn't the case. Uncle Bill said:

"'My son, I want to ask you a special favor. My eyes are not as strong as they were, and I would like to have you print my copy of the paper in a type two or three sizes larger than you use in the regular edition. Now, mind, I don't want you to do this for nothin. I'm willin to pay for it. Here's the money, and if that isn't enough let me know when my subscription is due again and I'll pay what's owin.'

"The old man dove his right hand into his pocket, fished out a silver half dollar and planked it on my table, saying: 'There's the money. If that isn't enough to cover the extree expense, let me know when I call in next spring and I'll make it good. I'm willin to pay for any little favors.' Before I could explain the impossibility of his scheme he jumped into his buggy and started off for Deep Hollow."

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

Dear Times,—As your widely read paper is accustomed to record matters of this kind I give you the following, which occurred in a school not far from Peterborough: The teacher requested one of her little pupils to go to the blackboard and write a sentence thereon containing the word "delight." A lad only a short time out of the kindergarten stepped to the front of the room and wrote, in a large, scrawling hand, these words: "The wind blowed so hard it put out de light.

IS THE POPE A TOOL?

A Prominent Methodist Divine Connects Jesuits With Dreyfus Case.

PLOT TO DESTROY FRANCE.

He Hits a Hard Crack at the High High Church Party in England.

Rev. Hugh Price Hughes Says That Infamous Wretches Who Figured in Dreyfus Affair Were Pupils of Jesuit College and Furnished Examples of Loyola's Ethics.

London, Sept. 23.—Rev Hugh Price Hughes, ex-president of the British Methodist Conference, in the course of an address in St. James' Hall, delivered a scathing denunciation of the Jesuit order. His address was entitled: "Inwardness and moral of the Dreyfus infamy."

Never, he said, has there been a more menacing sign of the age than the unspeakable infamy perpetrated by five military scoundrels at Rennes. But to understand its significance history must be rolled back to 1521, when a Spanish soldier of high rank, Ignatius Loyola, having been wounded in battle, suddenly resolved to change his method of warfare and become a soldier of the Pope, and forthwith organized a society totally different from any ecclesiastically organization in the Latin, or any other church, on three fundamental principles. As all the scounrels figuring in the Dreyfus business have been pupils of Jesuits they furnished scientic illustration of the working of Loyola's ethics, especially in the person of the president of the first court martial, who said that he read only one of the secret documents, and then, having been given the lie direct, did not deny the documents had been read by his clerk. The end has been thought to justify lying, forgery, and attempted assassination.

The one virtue in the ethical system of the Jesuits was obedience at all hazards and at all costs to ecclesiastical external authority. This battle on behalf of absolute obedience throughout the Latin Church, though not completely successful, has been theoretically and so far as the hierarchy is concerned, quite won, as the Dreyfus case had shown, for even the Pope himself, though presumably honest and upright, was simply a tool in the hands of the general of the Jesuits, as his culpable silence throughout these iniquitous proceedings had proved. The Jesuits were as a canker at the core of France. Though nominally forbidden the country, they are supreme, and are plotting to destroy the Republic and restore the Duke of Orleans or Victor Napoleon, using, wisely, education as the instrument in moulding influential people. The infamous wretches who had figured in this vile business were all the product of Jesuit colleges. Boisdeffre and Mercier being now under the spiritual direction of the same priest. Think of the infamous way they tried to murder Picquart, who listened to the voice of conscience. And all that had followed from France allowing the Jesuit to be supreme in her military councils. England now has occasion to beware of a Jesuit invasion under guise of Anglicanism. Many of the clergy now, after the decision of the two Archbishops, were simply giving a surface loyalty, their intention being to keep the letter of the law while desirable, and then to resume old operations when possibly there may be a more complacent authority at Canterbury.

So Kind in the Dark.

"How can you account for the well known fact that a cigar when smoked in the dark loses much of its flavor?" was asked of an alleged philosopher.

"The reason is," said the philosopher, "that when all the senses are active each sense is more active than it would be if it were doing duty alone. So that when the eye ceases to work the palate and nose become dulled. To express it figuratively, the eye is endowed with a rudimentary power of smell and in the dark loses not only its sight, but its contributing power of smell."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Cost Her Her Reason

A once renowned French actress lost her reason through a trifling occurrence. She was visiting at an ancient chateau, in the vicinity of Mentone, when a friend challenged her to pass the night alone in an alleged haunted chamber. She accepted the challenge. During the night she called for aid, and an attendant found her in a state of pitiful fright through certain uncanny sounds she had heard. Finally she developed a nervous disorder, which culminated in insanity. The ghostly visitants were rats.

William Winter sarcastically says that "Maude Adams as Juliet bleats her part." This has aroused such a protest that probably William feels sheepish himself.—Boston Advertiser.

We understand that Dr. Mary Walker is opposed to woman's rights. She believes only she and other sensible men can understand the blessed privileges of the ballot.—Louisville Post.

General Merritt says he hugs himself because he is an American citizen. A man who would rob his wife of that marital right is scarcely worthy to be called an American citizen.—Denver Post.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The oldest queen of Europe now is the queen of Hanover, who was 81 years old in April. Queen Victoria comes next, being 80, while the ex-Empress Eugenie is 73.

Duke Karl Theodor of Bavaria, the oculist and brother of the late empress of Austria and of the ex-queen of Naples, has just celebrated his silver wedding at the castle of Tegernsee.

The Duke of Connaught is less than six years younger than the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, to whom he now becomes heir presumptive. The latter was born on Aug. 6, 1844, and the Duke of Connaught on May 1, 1850.

The Prince of Wales is said to have determined to give up yachting. His ventures in the sport have never resulted well, and he has already withdrawn from two yacht clubs with which he has been long identified.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

What a congressman learns during his first term he doesn't always tell when seeking a second.—Chicago News.

Every candidate for speaker this side of the Hudson river appears to be running as a western man.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The dinner has come to be a big factor in politics—not that men must eat, but that men must talk.—Cascade (Ia.) Courier.

When he insists that only honest men should hold office, Governor Roosevelt forgets how many offices there are.—Detroit News.

A majority of our politicians have small knowledge of the science which they assume to represent and in which they presume to teach their fellow citizens.—Atlanta Journal.

RAILWAY RUMBLES.

The Siberian railway has already 50 refrigerator cars for taking butter to the Russian cities.

On Chinese railways the highest paid employees are the telegraph operators who get $17.50 per month.

At the railway stations in Russia books are kept in which passengers may enter any complaint they may wish to make.

Railway whistles inflict torture on so many people that the efforts abroad to check the plague will be followed with interest. Austria has introduced a system of dumb signaling to start and stop the trains. Belgium is trying compressed air whistles instead of steam, and Germany experimented with horns.

THE FASHION PLATE.

Straight, full skirts continue to be used in making up sheer transparent summer textiles for slender waists.

The new corded taffeta silks in a great variety of summer colorings and effects are in favor for making up dressy shirt waists.

The black and white striped fabrics in silk or silk and wool effects, which impart length and slenderness to the figure, are uncommonly handsome and varied in design this year.

On many of the costumes of foulard, figured taffeta or surah, drap de chine, drap d'ete, summer costume cloth, etc., the waist is belled at the back and on the sides, but in front is in jacket style, with tabbed ends falling below the waist line.

One of the most graceful summer models for a rather full figure, to use in making up organdie muslin, dimity, batiste and similar goods, is the new seven gored model, with a pretty demitrain, to be made up separately over a foundation skirt of exactly the same shape.

Skirts with closings at the side instead of at the back are now the most favored. If so arranged, the round waist or basque bodice can be permanently fastened to the skirt at the back, thus avoiding the time and trouble necessarily given to a waist and skirt differently laced or hooked.

White veiling or barege may be as elaborately trimmed as a white organdie. It will have as cool an effect, be nearly as comfortable on a hot day as cotton, and during a sudden change in the temperature the light wool gown will give the needed protection.

CURTAIN RAISERS.

Kyrle Bellew denies the rumor that he is coming to the United States with Henry Irving.

Rose Coghlan, who plays in "Mlle. Fifi," has patented a sunshade for use at the seashore.

Digby Bell is to be seen in "Arizona." Next season he will be in one of Charles Frohman's companies.

Phoebe Davies has a belt made from Mauser shells found on dead Spaniards after the fight on San Juan hill.

Since Calve has her tombstone and Sarah Bernhardt her coffin, why do not certain would be players go and bury themselves?

At the Filipino theaters of Manila it is the custom to show appreciation by tossing coins on the stage in lieu of bouquets.

Venie Bennett, sister to the late Alice Atherton and widow of the comedian John A. Mackay, will appear in the vaudeville theaters.

As an instance of how the romantic drama has revived abroad, no less than six companies are touring England with "The King's Musketeer."

It is stated that Reginald De Koven has received about $75,000 from "Robin Hood." Barrie will probably take $100,000 or more from "The Little Minister."

Aubrey Boucicault, who plays the husband in "Mlle. Fifi," is said to have inherited some of his father's talent as a playwright and is now finishing two plays which may be produced next season.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

A folding stepladder has recently come into use in which the legs and step supports are hinged at the center to close up when not in use, allowing the ladder to be stored in about half the space of the old ladder.

A carving knife sharpener and fork guard are combined in a Pennsylvanian's patent, the upper portion of the guard having two disks carried on spindles to rotate as the edge of the knife is drawn between them.

In a new bicycle tire the resiliency is obtained by hollowing the face of the rim deeply and stretching a strip of fabric across the face, with a ring of rubber or other flexible material suspended in the center of the fabric.

A pneumatic axle bearing for vehicles has been patented to take the place of inflated tires on road wagons, being less liable to puncture, the weight being carried by pneumatic rings placed inside drums surrounding the axle.

THE BOOKMAKERS.

Margaret Deland says she reads economics, history and the newspapers for instruction and novels only for entertainment.

R. W. Chambers, when not writing books, gives his time to many fads. He collects butterflies, designs uniforms and keeps up his painting.

Max Pemberton, the author, is also a good business man and combines with his literary labors the London agency for an American publishing house. His home in West Hampstead is an ideal place.

Dr. Conan Doyle, it is reported, intends to contest a seat in parliament. Meanwhile he is turning into a playwright. He has just brought out a play (a domestic drama called "Halves") in Scotland and is about to produce another.

Arrested a Doctor.

Walkerton, Sept. 23.—Detective Patrick Heffernan arrested Dr. Holmes on a charge of using threats to compel a patient named Mrs. Walthers to settle her account for medical attendance. The offence is said to have been committed on the 17th of May, 1897. Mrs. Walthers, who was then living with friends in Formosa, left shortly afterwards for the United States, but returned a few days ago.

WANTED FIRE BELL CLOTHES.

He Just Made Up His Mind to Kill That Town of St. Joe.

"Ah'm come back home for some clothes, an Ah want 'em wahm," said a tall young negro to a Walnut street haberdasher one day last spring. "Ah'm jes' agoin to kill that town of St. Joe. Show me the heatedest clothes yo' got in the house."

He was not cool as to raiment to start with. His overcoat was cream colored, overlaid with pearl buttons the size of those small butter plates still in use in restaurants. His trousers were green and ended in yellow shoes with brown shot silk tops. His hat was light blue, mottled in brown; his gloves were red and his cane heavily silvered.

"Can't no St. Joe nigger tell me Ah come from Raytown," he muttered. "Ah goes up to St. Joe to work, and the coons there laugh at me and tell me Ah ain't from Kansas City, because mah clothes is so inconspicuous, and Ah just save up mah money, and Ah'm agoin back to kill the town. Now what I want is some underclothes and socks and shirts and things that are the wahmest you've got."

"How will these do?" asked the haberdasher, exposing some scarlet hosiery, banded with wide white stripes.

"That's it. That's the kind of clothes Ah want. They ain't nothin in St. Joe like that. Lemme look at them underwear."

He inspected some red underwear with white stripes, some of baby blue with pink stripes and others of green with blue, black and red stripes. He bought neckscarfs of every shade of red, blue and green and of the most bewildering patterns. His purchases included zebra collars and pale pink shirts, diamond scarfpins at 85 cents each, but with $85 of shine, and a brown waistcoat with scarlet moons emblazoned on it.

"Ah've got 'em dead," he exclaimed when he had finished. "They've ceased to live. When Ah get back to that town of St. Joe they'll ask me if I come from Raytown, will they? Ah'm agoin to take back to that little ole burg such wahm clothes that they'll meet me with the fish department. That town's dead now, and Ah've killed it."

How Wealth Is Carried.

"It is rather amusing," remarked the head of the biggest bureau de change in London to the writer, "to notice the various methods in which men of different nationalities carry their worldly wealth. The Englishman carries his all loose in his right hand trousers pocket—gold, silver and copper all mixed up together. He pulls a handful of the mixture out of his pocket in a large, opulent way and selects the coins he has need of. The American carries his wad of bills in a peculiar long, narrow pocketbook, in which the greenbacks lie flat; the Frenchman makes use of a leather purse with no distinguishing characteristics, while the German uses one gayly embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Lottchen or Mina.

"The half civilized capitalist from some torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly devised pockets to baffle the gentlemen with the light fingers. Some of these belts are very expensive. The Italian of the poorer classes ties up his little fortune in a gayly colored handkerchief secured with many knots, which he secretes in some mysterious manner about his clothes. A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding place for his savings."—London Answers.

VINEGAR, THEN LEAD.

"I think my most exciting official experience," said Captain J. E. Stone, formerly United States postal inspector, "was at the town of Carbonville, Colo., in 1879. It was a star route post, and there was much complaint about the nonreceipt of mail, so I went over to investigate.

"The postmaster was a man named Wilson, who kept a general store, and the postoffice consisted of a soap box on the end of his counter. When mail arrived, it was dumped in, and every fellow helped himself, an arrangement that worked well enough until a chap known as Black Hills Pete came to town. Pete disturbed the entire system. When he didn't get a letter himself, he would tear up several others on the principle that misery loves company, and, being a notorious desperado, nobody dared interfere. I got the facts, and as the mail came in that evening I took a seat in the corner and awaited developments, first ordering the box removed.

"A little after dark the miners from camp began to assemble, and presently in came Black Hills Pete. He was a big brute of a fellow, and I saw at once there was going to be trouble. 'Where's that letter box?' he demanded of Wilson. 'I've ordered him not to use it any more,' I said, getting up. 'Who the blank blank are you?' roared Peter. 'I'm the inspector,' I replied. 'Well, you get me that box quick,' he retorted, and, seeing him reach toward his pocket, I made a grab for my gun; but, as bad luck would have it, the confounded thing caught in the holster.

"In a twinkling he had me covered, but before he could turn loose a quavering voice called out: 'Pete! Oh, Pete!' The desperado glared around, and there stood Wilson holding a large tin squirt gun used for drawing liquors. The sight was so ludicrous that the bully burst into a guffaw, and as he did so Wilson let drive the piston and hurled about a quart of the strongest kind of vinegar squarely into his face. The stuff blinded him, and before he could recover himself the storekeeper had two bullets in his shoulder.

"That's the true story of the strangest fight that ever occurred in the west. Pete recovered, but before he could be arrested was spirited away by friends to New Mexico. His right name was Luther Coleman, and there is a warrant now standing against him for destroying United States mail matter. After the episode I have narrated there was no further trouble at the Carbonville postoffice."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Telltale Eye.

"No matter how self possessed a man may appear on the surface," said a close observer, "there are certain involuntary movements by which he will always betray himself to minute scrutiny. To illustrate the point, here's a neat little parlor trick in mind reading.

Seat yourself directly in front of your subject and tell him to hook his finger tips together before his chest and pull as hard as he can, at the same time thinking intently of some letter of the alphabet. Then look fixedly at his right eye and repeat the letters aloud, beginning with A. When you come to the one he is thinking about, a swift, indescribable change will flash across the pupil. It is purely unconscious and involuntary, and no human being alive can prevent it. The purpose of the finger tip pulling is merely to distract his thoughts and keep him from baffling you by concentration of will. Try it some time."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Bringing Up the Average.

Old Rufus Gogblink, a slow, deliberate sort of man, dropped in one day in a casual sort of way to see his friend, Stephen Nobbler. It was the first time he had been in to see Stephen in 49 years.

"Um-m! You don't come in very often, Rufus," said Mr. Nobbler.

"No," said Mr. Gogblink.

But he went in to see his friend Mr. Nobbler again the very next day.

"Um-m! You're coming in pretty often now, Rufus," said Mr. Nobbler.

"Ya-as," said Mr. Gogblink. "I'm got o' bringing up the average."—New

His Prerogative.

Speaking about speeches in the senate, Don Cameron had the record for the senator with the longest service and the shortest speech. The then senator from Pennsylvania spent a good deal of time in the senate chamber, but he always lolled around in his chair, apparently taking no interest in the proceedings. The whole session seemed to bore him until late in the afternoon, when he used to put enough energy in himself to rise in his seat and say to the vice president, "I move the senate adjourn." Toward the end of his service in the senate Mr. Cameron seemed to consider this motion his prerogative, and no one disputed his claim, as it seemed to be the only way of recording his presence.

MANDY'S QUICK WIT

UNCLE JOHN'S MODEL WIFE WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

An Exciting Race That Was Grandly Won When It Seemed Surely Lost Just Because This Clever Woman "Seen Her Duty, and She Done It."

"My wife," remarked Uncle John Algus with an air of pride and proprietorship, somewhat more prevalent among young husbands in their honeymoons than among old ones who have been married for 50 years or more, as Uncle John was—"my wife is one uv them women the Lord only makes a few uv, and them mighty scatterin. She's jist es good natured and happy now as she wus when I courted her, but Mandy ain't all mush and spoon victuals, and there's times when she has to be handled with keer or somethin will be spilled. She's got temper a-plenty, and she ain't afeered uv the old serpent himself. I mind one thing she done once that I'll never fergit ef I live to be older than the parson's wife's bonnet.

"In them days Mandy weighed a hunderd and eighty-seven pounds in her stockin feet, and I wus only a scant hunderd and forty. We had on the farm all the time seven or eight head uv fine horses, and one winter we had a pair uv 4-year-olds that we prided ourselves perticklelar on, for they had been takin premiums at the fair every year since they wus yearlin's. They had speed, too, and we thought they couldn't be beat by anything in that neck uv woods, but a neighbor uv ours named Hall—everybody knowed Jim Hall, jist like they knowed me—had a pair he had bought in the next county that he offered to bet a cow and calf could beat ours hands down. He used to let 'em out past our place to kind uv tantalize us, and I tell you they wusn't a funeral percession by a long ways, but Mandy used to laugh and say we'd show him something when the goin got good.

"You see, it was along in November then, and the roads hadn't froze yet. The first snow come in December with a mighty cold spell followin and hangin on, and in about a week er ten days we had fine sleighin, and one afternoon Mandy said she guessed we ought to hitch up the bays and go out for some air and exercise. That was enough fer me, and I had the team to the cutter and out at the gate waitin fer the lady in less than no time.

"The team wuz feelin as frisky as kittens, and the way they slung the snow and spun over the road would stir the blood in a wooden man. When we got to the turnpike, where the folks usually let their teams out, I guess there wuz a dozen or more movin up and down at a slippin gait, and we sailed right in among 'em, and in about seven minutes we passed everything on the road.

"Jim Hall wusn't out with his team, and I could see that Mandy wus gittin anxious, though she wusn't sayin much. The road leadin to Jim's place struck the pike about 200 yards from the upper turn, and there wus no sign uv him as we passed, and we didn't see him as we come back, but just after we got by his road we heard a clatter up the pike, and, by crackey, there wus Jim a-comin lickety split. I guess he'd been to the postoffice, and the way he wus comin after us wus like a mink after chickens. Mandy took one look over her shoulder and told me to let em go for all they wus wuth. I didn't need to be coaxed, and by the time she had said the words we wus fairly flyin over the smooth snow track, and Jim wus comin right behind us too. For the first few rods we gained on him, then he begun to creep up on us in spite uv all we could do. Everybody on the road knowed how me and Jim set store by our teams, and they pulled out to one side and give us all the room there wus.

"I shook up my beauties as I felt him drawin up on me, but shakin wusn't enough, and I touched 'em once or twice with the whip, but Jim jist rared back on his strings, lookin like destruction smilin at desolation, and kept a-comin. When his horses' heads passed our dashboard and I could see the snort in their noses, I got kind uv sick and thought I'd have to let go, but Mandy nerved me up, and I hung on and leaned away forrerd as if that would help some. By this time Jim's horses had their heads even with mine, and I held him there fer a minute or such a matter, but jist as I begun to have a hope that it might be a neck and neck at the finish Mandy reached fer the line next to her, and, with a sudden jerk, she pulled the team off to one side uv the road, where the snow wus in a high drift, and Jim went ahead with a yell that made my ears stand out like windmill flappers.

"I wus that dazed fer a minute at Mandy that I couldn't do a lick, and, deacon though I wus, I'm afeard I'd a-used language that wouldn't have sounded exactly right in Sunday school, but before I had a chance to make a move Mandy made a flyin leap over the side uv the sleigh and lit in the deep snow. Then I wus dazeder than ever and had some kind uv an idee that we'd been struck by an earthquake or something and Mandy wuz killed, and I must go back after her and dig her out. But the team had their senses with them, and when they felt they had nigh two hunderd pounds less load to haul than before Mandy jumped they didn't stop to see what had happened, but let theselves out on a spurt that wus chuck full uv chain lightnin, and out uv the snowdrift I could hear Mandy scream: 'Go it, John; you're all right now.'

"And so I wus, and so wus Mandy, fer before Jim knowed that anything had happened I wus up with him, alongside, neck and neck, nose and nose, ahead and past, and when I pulled up at the toll gate he wus ten lengths behind and too much surprised to even cuss.

"Mandy wus in the middle uv the road brushin the snow out uv her clothes and waitin fer me as I come back, and when I said I'd give her a new silk dress fer that she said it wus only what any wife ought to do fer her husband, but she couldn't prove it by showin me where any other wife had ever done it, and I made her take the dress in spite uv herself. That's the kind uv a heroine my wife is," and Uncle John went down into his inside pocket and fished out a quaint, old fashioned daguerreotype in a brand new gilt frame.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Picture, Not Paint.

An art patron one day came into Turner's studio when the artist was already famous. He looked at a picture and asked what was the price. The artist named the sum he had set upon it.

"What," exclaimed the buyer, "all these golden sovereigns for so much paint!"

"Oh," replied Turner, "it's paint you are buying; I thought it was pictures. Here," producing a half used tube of color, "I'll let you have that cheap. Make your own terms," and, turning his back on the astonished patron, he went on painting.

Epworth League Rally.

A grand rally of members and friends of the Epworth League took place last night in the Methodist church. A good programme of music was rendered and a pleasant evening was spent.

On Thursday and Saturday the Knitting Works will sell a heavy all Wool 2 and 1 rib stocking in 8, 8½, 9, 9½ and 10, for 20c. per pair. The quality of this stocking is far above the usual bargain stocking as it is possible to imagine. We make them on our own electric power machines.

The Fruit Season.

The past two summers have witnessed a great increase in the demand in Peterborough for fruit, and the story seems to be the same everywhere. Statistics show that the importation of fruit into Canada is double now what it was twelve or fifteen years ago, but this is not a circumstance to the great development of fruit growing in our own country, particularly in Western Ontario. The Montreal Fruit Auction Company, through whose hands passes most of the fruit brought into that city, report selling $600,000 this year against $355,000 in 1894.

THE CENRAL FAIR WILL OPEN TO-DAY.

THE OFFICIAL PROGRAMME FOR PETERBORO'S BIG SHOW.

To-Morrow Will Witness the Formal Opening—The Show Promises to be a Huge Success.

This is the first day of the Peterborough Central Exhibition, when the grounds will be a scene of activity as exhibitors will be busy arranging exhibits and the judges on the inside departments will be at work. Entries have been coming in in large numbers and a good show will be seen.

To-morrow the fair will be formally opened, and will be open for visitors all day Wednesday and Thursday.

The official programme for the exhibition is as follows:—

TUESDAY.

Opening day, when exhibits will be arranged and judging of inside exhibits will take place.

WEDNESDAY.

This day the grounds will be open to the public, when the usual admission fee will be charged.

MORNING.

7.00 a.m.—Gates open.

7.00 to 10.00 a.m.—All entries of Live Stock must be made.

9.00 to 12.00 a.m.—Judging of Live Stock.

IT MAKES FOR HEALTH

USE

Grape-Nuts

SOME HINTS ON FOOD.

A man tried leaving off meat, potatoes and coffee for breakfast and adopted a breakfast of fruit, a dish of Grape-Nuts with cream and a cup of Postum Cereal food coffee.

His health began to improve at once for the reason that a meat eater will reach a place once in a while where his system seems to become clogged and the machinery don't work smoothly.

A change of this kind puts aside food of low nutritive value and takes up food and drink of the highest value, already partly digested and capable of being quickly changed into good, rich blood and strong tissue. The most valuable feature of both Grape-Nuts and Postum is the natural phosphate of potash obtained from the grains and this product in the element which transforms albumen in the body into the soft gray substance which fills brain and nerve centres. A few days' use of Grape-Nuts and Postum will give one a degree of nervous strength well worth the trial.

What We've Got.

One cannot truthfully claim that there is a monopoly of anything in Peterborough. There is no octopus trust here in any line. We have a dozen churches, twenty hotels and a water works plant; we have two good railroads, and at times some of the poorest wagon roads that ever disgraced civilization; we have a Y.M.C.A, Epworth League, Christian Endeavour and a cracker-jack football team; we have a Board of Health that will guarantee a case of Jimjams, a Council that has got the ratepayers by the leg in one long earnest and steady pull, and a lot of officials that are growing fat on their easy mode of life; we have an electric works, one of the largest and best in the world, and a system of street grading that would puzzle a Philadelphia lawyer; we have an electric railway on which not the slightest mishap has occured for several months, and a morning daily newspaper that spreads the light of truth and justice far and near.

TORONTO TESTIMONY.

Catarrh's Victim for Years—An Unsolicited Story of a Wonderful Cure by Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder.

"I am so well pleased with Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder and the good results derived from it that I hardly know how to express myself. For years I have been troubled with Catarrh in the head and throat. I tried different remedies, but found no relief until I began to use Dr. Agnew's. Words cannot express my gratitude for the good it has done me. I highly recommend it." Mrs. M. Greenwood, 204 Adelaide Street West Toronto. Sold by Ormond & Walsh & H. S. McDonald.

A Bad Fall.

Whoever is responsible for the way the granolithic walks have been disfigured at the driveway crossings should be severely censured. They are most unsafe. Yesterday we saw a lady get a bad fall on Water street, having stepped into one of these traps. Her foot slid from under her and she almost fractured her skull on the hard pavement. It will pay to have these crossings changed before the town gets mulched for heavy damages.

Keinokee Club Hop.

The first of the season's hops at Chemong Park hotel was to have taken place last night under the auspices of the Keinokee Club, but was postponed until this evening on account of the rain. The Misses Harley have been engaged to furnish music. Buses leave the post office corner at 7.30.

"A Jolly "Coon Song."

Part III of the New York World's Album of Songs is entitled "There Ain't No Use to Keep on Hanging 'Round." It is bright and catchy, by Irving Jones, author of the popular hit, "Get Your Money's Worth." There are ten songs in the album, which will be mailed in connection with ten numbers of the great Sunday World, for 30 cents in stamps. Write a letter for list and description of songs. Address The World, New York.

Free Tickets.

Free tickets to the fall fair will be given by Ridd, the shoe man, to every boy and girl who purchase at his store amounts to $1.25 or over, 2 tickets free with $2.25 or over.

As to Diphtheria.

The Provincial Board of Health has issued a circular respecting diphtheria. Dr Bryce, the author of the pamphlet calls attention to the fact that in London asylum, before anti toxine was used, the mortality was 22.3 per cent and since then but 18.4 per cent. He says that it is plain that local Boards of Health in Ontario should exert every means to obtain the earliest information possible regarding cases of diphtheria and to supply antitoxine for use in cases where persons are too poor to purchase it for themselves.

You Cannot Afford to Experiment When Health is in Danger.

Paine's Celery Compound Gives Sure and Honest Results.

It Makes You Well and Enables You to Stay So.

When ill health comes and the symptoms of disease cause alarm, many consult a physician, who with the best intentions, prescribes a certain medicine to-day and something entirely different the following week. This kind of experimenting if frequently carried on for a long time, and at a cost to the patient that is hard to bear.

How vastly different the position of sick people who make use of Paine's Celery Compound, that marvellous prescription of Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D.! The first dose of the world-famed medicine inspires an immediate confidence and faith, because the virtues of the medicine produce feelings and sensations that promise health and new life, and the cost to the sick in every case is one-tenth that of the ordinary medical charges.

There is no home in Canada that can afford to be without Paine's Celery Compound; it is within the reach of every class of our people. It gives an honest promise of health, strength and long years to the rheumatic, neuralgic, dyspeptic, nervous, sleepless, and those afflicted with blood diseases and kidney and liver troubles. The testimony of thousands in the past shows that Paine's Celery Compound makes people well and enables them to stay so.

The merchant who finds that advertising does not pay finds at the same time that he has not been doing his advertising properly, if he will investigate. Intelligent newspaper advertising is the best paying investment any business man can make, and an advertisement in the Times always pays.

According to the report of the auditors of Haliburton county, the receipts for the financial year were $14,437.85, and the expenditures $13,245.18, leaving cash in hand $1,192.67. The assets are placed at $8,164.96, and the liabilities at $7,614.20, which leaves a balance to the good of $550.76. Not so bad.

Just because a newspaper man drifts around with a tough crowd and writes them up is no sign the writer is tough with the gang. We go to a whole lot of places for news we would not think of going as a matter of choice. Because the editor of this g. f. j. writes up a wedding it is no sign that he is in the market. If we happen to be caught in a crowd of drunks it is no sign that we are full of forty-rod. If we are seen with a flock of hogs the inference is not to be drawn that we have bristles on our back.

Carpet Rags.

How to Dye Them So That They Will Never Fade.

To color cotton or wool carpet rags so they will not fade, one should be sure to get the Fast Diamond Dyes. There are some twelve fast and special colors for cotton, while for wool there are about thirty.

It is impossible to get satisfactory colors on both wool and cotton with the same dye, although the makers of some cheap dyes, that are able to make but a few colors, claim their dyes will color both cotton and wool. A trial soon shows by ruined goods the falsity of such claims. Use nothing but the Diamond Dyes that have been used in millions of homes for the last twenty years.

A GREAT INDUSTRY.

What is Being Done in Western Ontario in Growing Tomatoes.

The following from the Chatman Planet, will be of interest to the people of Peterborough district.

The tomato industry in Essex county this year is far in excess of any former years. The reason for this is that H. Malcomson, of the Chatman Canning Co., last spring came to Essex county and distributed tomato seed among a number of prominent market gardeners. He intimated to these persons at the time that he would not accept tomatoes grown from any other seed and he made contracts to take their production at 20 cents per bushel. Of course his proposition met with favor among many and the result is that there has been a greater supply delivered at the canning factory in Sandwich than the employes can handle.

Mr. Malcolmson said yesterday that the tomato bids fair to become one of the chief crops of the county. The soil is especially adapted for the growing, and the quality is far better than in any other part of Canada. He expects that there would be 200,000 bushels of tomatoes grown in the county this year, and predicted that this number will be doubled next year, if the growers would confine themselves to a special seed. He has a fine factory which has been erected during the past few months and everything is up to date.

There are about 75 hands employed, but the firm cannot handle the large supply of tomatoes offered. as there are an insufficient number of peelers. The output is about 15,000 cans per day.

Mr. Burnham and the Boers.

Editor Morning Mimes.

Sir,—I was surprised to read a letter from Mr J H Burnham in support of the Boers, in one of the papers. The franchise question is perhaps the least of the grievances of foreigners in that country. It is well known, on the best of authority, that the grievances of the Uitlanders are well-founded, and it is on their continued appeals to the British Government that interference is now being made. The franchise is but one of their grievances.

As things are at present, the Transvaal is not fit to rank as a republic.

These are the the views of all the Uitlanders, including a SCOTCHMAN.

To the Editor of The Times—Sir: Will you add to the Transvaal discussion this extract from a letter received here from a former newspaper man of New York, and which appeared in a late issue of the N Y World:

"Claremont, Cape Colony, South Africa.

Dear Jack: * * * I am on my way to Cape Town again, for I don't like the Boers or their country. I would not blame the English if they took possession of the Transvaal without further parley. The Transvaal is a republic in name only, for nobody has a fair deal there but a Boer.

"HORACE C S SKELLY.'

HELD THEIR SHIP.

Crew of a French Vessel Mutiny on High Sea

Brest Sept. 26.—Captain Vallee, of the French transport Eure confirms the news given in the mail accounts from Noumea, New Caledonia, of the mutiny on board the French four-masted sailing vessel Emilie Siegfried, of Havre, which arrived at Noumea on July 13.

It appears that shortly after sailing from Havre the crew mutinied against the captain, who, aided only by the second mate, held the ship against them for ninety days until it arrived at Noumea. During the last 14 days he and the mate had to take the helm themselves, revolver in hand.

On arriving at Noumea the first mate, Pordalanne, and eight sailors were arrested by direction of Captain Vallee.

A judical inquiry made by Ensign Vial, of the Eure, clearly established that a plot, instigated by the first mate was in train to do away with the captain and sink the Emilie Siegfried.

Before leaving Noumea Capt. Vallee handed over the dossier of the affair to the civil authorities, and M. Garnier, examining magistrate, who continued the enquiry, had four more of the crew arrested.

The case bears some analogy to the mutiny of the Feoderis Area, in which the crew assassinated the captain and afterwards the cabin boy, who they feared might bear witness against them.

Some of the charges alleged against the mutineers are sufficiently revolting. The cook is said to have tried to poison the captain by putting arsenic in his coffee and tea. The pumps were rendered useless, ropes were cut and holes made in her watertight compartments. Further it is said that the crew received £1,000 to bring about the destruction of the ship.

The mutineers will be sent for trial to the maritime tribunal at the port of Brest.

COAL GAS ECLIPSED.

A Village Brilliantly Lighted by Electroid Gas.

London, Sept. 26.—The first place in the United Kingdom to be illuminated with the bright white light of electroid gas is Hunmanby, a Yorkshire village near Scarborough. This new illuminant is composed of acetylene with the admixture of inert matter and a proportion of oxygen. Its manufacture is of the simplest nature, as could be gathered from the explanation given to the committee that assembled at the village on the occasion of the opening of the new gas works. The gas can be delivered through any ordinary gas main at the ordinary pressure, measured by means of gas meters, and charged for in the same way as is the custom where ordinary coal gas is used. The light is perfectly white, and is equal to 250 candle power, as against the average 17 candle power of coal gas.

A SMART MOVEMENT BY BRITISH TROOPS.

Nearly Three Thousand Men in Camp at Glencoe, Near the Boundary Line Between Natal and the Boers.

TEXT OF CHAMBERLAIN'S REPLY TO KRUGER.

Members of the Canadian Military Institute, Toronto, Take the Initiative for the Formation of a Canadian Regiment for Active Service in the Transvaal.

Pietermaritzburg, Natal, Sept. 26—British troops are moving upon the Transvaal frontier. Yesterday the Leicester Regiment, the Royal Dublin Fusiliers, two hundred mounted infantry and the 18th regiment of Hussars, which have been stationed in Ladysmith in this colony about fifty miles from the Buffalo River, which forms the boundary of the Transvaal, were secretly moved to Dundee, only about ten miles from the river. It now transpires that they have again been transferred from Dundee to Glencoe, still nearer the heart of the Transvaal, and that their places at Dundee will be taken by troops en route from India. The movement was executed so smartly and unexpectedly that the Boers were unaware of it until it had been accomplished, inasmuch as it shows that England is demonstrating by the movement of about 1,800 infantry and 1,000 cavalry towards the Transvaal border that she is determined to resort to force should her demands not be granted.

ENGLAND HOPES FOR PEACE

London, Sept. 26.—The general feeling, including that of the pro-Boers, as indicated by articles in the African newspapers to-day, is that the published despatch of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, to the British High Commissioner in South Africa, Sir Alfred Milner, clears the way for peace if the Boers desire it. In any event, it is pointed out, it affords further delay, which, in the case of Great Britain, is certainly advantageous, as it gives time for the reinforcement of the garrison at the Cape. The papers generally, however, express the hope that President Kruger will now see his way to meet Great Britain's views, and The Westminister Gazette, which is not an anti-Boer paper, says: "President Kruger and his advisors still have a chance of securing peace with independence.'

In the meanwhile the despatch of troops to South Africa proceeds uninterruptedly. Three field batteries arrived at Birkenhead to-day and will embark for Durban, Natal. A cablegram from Cape Town says: "Quantities of stores and ammunition are leaving here daily. The movement of troops to Natal is merely a precautionary meaGaure to secure the coal mines and in no wise in the nature of a menace. There are no imperial troops on the immediate border. Rumors of collisions should be received with caution."

TEXt OF CHAMBERLAIN'S ANSWER.

London, Sept. 26.—The officials of the Foreign Office gave out to-day the text of the letter sent to the Transvaal after last Friday's Cabinet meeting. The reply states clearly and emphatically the object of the British Government in the negotiations in progress, viz.:

To obtain such substantial and immediate representation for the Uitlanders as will enable them to secure for themselves that fair and just treatment which was formerly promised them in 1881, and which Her Majesty intended to secure for them when she granted privileges of self-government to the Transvaal. No conditions less comprehensive than those contained in the telegram of September 8 can be relied on to effect this object.

The Last Resort.

The reply goes on to state that after four or five years of extended agitation it is useless to further pursue the discussions on the lines hitherto followed, and the Imperial Government is now compelled to formulate new proposals for a final settlement of the issues which have been created in South Africa by the policy constantly followed for many years by the Government of South Africa.

In a later communication, dated September 22, the Imperial Government takes up the charge of breach of faith insinuated by Secretary of State Reitz, September 16, "which,' it pointed out, "we cannot pass over in silence." Mr. Chamberlain then says:

No Doubt Possible.

"It is impossible that the South African Government could have had any doubt as to the Imperial Government's answer to the conditions named and my reply was actually the same as the British agent had foreshadowed to the State Attorney, and which, therefore, they must have anticipated in making the proposals."

The Imperial Government also denies that its telegram of September 8th substituted an entirely new proposal for the invitation to the joint commission of enquiry.

Suzerainty Question.

In referring to the question of suzerainty, the reply states:

"The Imperial Government sees no ground for misapprehension on the part of the South African Republic as to its answer regarding non-interference and suzerainty, as the Imperial Government has already stated it would not press for the appointment of a joint commission of enquiry in view of the fact that such an enquiry would, in the opinion of Government officials in South Africa, prejudice the right of full independence repeatedly recognized by the Imperial Government.

The English Tongue.

"As to the use of the English language in the Volksraad, the Imperial Government regards this as reasonable, and is astonished that the Republic should deem it unnecessary and make a point of denying that they promised the same to the British agent."

A CANADIAN REGIMENT.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—Cols. Denison, Mason, Grasett, Davidson, Major Manning, Major Macdonald and other members of the Military Institute, have taken the initiative in calling a meeting which will be held at the Institute's rooms, on Saturday evening.

The meeting is the outcome of a very general feeling among the officers of the local regiments that some action should be taken for the raising and equipping of a Canadian regiment for service in the Transvaal in the event of the present difficulty resulting in the breaking out of war.

Major Macdonald said this morning that the object of the meeting, so far as he understood it, and he was but speaking for himself, was for the purpose of urging upon the Government the desirability of raising such a regiment in Canada as was proposed. So far as the officers are concerned, Major Macdonald believes that there is practically unanimity of feeling among them, that the Government take action in the matter; that, they believe is the right and proper course to pursue.

For individual officers here and there to step in and undertake to do what the Government should do is not, in the opinion of the officers here, the right course. Should the Government make a call, there is no doubt but there will be a hearty response.

My own view of the matter is, said the Major, that this country being a part of the British Empire, should be prepared to share some of the responsibilities of the Empire.

But a greater consideration even than that, to my mind, is that the raising of such a regiment would form an object lesson in the eyes of the world, which could not help but have a great effect. It would show to the world that the colonies of the British Empire were giving help in time of need, which would also be a guarantee of greater help in time of greater need in the future if ever such shall ben necessary.

This is the way in which the officers who were present when it was decided to call a meeting looked at the question, and I believe that is the view of the matter which the meeting will take though, of course, I am not presuming to say what will be done at the meeting.

SEVEN FORTS DESTROYED.

General Snyder Inflicts a Defeat Upon the Insurgents, Capturing a Number of Cannon.

Washington, Sept, 26.—A despatch has been received from Manila by the War Departmene stating that General Snyder attacked the position of the insurgents five miles west of Cebu and destroyed seven forts and quite a number of smooth bore canon. The insurgents were utterly routed, and Snyder returned with his force to Cecu. The Tennessee regiment was already aboard transport to come home, but disembarked to take part in the engagement.

The Prisoners.

Manila, Sept. 26.—Two Englishmen who have been held by the insurgents since June have arrived at Angeles. They report that the Filipino congress has resolved that fourteen American prisoners shall be surrendered on Wednesday or Thursday. They have however, no information as to the whereabouts of Captain Charles M Rockefeller, of the Nineteeth Infantry, who disappeared in April last, and of whom no trace has been discovered. They assert that three Americans who were captured by the rebels are acting as officers in the insurgent army.

POWDERED GLASS AGAIN.

Repetition in India of a Historical Crime.

Bombay, Sept. 26.—An attempt is reported to have been made to kill Colonel Wray, the political agent at Kolhapore. The attempt is said to have been made while the colonel was entertaining a party of visitors, and the means employed was powdered glass, which was placed in the dinner rolls. The police are investigating the matter.

Powdered glass is a favorite way of compassing the death of an enemy in the East. If crushed to the finest powder the glass is swallowed unnoticed, and acts as a deadly irritant on the intestines. The Gaekwar, or reigning Prince of Baroda, endeavored in 1874 to kill his political resident, Colonel Phayre, by administering powdered glass in sherbet. The Gaekwar was deposed.

SIDAR'S GIFT TO QUEEN.

Her Majesty Gets a White Arabian Ass From Egypt.

London, Sept. 26.—The white Arabian ass which Lord Kitchener is sending home as a present to Her Majesty is expected to reach London within the next few days on board the British India Company's steamer Duke of Argyle. Captain Nicholas, of the royal mews, Buckingham Palace, has had instructions to receive the animal and have it carefully looked after at the royal stables till the Queen's pleasure in respect to it has been made known.

EXIT PARE AND HOLDEN.

Two Napanee Bank Robbers Sent to Kingston Penitentiary to Serve Their Sentences.

Cobourg, Sept. 26.—Pare and Holden left here this morning at 9:20 for Kingston, where they will serve their term for robbing the Dominion Bank in Napanee in August 1897. Quite a crowd was at the depot to see the prisoners off. They were in charge of Sheriff Proctor, Major Snellgrove and High Constable William Rankin.

Wheat in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Sept. 25.—On Saturday the marketings of wheat amounted 247,000 bushels. The top price paid was 59 cents, the lowest 54 cents a bushel. and the average about 56½ cents.

BAD WEATHER FOR THE CENTRAL FAIR

The Steady Rain Yesterday Greatly Interferes With it.

A BIG LIST OF ENTRIES.

The Exhibition Never So Promising as at the Present Time

But the Rain Will Greatly Interfere With the Attendance—Hopes of a Fine Day To-day—Programme of Events and the Special Features.

The rain yesterday was very disappointing, it being the first day of the Peterborough Central Exhibition The rain never ceased descending—not in gentle showers—but in torrents. Notwithstanding all this President Fitzgerald, Secretary Green and several of the directors were busily engaged all day at the exhibition grounds making entries and receiving and arranging exhibits.

To-DAY'S PROGRAMME.

With favorable weather to-day the show promises to be a most excellent one, the entries this year being considerably over two thousand in number. To show what an advance has been made in the society it may be mentioned that the total number of entries in all classes in the year 1895 was only 925 as against nearly two and a half times as many this year.

To-day will be the formal opening of the exhibition. The gates will be thrown open for the reception of visitors at 9 a m, and all the live stock, poultry, etc., will be upon the grounds.

At 1 o'clock in the afternoon the formal opening is announced to take place. Messrs. James Kendry, M P; John Lang, M P; J R Stratton, M P P; Thos Blezard, M P P, and Mayor Davis will with short addresses formally open the exhibition.

This is also School Children's Day and the children will be admitted for ten cents.

The speeding in the ring in the afternoon will bring out several interesting events, the Novelty Race and the Green Trot. The 57th Battalion Band will be in attendance. The great Dog Show will be on, a sight in every way worth seeing, and the special attractions in other lines will be presented.

In the evening the grounds will be brilliantly illuminated, and all specialties will be put on, and the admission to the Dog Show will be free. The band will be present.

ABOLISHING THE "PUBS."

English Justices Have Refused Over a Hundred Renewals.

London, Sept. 26.—The extent to which magistrates extinguish public houses by refusing to renew their licenses last year is fully shown in a Parliamentary return issued in the Home Office yesterday. The renewals refused throughout England was 163, but on appeal this number was lessened by thirty-five. Twenty-eight of the refusals were in London, but six appeals were allowed, and in one of the appeals the victualler not merely got back his license, but obtained costs against the justices.

GREETED IN NEW YORK.

Admiral Dewey, on the Olympia, Arrives Unexpectedly.

New York, Sept. 26.—Much to the surprise of everyone in this city the Olympia with admiral Dewey on board arrived off the Sandy Hook lightship at 5.55 this morning. There was a heavy mist on the sea and at first the marine observers were inclined to think the vessel sighted might be Rear Admiral Howison's flagship, the Chicago, hardly believing Dewey would arrive two days ahead of time. The doubt was soon cleared away, however, and as passing vessels recognized the flagship from Manila bay, there was a continuous roar of whistles and salutes.

The flagship came up to the lower bay and anchored inside Sandy Hook. As soon as the anchor was dropped, an orderly was sent ashore with despatches from the admiral and and other officers. He said the ship had a pleasant trip across the Atlantic, and that all on board were well and glad to be home again. The members of Admiral Dewey's family, who are stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria, did not seem surprised at their distinguished relative's early arrival. Charles Dewey, of Montpelier, Vt., the admiral's brother, said: "This is not altogether unexpected, as we thought the admiral would be here a couple of days before the celebration. Probably he desired to have a couple of days to get the ship in good condition for the celebration,

Rioting in Ferrol.

Ferrol, Spain, Sept. 26.—There has been renewed rioting here. The strikers, with women and children, attacked the men at work in the arsenal. A hail of stones was thrown and revolver shots were fired. The gendarmes charged and dispersed the mob. A number of persons were injured, including the commander of the iron-clad Cardinal Sisneros, who was seriously hurt. Troops are now picketed along all the leading streets.

Hats for Fall

The shapes of hats this fall are a little more graceful, and the colors a little more beatuiful than they have ever been.

Particular men will find our Special Stiff Hat the acme of style, and our "Fedora" shape very graceful and becoming. An air of advanced season distinguishes them.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPTEMBER 27, 1899]

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Good morning.

•• •• ••

An item appeared in the Examiner a few days ago stating that when the north pole is discovered it will be found a flat, snowy, desolate waste. The Times would suggest in other words, that it is a great white bare place.

•• •• ••

So many wonderful stories continues to be told of the big Manitoba crops that the very corn can hardly believe its ears.

•• •• ••

If Dreyfus' condemnation was a proof of France's injustice his pardon will be a corrected proof.

•• •• ••

The publisher of an independent newspaper is able to give his readers the news as usual these days, while his partisan contemporaries are compelled by the ethics of party politics to freeze out news in order to inflict on their readers the speeches of the party leaders a-stump. For every man who wants to read a six column political speech there are a dozen who want to read the news, which is one explanation why The Times, catering to the dozen instead of the one, naturally has the most readers.

Among all the letters sent by Capt. Dreyfus to his devoted family during the period of his imprisonment the saddest one certainly, is that written in the stockade at Devil's Island in May, 1895, to his boy Pierre:

"DEAR LITTLE PIERRE: Papa sends good kisses to you, also to Jeanne. Papa thinks often of both of you. You must show little Jeanne how to make beautiful towers with the wooden blocks, very high such as I made for you, and which toppled down so well. Be very good. Give good caresses to your mamma when she is sorrowful. Be very gentle and kind also to grandmother and grandfather. Set good little traps for your aunts. When papa comes back from his journey you will come to the railway station to meet him, with little Jeanne, with mamma, with everyone.

Inasmuch as Dreyfus's children probably still are unaware of his imprisonment and suffering, and as father and family are at last reunited, the letter read to-day has even more poetic and pathetic interest than when first penned. The tears and smiles of the world were at the French railway station yesterday morning. 'And there, too, was Vengeance with smothered sword,

A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

The Victim Was the Samoan King Malietoa and the Victor an American Naval Officer—The Jack Pot That Caused the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymaster in the navy with King Malietoa several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever indulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kalakaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little brush on this line. Well, Malietoa's opportunity to test his belief came one day when an American man-of-war—never mind which one—sailed into the harbor at Apia. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the fullest extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an assistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malietoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Malietoa requested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Malietoa had almost phenomenal luck, winning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a smile of pleasure and triumph combined, announced that he would open it $20 worth. Every player staid. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Malietoa showed his blood by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others staid. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped out. After the king's last raise the paymaster hesitated a moment, put his cigar to one side and shoved $50 to the middle of the mahogany.

"The king put up the equivalent in Chilean silver dollars, the currency of the islands, and, drawing a small sack from his pocket, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Samoa, amounting to $79 in silver. The paymaster's face grew serious, and he looked at his royal opponent in a hesitating, puzzled sort of way. Could this be a Samoan Ah Sin he had run against? Had this kingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evening? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance some of it in finding out.

"After a few moments of indecision he drew $379 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malietoa gave a gasp and called for a glass of kava to steady his nerves. This he gulped down and announced that he was out of funds, requesting at the same time that the paymaster take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smiling and looking fixedly at the pot. Then the excited monarch offered to put up the island of Manono, one of the finest in the Samoan group, against the $500. To this the paymaster consented, and a transfer deed of the property, duly signed, attested by the trader, who was a notary public, and witnessed by the other two officers, was put in the pot. Then the king called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four aces and a five spot.

"With a look of horror and a Samoan wail of despair, his majesty exposed to view three kings, an eight spot and a deuce. Then he fell off his chair in a faint, the excitement having been too much for his nerves. Kava in copious quantities brought him around sufficiently to enable his removal to his own castle. The paymaster shoveled his money into a sack and placed it in the trader's iron safe, but the deed for the island he carefully placed in his pocket.

"Next morning the details of the big poker game were known to nearly every inhabitant of the place, and the German and English consuls sent official communications to the American consul protesting in most emphatic terms against the action of the king in disposing of the island of Manono to an American or to any one else, and warning the consul that unless the paymaster returned the deed for the island to the king at once they would direct the attention of their respective governments to the case.

"Here was a pretty state of affairs. The officer had, no doubt, won the island fairly, and the king's action was binding, but in the tension in which Samoan affairs were at that time the German and English governments would only too willingly have taken advantage of the circumstances as an excuse for international complications, ending ultimately in a disastrous way to American interests.

"The facts were fully explained to the paymaster, and on the promise of Malietoa that he would give the officer a number of fine mats and other Samoan articles of value the deed was returned to the king and destroyed. By mutual consent of the consuls and others interested the affair was hushed up in every way and was then allowed to die out. Malietoa took an oath that he would never again play poker."

Escaping From Herself.

When a weak, pain-racked woman is suddenly and completely relieved of her misery it is like shaking off the clutches of a sad, pursuing spirit. She escapes from her wretched, unhappy self and becomes a new self; literally another being.

"My wife is up and walks about a mile every pleasant day; she feels like another person," writes M. Todd [illegible], Esq., of Mount Jackson, Marion Co., Ind., in a letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y. "When I first saw your book referring to the cure of consumption I thought I would try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Favorite Prescription,' as the doctors had given her up, and so I thought it could do no harm if it did no good.

"When I try to describe the results I fail to do so in words. We shall never forget to thank God for giving us this means of relief. I know if my wife had not taken Dr. Pierce's medicines she would now have been in her grave. You can ask any one who is afflicted thus to write to me for more particulars."

This only serves to show that what ordinary physicians of merely local and limited practice will often fail to accomplish, may become entirely possible to a thoroughly scientific and radical treatment, based upon a life-long and world-wide experience with the severest and most obstinate forms of so-called incurable diseases. Do not despair, but write to Dr. Pierce. He will send you the most authoritative advice in a plain sealed envelope free of charge. His splendid thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent paper-bound for 31 one-cent stamps to pay the bare cost of customs and mailing, or in heavy, handsome cloth binding, for 50 stamps. Following are extracts from the report of Capt. T. H. Trethewey, M.E., upon the Company's properties which are now being vigorously developed, and upon which will be installed the 6 drill compressor plant, which was purchased from the Canadien Rand Drill Co. on the 5th inst. for immediate delivery.

MR. TRETHEWEY SAYS:

"The vein on these properties is well defined, and, where exposed by the workings near the line between the Western Hill and Virginia, averages fully 18 ft. in width. The gauge consists of a somewhat crushed and iron-stained quartz, sparingly mineralized with Galena, Copper and Iron Pyrites, with here and there small amount of Blend and Graphite disseminated throughout."

"On the Western Hill, a shaft has been sunk to a depth of 27 ft. on the foot wall, and the ledge has been exposed by a cross-cut to its full width; it here appears to be divided into hanging and foot wall portions by a seam of somewhat decomposed clay material which appears to dip toward the hanging wall, cutting out the leaner and allowing the richer portions of the vein to increase with depth."

"Samples taken in this shaft, across an 8 ft. face lying next to the foot wall, gave an average return of $7.00 in Gold and $1.35 in Silver, making a total of $8.35 per ton, while the balance of the vein gave a return of $2.00 in Gold and 70 cents in Silver, making a total of $2.70 per ton for a width of ten feet, so that $5.25 may be considered a fair average for the full width of the vein."

"The conclusion I have drawn after a thorough examination and study of the facts as here presented is, that judicious development should locate extensive bodies of pay ore, as even if only the 8 ft. next to the foot wall be extracted, the values continuing in depth as there is no reason why they should not, while leaner portions may be encountered they could be left in the mine to support the walls, and you would still have a proposition of unlimited tonnage well worthy of judicious expenditure in exposing its resources."

"The general conditions, elevation, etc., are so favorable that mining operations can be carried on for many years by simply tunnelling into the mountain and following the trend of the vein, and hundreds of thousands of tons of ore can readily be made available without the use of hoisting or pumping machinery."

"Situated as these claims are about 2000 ft. above the bank of the Okanagan River, with a natural outlet for Ærial or other tramway, and only about three miles from the "Black Hawk" Claim, which is within easy reach of the river, the question of transportation of ore from the mine to the mill could be easily arranged."

"With an electric plant established at Dog Falls, which is possibly ten miles distant, ample power could be generated at a nominal cost for all purposes, and by adopting the most modern methods of mining, milling and concentrating, together with an unlimited supply of ore, the cost of production should be reduced to a minimum."

"If the present promising assurances are borne out, the opening up of the three levels could develope at least a three years' supply of ore for a plant of large capacity, and I would stongly recomend the erection and installation of a mill of not less than from 250 to 300 tons daily capacity."

"With cheap power an unlimited supply of ore and a plant capable of handling the quantity I have suggested, the cost of mining and milling ought not to exceed from $1.50 to $2.00 per ton, and under capable management it should be kept within the lower limits."

"Thus even if the lowest values, $3.05 be taken as a basis of calculation and allowing that 85 p. c. of this can be saved, it would yield a profit of $1.09 for each ton of ore treated, but I am of opinion that much higher values may be confidently expected, and if there is a profit winner in the camp, all conditions considered, this one can be conscientiously recommended to the investing public."

At the next Annual Meeting of the Company, which will be held on the 6th day of November next, several of Montreal's most prominent business men will accept Directorship.

ELECTIONS IN JANUARY

Conservative Organ Claims This Course Was Agreed Upon at a Recent

CONFERENCE IN MONTREAL

And There is Not Likely to be Another Session of Parliament.

The Information Was Obtained From One of the Leading Quebec Liberals Who is in the Secrets of the Party, and Who Assisted at the Said Conference.

Mail and Empire Special.

Montreal, Sept. 25.—As a result of the conference between Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr Tarte and other prominent Liberals here, it is learned that it has been practically decided to hold the general elections some time in January, and that there is not likely to be another session of Parliament. The information was obtained from one of the leading Quebec Liberals, who is in the inner secrets of the party and who assisted at the conference.

It has been agreed that it will be better to make an immediate appeal to the people than to run the risk of further exposures at another session of Parliament. Mr Tarte's utterances ridiculing the idea of an election are understood simply to be in the nature of a bluff, and his declaration of lavish expenditure only strengthens the belief in an early appeal to the country. The question of Mr Tarte's health is one that is at present causing considerable speculation in political circles. If Mr Tarte were a private individual so personal a matter as his health might be left to the privacy of his home, but as Mr Tarte is the organizing force of the Administration, and as all the Government's plans depend upon his will, the question of his health is really one of vital importance.

Now, the question arises, will Mr Tarte be able to take an active part in the campaign, that cannot now be delayed for many months? Whether he will or not depends, of course, altogether on the state of his health. Mr Tarte himself declares that he never felt better in his life. But the plain truth is that such is not the case. Mr Tarte, as a matter of fact, is a very sick man, and it is a question whether he will ever be completely restored to health. The operation that he underwent in France was a very critical one, and the healing process is not likely to be complete for some time. Owing to the nature of the operation Mr Tarte will have to exercise the greatest care, and it will be entirely out of the question for him to take any active part in an electioneering campaign.

SERVED TWO MONARCHS.

Death of George Bartlett Removes a Link With the Past.

London, Sept. 25.—Another link with the past is severed by the death of Mr George Bartlett, who for some sixty years was head feeder at the Royal kennels at Ascot. Mr. Bartlett, who was ninety years of age, was appointed by warrant of King George IV., and on Queen Victoria coming to the throne he received another warrant. Those warrants are not now given for royal appointments. Mr. Bartlett was a man of magnificent physique, and his stalwart figure was well known to the followers of Her Majesty's stag-hounds.

THE HORSE REVIEW.

Robert R, 2:14½ trotting and 2:12 pacing, stands 17½ hands high.

Notwithstanding his severe lameness last season, Hans McGregor, 2:11¼, is reported in first rate form.

The Toledo Driving club will employ a regular starting judge this year, J. T. Dewey having been chosen.

Cora Tell, a 3-year-old filly by Axtell, out of Cora Belle, pole record 2:19¼, has been bred to Margrave, 2:15½, and will be trained this season.

Irish Lassie, 2:16, the pride of the Hawaiian Islands, is being prepared at Honolulu for the June races. She is being trained by Jack Gibson.

It is said that Henry Fleischman will bring Derby Princess, 2:08¼, back from Austria. She has not done well since leaving Henry Sanders' stable.

Valney French has signed another year's contract with C. H. Anthony, Muncie, Ind., and will remove to that city. He will handle about 16 matinee horses for the local club.

W. B. Fisk, Coldwater, Mich., who owns Great Heart, 2:12½, has sold Latitude, 2:18, to Mr. Johnson, Hubbard, O. Latitude is a great knee actor and may appear later in a bangtail costume.

George Dougherty, who trained Marion Mills, the late guideless pacing queen, has been engaged by E. R. Bulkley, Philadelphia, to educate the chestnut mare Lizzie Mayers and the bay mare Ravenwood to do the guideless act.

Helen K, 2:13¾, and mate, May K, who won the blue ribbon in the class for pairs to wagon at Boston horse show, are owned by W. M. V. Hoffman, New York. Helen was purchased by her present owner from the Forest City farm, Cleveland, and is a daughter of Patron.—Horseman.

THE CYNIC.

All of us are very clever in finding excuses for not working more.

The most sensible woman will "put on" a little before a preacher.

A man is not really prominent until he has officiated at three prominent funerals.

Some women who never work for anything else will work like slaves for a church.

An old maid dearly loves to watch a quarrel between a husband and wife to see how it comes out.

If a man truly loves his wife, he is very apt to become confidential and tell her a lot of stories on the other fellows.

In talking it is well to know that people will not remember what you are saying unless they can use it against you.

A man always rises in his own estimation when he gets on familiar terms with a person of whom he once stood in awe.

There probably never was a woman too good to try to pass her children off as under age when traveling on the railroad.—Atchison Globe.

WEATHER PROPHETS.

Peacocks are reliable weather prophets. Before a storm the gaudy birds become restless and clamorous.

The green woodpecker is said to laugh his "Ya-ha-ha" in different, more liquid tones when rain is coming, and especially gifted persons claim his cry really changes to "rain, rain, rain!"

In Dorsetshire, England, they foretell storms by the flight of the rooks. When they are pitch falling or playing at tumbling, diving and wheeling in the air, they say a storm is due.

Sea fowl are very clever in foretelling a storm. To a sailor bad weather means wind, and to a landsman it means rain, but the screaming of the water birds usually foretells a change of some sort for the worse in the prevailing weather.

SISTERLY CITIES.

Minneapolis has lost a dam, but then the town was never worth one.—St. Paul Dispatch.

TO TAKE THE KHALIFA

Kitchener Prepares an Immediate Expedition to Fight Him.

ABYSSINIAN INTERFERENCE.

The Khalifa is Getting Arms and Ammunition Via Abyssinia.

King Menelek Has Bulk of His Big Army Mobilized and is Concentrating in a Perfectly Aimless Manner Unless He Entertains Designs of Interference.

London, Sept. 25.—According to a despatch to the Daily Telegraph from Cairo, General Lord Kitchener, Governor-General of the Soudan, is preparing for an immediate expedition against the Khalifa.

New York, Sept. 24.—The London correspondent of the Sun says: General Lord Kitchener, Sirdar of the Egyptian army, after somewhat prolonged and mysterious expeditions to the remote regions of the Soudan, is back again in Khartoum, and is understood to be devising a great scheme for capturing the Khalifa.

The Khalifa has largely increased his following and has been able to suppress several small risings of chiefs personally hostile to him. He is certainly getting arms and ammunition via Abyssinia, and the latter fact goes far to explain General Lord Kitchener's anxiety.

General Lord Kitchener's chief anxiety, however, is believed to be the dubious attitude of the Abyssinians in connection with which he has sent to London reports which the Government would scarcely like to have published. King Menelek has the bulk of his big army mobilized, and is concentrating his troops at points in a manner perfectly aimless unless he entertains the design of interfering with General Lord Kitchener's plans.

Capt. Harrington, British agent to Menelek's court, was recently in London. He has been instructed to sound the king warmly and to promise kind consideration of his views. King Menelek is a prickly customer and the British policy at this moment is to humor him.

Many Towns Ruined.

SUIT FOR CONSPIRACY

Chief Justice Meredith Hears a Strange Case at the Assize Court.

ARMSTRONG WANTS $2,000

He Paid $16 to Settle a Charge of of Which He Was Innocent.

But Was Afterwards Charged With Theft of That Amount, Arrested, and Acquitted by the Magistrate—He Now Seeks Damages for Conspiracy and False Arrest

Toronto, Sept. 25.—Chief Justice Meredith and a Jury listened on one of the strangest stories ever told in the Court House this morning, when the suit of Armstrong v. McGee was called. Barrister Irving appeared for the plaintiff Lewis Armstrong, and in opening to the jury he gave the following particulars of the case:

Lewis Armstrong, who worked for Thos. H. Richards, butcher, called on the night of March 22 at the store of McGee, a West End grocer, to get Richards' groceries and deliver some meat for a man named Cragg. The defendants say that while he was around there some money was taken out of McGee's till. Armstrong drove McGee down to No. 6 police station in his wagon and the latter told of his loss. Detective Verney was put on the case.

Barrister Irving proceeded to state that on Sunday night—the following night—McGee and Richards had a conversation after it Ricards called on the Armstrong. He told Mrs. Armstrong in the presence of young Armstrong that Detective Verney had secured enough evidence to prove that Armstrong had taken the money, some $16, and could send him to penitentiary. He advised restitution, and Mrs. Armstrong in spite of her son's protestations of innocence, offered to pay the $16 rather than have such a charge laid against him.

"Detective Verney had no such evidence and never said he had," said Barrister Irving.

The next day Monday, Armstrong, accompanied by Richards, called on McGee and in the presence of Mrs. Mary McGee offered the money. McGee refused it unless Armstrong confessed the theft. The latter refused at first, but after hearing this his mother persuaded him to go and "say anything."

The next stage was that Armstrong left town to work for his uncle near Detroit. While there McGee, who had accepted the $16, laid information against him for theft, and word was sent across the border. Armstrong immediately returned and faced the charge at the Police Court. He was acquitted by Col. Denison.

The outcome is that he is suing Mr. and Mrs McGee and Richards for $2,000 damages for conspiracy and false arrest. W. R. Smythe and D. D Grierson appeared for the defendants.

AN ENGLISH BRIGAND.

London, Sept. 25.—A despatch says that a remarkably bad specimen of an Englishman, named Alfredo Rayson, has just, writes a Montevideo correspondent, been captured by Argentine troops at General Villegas, in the province of Buenos Ayres.

Rayson was born in London early in the seventies, and ten years later was taken to Mercedes, Argentina, where he was placed at school to learn Spanish. Two years later he went to Junin as telegraph boy. But in the year 1894 he left for General Villegas, where he associated with the worst class of Gauchos who recognized him as the cleverest and most unscrupulous thief in the province.

For the past four years he has been leader of a band of "white" Indians, who have committed murders, "held up" travellers, assaulted women, raided cattle, and committed shocking excesses.

Some weeks ago, however, a cavalry detachment was sent to the district to break up the gang if possible, and the soldiers succeeded in doing this by capturing Rayson, who is now under lock and key on a preliminary charge of stealing 1,000 head of cattle.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Write for catalogue No. 30 to the COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, No. 313 Main street Buffalo, N. Y.

Dewdney's Whiskey.

MEN OF MARK.

President McKinley finds little leisure for light reading, but is a careful student of the newspapers.

Joseph Leiter has by no means decided to drop the stock market. He is a constant visitor to Wall street.

J. Pierpont Morgan is an expert pool player and an evening rarely passes when he does not enjoy an after dinner game.

Joel Chandler Harris, Georgia's famous author, breeder and poet, is to have an exhibit of Jersey cattle at the Paris exposition.

Senator Clark has just bought in Paris, for his Washington house, an old stained glass window, once the property of the Countess de Janse, for $30,000.

Sims Reeves says he lost $400,000 during his career as a public singer because he was too conscientious to appear on the stage unless sure he could do his best.

Ex-Representative Ben T. Cable is to furnish much of the money for the building of a chapter house for the Zeta Psi fraternity at the University of Michigan.

The Russian Prince Cantacuzene, whose betrothal to Miss Julia Grant has just been announced, has retired to his Russian estates to make preparations for the reception of his bride.

Before Rear Admiral Kautz left for Samoa a young woman asked him whether he had ever "felt afraid in battle." "Once," he answered. "A stray ball knocked my cigar out of my mouth and there wasn't another aboard."

The late ex-Governor Flower was once asked by a less successful financier how to succeed in Wall street. "By working harder than at any other trade or profession on earth," was the answer. "But won't that mean you out?" "Not before your time."

Mayor Moir of Scranton was years ago a journeyman tailor in Philadelphia. John Ross of the former city needed a workman, and Mr. Moir, being recommended, was offered inducements to go to Scranton. In February last Mr. Moir was elected chief executive of the city.

Henry G. Kittredge, editor of the Textile World, Boston, has been appointed assistant director of textiles for the commissioner general of the United States to the Paris exposition of 1900. Mr. Kittredge has long been identified with the textile industries of the United States.

Russell Sage is no friend of the camera, and very rarely is it that a photographer is quick enough to get a snap shot of the millionaire. As for sitting for a picture, that has probably occurred less frequently during the millionaire's long life than that of any other equally prominent man in the country.

TOWN TOPICS.

The curfew bell was rung last night at 8:30 o'clock. Nothing sensational resulted. It just rung; that was all.—Freeport Bulletin.

The companies are selling their gas so cheaply in New York that several of the metropolitan newspapers are filled with it every day.—Detroit Journal.

Buffalo is to have a new union station to cost $6,000,000, with a waiting room 80 by 225 feet, that will be the largest in the world. How about this, Boston?—Gardiner Reporter-Journal.

Buffalo is in a flutter over an extremely wicked Midway that it expects to have at the Pan-American exposition, and can't think of a suitable name for it. Why not call it Hamburg Paradise?—Rochester Democrat.

All because of a blessed war to the knife squabble between rival companies New York is now enjoying 65 cent gas. Father Knickerbocker will be a weak old gentleman if he lets them restore the higher rate.

MOTIVES AND METHODS.

A Missouri girl killed herself because her sweetheart had gone to the war.

Because his mother would not let him go in swimming an Arkansas boy cut his throat.

Forked branches of an apple tree were used as a noose by a Stroudsburg (Pa.) suicide.

Champagne with arsenic in it was used by a San Francisco man as a means of self destruction.

Her husband wanted to move, and she did not. That led a Connecticut woman to drink poison.

Fearing that his wife would scold him for getting home late a newly made London bridegroom committed suicide.

"Ah, to see the moon at a distance of one meter," was the note left by a Paris suicide explaining his motive for death.

THE CYNIC.

After a man has told you his troubles you know more about his kin.

You will find a loafer leech attached to every industrious man or woman.

An honest man is one who admits that his baldness is due to old age and not to sickness.

Every bridegroom finds an excuse to return from his wedding journey sooner than originally planned.

Every circus man lays all his plans on the assumption that the people are chumps. Every circus man gets rich.

After the people have worked themselves to death to raise a preacher's salary, he decides that he can do better elsewhere and resigns.

It would be interesting to know how much longer the week should be, in order that the men may find their Sunday underwear ready without fussing.—Atchison Globe.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Work of laying the cable from Vancouver to Fanning island and thence to Australia and New Zealand will begin this summer, it is announced.

The new Nernst electric light dispenses with the usual vacuum bulb and replaces the hairlike filament with a short bar of refractory material, thereby greatly increasing the light and cheapening the cost.

Experiments have been made lately by French [illegible] with a new telephone, which enables persons to converse without putting their mouths or ears to the apparatus [illegible] is audible in any part of the room.

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired and often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is vivid health. Many a man has sold the birthright of strength to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the aborting step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fuel of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his cheques.

THE SPECTRAL BELL.

A Superstition of the Sea Sometimes Met With on Land.

The tolling of a spectral bell is one of the familiar superstitions of the sea, and especially is the illusion common along this section of the gulf coast. What causes it nobody has ever learned, but there is hardly a luggerman from Mobile to the passes who has not, at one time or another, heard the sound. They describe the note as extraordinarily sweet and clear, rising and falling in solemn cadence and always seemingly close at hand. It is entirely different, they say, from any other noise of the ocean, and they scout the theory that it could possibly be produced by waves.

"It isn't water," said an old seafaring man the other night, "and, for that matter, it's sometimes heard on land. I know, because I've listened to it myself. Back in 1877, if you care to hear the story, I quit sailorizing for awhile and went out west and tried mining. I had a partner named Whicher, and, away up in the Sierra Madre range, in north New Mexico, we found an outcropping of rotten quartz that showed gold. It looked so good that we started to sink a shaft, although it was the most God forsaken spot you ever laid eyes on. It was in a little canyon, a thousand miles from nowhere, ugly black peaks all around us, and lonely—well, lonely is no name for it.

"One day, while Whicher was in the hole and me at the windlass he heard the bell. It was clear as my voice and seemed right over a mountain spur, where we knew there was no living being for three days' travel. It rang awhile and then stopped. Next day it rang again, slow, solemn and plainer than ever. It was broad daylight, and that made the thing all the worse, which sounds funny, but is true. We stood it four times, and then Whicher climbed out of the hole and said, 'Let's go.' I was willing. I believe we had a good thing, but that bell—it was too many for us. It makes my flesh crawl to think about it even now."

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY A WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentous Pictures Reflected In Its Oval Surface, Although It Will Not Work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our prosaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the sacred secrets and ceremonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery. While there she managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomless depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface, then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gazer recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac. By the mail two days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his home, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in shape; a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth.

The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the asphaltum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the best known material for absorption of the aura of the human body, and this is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, airy chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post.

The Birds Save Us.

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the bugs and slugs would simply eat up orchards and crops.

Fact Not Fiction.

"Talk about the seven sleepers," muttered the angry tragedian; "I'll bet there are 7,000 of them between Albany and New York."

Norman Smith and David Hoban, two boys, were charged with committing an assault upon little Harry Jones on Saturday last. Smith was discharged, but Hoban was given five days in which to pay a $2 fine.

Leon Colby came up for sentence. His father was present and with Mr Stone succeeded in getting the magistrate to discharge him. This is the second time young Colby has been up on a charge of stealing and he will be more severely dealt with on the next occasion.

THE COAL COMBINE.

LOCAL PRICES FOR COAL LIKELY TO BE REPEALED.

What a Paragraph in the Times is Likely to Accomplish—Here is a Snap for Some Good Local Man.

A few days ago the Times published a paragraph regarding the local combination amongst local coal dealers to keep the price of coal up to $6.50 per ton. Yesterday the following letter reached us:—

Quebec, 25th Sept., 1899.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I showed a friend your late issue in which you quote prices for coal at $6.50. He thinks he can send a quantity at less figure which also will give a liberal commission, and asks us to get him the name of some reliable man who would accept consignments at 3 months date.

Can the Times oblige with this?

Yours truly,
B. A. EPPES.

Here is a chance for some hustling man. That $6.50 is an extravagant price for coal, few who have looked into the matter will deny. The best grades of coal is selling in many places for a great deal less. Only the other day the Ottawa dealers formed a combine to raise the price from $5.25 to $6.25 per ton, and it fell through because one of the dealers frankly admitted that he had not the conscience to charge poor people such a price.

The Times is glad to say that the local combine is not likely to have things all its own way. We do not object to a fair living profit, but it is quite evident that $6.50 per ton is beyond reason.

THE NIGHT PERFORMANCE.

The Peterborough Exhibition Will be Open This Evening.

Arrangements were completed yesterday for a night show at the Peterborough Central Exhibition. The grounds will be illuminated this evening and the performance which takes place before the grand stand in the afternoon will be repeated. This consists of a number of specialties by a troop of trick artists, who are on their way west from the Ottawa Fair, the manager of which gives them a very high recommendation. The 57th Bat. band will also be present and render a select programme. All parts of the grounds will be open to inspection and the dog show will also be free to the public. This latter attraction, it is thought, will draw a big crowd of the townspeople to the grounds. The liverymen are making good arrangements to handle the crowd and there will be 20 or 30 busses plying regularly between the town and the Fair Grounds.

Free Tickets.

Free tickets to the fall fair will be given by Kidd, the shoe man, to every boy and girl who purchase at his store amounts to $1.25 or over, 2 tickets free with $2.25 or over.

Big Deficit.

It is said that the Board of Works are away in the hole financially—that is, they have a large deficit. We told you so.

New Books.

We have just received a choice lot of novels which will be sold at ten cents each or three for 25 cents. These novels are by some of the best writers, such as Florence Marryat, M E Braddon, C M Braeme, Rosa N Carey, The Duchess, Hawthorne, Sir Walter Scott, Charles Reade, Anthony Hope, &c, &c. CAUGHT A NURSE.

Didn't Know Old King Coffee Had Her.

"The duties of professional nurses call them among a great many different people, and it is surprising to know how many are suffering from the use of coffee, which is the primary cause of the majority of many nervous disorders. My own experience has been such that I feel that I can speak with some knowledge of the subject.

"For about ten years I was afflicted with a severe nervous disorder, which was so great that sleep became an unknown thing to me without the use of opiates. I was a confirmed coffee drinker at this time, but had never thought that had anything to do with the difficulty.

"After coming to Chicago to live I was told by an acquaintance, who had been a similar sufferer from nervousness, that he discovered that it was caused by the use of coffee, and when he made that discovery, gave up the coffee and took up the use of Postum Food Coffee and was completely restored. His argument sounded so logical, I was determined to make the experiment, and to my surprise, upon leaving off the coffee habit I commenced to improve. This improvement has continued until now I am in complete health and sleep well and naturally. I always advise patients suffering from nervous trouble to abandon the use of coffee and use Postum, for I know what I am talking about on that subject.

"Occasionally private families do not prepare Postum well, that is, they fail to allow a sufficient amount of time for boiling. It requires more boiling than coffee, but the care well repays, for the beverage is delightful to the taste and wonderfully nourishing." Maggie E. Church, No. 2 E. 42d Place, Chicago, Ill.

Postum is sold by all first-class grocers and made by the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

Good Advice.

Advertising knowledge comes slowly, as the result of repeated experiments, perhaps costly mistakes. It means labor, study, watchful examination of results. Certain newspapers or advertising newspapers pay, and you know they pay—use these freely. Other mediums are doubtful—proceed with caution. Your records show that others do not pay you; cut them off firmly, and do not let any persuation tempt you to use them again. There are plenty of good advertising mediums without trying experiments with publications that have failed to pay.

Sissiboo Pulp and Paper Co., Ltd.

The bonds and stock of the Sissiboo Pulp and Paper Co., Ltd., now being offered to the public as per advertisement in another column, should prove attractive to investors. The capitalization of the Company is reasonable for an enterprise of this magnitude and there is no doubt as to its success. The pulp industry is a growing one and in a very short time will assume large proportions in Canada owing to the depletion of the spruce forests of the United States which will force manufacturers in the latter country to purchase here.

As a matter of fact the price of pulp is advancing at the present time, so that estimates made by the Sissiboo Company as to the results of its business are well within the mark, and its profits are likely to considerably exceed the figures given.

A 6 per cent 30 year gold bond at par in a good company is not often met with in these days, and it is to be presumed that such a security will soon command a good premium. The Company reserve the right to redeem the after they have run five years at 110 and interest, and a sinking fund is to be set aside each year for the purpose.

The common stock which is now being offered is expected to carry a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent on the par value, equal to 24 per cent. on the price at which it is now offered. It will therefore be seen that the average rate of interest on the bonds and stock of the Company at present prices will be 16 per cent. The directors of the company number among some of Montreal's most successful business men, and their names are a guarantee as to the success of the enterprise.

Mr. Sheehy Replies.

Mr Richard Sheehy, one of the contractors for the new granolithic walks, has written a strong letter to the Board of Works dealing with the charge that has been made by an inspector concerning the proportion in which the sand, gravel, &c was was mixed with cement for the pavements, and demanding a full investigation. The council is called for this evening, when the matter will come up.

Mills and Properties :: :: Weymouth, N. S.

Messrs. R. WILSON-SMITH, MELDRUM & CO., offer for public subscription $250,000 6 p.c: 30 Year Gold Bonds at par, and $250,000 Common Stock at 25 cents.

That bonds will be secured by a mortgage upon all the lands, water powers, mills, buildings and other fixed assets and franchises now owned or to be owned by the Company, said mortgage to be executed in favor of the National Trust Company, Limited, of Ontario, who will act as Trustee for the bondholders. A sufficient amount will be set aside from the profits yearly, commencing with 1902, to form a sinking fund for the redemption of the bonds at maturity.

The Company reserve the right to redeem the bonds at any time after 1st October, 1904, on payment of a premium of 10 p. c. and interest.

The Company confidently expects to earn a dividend at the rate of 6 p. c. per annum on the par value of the stock as will be seen from the estimates given below. This would be equal to 24 p. c. per annum on the stock at the price at which it is now offered, viz., 25.

CHARTER.

The Sissiboo Pulp & Paper Company, Ltd., was incorporated by Special Act of the Legislature of the Province of Nova Scotia, for the purpose of manufacturing and selling ground wood and pulp, and also for the manufacture and sale of paper, etc.

MILL PROPERTIES.

The Company will acquire all the Capital Stock, good-will, plant and property of the Sissiboo Falls Pulp Company, Limited, situated on the Sissiboo River, seven miles from Weymouth, in Digby County, Nova Scotia. The mill of the last named Company is now in operation, and is in good condition, and it is proposed to provide machinery capable of increasing its output to about 5000 tons of dry pulp per annum. Another mill of greater capacity will be erected at Weymouth Falls, about four miles below the present mill, and at the head of tide-water. The latter mill will be capable of producing about 7000 tons of dry pulp per annum, and the combined output of the two mills will be about 12,000 tons per annum.

WOOD LANDS.

The Company have an option on upwards of 17,000 acres of wood land, well timbered with spruce of the best quality for making pulp, which it will acquire. This tract of land, together with pulp wood purchasable, will afford an inexhaustible supply of raw material adequate for all the business of the Company.

WATER POWERS.

The water powers which will be controlled by the Company are amongst the most valuable in the Province.

SHIPPING FACILITIES.

As the property and water powers referred to are practically at the seaboard, the Company's shipping facilities will be unsurpassed, and the expense of a long railway haul removed.

The only available wharf property on the Sissiboo River at Weymouth Bridge is under option, and will also be acquired. This property has a navigable water front on one side and a railway terminus on the other, so that the Company will be peculiarly well situated for carrying on a profitable export business.

WORKING CAPITAL.

After the purchase of the above mentioned properties the Company will still have in its Treasury the sum of $55,000,-00 for working capital.

PULP TRADE

The annual consumption of pulp is increasing at a very rapid rate, and foreign markets are now turning their attention to the Canadian forests for supply. In fact English and American paper manufacturers are constantly on the look-out for desirable tracts of Canadian pulp lands.

The London firm which has been buying from the old Sissiboo Company is desirous of contracting a year in advance, for the whole output of 12,000 tons, so that the Company has an assured market for its product.

ESTIMATES OF BUSINESS.

The cost of production per ton of dry pulp has been established to be between $6.75 and $7.75, according to location of limits: and transportation of product to shipping points, but from The Sissiboo Company's advantages it is considered that $7.50 per ton will be the maximum cost.

The following estimate on the basis of a market price of $12.00 per ton is believed to be conservative, and well within the mark.

12,000 tons per annum at $12.00 per ton..............		$144,000
Cost of producing same:—
12,000 tons at $7.50 per ton..........................		90,000
SHOWING GROSS PROFIT OF..............................		$54,000
6 p. c. on $250,000 of Bonds.........................	$15,000
Sinking fund for bonds to commence with 1902....	3,440
		18,440
NET PROFIT AVAILABLE FOR DIVIDENDS.....		35,360
Being at the rate of 6.46 p. c. on the common stock.

Since the above estimate was made, pulp has enhanced considerably in value, some mills receiving as high as $15.00 per ton.

Application will be made in due course to have the stock of the company listed on the Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

Subscription books will be opened at the office of the undersigned and also at all the offices of the MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA, at 10 o'clock on Thursday, 28th September, 1899, and close at 3 p. m. on the following day.

As the bonds are in denominations of $500 each, application must necessarily be for the this amount or multiples thereof, and it is requisite that bonds and stock shall accompany each other in equal amounts, that is, $500 Bond must carry $500 of stock, and vice versa.

Subscriptions will be payable as follows:—50 p. c. on application, 25 p. c. on 1st November, and 25 p. c. on 1st December.

Subscription forms may be obtained on application from any of the Branches of the MERCHANTS BANK OF CANADA, or from

BLOCKED FOR TWO MONTHS

Line Between Darjeeling and Sanadaa Blocked for a Long Period.

A Number of Bodies Have Been Recovered on Happy Valley Estate—Soldiers of the Munster Regiment Are Searching for Bodies and Clearing the Roads.

Calcutta, Sept. 27.—After gathering at the head of the bay a storm moved east to-day giving heavy rain in Calcutta, Dinajpur, Rangpur, and Jalpaiguri, and falling with the greatest fury at Darjeeling. Simultaneously, another storm gathered at Rangpur and passed westward from Purnea to Monghyr. The usual weekly reports have not been received from the Government, and there is reason to fear that the district named is flooded and communication interrupted.

It is estimated that between Darjeeling and Kurseong alone 300 persons have lost their lives.

The line between Darjeeling and Sonada will be blocked, probably for two months. Both the Upper and Lower Puglajhoras have been carried away. A number of bodies have been recovered on the Happy Valley estate. The soldiers of the Munster Regiment are searching for bodies and clearing the roads.

GREAT SLAUGHTER OF WHALES

Natives of the Faroe Islands Make Four Great Catches.

London, Sept. 27.—A Kirkwall telegram states that information from the Faroe Islands shows that on August 8, 9, 11 and 22 there were four different whale hunts there, and large numbers of bottle-nosed whales were got, in all 2,115. At Midvaag there was the greatest slaughter, 1,500 being landed; at Lirvaag, 180; at Sandivaag, 175; at Westmanhavn, 300. The natives will have plenty of beef this season, and the blubber is being made into oil.

TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND.

British Methodists Have Already Raised Over $3,500,000.

London, Sept. 27.—During the coming week the winter campaigns for the promotion of the Twentieth Century Funds in connection with the Free Churches will be entered upon. The Wesleyan Methodist fund now amounts to $3,500,000, of which $500,000 has been received by the treasurers, and this will be further augmented shortly by farther promises, which have still to be made by important circuits. The United Methodist Free Churches are to have the matter promiently brought before all their September circuit meetings, and the Congregationalists are arranging important public meetings throughout all the country unions, to be attended by a large number of leading ministers and laymen.

KEENE.

It is an authentic truth that in order to keep the body and mind in a healthy state rest is requisite. I have taken advantage of this adage, but now feeling refreshed I have decided to again pen items for the Times. We are favored with three correspondents of three different professions and dispositions, but I wish to inform the residents of Keene and vicinity that it is not my intention or desire to arouse animosity or convey any offense to any person, but nevertheless I purpose to give a concise and impartial report of events each week. In justice to the citizens of his village I don't think I am exaggerating in stating that on an average they are a moral and respectable class of people, and undoubtedly the correspondent will not have occasion to pen any odious items.

I have been informed by very reliable authority that a meeting of the Lime Juice Club was held on Wedlock a Corner on Saturday night last, for the purpose of selecting a suitable President for the ensuing year. I am sorry to relate through jealousy on the part of a past president a dispute arose, which terminated in a scrap. With the exception of a few bruises the peacebreaker was allowed to retire from the meeting. A meeting is called on Saturday night next. We trust that the utmost harmony will exist amongst the brethren. A full report will be given of the business transacted, as the club has kindly invited the correspondent of the Times to be present at their meetings to give a truthful report, so that the public can see that the Lime Juice Club is a club of no mean order. Look out for the Times in the future, and don't be afraid to subscribe for a copy. It is full of the latest news, and is pronounced by all readers to be the best local newspaper in the county of Peterborough.

BUT WHO BENEFITS BY IT?

Mr. Ranney Sends a Report Which Supports Ald. McWilliam's Charge.

Mr. Ranney Says Mr. Sheehy is the Most Dishonest Contractor He Ever Knew—How Many Suits Have the Town Lost in Ten Years?

The Council met in special session last night. There were present Mayor Davis and Alds. J B McWilliams, Best, Langford, Denne, E H D Hall, Sawers and Corkery.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed,

Communications.

From Rev Mr Symonds, inviting the Council to attend the harvest festival service at St Luke's to-night.—The invitation was accepted.

From John Montgomery asking for two weeks holidays.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From Engineer Hay re reference to Council's request for a statement of who is responsible for the grading of the new granolithic sidewalks. Mr Hay submitted a very lengthy report, in which he set forth the many difficulties encountered in setting up the grades. It was not, he claimed, until at work in front of Victoria Park, on Water street, that he was apprised that in future all grades for sidewalks were to be approved by the Board of Works before laying. In conformity with these instructions he asserted that on Murray, Brock, Hunter and Simcoe streets, between Water and George streets, and also on Water street between Brock and Simcoe, all grades were approved before being adopted.

The Park street grade was laid and examined by the chairman and members of the Board, and with some slight modification was approved of and adopted.

George street, from Smith to Brock, has been examined frequently by the chairman and members of the Board as laid out and constructed. The only change of grade made at the suggestion of members of the Board was on the block between Edinburgh and Dublin streets.

In conclusion Mr Hay complained of having a greater amount of work on hand at one time than could be thoroughly attended to, and suggesting that in future plans and specifications be carefully prepared and adopted before any permanent improvements are commenced upon.

Ald McWilliams at this juncture complained that Mr Hay had not in his report conformed to what had been requested of him by the Council. He (Ald McWilliams) had never been consulted by the engineer, and he knew of no meeting where the Board of Works were consulted in the matter of grades. He would therefore move, seconded by Ald Sawers,—That the report be referred back to Mr Hay to state fully who is responsible for the grading of sidewalks.

Ald Langford said that when he was chairman of the Board of Works a resolution had been passed authorizing him to gather together what members of the Board he could find in town for the transaction of Board business. This he had done in the case of a certain section of work when many of the members were out of town.

Ald Sawers said he had only recently been appointved on the Board of Works, and from what he is given to understand the report of Mr Hay is not correct. Neither was he aware of the resolution mentioned by Ald Langford being passed.

Ald McWilliams here deplored the lax of business like methods in the matter of sidewalks. He, did not believe in striking a grade piece meal as had been done on Water street. He thought the whole section of work should have been graded at once.

Ald Hall thought Mr Hay had not been fairly treated in having too many contracts on hand at once. He could not be expected to be in three or four places at one time.

The motion was then carried and report referred back to Mr Hay.

3. That $20 be paid by T G Holmes for a junk shop license be refunded to him.

4. That the payment of all account of the Stevenson Coal Co. of $58 for be confirmed.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted.

In reply to Ald McWilliams as to why Holmes junk shop license fee should be refunded.

Ald Denne replied that upon investigation he found the license by-law did not insure protection in this case.

At this juncture Ald McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald Denne,—That the clerk be instructed to ascertain how many suits of the town's for the past 10 years have proven successful; also the number of by-laws that have been set aside by the Police, Magistrate or County Judge,—Carried.

Board of Works.

Ald Langford submitted the following report by request of acting chairman Mayor Davis:—

Your Board of Works beg leave to report as follows:

1 That the petition of W Metheral and others for a granolithic sidewald on both sidees of Murray-st. opposite lots Nos. 7, west of George street is sufficiently signed, and recommend that it be granted and that the work be done by Evans and Langford on the terms of their present contract.

2 That the bridges over the creek and the bridge at the Goose Pond be replanked.

3 That no action was taken on the petition of J H Bailey and others asking that the sidewalk on Aylmer street be laid outside the trees.

4 Your Board recommend that the Town Engineer be instructed to employ G W Ranney and that he be paid monthly at $2.50 per day.

5 Your committee recommend that Jas Bogue paid the balance coming to him on his sewer contract on condition that his sureties sign an agreement drafted by the Town Solicitor agreeing that he should be so paid, and that Mr Bogue be paid the cost of removing the tree from Gilmour street as certified by Mr F Bartlett, the inspector, and that the account of the town against Mr Bogue for sewer pipes be deducted from the payments.

6 Your Board recommend that the inspectors on the contracts be paid $2.75 per day from Sept 15th. 1899, and that George Ross and F Bartlett be paid $2 275 per day from the same date, on the certificate of the engineer.

7 Your Board gave instrutcions that no farther payments be made to R Sheehy on account of granolithic sidewalk contract No. 2 until further instructions are given by this Board and that sufficient be kept back on all other sidewalk contracts to protect the corporation with respect to deviations from the specifications.

8. Your Board gave instructions that the Dalhousie street bridge be raised six inches at both ends.

9. Under directions from your Board Messrs Sheehy & Dolan were notified to repair the sidewalk on Charlotte street between George and Aylmer streets under the instructions of the Town Engineer at their expense before October 15th, 1899.

10. Your Board recommend that the Peterboroug Water Company be instructed to move the hydrant on Hunter street near Jones' livery stable to the outside of the sidewalk.

11. Your Board recommend that the Peterborough Water Co. be paid $100 for moving the water main on Murray street to a place to be designated by the Town Engineer, and that the granolithic sidewale on the north side of Murray street be canstructed this year only from Aylmer street to the end of where the pipe now now is unsless the Town Engineer certifies that it is safe to continue it this year.

12. Your Board received two tenders for the construction of the extension of the on Gilmour street, namely T E Wade 84½ cents per foot, total $957.38, private sewer connections $13.50; James Bogue 75 cents per foot, manholes $40 each, total $1089.65, private sewer connections $15.50. We recommend that the contract be let to T E Wade provided he gives satisfactory security and agrees to complete the work in four weeks.

All of which is respecifully submitted.

Ald. Langford moved the adoption of the report, after eliminating clause 5.

Mr Ranney's Letter.

Dear Mr Hay,—In complience with circular given to the inspectors by the Council, I beg to report to you that the deviation from the specification in Mr Sheehy's contract is as follows:—

The concrete box, the same that was used last year, contains one cubic yard (27 ft). The specification requires one-sixth of the mixture to be of cement. When I commenced the cement was in barrels and one barrel was used to one box of gravel (the same as last year). I measured a barrel as well as I could with the means I had at hand and in was 26 inches deep and averaged 17 in diameter, which is 3,473 c f after using a few bbls, 4 bags sand to equal a barrel of Ensign cement to the yard of gravel for the concrete. For the finishing coat of granite and cement I made a box 3 in. x3x12-9 cubic feet and filled it with cement and concrete, and to avoid measuring the concrete each time counted the bags, two of contractor's men assisting. When I counted the bags it was 5 1-2 that filled it. Two bags were purloined in some way by the men and a half bag was added to fill it. Some time after I filled the box again and it took seven bags to fill the box. I notified the chairman and Mr Hay to the effect of the discovery and was told to make no change.

With 6 1-2 bags of cement to two boxes of granite, of course the mixture would not trowel and one box of sand had to be added and the proportion has been carried out on all the work done this year.

As to whether the town or the contractor is to have the benefit of the saving is for the council to deal with.

The box—9 c f—7 bags—1,285 c f for eahh bag.

In square foot of finishing coat of walk 12 inch x12x12x12⅝ in eq 2.16 in c f—one third to be of cement eq 72 in eq '024 c. f. Mr. Sheehy's contract was 41'128 feet x '024 eq 9,860 c. f + measured bbl. of cement eq 3.50 c. f 9,860 + 3.50 281.7 bbls short of specification.

I do not know of any other deviation from the specification.

G W RANNEY,
Inspector

Ald. McWilliams at this juncture stated that Mr. Ranney who had had large experience with contractors, referred to Mr. Sheehy as the most dishonest contractor he had ever dealt with—sensation,—and while he would not say that any member or members of the council were directly interested in No. 2 contract, he was prepared to stand by his assertion that Mr. Sheehy has approached certain members.

Ald. Sawers said he could not see why Engineer Hay if he knew Sheehy's specifications were wrong, had called for two other contracts on the same lines.

Ald. Langford admitted that Mr. Ranney had come to him with the complaint of two bags of cement to the box having been stolen, and he had advised him to shut his mouth, and inform the engineer.

Ald. Sawers moved, seconded by Ald. McWilliams, That clause 5 of report be struck out, after which report be adopted as amended by attachment of Mr. Ranney's report. Carried.

Ald. McWilliams moved seconded by Ald Sawers, That in future reporters be requested to attend at all committee meetings. Carried.

Council then adjourned.

THE BIG FAIR NOW ON

Many Departments Ahead of Last Year in Their Exhibits.

ATTENDANCE VERY LIGHT.

And the Unfavorable Weather Plays Havoc With the Receipts.

It is Expected That To-day Will See a Big Crowd Present—A Success in Every Way Except in Regard to Numbers—Programme for To-day.

On account of the unfortunate weather the attendance at the Peterborough Central Exhibition, which opened on Tuesday, was not large. Yesterday the formal opening took place, and the heavy rain of the day before prevented many from attending, as the roads are in bad shape. Had the weather been favorable the show would have been a huge success.

The Formal Opening.

The formal opening of the exhibition took place at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, when brief addresses were delivered by Warden Hawthorne, Messrs T Blezard, M P P; James Kendry, M P, and J R Stratton, M P P.

The Main Building.

Notwithstanding the depressing weather of Tuesday, the number and quality of the exhibits inside the building were ahead of last year.

In the dairy department the Lakefield factory carried off first prize, Mr F E Kline, maker; Cavanville factory second, Mr W E Wood, maker, and Warsaw third. Mr S R Payne, maker.

In butter the show was good but not large.

In grain the show was also good and competition was keen.

The display of roots and vegetables were especially fine, a prominent and successful exhibitor being Mr F W Wise, gardener for Mr Peter Hamilton.

Gough Bros. as usual, showed a very fine assortment of clothing.

The Trading Stamp Company, under the management of Miss Cahill, had a good exhibit.

Mr James Head, head gardener of the Nicholls Hospital, showed some fine flowers, as also did Mr Wise.

The fruit exhibit was also especially good.

On the second floor was a very fine assortment of ladies' work, which was admitted by many, and also a display of photographs by Messrs Green & Son.

Around the Grounds.

The live stock was simply immense. The cattle alone were worth the price of admission to see.

The hogs were also an attraction to many and they formed a promient part of the stock exhibit.

The poultry was visited by hundreds, and all were well pleased with what they saw. There was an extra fine exhibit.

The dog show was also a great attraction.

Notes.

The 57th Batt. Band was present and discoursed sweet music.

The show in front of the grand stand by Cornelius & Taylor, of Toronto, was the chief attraction. The specialties were well put and very laughable.

GERMANS MAKE ADVANCES.

A Syndicate Purchases a Line of English Steamers in the East.

London, Sept. 27.—Some consternation appears to have been caused at Bangkok by the recent transfer of Messrs Holt's East India Ocean steamship line to a German syndicate. The transaction is described in a consular report as by far the most interesting, though not the most pleasant, event of recent years in the history of British shipping at the Siamese port. This is how the story is told: "Messrs Alfred Holt & Company, of Liverpool, have sold their East India Ocean Steamship Line, numbering eleven steamers, and including all those running between Signapore and Bangkok and Signapore and Borneo, to a German syndicate, said to be composed of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, Messrs Behn Meyer, of Signapore, and Messrs Windsor & Company, of Bangkok. This will make a reduction of nearly 33 per cent. in the British shipping at this port, and the figures for British and German shipping entered will stand at 266 and 161 respectively, instead of 396 and 34, as at present. British residents at both ports are naturally somewhat taken aback by this sweeping change, and feel rather disappointed that the only regular line between Siam and Singapore should no longer be under the British flag."

DEALING WITH TRAMPS.

At the instance of the Grand Trunk Railway, Provincial detectives are systematically rounding up the tramp fraternity and placing its members in the hands of the local authorities. Police Magistrates have been instructed to deal summarily with all tramps brought before them, and upon conviction to send them to the Central Prison for not less than six months. A few days ago eight hoboes were sent to the Central from Cornwall. Four detectives arrived in Brockville one day last week and carefully watched the station yard for several hours, without finding a single specimen of the genus. The examplary punishment inflicted in other places had done its work.

It may be set down as a general rule that tramps are deliberate idlers, who make a business of living in a nomadic way through begging and stealing. It is well known that they have a regular system of communicating information to one another by means of chalk-marks on gateposts and the like, as to the nature of their reception at the houses they visit, and on the whole have reduced to a fine art the application of the principle that "the world owes them a living." Exceptions to the general rule they are, it is true; but they can be easily distinguished by showing every applicant for charity to the woodpile, or some other means of earning temporary relief.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Good morning.

* * *

A Johannesburg correspondent indicates by his despatch that some of the Transvaal people are familiar with this couplet:—

"Blessed the man who knows his cause is just,
But thrice blest he who gets his blow in fust."

Before the Transvaal war is over the Boers will be convinced that gold is the root of all evil.

The manner in which the Holy name of Jesus is profaned at the present time, is truly alarming. Young children and gray-haired men, and women even are guilty of this irreverence toward sacred names. Rich men and poor men who say they have no faith, and men who have no faith, are all addicted to the impious vice of cursing.

RAILROAD TIES.

It is proposed to construct a railway in French Guinea.

Khartum will be reached by the railroad by November next, barring accidents. The railroad is now 80 miles south of the Atbara river.

The original capital of the Pennsylvania railroad was $880,000. The system on its fifty-third birthday represented an investment of $800,000,000. Last year it carried 71,000,000 passengers.

An "improvement" introduced by the Great Eastern railway, England, consists in widening the cars to the limit of safety in order to allow six passengers to wedge themselves into one seat.

EUGENE FIELD AND TABOR.

How the Humorist Made Life a Burden For the Millionaire.

"Up to middle age the late Senator Tabor's life was one of great hardship," said a former resident of the Silver State, "and when he suddenly became fabulously rich he plunged into luxuries like a starving man wading into a banquet. One of his early freaks was the purchase of several magnificent lace nightrobes which cost $100 apiece and which he kept locked up in a safe during the day. Eugene Field was editor of the Denver Tribune at the time, and these lace nightrobes made him simply hysterical. He wrote column upon column about them, describing the garments in detail, with numerous diagrams depicting sections fore and aft. The diagrams were hideous affairs, which Field carved out himself with a penknife on the back of old wood type. He used to describe how Tabor would forget the combination of the safe and sit up, shivering and naked, half the night trying to remember the right figures.

"Altogether he kept Denver in a roar for weeks and made Tabor so wild that one day he rushed into his office, snatched the unfortunate nightrobes out of their compartment and tore them to threads. 'There, now!' he exclaimed, wiping his forehead and kicking the tattered fragments into a corner, 'I hope that fool will be satisfied. I'll be hanged if I ain't going to get a gunny sack,' he continued, 'cut some holes in the end for my head and arms, and then sleep in it for the rest of my life!'

"When Tabor was appointed to the senate to fill an unexpired term of exactly 30 days, Field broke loose again and had all kinds of fun with the old man. He declared that Tabor opposed the tariff bill on the ground that it encouraged lawlessness in the west. 'I don't know this tariff bill,' he reported the senator as saying in a speech, 'but we have entirely too many of 'em out where I live. There's Wild Bill and Pecos Bill and Billy the Kid—all no good. If you let Tariff Bill have everything to do with the custom house he is liable to steal the Atlantic ocean.' Many of the honest frontier folk took these flights of fancy seriously, and drove Tabor nearly distracted by long letters of remonstrance, urging him to read up and get posted, so as not to disgrace the state.

"At the expiration of the senator's brief term he circulated an autograph album among his fellow members, and the incident tickled Field immensely. He gave what purported to be a copy of the 'sentiments' inscribed in the volume by the different statesmen—such things as 'When this you see, remember me, Roscoe Conkling,' and 'Sure as the moss grows 'round a stump you are my darling sugar lump—I mean chump—George F. Hoar,' and similar nonsense, all of which maddened his victim.

"I think 'Gene Field was the only man Tabor never forgave, for in spite of his gaunt, forbidding exterior, the miner magnate was as tender hearted as a girl. He was really full of sterling qualities, and in his proper sphere he would have been anything but grotesque. One thing is sure—if every fellow he helped in secret would have joined his funeral procession he would have gone to his grave like an emperor of old."

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. They are taken in at Mr. Caleb Davis's Shop, at the Fortification; Mr. Andrew Gillespie's, near Dr. Clark's; Mr. Andrew Rantdale's, near Phillips's Wharf; and Mr. John Boies's in Long Lane; Mr. Frothingham's in Charleston; Mr. Williams's in Marblehead; Mr. Ellson's in Salem; Mr. John Harris's in Newbury; Mr. Daniel Fowle's in Portsmouth; and at the Paper Mill in Milton.

"Rags are as Beauties, which concealed lie;
But when in Paper, how it charms the Eye;
Pray save Rags, new Beauties to discover,
For Paper truly, every one's a Lover:
By th' Pen and Press such Knowledge is displayed,
As wouldn't exist if Paper was not made.
Wisdom of Things, mysterious, divine,
Illustriously doth on Paper shine."

But They Weren't Civilized.

Traveling in southern India, one day I was taken into the country to see tapioca roots gathered and ground for use. The adults working in the grove, men and women, had each a rag around the loins, but the boys and girls, with their black, glossy skins, were free of all incumbrance.

Our guide explained to these people that we were from a country so far away and so different from theirs that the waters were sometimes made solid by the extreme cold and we could walk upon them; that sometimes it was so intensely cold that the rain was frozen into particles and lay on the earth so deep that people could not walk through it, and that three and four layers of heavy clothes had to be worn.

This happy people, as our guide told us, wondered why we staid there, why we did not come and enjoy life in their favored clime.—Andrew Carnegie in North American Review.

Deceived by a Thread.

As we came in on a Big Four train from Delaware we noticed a well barbered and highly scented "young man of the period" complacently admiring a fine pair of patent leather shoes which were elevated on the seat in front of him. Finally he espied a thread on one of his shoes, and, seizing it, he gently drew it to him. It seemed to be quite long, so he wound around it his kid gloved hand. After getting quite a knot of it he found it was fast to his side, and, glancing along his leg, he discovered that he had unraveled one seam of his trousers for a whole length of a [illegible] leg. The last we saw of him he had borrowed two pins from the conductor and was retreating sidewise toward the smoking car with horror and disgust plainly depicted on his countenance.—

DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION

Makes Weak Women Strong,
And Sick Women Well.

It is made from a formula of Dr. R. V. Pierce, the celebrated specialist in diseases of women at Buffalo, N. Y. It is a strictly temperance medicine, containing neither alcohol, opium or other narcotic poison. Its protracted use does not create a craving for intoxicating stimulants or deadly narcotics. It cures irregularities, displacements, drains, ulcerations, inflammation, headache, backache and nervousness. It prepares the way for almost painless maternity, and insures robustness to the newborn. It cures women at home, and does away with obnoxious questioning and local examinations.

Some medicine dealers offer substitutes when you ask for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. They imitate this medicine in appearance as nearly as the law will allow, but they cannot imitate its record of thirty years of cures.

Mrs. Mattie Vengham, of Tioga, Hancock Co., Ill., writes: "I had been sick for seven years, not in bed, but just dragging myself around. At last I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and five of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and it is impossible to describe in words the good these medicines did me."

Neither the "Discovery" nor the "Favorite Prescription" contains any alcohol, opium or other narcotic.

Following are extracts from the report of Capt. T. H. Trethewey, M.E., upon the Company's properties which are now being vigorously developed, and upon which will be installed the 6 drill compressor plant, which was purchased from the Canadicn Rand Drill Co. on the 5th inst. for immediate delivery.

MR. TRETHEWEY SAYS:

"The vein on these properties is well defined, and, where exposed by the workings near the line between the Western Hil and Virginia, averages fully 18 ft. in width. The gauge consists of a somewhat crushed and iron-stained quartz, sparingly mineralized with Galena, Copper and Iron Pyrites, with here and there small amount of Blend and Graphite disseminated throughout."

"On the Western Hill, a a shaft has been sunk to a depth of 27 ft. on the foot wall, and the ledge has been exposed by a cross-cut to its full width; it here appears to be divided into hanging and foot wall portions by a seam of somewhat decomposed clay material which appears to dip toward the hanging wall, cutting out the leaner and allowing the richer portions of the vein to increase with depth."

"Samples taken in this shaft, across an 8 ft. face lying next to the foot well, gave an average return of $7.00 in Gold and $1.35 in Silver, making a total of $8.35 per ton, while the balance of the vein gave a return of $2.00 in Gold and 70 cents in Silver, making a total of $2.70 per ton for a width of ten feet, so that $5.25 may be considered a fair average for the full width of the vein."

"The conclusion I have drawn after a thorough examination and study of the facts as here presented is, that judicious development should locate extensive bodies of pay ore, as even if only the 8 ft. next to the foot wall be extracted, the values continuing in depth as there is no reason why they should not, while leaner portions may be encountered they could be left in mine to support the walls, and you would still have a proposition of unlimited tonnage well worthy of judicious expendit in exposing its resources."

"The general conditions, elevation, etc., are so favorable that mining operations can be carried on for many years by al tunnelling into the mountain and following the trend of the vein, and hundreds of thousands of tons of ore can readily be available without the use of hoisting or pumping machinery."

"Situated as these claims are about 2000 ft. above the bank of the Okanagan River, with a natural outlet for Ærial or tramway, and only about three miles from the "Black Hawk" Claim, which is within easy reach of the river, the questi transportation of ore from the mine to the mill could be easily arranged."

"With an electric plant established at Dog Falls, which is possibly ten miles distant, ample power could be genera nominal cost for all purposes, and by adopting the most modern methods of mining, milling and concentrating, together wi unlimited supply of ore, the cost of production should be reduced to a minimum."

"If the present promising assurances are borne out, the opening up of the three levels could develope at least a three y supply of ore for a plant of large capacity, and I would stongly recomend the erection and installation of a mill of not less from 250 to 300 tons daily capacity."

"With cheap power an unlimited supply of ore and a plant capable of handling the quantity I have suggested, the co mining and milling ought not to exceed from $1.50 to $2.00 per ton, and under capable management it should be kept within lower limits."

"Thus even if the lowest values, $3.05 be taken as a basis of calculation and allowing that 85 p. c. of this can be saved, would yield a profit of $1.00 for each ton of ore treated, but I am of opinion that much higher values may be confidently expecte and if there is a profit winner in the camp, all conditions considered, this one can be conscientiously recommended to the investi public."

At the next Annual Meeting of the Company, which will be held on the 6th da of November next, several of Montreal's most prominent business men will accep Directorship.

GREETED IN NEW YORK.

Admiral Dewey, on the Olympia, Arrives Unexpectedly.

New York, Sept. 26.—Much to the surprise of everyone in this city the Olympia with admiral Dewey on board arrived off the Sandy Hook lightship at 5.55 this morning. There was a heavy mist on the sea and at first the marine observers were inclined to think the vessel sighted might be Rear Admiral Howison's flagship, the Chicago, hardly believing Dewey would arrive two days ahead of time. The doubt was soon cleared away, however, and as passing vessels recognized the flagship from Manila bay, there was a continuous roar of whistles and salutes.

The flagship came up to the lower bay and anchored inside Sandy Hook. As soon as the anchor was dropped, an orderly was sent ashore with despatches from the admiral and and other officers. He said the ship had a pleasant trip across the Atlantic, and that all on board were well and glad to be home again. The members of Admiral Dewey's family, who are stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria, did not seem surprised at their distinguished relative's early arrival. Charles Dewey, of Montpelier, Vt., the admiral's brother, said: "This is not altogether unexpected, as we thought the admiral would be here a couple of days before the celebration. Probably he desired to have a couple of days to get the ship in good condition for the celebration.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

All Roads Lead to the Dressmaker.

Mr. Hornbill—Do you know, darling, I could pick you out of a crowd of women just by your style!

Mrs. Hornbill—I don't wonder, and me with this same old dress for the last two years!

Shopgirl's Hard Lot.

Persons complain that shopgirls do not jump actively to wait upon them when they enter a store. Why not? The other day I saw a girl approach a respectably dressed woman of middle age—that's 35—and heard her ask, over the counter, "What would you like ma'am?"

To this polite attention I was shocked to hear the woman reply: "You shut up! Don't you talk to me! I can ask for what I want, and I don't want any impudence from clerks!"

A few rebuffs from such creatures are quite enough to cool the ardor of any shopgirl.

Rioting in Ferrol.

Ferrol, Spain, Sept. 26.—There has been renewed rioting here. The strikers, with women and children, attacked the men at work in the arsenal. A hail of stones was thrown and revolver shots were fired. The gendarmes charged and dispersed the mob. A number of persons were injured, including the commander of the iron-clad Cardinal Sisneros, who was seriously hurt. Troops are now picketed along all the leading streets.

THE MAGICAL MIRROR

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY A WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentous Pictures Reflected In Its Oval Surface, Although It Will Not Work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our prosaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the sacred secrets and ceremonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery. While there she managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomless depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface; then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gazer recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac. By the mail two days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his home, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in shape; a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth.

The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the asphaltum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the best known material for absorption of the aura of the human body, and this is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, airy chamber when alone, and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post.

The Birds Save Us.

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the bugs and slugs would simply eat up orchards and crops.

SEVEN FORTS DESTROYED.

General Snyder Inflicts a Defeat Upon the Insurgents, Capturing a Number of Cannon.

Washington, Sept, 26.—A despatch has been received from Manila by the War Department stating that General Snyder attacked the position of the insurgents five miles west of Cebu and destroyed seven forts and quite a number of smooth bore canon. The insurgents were utterly routed, and Snyder returned with his force to Cebu. The Tennessee regiment was already aboard transport to come home, but disembarked to take part in the engagement.

The Prisoners.

Manila, Sept. 26.—Two Englishmen who have been held by the insurgents since June have arrived at Angeles. They report that the Filipino congress has resolved that fourteen American prisoners shall be surrendered on Wednesday or Thursday. They have however, no information as to the whereabouts of Captain Charles M Rockefeller, of the Nineteenth Infantry, who disappeared in April last, and of whom no trace has been discovered. They assert that three Americans who were captured by the rebels are acting as officers in the insurgent army.

WOMEN OF NOTE.

Mrs. James M. Barrie, wife of the author of "The Little Minister," is said to be a very pretty woman.

Mme. Navarro's (Mary Anderson's) sister is Mother Dominica, a nun in the Convent of the Assumption in London.

Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer disposes of some $75,000 each year on her whims and never asks the price of an article that strikes her fancy, but orders it sent home.

Erie, Kan., has two newspapers edited by women. Mrs. Belle Harbaugh edits The Republican-Record and Miss Elizabeth Frazier has charge of the Erie Sentinel.

Helen Gould's income is the largest of any unmarried woman in the country. She does not spend much on herself. On churches and charities she spends $100,000 a year.

Mme. Loubet greatly resembles her friend, Mme. Carnot, in her charitable tendencies. She disposes of large sums among the poor, and is a regular visitor at the hospitals.

Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, formerly Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, is said to be the most extravagant woman in society. She spends quite $100,000 each year on trifles and knickknacks.

Mrs. S. V. Harkness of New York city, formerly of Cleveland, has offered to build a chapel at the College For Women of the Western Reserve university in Cleveland. She had previously founded a biblical professorship in that college.

The young Duchess of Marlborough and several other ladies of much wealth and rank are going in for falconry. It is an expensive form of sport, an ordinary hawk costing as much as $500 and requiring quite an outlay for maintenance and training.

Mrs. William Rockefeller's hobby is for carnations, one of the greenhouses at her country place at Scarborough-on-the-Hudson being devoted exclusively to their culture. She is said to spend thousands of dollars every year for the plants she imports for her own pleasure.

At a public dress rehearsal of a new play in Paris Mme. Casimir-Perier, wife of the former president of the French republic, was requested to remove her hat, but declined to do so. When she learned that the rule would be enforced in her case as in all others, she left the theater in disgust.

Lady Randolph Churchill is thus described by T. P. O'Connor in his weekly: She is still a very pretty woman. Her raven black hair does not show a single thread of gray; her figure is slight and svelte, and the deep, dark blue eyes have all their vivacity undimmed by their years of tears. She is certainly one of the most widely accomplished women of her time

HELD THEIR SHIP.

Crew of a French Vessel Mutiny on High Sea

Brest Sept. 26.—Captain Valles, of the French transport Eure, confirms the news given in the mail accounts from Noumea, New Caledonia, of the mutiny on board the French four-masted sailing vessel Emilie Siegfried, of Havre, which arrived at Noumea on July 13.

It appears that shortly after sailing from Havre the crew mutinied against the captain, who, aided only by the second mate, held the ship against them for ninety days until it arrived at Noumea. During the last 14 days he and the mate had to take the helm themselves, mutineers in hand.

On arriving at Noumea the first mate, Pordelanne, and eight sailors were arrested by direction of Captain Valles. A judicial inquiry made by Ensign Vial, of the Eure, clearly established that a plot, instigated by the first mate was in train to do away with the captain and sink the Emilie Siegfried.

Before leaving Noumea Capt. Valles handed over the dossier of the affair to the civil authorities, and M. Garnier, examining magistrate, who continued the enquiry, had four more of the crew arrested.

The case bears some analogy to the mutiny of the Faoderis Area, in which the crew assassinated the captain and afterwards the cabin boy, who they feared might bear witness against them.

Some of the charges alleged against the mutineers are sufficiently revolting. The cook is said to have tried to poison the captain by putting arsenic in his coffee and tea. The pumps were rendered useless, ropes were cut and holes made in her watertight compartments. Further it is said that the crew received £1 000 to bring about the destruction of the ship.

The mutineers will be sent for trial to the maritime tribunal at the port of Brest.

COAL GAS ECLIPSED.

A Village Brilliantly Lighted by Electroid Gas.

London, Sept. 26.—The first place in the United Kingdom to be illuminated with the bright white light of electroid gas is Hunmanby, a Yorkshire village near Scarborough. This new illuminant is composed of acetylene with the admixture of inert matter and a proportion of oxygen. Its manufacture is of the simplest nature, as could be gathered from the explanation given to the committee that assembled at the village on the occasion of the opening of the new gas works. The gas can be delivered through any ordinary gas main at the ordinary pressure, measured by means of gas meters, and charged for in the same way as in the custom where ordinary coal gas is used. The light is perfectly white, and is equal to 250 candle power, as against the average 17 candle power of coal gas.

POWDERED GLASS AGAIN.

Repetition in India of a Historical Crime.

Bombay, Sept. 26.—An attempt is reported to have been made to kill Colonel Wray, the political agent at Kolhapore. The attempt is said to have been made while the colonel was entertaining a party of visitors, and the means employed was powdered glass, which was placed in the dinner milk. The police are investigating the matter.

Powdered glass is a favorite way of compassing the death of an enemy in the East. If crushed to the finest powder the glass is swallowed unnoticed, and acts as a deadly irritant on the intestines. The Geekwar, or reigning Prince of Baroda, endeavored in 1874 to kill his political resident, Colonel Phayre, by administering powdered glass in sherbet. The Geekwar was deposed.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. They Keep Moving.

The religion of a Bedouin tribe seems to be to "move onward." Having once begun the nomadic life, it becomes almost necessary for them to keep it up. In the first place, they don't want to settle down, and they wouldn't have any place to stop if they wanted to. Sometimes it becomes expedient that they make great haste in these long journeys. Wandering around over the plains are other tribes whose only occupation is "moving on." There is frequently enmity between two of these Arabian families, and should one pursue the other it behooves the pursued to hasten onward with all the speed their animals are capable of. Or, it may be that the springs of water are so widely separated that hard travel is necessary to make the distance from one to the other in a day.

When either of these contingencies arises, they cook and eat while on the march. They don't eat much. Two or three dinners such as American boys and girls are used to every day and something extra for Sundays and company are supposed not to agree with Bedouin children's stomachs. When on the road, bread is their chief food. This is baked while riding. One woman will mix the coarse flour which is carried in a sack on the back of her camel, another will roll and shape the dough, which is brought to her in small quantities, and a third will make a fire in an earthen vessel and attend to the baking. Women or boys on foot run along from one cook to the other and carry the material, and when the feast is ready they distribute it among the various members of the tribe.

MANDY'S QUICK WIT

UNCLE JOHN'S MODEL WIFE WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

An Exciting Race That Was Grandly Won When It Seemed Surely Lost Just Because This Clever Woman "Seen Her Duty, and She Done It."

"My wife," remarked Uncle John Algus with an air of pride and proprietorship, somewhat more prevalent among young husbands in their honeymoons than among old ones who have been married for 50 years or more, as Uncle John was—"my wife is one uv them women the Lord only makes a few uv, and them mighty scatterin. She's jist as good natured and happy now as she wus when I courted her, but Mandy ain't all mush and spoon victuals, and there's times when she has to be handled with keer or somethin will be sp'iled. She's got temper a-plenty, and she ain't afeered uv the old serpent himself. I mind one thing she done once that I'll never fergit ef I live to be older than the parson's wife's bonnet.

"In them days Mandy weighed a hunderd and eighty-seven pounds in her stockin feet, and I wus only a scant hunderd and forty. We had on the farm all the time seven or eight head uv fine hosses, and one winter we had a pair uv 4-year olds that we prided ourselves perticular on, for they had been takin premiums at the fair every year since they was yearlin's. They had speed, too, and we thought they couldn't be beat by anything in that neck uv woods, but a neighbor uv ours named Hall—everybody knowed Jim Hall, jist like they knowed me—had a pair he had bought in the next county that he offered to bet a cow and calf could beat ours hands down. He used to let 'em out past our place to kind uv tantalize us, and I tell you they wusn't a funeral percession by a long ways, but Mandy used to laugh and say we'd show him something when the goin got good.

"You see, it was along in November then, and the roads hadn't froze yet. The first snow come in December with a mighty cold spell followin and hangin on, and in about a week or ten days we had fine sleighin, and one afternoon Mandy said she guessed we ought to hitch up the bays and go out for some air and exercise. That was enough for me, and I had the team to the cutter and out at the gate waitin for the lady in less than no time.

"The team wus feelin as frisky as kittens, and the way they slung the snow and spun over the road would stir the blood in a wooden man. When we got to the turnpike, where the folks usually let their teams out, I guess there wus a dozen or more movin up and down at a clippin gait, and we sailed right in among 'em, and in about seven minutes we passed everything on the road.

"Jim Hall wusn't out with his team, and I could see that Mandy wus gittin anxious, though she wusn't sayin much. The road leadin to Jim's place struck the pike about 300 yards from the upper turn, and there wus no sign uv him as we passed, and we didn't see him as we come back, but just after we got by his road we heard a clatter up the pike, and, by crackey, there wus Jim a-comin lickety spit. I guess he'd been to the postoffice, and the way he wus comin after us wus like a mink after chickens. Mandy took one look over her shoulder and told me to let 'em go for all they wus wuth. I didn't need to be coaxed, and by the time she had said the words we wus fairly flyin over the smooth snow track, and Jim wus comin right behind us too. For the first few rods we gained on him, then he begun to creep up on us in spite uv all we could do. Everybody on the road knowed how me and Jim set store by our teams, and they pulled out to one side and give us all the room there wus.

"I shook up my beauties as I felt him drawin up on me, but shakin wusn't enough, and I touched 'em once or twice with the whip, but Jim jist rared back on his strings, lookin like destruction smilin at desolation, and kept a-comin. When his horses' heads passed our dashboard and I could see the snort in their noses, I got kind uv sick and thought I'd have to let go, but Mandy nerved me up, and I hung on and leaned away forrard as if that would help some. By this time Jim's horses had their heads even with mine, and I held him there for a minute or such a matter, but jist as I begun to have a hope that it might be a neck and neck at the finish Mandy reached for the line next to her, and, with a sudden jerk, she pulled the team off to one side uv the road, where the snow wus in a high drift, and Jim went ahead with a yell that made my ears stand out like windmill flappers.

"I wus that dazed for a minute at Mandy that I couldn't do a lick, and, deacon though I wus, I'm afeerd I'd a-used language that wouldn't have sounded exactly right in Sunday school, but before I had a chance to make a move Mandy made a flyin leap over the side uv the sleigh and lit in the deep snow. Then I wus dazeder than ever and had some kind uv an idee that we'd been struck by an earthquake or something and Mandy wus killed, and I must go back after her and dig her out. But the team had their senses with them, and when they felt they had nigh two hunderd pounds less load to haul than before Mandy jumped they didn't stop to see what had happened, but let theselves out on a spurt that wus chuck full uv chain lightnin, and out uv the snowdrift I could hear Mandy scream 'Go it, John; you're all right now.'

"And so I wus, and so wus Mandy, for before Jim knowed that anything had happened I wus up with him, alongside, neck and neck, nose and nose, ahead and past, and when I pulled up at the toll gate he wus ten lengths behind and too much surprised to even cuss.

"Mandy wus in the middle uv the road brushin the snow out uv her clothes and waitin for me as I come back, and when I said I'd give her a new silk dress fur that she said it wus only what any wife ought to do for her husband, but she couldn't prove it by showin me where any other wife had ever done it, and I made her take the dress in spite uv herself. That's the kind uf a heroine my wife is," and Uncle John went down into his inside pocket and fished out a quaint, old fashioned daguerreotype in a brand new gilt frame.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Picture, Not Paint.

An art patron one day came into Turner's studio when the artist was already famous. He looked at a picture and asked what was the price. The artist named the sum he had set upon it.

"What," exclaimed the buyer, "all those golden sovereigns for so much paint!"

"Oh," replied Turner, "it's paint you are buying? I thought it was pictures. Here," producing a half used tube of color, "I'll let you have that cheap. Make your own terms," and, turning his back on the astonished patron, he went on painting.

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired and often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is—vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sickness to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the altering step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fuel of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his cheques.

OUTWITTING AN ELEPHANT.

A Hunter Saved by His Knowledge of the Beast's Habits.

Only those familiar with the "manners and customs" of the elephant have any idea what a nimble creature it really is. Massive and slow footed as it looks, it is capable, when roused, of feats that would be difficult for much fleeter animals. Especially is this the case with African elephants, which, though taller, are generally lighter than their Asiatic brethren. Moreover, accustomed for ages to lead a wild life and often depending on their alertness and speed of foot for their very existence, they have acquired a skill in gymnastics which has occasionally taken even old elephant hunters by surprise.

In illustration of this fact we are reminded of a story told by one of the sportsmen in Africa. He was "out after elephants" and had just fired at and wounded a magnificent specimen. Unfortunately for him, he had only succeeded in slightly wounding it, when, infuriated by the attack, it turned and charged him. It was a terrifying sight. With its enormous ears spread out like sails and emitting shrill notes of rage, it came thundering over the ground like a runaway locomotive. The hunter fired another shot, but missed. His nerve was shaken, and, throwing down his "express" rifle, he sought safety in flight. Near at hand was a steep hill, and to this he directed his steps, for, being but slightly acquainted with the climbing powers of the elephant, he thought his pursuer might be baffled by the steepness of the ascent.

It was a terrible disappointment to find that the elephant could climb a hill just as quickly as the hunter, nimble runner as he was. The fugitive, indeed, would have soon been overtaken if he had not thought of a really ingenious ruse. He knew that elephants never run, or even walk, down a steep incline, but always crouch down, gather their feet together, lean well back and slide down. Just as the ferocious animal had got within a few yards of him, therefore, the wily hunter suddenly doubled and ran down the hill again.

Quick as a flash the elephant turned, gathered himself together and, trumpeting with baffled rage, slid down after his victim. The hunter had just time to spring out of the way as the great beast came "tobogganing" after him, smashing trees and shrubs and carrying everything before it like an avalanche. Then once more the hunter dashed to the top of the hill, while the elephant, unable to stop itself, went careering down to the very foot, where, apparently feeling very sore and disappointed, it rose and walked wearily back to its native woods.—Chums.

Odd Disasters.

In an English coal mine a few years ago a callous youth viciously pricked a pony with his penknife. The wounded animal kicked out furiously, overturning and breaking several safety lamps. The naked flames fed the foul gases in the air and created an appalling explosion, which wrought the death of over a hundred miners.

Sun rays, shining through a decanter of water on to the cartridge of a loaded rifle, slew a sleeping man on a lounge near by. The innocent owner of the rifle was arraigned for the supposed crime and was sentenced to death, when the testimony of a shrewd detective solved the mystery and secured his reprieve.

A German family, seven in number, lost their lives by a somewhat unique accident. They slept in one large apartment, lighted by gas. Before retiring the father hung his overcoat above the gas burner. During the night this garment slipped and fell on the tap, turning the gas full on and so suffocating the slumbering inmates.

Misunderstood.

A dentist on the South Side advertises on a large scale that he pulls teeth without pain by the "animal magnetism system."

Yesterday an Irishman came into the dentist's office suffering with a toothache.

"Faith, and I must have me tooth pulled, but I'd like to see the animals first."
—Chicago Democrat.

A CLEVER RUSE.

The Auctioneer Was Quick Witted and Finally Made a Sale.

An auctioneer on East Washington street—one of those redoubtable individuals commonly termed "slick"—was the cause of a farcical scene recently that would have done credit to a burlesque show. He had been talking industriously for a long time to a crowd of interested but enthusiastic listeners.

The affable auctioneer conscientiously went through his repertory from beginning to end, but somehow the crowd did not "warm up" to him—to quote his own language. Finally, with a dark look that bordered on despair, he grabbed up a well known pasteboard hatbox containing about 50 spools of silk thread of different colors. With the grace of a conjurer he extracted five of the spools, and, arraying them in a tempting semicircle on the counter, announced that they were "to go at any price."

But the audience, while admitting with nods of approval that they were good spools of thread, displayed no marked inclination to become excited over them. Not a bid was offered.

"I'll sell 'em for 10 cents," suggested the auctioneer timidly. It was plain from the tone of his voice that he was losing faith in himself and in all the world. There were no takers. The man of the red flag added three more spools to the semicircle. "All for 10 cents," he declared. But thread stock was far below par. The auctioneer caught up all the spools from the counter and flung them into the box with an impressive gesture. The light of inspiration flashed from his eyes.

"The whole blamed box for 10 cents!" he cried.

"I'll take it," was the prompt response, and a little man in a washed out overcoat and wearer of red chin whiskers stepped out from the crowd with a dirty 10 cent piece in his upraised hand. The auctioneer clutched the money feverishly, and, turning the box upside down so that all the spools dropped into a basket on the counter, he handed the worthless piece of ancient pasteboard to the anxious customer. A roar of hilarious laughter rose from the crowd that was heard throughout that neighborhood.

"I don't want your blamed old box!" wailed the unfortunate purchaser.

"You said you'd take it," replied the auctioneer. "I'll leave it to the crowd—didn't he?"

"Yes!" came in a strong chorus from the delighted audience.

"I bought the spools!"

"No, you didn't! You bought the box! I'll leave it to the crowd—didn't he?"

"Yes!" came the answer again, stronger than ever. The red whiskered man stalked indignantly from the place with the box under his arm.

"What you going to do with it?" yelled the crowd.

"That's what!" cried the speculator as he held the pasteboard box in both hands, football fashion, and kicked it vigorously into the middle of Washington street.

They Keep one Eye Shut.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mine, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, seeing his surprise, explained the matter. He said the candles belonging to the barateros (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but where, nevertheless, the barateros see well enough not to run their heads against the rocks, but, on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures.

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpse of light they drop the eyelid of one eye and keep this down while they are discharging their ore and until they have redescended the shaft.

When they are again in the dark, they open the eye kept hitherto in reserve and at once see everything distinctly, while the other eye, previously open and somewhat blinded by the daylight, perceives nothing at all.

THE ENTREE AN ECONOMY.

It Dulls the Eater's Appetite For the Dinner Proper.

In the French and Italian cuisine, where economy is studied far more scientifically and thoroughly than in the English or American kitchen, the entree is not considered an extravagance. On the contrary, it is looked upon rather as an attractive economy—like soup, which dulls the eater's appetite so that he partakes less heartily of the more costly meat courses that follow. On the continent the luncheon never begins, as with us, with the chief dish of substantials. There is an introduction in the shape of a soup, or a dish of eggs, or of rice, or of macaroni, or semolino prepared in appetizing mode. Upon this the luncher tries the first edge of his appetite, so to speak. The piece de resistance comes afterward.

In [illegible], at dinner, the soup is almost invariably followed by one or two entrees. In the more ambitious menus these may consist of fish or poultry, or even of meat, prepared in croquettes or rissoles, or vol-au-vent. If there are two entrees, the vegetable will come second. But when, as is the case at many tables, there is only one entree, this is nearly always a vegetable and is served directly after the soup.

It must be borne in mind that the old fashioned custom which prevailed so generally some years ago in America, and is still to be found in certain places, of serving a number of vegetables with the principal meat dish is not followed on the continent. In England it is not unusual to see half a dozen dishes of vegetables appear with the roast. There they have even less idea of variety than is common with us, for precisely the same vegetables are offered day after day until one grows weary of the very sight of them. This, of course, is not the case among those people who have made a study of dinner giving and have grafted French customs on the British stock.

On the continent, however, things are done in a different fashion. At a simple dinner, containing, let us say, five courses, the first will be soup, the second a vegetable entree, the third meat of some kind, with one, or at the most two, vegetables, and one of them rarely fails to be a salad. Then comes a sweet, and after it fruit or cheese. The vegetable that appears as an entree need not of necessity be costly or unusual. Perhaps it is only a cauliflower, served with a good white sauce, or spinach, not cooked as we see it here—the stems and leaves coarsely chopped—but minced to a powder and then put through a colander, so that it is deliciously smooth and soft before it is dressed with butter or cream and surrounded with three cornered bits of toast or friend bread, or the entree may be nothing more elegant than white turnips or young carrots cut into small pieces, stewed tender and served with a cream sauce, or celery divided into three inch lengths, fried brown and seasoned with a tomato gravy. The name of the combination is legion, but they all have one point in common—that they are comparatively inexpensive.—Harper's Bazar.

Poison Bottle Ornaments.

At the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in New York city, there is a great collection of ancient jewelry, much of it in gold richly adorned with precious stones. Jewelers in the metropolis frequently visit the museum for the purpose of obtaining suggestions. This collection at the Metropolitan museum is in fact the finest assemblage of antique objects of personal ornaments in existence. Some of them date as far back as 900 B. C. Those of them which are made of silver have been practically destroyed by oxidation, but the gold ones being cleaned are as bright and new looking as they were 2,500 or 3,000 years ago. The jewelry from Cyprus is the work of ancient Phoenicians and Greeks.

One thing very noticeable is the frequency of tiny gold bottles attached to objects of jewelry derived from those ancient times. All evidence points to the conclusion that they were employed to hold poison, for in those days life was by no means secure, and at any time an emergency might arise where a man or woman would be glad to end existence promptly to escape lifelong imprisonment or indescribable torture by the horrible means used by the ancients.

A FAITHFUL DOG.

Its Owner Realized Its Worth, as Well He Might.

"Well, I wouldn't have believed it," exclaimed Jones in astonishment as he dropped in to see Smith the other evening and was met in the hall by a St. Bernard dog.

"Wouldn't have believed what?" asked Smith.

"Why, that you'd have a dog in your house," continued Jones. "It belongs to one of your neighbors, I suppose?"

"No, sir; that's my dog," replied Smith proudly.

"You don't really mean it, old man! Why, I've known you now for five years, and you've always had a marked aversion for dogs."

"Yes, I did have until lately, but I wouldn't be without one now. This brute is a noble, faithful fellow, and I wouldn't take $100 spot cash for"—

But at this juncture he was interrupted by his wife calling down over the banister:

"Henry Smith, who was it that scattered these cigar ashes all over my dresser?"

"It must have been the dog, my dear," was his reply.

"And who was it that dropped these apple peelings on the floor?" she demanded.

"The dog, my dear," answered Smith.

"And there's a bottle of mucilage spilled on the hall carpet up here too. Is that some of your work, Henry?"

"No, my dear; the dog's to blame for that."

"And, goodness gracious," she continued angrily, "if some one hasn't been whittling up here again! How many times have I told you not to do that in the house?"

"But I had nothing to do with it, my dear. The dog's been up there probably chewing a stick."

"Well, it's a burning shame the way this house is mussed up. Your collars and ties are scattered all over the rooms."

"Are they, my dear? That dog's been up there again then. Yes," continued Smith as he drew his friend into the parlor, "I wouldn't take a big pot of money for that dog. Why, the noble fellow saves me about 20 jawings a week."

"So I see," chuckled Jones, "and you bet I'll have one before noon tomorrow."

Americans Fined.

Four Americans who were camping out on the shore of Kooshemogabog lake in Peterborough county, and shooting duck and partridge without a license from the Crown Lands Department, were found and fined $20 each on Tuesday of last week, by Game Warden Smith, of Belleville. He also confiscated their guns. The Americans hailed from Niagara Falls, N Y, but their names were not included in Mr. Smith's report to Chief Game Warden Tinsley. One of the guns confiscated was a double barrelled shot gun, a beautiful new weapon, worth probably $100. The men had only arrived in the province on Sunday. Being foreigners a license would have cost them $25 each.

WEDDING BELLS.

Marriage of Miss Ethel Campbell Moore and Mr. W. L. Allen.

A very quite wedding took place yesterday at the residence of Mr W H Moore, when his second daughter, Miss Ethel C was united in marriage to Mr Wm L Allen, formerly of town, who is now residing in Cobourg.

On account of the death of relatives of the bride, the ceremony was performed very quietly at the family residence, the only guests being Mr Allen's parents, Mr and Mrs W S Allen, Bowmanville and his sisters, Mrs Cruickshank, of St. John, N B, and Mrs Ball of Toronto. The bride was assisted by Miss Carolyn Allen, Bowmanville, sister of the groom, and the groomsman was Mr H Ritchie of town.

The ceremony was performed by Rev Dr Torrance, of St Paul's church and after an inviting wedding breakfast had been servrd, Mr and Mrs Allen left for New York, Boston and other American cities. The Times joins in extending hearty congratulations.

A Natural Brain Builder.

In hot weather a meat breakfast is not always desirable, one looks rather to some more cooling food, such as fruit and cereals.

One of the great advantages of Grape-Nuts lies in the fact that it is ready cooked and can be served cold at once.

Treated with cream it is delicious as a confection, and at the same time furnishes the user with the needed food elements of the most perfect character and combined in a scientific manner.

One of the food particles in Grape-Nuts is true Natural Phosphate of Potash as furnished in certain parts of the field grains and this is the element used by nature to change albumen into the soft gray substance with which the brain and nerve centres are filled and which must be replaced daily and is used up by the activities of the body.

Steady users of Grape-Nuts are strong, hearty and healthy people. Wise selection of food is a duty everyone owes self and those dependent upon us. The Postum Co at Battle Creek make Grape-Nuts, and all first-class grocers sell.

LIVELY LAKEFIELD.

Latest Budget of News From Our Pretty Northern Village.

The annual Harvest Thanksgiving Festival of St. John's Church was held this week. The services in the church on Sunday were of a special character, the preacher, both at the morning and evening services, being the Rev Professor Clark of Trinity College. The chancel, pulpit, &c. were beautifully decorated with tasteful arrangements of grain, fruit, flowers and autumn leaves. On Monday in accordance with the annual custom, tea was served in the Fire Hall by the ladies of the congregation to all comers at a merely nominal charge, and a programme of music was rendered in the Council Chamber. The chief attraction of the evening was listened to with great pleasure and interest by a crowded audience. At the conclusion of the lecture a cordial vote of thanks was tendered to the lecturer and short addresses were given by Revs. G. Warren, H. Symonds (Ashburnham), A C Reeves, W. McCamus, and A. W. Mackenzies. The proceedings closed with God save the Queen. The proceeds of the special offertory on Sunday, together with the amount realized at the Hall, will be devoted to the Reservation Fund.

THE NAVIGATION SEASON.

The steamers had a very successful season. The new steamer Empress entered into the business too late to make much difference to the other boat owners. The Majestic, as usual, had the cream of the trade.

NOTES.

The Times is regarded in Lakefield as the people's paper.

The hotels have had a good season, the Craig house having been fairly well filled all summer.

There is some prospect of the Lakefield branch of the Lime Juice Club being re-organized. In such an event the Times will give full reports of the meetings of the great club.

SEEING THE SIGHTS.

THE EDITOR OF THE RURALVILLE ROOSTER AT THE FAIR.

He Could Not Be Buncoed and Took in Peterborough's Great Central Fair—Has An Exciting Time of It.

With apologies to the Ottawa Citizen.

As it has been the custom of the management of the Ruralville Rooster to visit the smaller fairs after the Ruralville exposition has been held we decided to pay a visit this year to the fair at Scott's Plains, or Peterborough as it is now called. The object of these visits is not merely pleasure but, since information is often gathered from strange sources, we thought that it might be possible to learn something even from Peterborough. We accordingly hitched up the bay mare, drove to the station and took the train. On arriving we found that although the village has increased to a great extent it is still behind the times. We called first at the office of our esteemed contemporary, the Times, where we were provided with a letter of introduction to Secretary Green of the fair, who gave us admission to the grounds. Here the sight was bewildering and we do not believe that even on Sundays that Ruralville ever had as many people in its midst as were in those grounds. We were not daunted however, but, grasping our old cotton umbrella and taking a good tight hold on our carpet bag we started in to see the sights. Speaking of our umbrella and carpet bag, we might say right here that we came near losing them when we first came to the village. A young man in Morgan's Hotel where we stopped wanted us to leave them in his charge. He was a real good-looking young fellow and wore nice clothes and we were just about to trust him when, remembering the dark and wicked ways of they who dwell in cities, we declined. We gave him some good advice, however, and told him it was a pity that he did not turn his hand to some kind of honest labor instead of trying to lure the luggage from the unsophisticated. From his crestfallen appearance we judge that our words touched a tender chord and that he has since turned from his wicked ways.

Among the Pumpkins.

But this has nothing to do with the fair so we will resume. We went into the Main building and, although we believe at all times in upholding the honor of Ruralville, we must say that there is not a subscriber on our list who ever brought us such large squashes and pumpkins as those we saw in there. We tried to learn the name of the man who raised them in order to get him as a subscriber, but were told that the people of Peterborough either pay cash for their paper or else don't pay at all. From this we concluded that the man who told us was either joking or else must have some prevaricators in its midst.

We wandered around awhile and at last went into a place where the flowers were and we wish to say to our readers that we had never had believed that there could be so much beauty crowded together under the same roof. We gazed on the lovely blossoms and were inhaling their fragrance when a man came up to us and asked what our religion was. We told him we were Christian and then he asked us to come over to the gospel hall or meeting house to-night and hear Rev. Blowhard Shoutenholler preach. This preacher, he said, was a grand exhorter, and could talk about perdition until everybody shuddered and wept. We told him that we was not much on shuddering and weeping, while as for a sermon there was more eloquence in the least of the beautiful blossoms, whose color and fragrance taught us to love the beautiful and detest the vile than all the sulphurous side-shows that were ever yelled about. He said he only wished to benefit our soul, but we quickly told him that Ruralville had the best shoemaker in our midst, and besides he owed us for last year's subscription. We looked again on this glorious floral display and when we turned around he was gone.

We then meandered round to the dog show, and saw Bro. Tyrrel sitting in a corner of the tent nursing a little bull pup. We asked him how the Examiner was getting along, and he told us that editing a paper was not his fort just now. He was in the dog business up to the neck, and appeared to be unwilling to talk, so we left him.

When we came out a fellow spoke to us and asked us if we were one of the exhibits. We told him no, but if we would be interesting enough we would be glad to go on the program. He said he was sure we would take first prize, but unfortunately we were too late to enter as we afterwards found out. We have since been told that he was ridiculing us but, since our informant was a Sandusky man, we know he was unreliable and probably actuated by jealousy.

We had, about this time, another narrow escape from being buncoed and by a very pretty girl too. We were passing a booth when this girl asked us if we would have a cup of tea. We were feeling thirsty at the time and asked her how much tea was a cup. She told us she would give it to us for nothing. This at once aroused our suspicions. We recalled all the stories we had heard about being drugged and robbed by villians, fair and female, and having a large sum of money on our person, some $3.75, we decided to be very careful. We did not lose our presence of mind at this critical juncture but after she had given us the tea we watched our chance and poured it out on the ground. "We may come from the country," thought we, "but anyone who thinks they can drug us is badly mistaken." We reported the affair to the chief policeman of Peterborough, but he only laughed and said they were giving the tea away to advertise it. From this we concluded he was in league with the robbers and not to be trusted, since everbody knows what tea is without people having to give them some to show them what it was like.

We soon began to see that there was more to see than we could see, at least in one day. We began to feel lonesome, for true it is:

"We may roam near the pumpkin,
And also the squash,
But Ruralville's home for
The Rooster, be gosh!"

and we wandered off feeling that peculiar sensation of being alone in a crowd.

We strayed down near the rear of the grounds feeling decidedly blue, and wishing we might see some one we knew, even though he be only from Lindsay, when suddenly the bleat of a sheep fell on our ear. We had heard the brass band play all day and had listened to the bagpipes and the hand organs, but never since our coming to Peterborough, had we heard sweeter music than that sheep's "ba-a-ah." A few swift strides brought us to the scene and there we were, right among the stock. Gone was lonesomeness, gone was war care, we were once more amid familiar surroundings.

We need not dwell on the beauties of those animals, but will simply say that we stayed right there till it was time to go home. On our way out we saw the most wonderful woman that we ever gazed upon. She was ten feet high, and walked all around with a little satchel slung over her shoulder giving advertisements away. I was about to stop and ask her where she got her printing done, when a man close by called her "Billy Bowman." I turned and told the fellow that he should not make sport of a lady. He said the woman was a man. We offered to bet a bag of peanuts, the five cent kind of bags, that if she saw a mouse near her she would lift up her skirts and scream. The fellow took that bet at once. We told him to get us a mouse and we would soon prove it. He said we needed no mouse and to come with him. We went, but as soon as we saw her we saw how easily we had lost. One glance was sufficient and then we turned our heads away and blushed. She had no skirts on to speak of and therefore would not raise them for a dozen mice.

In the evening we saw the show again, and it was a sight long to be remembered. It would require all the space in the Rooster were we to record one-half of what we saw at the fair. During the evening we were introduced to President Fitzgerald and a number of the directors, and we got two of them to subscribe for the Rooster. Mr. Fitzgerald told us when we asked him to take the paper, that he couldn't read, which statement greatly surprised us. But when we found that Geo W. Bennett, Geo. Elliott and two other directors were likewise unable to read, I did not press them to subscribe, but came away wondering how a brilliant newspaper as the Times managed to exist in such a community.

Dan Godfrey Coming.

Lieut. Dan Godfrey, and his famous band will make a short tour of Ontario in October before sailing for home. During the past seven months the band has been making a tour of the United States, visiting all the important cities in that country where the veteran bandsman and his red-coated musicians were most enthusiastically received by the American public. The tour is under the management of Mr. Chas A. E. Harriss and has been the most successful band tour ever undertaken.

SIDES WITH THE BOERS

Orange Free State Declares a Brotherhood of Arms Between Them.

THEY WILL FIGHT TOGETHER

Another Coup by British Troops, This Time on Orange Free State Border.

Possibility That All the Dutch May Unite Against Great Britain—Boers Are Massing and Preparing to Make a Dash Through Part of Zululand.

London, Sept. 28.—The decision of the Volksraad of the Orange Free State to join with the Transvaal in the event of hostilities, although fully expected, is the leading news to-day and will, naturally, stiffen the Boer's independent attitude. The Raad's resolution has made the brotherhood-of-arms between the Transvaal and the Orange Free State, of which, hitherto, there was only a strong probality, an absolute certainty and the British will have to face the situation.

The Volksraad's resolution was as follows: "The Raad having read paragraph 2 of the President's speech and the official documents and correspondence submitted therewith,

"Having regard for the strained state of affairs throughout the whole of South Africa, which has arisen in consequence of the difference between the Imperial Government and the Government of the Transvaal, which threatens to lead to hostilities, the calamitous consequence of which to the white inhabitants will be immeasurable

"Being connected with the Transvaal by the closest ties of blood and confederacy.

"And, standing in the most friendly relationship with the Imperial Government and, fearing that should war break out, a hatred between the European races will be born which will arrest and retard the peaceful development of all the States and colonies of Africa and develop a distrust of the future;

"Feeling that the solemn duty rests upon it of doing everything possible to avoid the shedding of blood;

"Considering that the Transvaal Government, during its negotiations with the Imperial Government, which have extended over several months, have made every endeavor to arrive at a peaceful solution of the differences raised by the aliens of the Transvaal and taken up by the Imperial Government as its own cause, which endeavors have, unfortunately, only had this result, that British troops were concentrated on the border of the Transvaal and are still being strengthened.

"Resolved, that we instruct the Government to still use every means to maintain and ensure peace and, in a peaceful manner, contribute towards the solution of the existing difficulties, providing it be done without violating the honor and independence of the Free State and the Transvaal and wishes the Ministry to make known its opinion that there exists no cause for war and that war against the Transvaal, as now undertaken or occasioned by the Imperial Government, will, morally be a war against the whole white population of Africa and in its consequences, criminal, for, come what may, the Free State will honestly and faithfully fulfil its obligations towards the Transvaal by virtue of the political alliance between the two republics."

Intense excitement continues to prevail at Pretoria, where, apparently, it is considered that there is no escape from war. The commission appointed to consider the matter reported to-day as to what officials are necessary to carry on the Government in the event of war and fixing their salaries.

The field cornet at Pretoria is again serving out rifles, commandeering is actively proceeding, and all preparations are being made to take the field. An Englishman named Robertson has been arrested at Johannesburg charged with high treason. He is alleged to have enlisted troops for the Imperial light horse.

ANOTHER CRIMEAN WAR.

London, Sept. 28.—The decision of the Orange Raad to side with the Transvaal in the event of war opens up the question of a race war between Dutch and English in South Africa. Suppose a conflict between Great Britain and the Transvaal should develop into a race war between the British and Dutch of South Africa, as some think probable and many not at all improbable, what fighting force can each side marshal from the inhabitants there:

It is vitally important to bear in mind that the Dutch Afrikanders greatly outnumber the British, that the Boers of the Transvaal, Orange Free State and Cape Colony are very closely allied by bonds of blood and sympathy, and that they are exceptionally good marksmen. The Dutch population of the Transvaal is between 80,000 and 85,000. Of these there about 22,000 Boer burghers ready and capable of taking the field at an hour's notice. The total British population, chiefly concentrated at Johannesburg, does not exceed 80,000, including men, women and children. From this number not more than 3,000 effective soldiers could be drawn. In case of a general racial war the able-bodied fighting men from which the forces on either side might be recruited are thus estimated:

	British.	Dutch
Cape Colony..........	17,000	50,000
Orange Free State..	1 000	14,000
Transvaal..........	3,000	22 000
Natal............	6,000	5,500
British Bechuanaland	500	500
Rhodesia	2,000	300
Imperial troops now in South Africa....	10,000	......
Totals............	39,500	92,300

It is apparent from these figures that the British would be in an extremely awkward position in the possible event of the Dutch having been wrought up to such a pitch of national feeling as to join hands all round and take up arms. The British could hold the towns and in some localities take the open field, but as a general rule the Dutch would be masters of the inland country.

No one doubts the power of Great Britain to crush the Boers and conquer South Africa. But it will require, in addition to the force now there, an army corps of at least 50,000 men, suitably equipped and the most skilled and tried generals, and then "it will be a struggle such as we have not undergone since the Indian mutiny or the Crimean War."

BOERS ARE MASSING.

London, Sept. 28.—Despatches say that the burgers are getting uneasy at the concentration of British troops between Ladysmith and Laing's Nek, especially at Glencoe and Dundee. The nominal reason for the concentration is the protection of the Dundee coal fields but the burghers shrewdly suspect that the real reason is the formation of a force which will advance across the Transvaal frontier on Vryheid as soon as war is declared. The Boers do not intend to be caught napping, and are now massing around Vryheid, not, however, merely as a protective measure, but to be prepared unless the British reinforcements across the border cease to make a dash in force through a portion of Zululand, crossing the Buffalo River at a point below Rorkes' Drift, and then, seizing the railroad, cut off the British garrisons at Dundee and Ladysmith from the south, which would not only interrupt the British l[illegible] of communication, but would seriously interfere with a forward movement. In order to watch this this portion of the railroad exposed to a Boer incursion, a British post will be established at Rorkes Drift.

A despatch from Mafeking in British Bechuanaland, just across the Transvaal border, says a stream of destitute people is arriving there from Johannesburg.

MILITARY COUP.

A British infantry detachment, with some engineers has arrived at De Aar, southwest of the Orange Free State, and an important railroad junction. Extensive fortifications will be thrown up there, and the town will be made the base of operations, from that side, against the Orange Free State or the Transvaal. More troops will shortly arrive at De Aar.

A BURNING SHAME

The Way the Town's Money is Being Wasted Over the Granolithic Contracts

QUANTITY AND QUALITY OF CEMENT REDUCED

Ex-Chairman Langford and Engineer Hay Placed in a Nasty Position.—A Big Law Suit in View.

Yesterday a test was made as to the quantity of cement required, under the paving specifications, to fill a box of the mixture, when it was demonstrated that NINE bags of cement was required to make the mixture up to the standard called for in the specifications. Five and one-half bags is all that have been used. This proportion is claimed to be insufficient, and the walks will not wear. The ratepayers who are asked to pay for sidewalks built in this way naturally will refuse to do so, and The Times believes they will be justified taking such a stand.

On contract No. 2, granolithic pavements, Inspector Ranney states that the work was not being done according to contract, and says he so informed ex-Chairman Langford and Town Engineer Hay, neither of whom took any action to protect the town from loss.

It is the duty of the Council to at once suspend the chairman and Street Inspector pending an investigation.

Here are the figures, which speak for themselves:

HERE ARE THE FIGURES

To the difference between using Star at $2.55 and Ensign Cement at $2.25, 30c a barrel ..	$195 00
The difference (between Stone at $6 per cubic yard and Sand at 50c, $5.50 on 95 cubic yards..............................	533 50
280 barrels Cement at $2.55 less used on contract than should have been....	$714 00
Total gain on contract..........	$1442 50

In changing the specifications, and by reducing the quantity and quality of cement the cost of work has been reduced $1442.50 Who should receive the benefit —the corporation or the contractor?

Through an error on the part of our night make-up, a portion of the report of the council meeting held on Wednesday night was left out of yesterday's issue. As it is matter of the gravest importance, we decided to give it to our readers.

After the report of the Board of Works had been read Ald. Langford moved the adoption of the report after eliminating Clause 5.

At this juncture, Ald. McWilliams wanted to know why certain business was not transacted at last Monday's meeting of the Board of Works. Perhaps they were ashamed to do so. The meeting had been called when it was well known he was out of town, and a resolution passed in his absence, advising Mr. Sheehy to publish a letter in refutation of the charges, he, the speaker, had made against him. This was a cowardly act of the Board in his absence. Now he and Mr. Sheehy had been warm friends and he made no attacks against him personally, but the councillors had been placed in trust of town property and he for one was going to do his duty without fear or favor. He did not think Mr. Sheehy had transacted his business in No. 2 contract as he should have done. You will find in Mr. Ranney's report, which I hold here, that he has been using 5 bags of cement instead of 7 1-2; He has also used Ensign in place of Star cement. Now the difference between these two cements is 30c a bag. Star costing $2.55 per bag as against $2.25 for Ensign, making a saving on contract of $195. The difference between using stone at $6 per cubic yard and sand at 50c is $5.50 on 95 cubic yards, giving a saving of $532.50; then there are 280 barrels less of cement at $2.55 in work than contract called for, making a further saving of $714. Thus by changing the specification and by a reduction of the quantity of cement the cost of the work has been reduced $1,442.50. Who should receive the benefit, the contractor, or the corporation. He had also heard it reported that when the inspector complained of Ensign instead of Star cement being used in Evans and Langford contract, Mr. Hay had replied that it had to be sanctioned as in other contracts for fear of exposure.

Reverting to the action of Board of Works in Ald. McWilliams' absence, the Mayor explained that in view of the Times having secured a report of the previous committee meeting, he had advised Mr. Sheehy to publish a denial to Ald. McWilliams charges.

Ald. McWilliams here demanded that Mr. Ranney's letter be read, and opined that if Mr. Hay had not reported the inspector's complaints, he had been lax in his duty.

Here some little speculation was indulged in as to how the Times secured information of the proceedings of the Star chamber session.

Inspector Ranney's report was then read as follows:

MR. RANNEY'S LETTER.

Dear Mr. Hay,—In compliance with circular given to the inspectors by the Council, I beg to report to you that the deviation from the specification in Mr Sheehy's contract is as follows:—

The concrete box, the same that was used last year, contains one cubic yard (27 ft). The specification requires one-sixth of the mixture to be of cement. When I commenced the cement was in barrels and one barrel was used to one box of gravel (the same as last year). I measured a barrel as well as I could with the means I had at hand and it was 26 inches deep and averaged 17 in diameter, which is 3,473 c f after using a few bbls, 4 bags sand to equal a barrel of Ensign cement to the yard of gravel for the concrete. For the finishing coat of granite and cement I made a box 3 in. x 3 x 12-9 cubic feet and filled it with cement and concrete, and to avoid measuring the concrete each time counted the bags, two of contractor's men assisting. When I counted the bags it was 5 1-2 that filled it. Two bags were purloined in some way by the men and a half bag was added to fill it. Some time after I filled the box again and it took seven bags to fill the box. I notified the chairman and Mr Hay to the effect of the discovery and was told to make no change.

With 5 1-2 bags of cement to two boxes of granite, of course the mixture would not trowel and one box of sand had to be added and the proportion has been carried out on all the work done this year.

As to whether the town or the contractor is to have the benefit of the [illegible] is for the council to deal with.

The box—9 c f ÷ 7 bags—1.285 c f for each bag.

In square foot of finishing coat of walk 12 in. × 12 × 12 × 3½ in. = 216 in. c. f.—one third to be of cement = 72 in. = .024 c. f. Mr. Sheehy's contract was 41,128 square feet × .024 = 9,860 c. f. Measured bbl. of cement = 3.50 c. f. 9,860 ÷ 3.50 = 281.7 bbls. short of specification.

I do not know of any other deviation from the specification.

G W RANNEY,
Inspector

Ald. McWilliams at this juncture stated that Mr. Ranney who had had large experience with contractors, referred to Mr. Sheehy as the most dishonest contractor he had ever dealt with—sensation—and while he would not say that any member or members of the council were directly interested in No. 2 contract, he was prepared to stand by his assertion that Mr. Sheehy has approached certain members.

Ald. Sawers said he could not see why Engineer Hay if he knew Sheehy's specifications were wrong, had called for two other contracts on the same lines.

Ald. Langford admitted that Mr. Ranney had come to him with the complaint of two bags of cement to the box having been stolen, and he had advised him to shut his mouth, and inform the engineer.

Ald. Sawers said he understood that Mr Hay and Ald. Langford did not discover that the contract was wrong till Brock street had been reached.

Ald. McWilliams sarcastically remarked that Ald. Langford could apprise the council of 1-8 a bag less of cement having been used in the Dolan and Sheehy contract that specifications called for.

Ald Langford replied that he did not know that the terms of present contracts were being violated, in fact he believed the right quantity of cement was being used.

After further discussion on the matter, Ald. McWilliams moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Dunne: That the report of Mr. Ranney be added to the report of Board of Works. Carried.

Ald. Landgford then withdrew the adoption of his report.

Ald. Sawers moved, seconded by Ald. McWilliams, That clause 5 of report be struck out, after which report be adopted as amended by attachment of Mr. Ranney's report. Carried.

GOLD MINE AT BRIDGENORTH.

A Rich Find of Gold at Bridgenorth Yesterday.

A very sensational find was made at Bridgenorth yesterday. While a man named Gray was digging a cellar he threw out a shoveful of earth containing nine twenty dollar gold pieces. He at once claimed the treasure, but the owner of the property—a man named Udy—disputed his title to the wealth, and after considerable wrangling the money was divided between the two. In the meantime a young man named Charlie Trotter, who was assisting in the work of building the cellar, found two additional pieces of the same value. One of these he sold on the spot to Gray for $20 in bills, keeping the other.

It was this that led to trouble. Trotter came to town on his wheel and was at once interviewed by P C Stewart, who had been telephoned to and requested to arrest him on a charge of theft. Trotter explained the matter to Chief Roszel and P C Stewart and gave up the gold piece. He was not arrested, but promised to be on hand at the Police Court on Saturday morning to have the ownership of the $20 settled. In the meantime it is in Chief Roszel's possession.

The money was buried at a depth of about three feet and was dated 1884. How it came there is a mystery.

Golf Notes.

A general meeting of Golf club will be held this evening at eight o'clock at the offices of Messrs Dennistoun, Peck and Stevenson.

Rosedale's second team will be here to play a game with the local club on Saturday.

It has been decided to erect a club house for golfers at the close of the present season.

THE SCOTCHMAN AGROUND.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—Information was received this morning from the Montreal office of the Dominion Line that the Scotsman was ashore off Bell Isle, the most dangerous section of the route from the Old Country to Canada. No particulars have been received as to the manner in which the vessel went ashore, but it is believed she went out of her course owing the fog. The passengers are safe, having been transferred to the SS Montfort, which is now on her way up the Gulf, passing Heath Point signal station inward a 8 a. m. this morning.

Among the passengers were Mr John J Lundy and Miss B Lundy of Peterborough.

The Scotsman was built in 1895 by Harland & Wolff, of Belfast, and was one of the most popular steamers on the route. Her length is 471 feet, breadth 49 feet, and tonnage 6,040 tons. Her machinery is composed of two sets of tripple-expansion engines developing 6,000 horse power and propelling the steamer 14 to 15 knots per hour. The staterooms are large and luxuriously furnished, and accomodate two, three and four passengers. In addition there are two family rooms on the bridge deck containing six berths each. The second cabin, on the upper deck, will accommodate 120 passengers. A large smoking room was also provided for the second cabin passenger. The steerage was exceptionally good, special attention being given to this class of passengers.

Belle Isle, the scene of the accident is a desolate place. It lies midway between Newfoundland and Labrador about fifty miles east of the narrowest part of the straits, and the prevailing weather is bleak, cold and foggy. From the Isle to Heath Point, the eastern extremity of Anticosti, is three hundred miles, and from Heath Point to Rimouski about three hundred and nine miles. If the Montfort passed Heath Point at 8 o'clock this morning she will reach Rimouski—unless delayed by fog or otherwise—in about twenty-two hours, which would mean 6 a.m. on Friday. A special train would reach Quebec, 180 miles to the west, about noon on Friday, and the passengers will likely be able to catch the regular afternoon train to Montreal. They could then proceed by night train to Toronto, reaching here Saturday morning at 7 o'clock.

Echoes of a Shock.

London, Sept. 28.—The Echo to-day says the Greek Government was informed yesterday that the recent severe shock of earthquake around Smyrna killed a thousand persons, injured eight hundred and demolished 2,500 houses and two villages.

GREAT BRITAIN AND THE BOERS'

When your children ask you what the war is about, and why Britain is killing men, what is your answer going to be? Is it to be the franchise, or paramountcy, or the price of dynamite, or what? We do not think that there need be much difficulty as to the answer. If war comes Britain will be fighting to make the Boers yield a share in the government to the majority of the inhabitants of a country to whose inhabitants, without restriction, she entrusted self-government under republican forms, and because their refusal to emancipate the Outlanders and to establish a just and reasonable form of government throws all South Africa into confusion, and renders it impossible for Dutch and English to live together in peace and amity. That is an answer which no Canadian need be afraid to give when he is asked what the war is about. He may give it with as good a conscience as the New Englander gave his answer when he was asked why he was soaking the fields and forests of Virginia with the blood of America's best sons.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Good morning.

•• •• ••

No conclusive argument exists for changing to hard drink in the fact that with the first touch of frost the leaves begin to take a drop.

•• •• ••

These boycotters, looked upon throwwide Dreyfus' cell door as a kind of preliminary opening of the French Exposition.

•• •• ••

The effort to try and look as though a joke on you were really funny is one of the things that bring on gray hairs and wrinkles prematurely.

•• •• ••

We hear that the "sitting out waltz" is to be popular this winter and assume that the position will be the same as the dance position. Now that is something like it. The editor of this g. f. j. has always regarded it as a nuisance to gallop a mile to get a hug or two. A room full of people sitting around on sofas hugging to music is more to our notion. This will give the old rheumaticky brethren another chance to waltz.

•• •• ••

Remarking that the Boers shut one eye when they pray, suggests that is the usular ocular arrangement when looking over the sights of a rifle.

•• •• ••

South Africa is not altogether a flat country, and this treatment of the Boer President recalls that England is quite noted for bluffs.

•• •• ••

In China they chop the heads of officials who [illegible]. In Peterborough they re-elect them. It wouldn't be a bad idea if Peterboro' took its cue from that long-haired nation.

THE SPICE OF LIFE.

An Ohio girl laughed four hours without stopping. The name of the youth who wore the golf suit is not given.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Twentieth Kansas regiment is a vindication of the scholar in war. It contains more students than any other regiment under the flag.—Kansas City Star.

If the peace conference does any good in disarming Europe, it might be a good idea to try disarming the man who carries a gun in the United States.—Pittsburg Times.

Seats on the New York Stock Exchange sell at $40,000 nowadays. Few are more costly, but Uncle Sam's expenses at the seat of war to date have not been small. —Boston Globe.

It is stated that the English language is growing faster than any other, past or present. This is because those who use it have a great deal to say in this world.—Philadelphia Times.

An eastern prophet is quite positive that we are booked for a "long, hot, dry summer." Perhaps this seer is a first cousin to the fellow who predicted an early spring.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Chelsea woman who planted some peanuts this spring and mourned because the expected plants did not result has just learned that peanut growers usually select nuts for planting that have not been roasted.—Washington Post.

One way of distinguishing diamonds from glass and paste is to touch them with the tongue. The diamond feels much the cooler. None of the editors of our acquaintance are complaining of chilblains on their tongues.—Minneapolis Times.

"With secret initiatory exercises," says a Chicago dispatch, "the well known suffrage leaders, Susan B. Anthony and the Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, have been made members of the American Woman's Relief corps, No. 81." Was there a sidesaddle on the goat?—Buffalo Express.

Giovanni Cattetta came to this country on the Bretagne with a hump on his back. Some superstitious custom house officials touched it, obeying the old adage that to touch a hump brings good luck. They were rewarded, for the hump was artificial and filled with $1,000 worth of jewelry.—Boston Traveler.

Congressman Elect Roberts only hears an occasional Mauser bullet from the firing line now, but wait until he gets into range at Washington.—San Francisco Chronicle.

William Winter sarcastically says that "Maude Adams as Juliet bleats her part." This has aroused such a protest that probably William feels sheepish himself.—Boston Advertiser.

We understand that Dr. Mary Walker is opposed to woman's rights. She believes only she and other sensible men can understand the blessed privileges of the ballot.—Louisville Post.

General Merritt says he hugs himself because he is an American citizen. A man who would rob his wife of that mar'tal right is scarcely worthy to be called an American citizen.—Denver Post.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The oldest queen of Europe now is the queen of Hanover, who was 81 years old in April. Queen Victoria comes next, being 80, while the ex-Empress Eugenie is 73.

Duke Karl Theodor of Bavaria, the oculist and brother of the late empress of Austria and of the ex-queen of Naples, has just celebrated his silver wedding at the castle of Tegernsee.

The Duke of Connaught is less than six years younger than the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, to whom he now becomes heir presumptive. The latter was born on Aug. 6, 1844, and the Duke of Connaught on May 1, 1850.

The Prince of Wales is said to have determined to give up yachting. His ventures in the sport have never resulted well, and he has already withdrawn from two yacht clubs with which he has been long identified.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

What a congressman learns during his first term he doesn't always tell when seeking a second.—Chicago News.

Every candidate for speaker this side of the Hudson river appears to be running as a western man.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The dinner has come to be a big factor in politics—not that men must eat, but that men must talk.—Cascade (Ia.) Courier.

When he insists that only honest men should hold office, Governor Roosevelt forgets how many of us there are.—Detroit News.

A majority of our politicians have small knowledge of the science which they assume to represent and in which they presume to teach their fellow citizens.—Atlanta Journal.

RAILWAY RUMBLES.

The Siberian railway has already 80 refrigerator cars for taking butter to the Russian cities.

On Chinese railways the highest paid employees are the telegraph operators who get $17.50 per month.

At the railway stations in Russia books are kept in which passengers may enter any complaint they may wish to make.

Railway whistles inflict torture on so many people that he efforts aimed to abate the plague will be followed with interest. Austria has introduced a system of dumb signaling to start and stop the trains. Belgium is trying compressed air whistles instead of steam, and Germany [illegible] with horns.

Following are extracts from the report of Capt. T. H. Trethewey, M.E., upon the Company's properties which are now being vigorously developed, and upon which will be installed the 6 drill compressor plant, which was purchased from the Canadian Rand Drill Co. on the 5th inst. for immediate delivery.

MR. TRETHEWEY SAYS;

"The vein on these properties is well defined, and, where exposed by the workings near the line between the Western Hill and Virginia, averages fully 18 ft. in width. The gangue consists of a somewhat crushed and iron-stained quartz, sparingly mineralized with Galena, Copper and Iron Pyrites, with here and there small amount of Blend and Graphite disseminated throughout."

"On the Western Hill, a shaft has been sunk to a depth of 27 ft. on the foot wall, and the ledge has been exposed by a cross-cut to its full width; it here appears to be divided into hanging and foot wall portions by a seam of somewhat decomposed clay material which appears to dip toward the hanging wall, cutting out the leaner and allowing the richer portions of the vein to increase with depth."

"Samples taken in this shaft, across an 8 ft. face lying next to the foot wall, gave an average return of $7.00 in Gold and $1.35 in Silver, making a total of $8.35 per ton, while the balance of the vein gave a return of $2.00 in Gold and 70 cents in Silver, making a total of $2.70 per ton for a width of ten feet, so that $5.25 may be considered a fair average for the full width of the vein."

"The conclusion I have drawn after a thorough examination and study of the facts as here presented is, that judicious development should locate extensive bodies of pay ore, as even if only the 8 ft. next to the foot wall be extracted, the values continuing in depth as there is no reason why they should not, while leaner portions may be encountered they could be left in the mine to support the walls, and you would still have a proposition of unlimited tonnage well worthy of judicious expenditure in exposing its resources."

"The general conditions, elevation, etc., are so favorable that mining operations can be carried on for many years by simply tunnelling into the mountain and following the trend of the vein, and hundreds of thousands of tons of ore can readily be made available without the use of hoisting or pumping machinery."

"Situated as these claims are about 2000 ft. above the bank of the Okanagan River, with a natural outlet for Ærial or other tramway, and only about three miles from the "Black Hawk" Claim, which is within easy reach of the river, the question of transportation of ore from the mine to the mill could be easily arranged."

"With an electric plant established at Dog Falls, which is possibly ten miles distant, ample power could be generated at a nominal cost for all purposes, and by adopting the most modern methods of mining, milling and concentrating, together with an unlimited supply of ore, the cost of production should be reduced to a minimum."

"If the present promising assurances are borne out, the opening up of the three levels could develope at least a three years' supply of ore for a plant of large capacity, and I would strongly recommend the erection and installation of a mill of not less than from 250 to 300 tons daily capacity."

"With cheap power an unlimited supply of ore and a plant capable of handling the quantity I have suggested, the cost of mining and milling ought not to exceed from $1.50 to $2.00 per ton, and under capable management it should be kept within the lower limits."

"Thus even if the lowest values, $3.05 be taken as a basis of calculation and allowing that 85 p. c. of this can be saved, it would yield a profit of $1.09 for each ton of ore treated, but I am of opinion that much higher values may be confidently expected, and if there is a profit winner in the camp, all conditions considered, this one can be conscientiously recommended to the investing public."

At the next Annual Meeting of the Company, which will be held on the 6th day of November next, several of Montreal's most prominent business men will accept Directorship.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it is constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

A TERRIBLE DOWNPOUR

Indian Catastrophe Causes a Loss of Three Hundred Lives In India.

BLOCKED FOR TWO MONTHS

Line Between Darjeeling and Sanadaa Blocked for a Long Period,

A Number of Bodies Have Been Recovered on Happy Valley Estate—Soldiers of the Munster Regiment Are Searching for Bodies and Clearing the Roads.

Calcutta, Sept. 27.—After gathering at the head of the bay a storm moved east to-day giving heavy rain in Calcutta, Dinajpur, Rangpur, and Jalipaiguri, and falling with the greatest fury at Darjeeling. Simultaneously, another storm gathered at Rangpur and passed westward from Purnea to Monghyr. The usual weekly reports have not been received from the Government, and there is reason to fear that the district named is flooded and communication interrupted.

It is estimated that between Darjeeling and Kurseong alone 300 persons have lost their lives.

The line between Darjeeling and Senada will be blocked, probably for two months. Both the Upper and Lower Puglajhoras have been carried away. A number of bodies have been recovered on the Happy Valley estate. The soldiers of the Munster Regiment are searching for bodies and clearing the roads.

GREAT SLAUGHTER OF WHALES

London, Sept. 27.—A Kirkwall telegram states that information from the Faroe islands shows that on August 8, 9, 11 and 22 there were four different whale hunts there, and large numbers of bottle-nosed whales were got, in all 2,115. At Midvaag there was the greatest slaughter, 1,500 being landed; at Lirvaag, 180; at Sandivaag, 175; at Westmanhavn, 300. The natives will have plenty of beef this season, and the blubber is being made into oil.

Smoking in the Dark.

"How can you account for the well known fact that a cigar when smoked in the dark loses much of its flavor?" was asked of an alleged philosopher.

"The reason is," said the philosopher, "that when all the senses are active each sense is more active than it would be if it were doing duty alone. So that when the eye ceases to work the palate and nose become dulled. To express it figuratively, the eye is endowed with a rudimentary power of smell and in the dark loses not only its sight, but its contributing power of smell."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Cost Her Her Reason

A once renowned French actress lost her reason through a trifling occurrence. She was visiting at an ancient chateau, in the vicinity of Mentone, when a friend challenged her to pass the night alone in an alleged haunted chamber. She accepted the challenge. During the night she called for aid, and an attendant found her in a state of pitiful fright through certain uncanny sounds she had heard. Finally she developed a nervous disorder, which culminated in insanity. The ghostly visitants were rats.

"Samuel," said Mr Snaggs severely, "you should not use slang."

CRIMINAL ANIMALS.

A Naturalist's Study of Thoroughly Wicked Wild Beasts.

E. Seton Thompson, naturalist to the government of Manitoba, gives in his book, "Wild Animals I Have Known," some curious examples of depravity among wild beasts.

The best story is that of the New Mexican wolf who led a band that killed a cow a day for five years. Finally the ranchers offered $1,000 for this wolf's pelt. He was easily distinguished. His track was an inch wider than that of other wolves.

A professional wolf hunter tried to earn the bounty, but the wolves killed his dogs, and he gave it up. Then Mr. Thompson took the case. He melted cheese in the fat of a heifer in a china dish, cut it into lumps with a bone knife to avoid the taint of metal and put in strychnine and cyanide in odor proof capsules. He wore gloves steeped in cow's blood and avoided breathing on the baits.

The baits were picked up. He followed the track and found that the wolf had laid all four together and scattered dirt over them.

The wolves then took to killing sheep. Traps were set to the number of 130 in different parts of the ranch. The trails of the big wolf and of the pack were traced up to one set of traps, and the doings of the leader were marked in the dust:

He had stopped the rest, warned by scent, and scratched around the trap till he found the buried chain and picket. On another part of the ranch he entered an H-shaped series of traps and detected the danger. The trail showed that he had slowly backed out on his own track, putting each paw down backward until out of the dangerous ground. He had then sprung some of the traps by scratching clods and stones backward at them with his hind feet.

He was at last caught by dragging over the traps the body of a female wolf, the scent of which he followed.

No more skillful criminal than this wolf was ever known. Old Eph, a lame grizzly, which in two years ruined half the hog raisers in the Sacramento valley by his wasteful love of pork, was a close second. A bobtailed wolf kept the whole city of Paris in terror for ten years at the beginning of the fourteenth century, and the Lochnee panther, in India, killed 300 human beings in less than two years.

A famous rogue dog of Derbyshire was conspicuous by its faithful care of sheep in the daytime, but was savage and ugly to-[illegible] and was never suspected, though sheep worrying took place on the farms near.

At last it was tracked in the snow from a fold where 20 sheep had been killed to the farm where it lived, the dog having forgotten that the track would show, though it took partial means to conceal it by running along the top of a stone wall

HIS HAIR TURNED WHITE.

Peculiar Experience of the Man Who Dealt In High Explosives.

"Nitroglycerin, sir; high explosives accomplished it," said a well dressed man with a youthful face and snow white hair to a chance acquaintance at the Great Northern.

"But your face is not scarred? It would seem that an explosion"—

"An impending explosion it was. Two years ago I was the most successful well shooter in America. I could make the oil loosen up where others had failed. The secret lay in the explosives I employed. I made them myself and had the business down fine. At that time I went to New York to figure on a big blasting contract that would have made me a pile. I failed to make the arrangement, and the very day the negotiations fell through I started suddenly for England on a similar mission.

"'Is there such a thing as high explosives ripening?' asked the Englishman I was accompanying on the second day of our voyage.

"The question brought me to my feet and caused an exclamation of horror to escape from my lips. Many explosives undergo a ripening process, which adds greatly to their destructive power, at the same time decidedly increasing the danger of handling them. That made by me was this character. Indeed 28 days after it compounded it was almost certain to ode of its own volition, so to speak. on the upper shelf of the checkroom my New York hotel I had left a large grip containing a 20 pound can of this compound, the ripening of which meant destruction and death.

"For an hour I was almost in a state of frenzy, freely denouncing myself as a multimurderer. In vain I drew an awful picture of the devastation that would overwhelm a certain New York hotel in exactly 17 days and called upon the captain to put his ship about. He promised to transfer me to a west bound steamer if an opportunity presented itself, but fortune failed me, and I was obliged to cross the ocean. On the morning of the twenty-fifth day of the life of my ripening high explosive I sprang from a carriage and rushed into the hotel.

"No reprieved murderer ever experienced greater joy than I did as I saw the last of the terrible fluid disappear in a catch basin. Ten minutes later I started back from the mirror of the hotel bar, where I had gone for a 'bracer,' in absolute dismay. My jet black hair had turned white as snow."

VETERANS UNDER FIRE.

The Reason They Don't Stoop When the Bullets Are Flying.

"The temptation to stoop when under fire is almost irresistible," said a veteran, "and that accounts for so many of the wounds received by raw troops. You see, when a man happens to be hit in a stooping posture the chances are that the bullet plows right through his body from end to end. On the other hand, if he is standing erect, the probabilities are in favor of the wound being slight, anyhow not mortal. Old soldiers are well aware of this, and while they will drop flat and hunt cover every chance they get they never stoop.

"After a soldier has been in a few engagements he learns such tricks, and, as far as the rest of it is concerned, he becomes simply a fatalist. There is nothing strange about it, for almost all his experiences appear to lend color to that doctrine. For instance, he never dodges, because he has seen men dodge and get killed when it really seemed as if they had reached for the bullet. In fact, the strangest things are continually happening, all apparently the pure whim of chance.

"I remember near Petersburg a comrade of mine, as brave a fellow as ever lived, took refuge behind a little hut. He was worn out under fire and wanted to get a moment's breathing space. Twenty feet in the rear and a little to one side was a pile of crossties full of wrought iron nails. A bullet came along, splintered a tie and drove out one of the nails at right angles. The jagged iron struck my chum in the side, penetrated his kidneys and killed him.

"That's the blind chance of war, and after getting a few such object lessons a fellow is apt to acquire a sort of sang froid that is immensely impressive to a recruit. It isn't because he has a contempt for danger; he has merely learned the folly of trying to evade it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

SEEING THE SIGHTS.

THE EDITOR OF THE RURALVILLE ROOSTER AT THE FAIR.

He Could Not Be Buncoed and Took in Peterborough's Great Central Fair—Has An Exciting Time of It.

With apologies to the Ottawa Citizen.

As it has been been the custom of the management of the Ruralville Rooster to visit the smaller fairs after the Ruralville exposition has been held we decided to pay a visit this year to the fair at Scott's Plains, or Peterborough as it is now called. The object of these visits is not merely pleasure but, since information is often gathered from strange sources, we thought that it might be possible to learn something even from Peterborough. We accordingly hitched up the Bay mare, drove to the station and took the train. On arriving we found that although the village has increased to a great extent it is still behind the times. We called first at the office of our esteemed contemporary, the Times, where we were provided with a letter of introduction to Secretary Green of the fair, who gave us admission to the grounds. Here the sight was bewildering and we do not believe that even on Sundays that Ruralville ever had as many people in its midst as were in those grounds. We were not daunted however, but, grasping our old cotton umbrella and taking a good tight hold on our carpet bag we started in to see the sights. Speaking of our umbrella and carpet bag we might say right here that we came near losing them when we first came to the village. A young man in Morgan's Hotel where we stopped wanted us to leave them in his charge. He was a real good-looking young fellow and wore nice clothes and we were just about to trust him when, remembering the darks and wicked ways of they who dwell in cities, we declined. We gave him some good advice however, and told him it was a pity that he did not turn his hand to some kind of honest labor instead of trying to lure the luggage from the unsophisticated. From his crestfallen appearance we judge that our words touched a tender chord and that he has since turned from his wicked ways.

Among the Pumpkins.

But this has nothing to do with the fairs so we will resume. We went into the Main building and, although we believe at all times in upholding the honor of Ruralville, we must say that there is not a subscriber on our list who ever brought us such large squashes and pumpkins as those we saw in there. We tried to learn the name of the man who raised them in order to get him as a subscriber, but were told that the people of Peterborough either pay cash for their paper or else don't pay at all. From this we concluded that the man who told us was either joking or else must have some prevaricators in its midst.

We wandered around awhile and at last went into a place where the flowers were and we wish to say to our readers that we had never had believed that there could be so much beauty crowded together under the same roof. We gazed on the lovely blossoms and were inhaling their fragrance when a man came up to us and asked what our religion was. We told him we were Christian and then he asked us to come over to the gospel hall or meeting house to-night and hear Rev. Blowhard Shoutenholler preach. This preacher, he said, was a grand exhorter, and could talk about perdition until everybody shuddered and wept. We told him that we was not much on shuddering and weeping, while as for a sermon there was more eloquence in the least of the beautiful blossoms, whose color and fragrance taught us to love the beautiful and detest the vile than all the sulphurous side-shows that were ever yelled about. He said he only wished to benefit our soul, but we quickly informed him that Ruralville had the best shoemaker in our midst, and besides he owed us for last year's subscription. We looked again on the glorious floral display and when we turned around he was gone.

We then meandered round to the dog show, and saw Bro. Tyrrel sitting in a corner of the tent nursing a little bull pup. We asked him how the Examiner was getting along, and he told us that editing a paper was not his fort just now. He was in the dog business up to the neck, and appeared to be unwilling to talk, so we left him.

When we came out a fellow spoke to us and asked us if we were one of the exhibits. We told him no, but if we would be interesting enough we would be glad to go on the programme. He said he was sure we would take first prize, but unfortunately we were too late to enter as we afterwards found out. We have since been told that he was ridiculing us but, since our informant was a Lindsay man, we know he was unreliable and probably actuated by jealousy.

We had, about this time, another narrow escape from being buncoed and by a very pretty girl too. We were passing a booth when this girl asked us if we would have a cup of tea. We were feeling thirsty at the time and asked her how much tea was a cup. She told us she would give it to us for nothing. This at once aroused our suspicions. We recalled all the stories we had heard about being drugged and robbed by villians, fair and female, and having a large sum of money on our person, some $3.75, we decided to be very careful. We did not lose our presence of mind at this critical juncture but after she had given us the tea we watched our chance and poured it out on the ground. "We may come from the country," thought we, "but anyone who thinks they can drug us is badly mistaken." We reported the affair to the chief policeman of Peterborough, but he only laughed and said they were giving the tea away to advertise it. From this we concluded he was in league with the robbers and not to be trusted, since everbody knows what tea is without people having to give them some to show them what it was like.

We soon began to see that there was more to see than we could see, at least in one day. We began to feel lonesome, for true it is

"We may roam near the pumpkin,
And also the squash,
But Ruralville's home for

and we wandered off feeling that peculiar sensation of being alone in a crowd.

We strayed down near the rear of the grounds feeling decidedly blue, and wishing we might see some one we knew, even though he be only from Lindsay, when suddenly the bleat of a sheep fell on our ear. We had heard the brass band play all day and had listened to the bagpipes and the hand organs, but never since our coming to Peterborough, had we heard sweeter music than that sheep's "ba-a-nh." A few swift strides brought us to the scene and there we were, right among the stock. Gone was lonesomeness, gone was war care, we were once more amid familiar surroundings.

We need not dwell on the beauties of those animals, but will simply say that we stayed right there till it was time to go home. On our way out we saw the most wonderful woman that we ever gazed upon. She was ten feet high, and walked all around with a little satchel slung over her shoulder giving advertisements away. I was about to stop and ask her where she got her printing done, when a man close by called her "Billy Bowman." I turned and told the fellow that he should not make sport of a lady. He said the woman was a man. We offered to bet a bag of peanuts, the five cent kind of bags, that if she saw a mouse near her she would lift up her skirts and scream. The fellow took that bet at once. We told him to get us a mouse and we would soon prove it. He said we needed no mouse and to come with him. We went, but as soon as we saw her we saw how easily we had lost. One glance was sufficient and then we turned our heads away and blushed. She had no skirts on to speak of and therefore would not raise them for a dozen mice.

In the evening we saw the show again, and it was a sight long to be remembered. It would require all the space in the Rooster were we to record one-half of what we saw at the fair. During the evening we were introduced to President Fitzgerald and a number of the directors, and we got two of them to subscribe for the Rooster. Mr. Fitzgerald told us when we asked him to take the paper, that he couldn't read, which statement greatly surprised us. But when we found that Geo W. Bennett, Geo. Elliott and two other directors were likewise unable to read, I did not press them to subscribe, but came away wandering how a brilliant newspaper as the Times managed to exist in such a community.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

The presidential bees have gathered very little honey thus far in the campaign.—Los Angeles Express.

It is coming to pass in this country that it is almost libelous for a newspaper to call a man a politician. It is the imputation that he is guilty of things criminal.—Binghamton Herald.

THE SPECTRAL BELL.

A Superstition of the Sea Sometimes Met With on Land.

The tolling of a spectral bell is one of the familiar superstitions of the sea, and especially is the illusion common along this section of the gulf coast. What causes it nobody has ever learned, but there is hardly a luggerman from Mobile to the passes who has not, at one time or another, heard the sound. They describe the note as extraordinarily sweet and clear, rising and falling in solemn cadence and always seemingly close at hand. It is entirely different, they say, from any other noise of the ocean, and they scout the theory that it could possibly be produced by waves.

"It isn't water," said an old seafaring man the other night, "and, for that matter, it's sometimes heard on land I know, because I've listened to it myself. Back in 1877, if you care to hear the story, I quit sailorizing for awhile and went out west and tried mining. I had a partner named Whicher, and, away up in the Sierra Madre range, in north New Mexico, we found an outcropping of rotten quartz that showed gold. It looked so good that we started to sink a shaft, although it was the most God forsaken spot you ever laid eyes on. It was in a little canyon, a thousand miles from nowhere, ugly black peaks all around us, and lonely—well, lonely is no name for it.

"One day, while Whicher was in the hole and me at the windlass he heard the bell. It was clear as my voice and seemed right over a mountain spur, where we knew there was no living being for three days' travel. It rang awhile and then stopped. Next day it rang again, slow, solemn and plainer than ever. It was broad daylight, and that made the thing all the worse, which sounds funny, but is true. We stood it four times, and then Whicher climbed out of the hole and said, 'Let's go.' I was willing. I believe we had a good thing, but that bell—it was too many for us. It makes my flesh crawl to think about it even now."

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

The Victim Was the Samoan King Malietoa and the Victor an American Naval Officer—The Jack Pot That Caused the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymaster in the navy with King Malietoa several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever indulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kalakaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little bunch on this line. Well, Malietoa's opportunity to test his belief came one day when an American man-of-war—never mind which one—sailed into the harbor at Apia. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the full-est extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an assistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malietoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Malietoa requested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Malietoa had almost phenomenal luck, winning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a smile of pleasure and triumph combined, announced that he would open it $20 worth. Every player staid. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Malietoa showed his hand by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others staid. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped out. After the king's last raise the paymaster hesitated a moment, put his cigar to one side and shoved $50 to the middle of the mahogany.

"The king put up the equivalent in Chilean silver dollars, the currency of the islands, and, drawing a small sack from his pocket, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Samoa, amounting to $79 in silver. The paymaster's face grew serious, and he looked at his royal opponent in a hesitating, puzzled sort of way. Could this be a Samoan Ah Sin he had run against? Had this kingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evening? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance some of it in finding out.

"After a few moments of undecision he drew $579 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malietoa gave a gasp and called for a glass of kava to steady his nerves. This he gulped down and announced that he was out of funds, requesting at the same time that the paymaster take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smiling and looking fixedly at the pot. Then the excited monarch offered to put up the island of Manono, one of the finest in the Samoan group, against the $500. To this the paymaster consented, and a transfer deed of the property, duly signed, attested by the trader, who was a notary public, and witnessed by the other two officers, was put in the pot. Then the king called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four aces and a five spot.

"With a look of horror and a Samoan wail of despair, his majesty exposed to view three kings, an eight spot and a deuce. Then he fell off his chair in a faint, the excitement having been too much for his nerves. Kava in copious quantities brought him around sufficiently to enable his removal to his own castle. The paymaster shoveled his money into a sack and placed it in the trader's iron safe, but the deed for the island he carefully placed in his pocket.

"Next morning the details of the big poker game were known to nearly every inhabitant of the place, and the German and English consuls sent official communications to the American consul protesting in most emphatic terms against the action of the king in disposing of the island of Manono to an American or to any one else, and warning the consul that unless the paymaster returned the deed for the island to the king at once they would direct the attention of their respective governments to the case.

"Here was a pretty state of affairs. The officer had, no doubt, won the island fairly, and the king's action was binding, but in the tension in which Samoan affairs were at that time the German and English governments would only too willingly have taken advantage of the circumstances as an excuse for international complications, ending ultimately in a disastrous way to American interests.

"The facts were fully explained to the paymaster, and on the promise of Malietoa that he would give the officer a number of fine mats and other Samoan articles of value the deed was returned to the king and destroyed. By mutual consent of the consuls and others interested the affair was hushed up in every way and was thus allowed to die out. Malietoa took an oath that he would never again play poker."

VINEGAR, THEN LEAD.

They Settled the Trouble at the Carbonville Postoffice.

"I think my most exciting official experience," said Captain J. E. Stone, formerly United States postal inspector, "was at the town of Carbonville, Colo., in 1879. It was a star route post, and there was much complaint about the nonreceipt of mail, so I went over to investigate.

"The postmaster was a man named Wilson, who kept a general store, and the postoffice consisted of a soap box on the end of his counter. When mail arrived, it was dumped in, and every fellow helped himself, an arrangement that worked well enough until a chap known as Black Hills Pete came to town. Pete disturbed the entire system. When he didn't get a letter himself, he would tear up several others on the principle that misery loves company, and, being a notorious desperado, nobody dared interfere. I got the facts, and as the mail came in that evening I took a seat in the corner and awaited developments, first ordering the box removed.

"A little after dark the miners from camp began to assemble, and presently in came Black Hills Pete. He was a big brute of a fellow, and I saw at once there was going to be trouble. 'Where's that letter box?' he demanded of Wilson. 'I've ordered him not to use it any more,' I said, getting up. 'Who the blank blank are you?' roared Peter. 'I'm the inspector,' I replied. 'Well, you get me that box quick,' he retorted, and, seeing him reach toward his pocket, I made a grab for my gun; but, as bad luck would have it, the confounded thing caught in the holster.

"In a twinkling he had me covered, but before he could turn loose a quavering voice called out: 'Pete! Oh, Pete!' The desperado glared around, and there stood Wilson holding a large tin squirt gun used for drawing liquors. The sight was so ludicrous that the bully burst into a guffaw, and as he did so Wilson let drive the piston and hurled about a quart of the strongest kind of vinegar squarely into his face. The stuff blinded him, and before he could recover himself the storekeeper had two bullets in his shoulder.

"That's the true story of the strangest fight that ever occurred in the west. Pete recovered, but before he could be arrested was spirited away by friends to New Mexico. His right name was Luther Coleman, and there is a warrant now standing against him for destroying United States mail matter. After the episode I have narrated there was no further trouble at the Carbonville postoffice."—New Orleans [illegible].

Misunderstood.

A dentist on the South Side advertises on a large scale that he pulls teeth without pain by the "animal magnetism system."

Yesterday an Irishman came into the dentist's office suffering with a toothache.

"Faith, and I must have me tooth pulled, but I'd like to see the animals first."

OUTWITTING AN ELEPHANT.

A Hunter Saved by His Knowledge of the Beast's Habits.

Only those familiar with the "manners and customs" of the elephant have any idea what a nimble creature it really is. Massive and slow footed as it looks, it is capable, when roused, of feats that would be difficult for much fleeter animals. Especially is this the case with African elephants, which, though taller, are generally lighter than their Asiatic brethren. Moreover, accustomed for ages to lead a wild life and often depending on their alertness and speed of foot for their very existence, they have acquired a skill in gymnastics which has occasionally taken even old elephant hunters by surprise.

In illustration of this fact we are reminded of a story [illegible] men in Africa. He was "out after elephants" and had just fired at and wounded a magnificent specimen. Unfortunately for him, he had only succeeded in slightly wounding it, when, infuriated by the attack, it turned and charged him. It was a terrifying sight. With its enormous ears spread out like sails and emitting shrill notes of rage, it came thundering over the ground like a runaway locomotive. The hunter fired another shot, but missed. His nerve was shaken, and, throwing down his "express" rifle, he sought safety in flight. Near at hand was a steep hill, and to this he directed his steps, for, being but slightly acquainted with the climbing powers of the elephant, he thought his pursuer might be baffled by the steepness of the ascent.

It was a terrible disappointment to find that the elephant could climb a hill just as quickly as the hunter, nimble runner as he was. The fugitive, indeed, would have soon been overtaken if he had not thought of a really ingenious ruse. He knew that elephants never run, or even walk, down a steep incline, but always crouch down, gather their feet together, lean well back and slide down. Just as the ferocious animal had got within a few yards of him, therefore, the wily hunter suddenly doubled and ran down the hill again.

Quick as a flash the elephant turned, gathered himself together and, trumpeting with baffled rage, slid down after his victim. The hunter had just time to spring out of the way as the great beast came "tobogganing" after him, smashing trees and shrubs and carrying everything before it like an avalanche. Then once more the hunter dashed to the top of the hill, while the elephant, unable to stop itself, went careering down to the very foot, where, apparently feeling very sore and disappointed, it rose and walked wearily back to its native woods.—Chums.

Odd Disasters.

In an English coal mine a few years ago a callous youth viciously pricked a pony with his penknife. The wounded animal kicked out furiously, overturning and breaking several safety lamps. The naked flames fed the foul gases in the air and created an appalling explosion, which wrought the death of over a hundred miners.

Sun rays, shining through a decanter of water on to the cartridge of a loaded rifle, slew a sleeping man on a lounge near by. The innocent owner of the rifle was arraigned for the supposed crime and was sentenced to death, when the testimony of a shrewd detective solved the mystery and secured his reprieve.

A German family, seven in number, lost their lives by a somewhat unique accident. They slept in one large apartment, lighted by gas. Before retiring the father hung his overcoat above the gas burner. During the night this garment slipped and fell on the tap, turning the gas full on and so suffocating the slumbering inmates.

His Prerogative.

Speaking about speeches in the senate, Don Cameron had the record for the senator with the longest service and the shortest speech. The then senator from Pennsylvania spent a good deal of time in the senate chamber, but he always lolled around in his chair, apparently taking no interest in the proceedings. The whole session seemed to bore him until late in the afternoon, when he used to put enough energy in himself to rise in his seat and say to the vice president, "I move the senate adjourn." Toward the end of his service in the senate Mr. Cameron seemed to consider this motion his prerogative, and no one disputed his claim, as it seemed to be the only way of recording his presence.

He Couldn't Help It.

"That boy of mine," said the angry father, "is just a natural born fool."

"Of course," retorted the neighbor, and there was that in his tone that made the father want to climb the fence and go after him.—Chicago Post.

It is said that in many Welsh villages the yew tree and the church are of the same age, the one being planted when the

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and cocky about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I [illegible] street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get [illegible] up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my derndest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

The Hint That Failed.

The landlady looked solemnly in the direction of the delinquent one.

"It's a rule in this house to pay as you go," said she.

The delinquent one smiled.

"It's a good plan," said he. "You get it all in a bunch then or nothing."—Syracuse Herald.

Year Old Cow.

Messrs F Birdsall & Son have a curiosity in the shape of a couple of one year old cows. They are both giving milk, and attract considerable attention at the fair.

Trading Jackknives

is not in it for fun with Kidd trading shoes for cash—"lets trade."

Into the Lake.

When the steamer was about a mile below Jubilee Point with a scow load of thoroughbred cattle from Mr Birdsall's stock farm, for the Central Fair, one of the cows jumped from the scow into the water. The steamer went on to Jubilee, and a couple of men went back for the animal. They tied a rope around the cow's horns and she swam after the boat to the Point, a distance of about a mile. The animal swam almost as fast as the men could row, and seemed none the worse for her long trip in the water.

Satchel Lost.

Lost on Tuesday last between the corner of George and Perry streets, Peterborough, and Lake street, Ashburnham, a leather satchel, containing three pairs of shoes and other articles. The finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving them at the Times Bookstore.

First Prize.

PROMISES WRITTEN IN SAND.

When the members of the present Council were before the electors last January, promises of economy in the administration of the affairs of the town were freely given in exchange for votes. It was thought that the new mode of electing representatives to the Council Board would result in a more economical municipal government than under the old plan. Special efforts were made to secure the services of men who were capable, and who had time at their disposal to properly attend to their duties.

Just how far these hopes have been realized the ratepayers are now able to judge. The Council, apparently without regard to cost, plunged headlong into sewer and pavement building. Sewers have been constructed on streets where no necessity exists for them, and where they will not come into general use for many years; new sidewalks in many cases have been torn up in order to put down the new walks, and thousands of dollars have been wasted in road-grading, where positive injury has been inflicted to the property affected.

The scandals arising out of the paving contracts has created much surprise and aroused hostile feeling amongst the taxpayers against certain members of the Council. A strong feeling exists in favor of a thorough investigation before the County Judge, where evidence may be taken under oath, and where books and papers will have to be produced. In such an event the Times is of opinion that other and more startling irregularities will be unearthed.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

The Committee of Management of the P P Home would be grateful for donations of clothing for a little girl six years old.

The wet weather has caused the postponement of the rifle matches till October 6th.

Prospectors are out in our northern townships looking for iron.

Everybody reads the Times.

Fred Baker was arrested on Tuesday, charged with stealing a pair of gloves from P Sullivan, who drives the Bobcaygeon stage. The gloves were subsequently found in the hallway of Clancy's hotel, where the stage stops. The case will be disposed of at the Police Court on Monday.

The Ontario Bank, Lindsay, under Manager Lytle, is doing a good business. As an evidence of this more commodious premises have been secured.

A curious occurrence is reported from the neighborhood of Newmarket. A well digger employed by a prominent farmer struck a flowing stream at a depth of 115 feet the other day, and since then myriads of fry about an inch long, resembling speckled trout, have been cast out with the water. None of the surrounding lakes contain speckled trout, and where the fry come from is a mystery. They are passing into the Holland river by millions and if they live and grow Newmarket will pose as a fishing resort.

The suit for unstated damages entered against the G T R by Mr Alex F Beatty, a mail clerk who was injured in the Murray Hill accident some months ago, has been settled out of court for $3,000.

AFTER ONE THING.

A Philosopher's Statement That Happiness is the One Object of Life.

Did you ever think of it, that happiness the pursuit of, attainment to, and possession of happiness is the one great prevading and animating motive of humanity.

Every act has for it immediate or far away, object happiness. This is the goal, alike of the child at play, the burglar at his nefarious occupation, or the business man striving for gain.

The statement will bear careful thought and then comes the thought that unless we keep health, we cannot secure happiness, no matter how much money we earn or what position of prominence we attain to.

When one steps upon the springy sod and into the warm sunlight of an early day in June, while the soft teasing breeze strokes the cheek, the birds chatter to tell how happy they are and all through one's being silently courses a sturdy indescribable sense of perfect bounding health and nervous poise the value of that health is better appreciated when one realizes that without health all these fascinations of Mother Nature would appear cold and flat.

Peace and happiness are worth more than much gold. The true road to what we all strive for, happiness, is to first seek and hold fast to health. If nasty ails affect you try change of diet rather than drugging. No drugs on earth will bring health unless the cause of the disorder is removed. Try leaving off coffee for 10 days to a month. It is an unsuspected enemy to large numbers of people.

Postum Food Coffee has not only the flavor and color so greatly liked, but has about 80 per cent. of the exact food elements needed by nature to rebuild brains and nerve centres in various parts of the body.

It is sold at grocers.

THE CENTRAL FAIR

Better Weather and Much Better Attendance Yesterday.

EVERYBODY WELL PLEASED

A Fine Show of Live Stock and Inside Exhibits.

The President and Directors Work Like Trojans to Make the Show a Success, and Have Earned the Goodwill of All.

It was a pity that rain interfered with the opening day of the Peterborough Fair. Had the weather been favorable, the should would undoubtedly have been a record-breaker. Too much credit cannot be accorded President Fitzgerald, and several of the directors, including Messrs. Geo. Elliott, Geo. W. Bennett, Dawson Kennedy and Hunter, who worked like beavers under very disheartening conditions.

WEDNESDAY.

The speeding events were of considerable interest and brought out keen competition and good sport, though the track, the 1-3 of a mile on the exhibition grounds, was in some places rather heavy. The events run off, consisted of the novelty race and the green trot. The officiating judges were Dr. Beatty, V.S., and Mr. Harry Winch. In the novely race the contesting horses were required to walk once, trot once and run twice around the track.

The entries were made by Ira Natrass H. Elmhirst, J. A. Brown, G. A. Reid, H Nesbitt and C. H. Curtis. The other horses were set back for breach of the conditions and the prizes fell to Ira Nattrass, 1-2-2, first; and H. Elmhirst, 2-1-4, second. In the green trot the entries and results were as below. The names of the horses were not given the only designation available being the owner's name. The entries and results were as follows:

McCullough	1	1	1
Ira Nattrass	2	2	3
W. Clancy, Lapidist Chief	3	3	2
G. W. Fitzgerald, Nigger	4	4	dr

The race went to McCullough first Nattras second and Lapidist Chief third

Between the heats a very amusing entertainment was provided by the comedians, Cornelius & Taylor in their trick house and Chinese laundry specialties, which were highly entertaining to the spectators generally.

The stock show was very fine and attracted much attention, horses and cattle being specially fine.

Notes.

The space at our disposal prevents an extended report to-day.

A lady lost a pocket book on the grounds yesterday, but recovered it through the Times.

The busses and hacks did a lively business.

The music of the 57th Band was a feature of the fair.

Mr. James Head, of the Nicholls Hospital, captured the special prize of five barrels of Queenstown cement offered for best herd of dairy cows. This was given by Isaac Usher and Sons, of Picton. Mr. Head not only understands gardening, but he knows something about live stock, and the cows that supply the milk for the hospital are well cared for and are fine animals. Patients are sure of the best milk supply.

Obituary.

The death occurred in Ashburnham of William Howard, the infant son of Mr J H Smith. The little one had been suffering a short while only and Mr and Mrs Smith have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement. The funeral will take place this afternoon at two o'clock.

Laboring Under Difficulties.

The Hunter street paper says that the Minden and Coboconk fairs were held on Tuesday last. Our contemporary is wrong. There was no show in either place on account of the rain. The only show that did materialize was the great world's fair at Peterborough, which opened that day in the presence of President Fitzgerald, Secretary Green, J R Stratton, Warden Hawthorne, James Kendry and four small boys.

Handsome Flowers.

The Times is indebted to Mr Head, chief gardener at the Nicholls Hospital, for two lovely bouquets of flowers which were on exhibition at the fair. Mr Head's display attracted considerable attention and reflected much credit on his ability as a horticulturist.

Wedding Bells.

Mr David Jordan, of Peterborough, was united in marriage to Miss Jennie Mahood, daughter of Robert Mahood, Esq., of Emily, on Tuesday last, at the residence of Mr John Bennet, Omemee. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Tillie Mahood, while Mr Joseph H Newman performed a like service for the groom. Rev W M Kannawin, B A, performed the ceremony. The happy couple left on the evening train for Peterborough, where they will reside in future. The Times unites with their many friends in wishing them prosperity and happiness.

Switzer Discharged.

Switzer, who was arrested about a week ago charged with incest, was tried yesterday at Buckhorn before County Police Magistrate Edmison, and discharged. His daughter who was alleged to have been the other party to the offence, swore that her father was not the father of her child, or did she know who was. This settled the case so far as the accused was concerned.

DOURO COUNCIL MEETING.

The Township Council met for the purpose of appointing a successor to the late Treasurer, Mr. John Leahy.

Members all present. The Reeve in the Chair. The Reeve expressed regret at having to call the Council together on the occasion of the death of the late Treasurer, Mr. John Leahy. He said that during the last twenty five years that he had several dealings with him of a personal nature and that he always found him thoroughly straightforward and honest. He was sure that the whole Council would heartily join in passing the following resolution. He moved seconded by Mr. Maloney,—That this Council deeply feel the loss so recently sustained by the death of our late Treasurer, Mr. John Leahy, who during the past forty-two years held the position of Treasurer and that a special committee consisting of the Reeve, Clerk and Councillor Jory be appointed to prepare a memorial of condolence to the family of the deceased.

The Clerk on behalf of the special Committee read the following memorial relative to the late Treasurer.

To the family of the late Treasurer Mr John Leahy,

That whereas it has pleased Almight God to remove by death John Leahy, who for the past half century filled the office of Councillor, Collector and Treasurer in rotation, holding the latter for a position for a period 42 years. And whereas the Municipal Council of the Township of Douro is desirous of paying its tributes of respect to his memory. Therefore be it resolved that that this Council do now record its deep sense of loss sustained and its feeling of esteem and affection for the corteous and kindly gentleman who has been removed from a sphere of great usefulness to the community. During his long term of office he has endeared himself to the people who came to regard him as a special friend as well as a public servant. His gentlemanly unassuming manners and the conscientious discharge of his duties made for him a name that will not soon be forgotten.

Be it therefore resolved that this Council do attend the funeral in a body that this resolution be taken by a standing vote and entered upon the minutes and that a copy be forwarded tot he family of the late Treasurer, with the assurance that they have the earnest and heartfelt sympathy of each member of the Council and of the community at large in the hour of their great and irreparable loss which they have sustained.

James McCliggott, Reeve.
Wm. O'Brien, Clerk.
Thos. E. Jory, Councillor.

On Motion of Mr. Moloney, seconded by Mr. Quinn, Maurice Condon and C. Curtis were appointed Auditors of the late Treasurer's account with the Municipality to date.

On motion of Mr. Moloney and Jory, the bondsmen submitted by Mr. James Leahy, the newly appointed Treasurer for the due performance of his duties were accepted, namely James Leahy Treasurer, William Condon, Bath Condon James Leahy, sr. and John Allen.

On Motion of Messrs. Moloney and Condon a by-law appointing James Leahy Treasurer of Municipality at a salary of $70 yearly.—Received the usual readings and passed.

On motion of Messrs. Condon and Quinn, the following named persons were accepted bondsmen for the Collector for 1897, viz., Patrick Ryan, Daniel Maloney, Thomas Sullivan, Wm. Condon and Bath Condon.

Orders on Treasurer.

Maurice Hynes $10, work on boundary between Douro and Lakefield.

A. R. Kidd, $3.00 being overcharged on assessment in 1899.

Michael McCamm $2.00, repairing road scraper.

Geo. Whibbs $1.00, repairing culvert on Dummer road.

Michael Leahy $1.00, burying dead cow.

Jerimiah Hayes $25.00, work on side road between lots 15 & 16 in con. 4.

Bath Leahy was appointed a commissioner to build a culvert on road between con. 9 and 10 in front of lot 8, cost not to exceed $5.00

Moved by Mr. Condon and the Reeve,—That the Treasurer deposit all Township funds in the Bank of Ontario and have all payments in excess of $20.00 made by a cheque. As this resolution caused a lively discussion both pro and con. the Reeve demanded a division with the following result in favor of the Resolution.

The Reeve and Councillor Condon, against Councillors Quinn, Maloney and Jory.

Council adjourned to Nov. 13th next.

Wm. O'Brien.
Clerk.

A Close Call.

Last evening Mr Johnson Newall (milkman) had an experience he will not forget as long as he lives. Mr Newall was driving west on Hunter street, and on approaching the Grand Trunk crossing train that was standing on the main track suddenly backed up as he was passing, and by the best of good luck he just cleared the track in time. Mr Barney Devlin, our informant, says he hopes never again to see such a close call.

TIRED OF LIVING.

Samuel Wood, Burford Township, Blows His Head Off With a Gun Near Kelvin.

Brantford, Sept. 29.—Word reached this city yesterday of a melancholy tragedy which occurred on Wednesday near the village of Kelvin, in Burford township.

A man named Samuel Wood, tired of life, first shot his faithful dog dead and then blew out his own brains. Wood was [illegible] years of age and unmarried. He had had a lot of trouble and his mind is supposed to have been unhinged. On Wednesday he took his shot gun, and, calling his dog, walked towards a woods not far from his home in search of small game. The man must have been brooding over his troubles, for just before he reached the woods he turned on the dog at his heels and shot him dead. He then walked into the bush, where he came upon some men at work. The men asked him what he had shot at and he replied that he had killed his dog, but would give no reason except that it was better dead. Wood then strolled back to where the dog lay, and before anyone noticed what he was doing, placed the muzzle of the gun to his head and pulled the trigger by means of a stick. The whole top of his head was blown off and he fell dead instantly close beside the body of his four-footed companion. The coroner was notified, but did not deem an inquest necessary.

PLAGUE STILL SPREADS.

The Disease Makes Its Appearance at Baguia.

Oporto, Sept. 29.—Confirmation has been obtained of the report that the bubonic plague has made its appearance at Baguia, a village outside the sanitary cordon. The disease was introduced there by two patients in the hospital. Last evening a carriage in which foreign doctors were on their way to attend a post-mortem examination here was stoned by a number of persons. The police drove off the assailants and the doctors escaped unhurt.

Coughlin Almost Dissected.

New York, Sept 28.—John J. Coughlin, a trolley conductor, was officially pronounced dead at 6 o'clock on Monday night as the result of a fall from his car at the corner of Railroad and Liberty avenues. At 10 o'clock that night Corner Delap directed Dr. Newman to make an autopsy at St. Mary's Hospital. Then came a startling surprise. As the doctor, knife in hand, bent over the body, just ready to cut open Coughlin's breast he fancied there was the faintest flutter of a heart beat. A hasty examination disclosed the fact that the man was alive. Other doctors were at once summoned, and by their united efforts the dead man was revived, and will now probably recover.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CASE.

Has a Large Number of Peculiar Snakes Taken from Her Intestines.

Napoleon, Ohio, Sept. 29.—It was thought that Mrs Elizabeth Gehrken was laboring under an hallucination when she persisted that she was "full of snakes," but an operation that was performed upon the old lady proved that she knew what she was talking about.

More than a year ago, while drinking water which she had drawn from a well, Mrs Gehrken claims to have swallowed a snake, which has caused her no end of trouble.

An emetic was administered a few days ago, which resulted in bringing forth a number of of small snakes, with heads shaped like those of a fish. The aged lady persisted that the shakes were not all removed.

A consultation was held by local physicians, and it was decided to perform an operation, which resulted in taking from the intestines nine snakes, the longest of which is two feet three inches and the smallest one seven inches and about half the size of the ordinary lead pencil about the thickest part of the body.

"Yes, we removed nine snakes, or something that resembled snakes, from Mrs Gehrken's stomach. These things are something knew to me," picking up the jar in which the snakes had been placed in alcohol, "and I am unable to give you a name for them. They have eyes like those of a fish, but a regular snake body. We placed two or three of them on the floor, and they ran around and wriggled like an ordinary snake until they became chilled through and then died. It is a most extraordinary case.

FLIMSIEST KIND OF EVIDENCE.

Ottawa, Sept. 29.—In a recent issue of The Christian Guardian reference was made to the subject of canteens in military camps of instruction. It is alleged that at a camp in London nine canteens were open day and night and that beer was sold freely and without disguise of secrecy.

Enquiry at the Department of Militia elicits the information that it is not the intention to hold an enquiry. The evidence so called, is regarded as of the flimsiest character, being chiefly hearsay. The headquarters staff say that, taken on the whole, the camps were never better conducted than they have been this year. At headquarters the view is held that it would be utterly impossible to enforce absolute prohibition, and that a well-regulated canteen is far better.

WAR COMES NEARER BY LEAPS AND BOUNDS!

President Kruger Again Replies Stubbornly to the Demands of Great Britain, and Imperial Cabinet Deliberate.

NOTHING BUT A MIRACLE CAN PREVENT WAR NOW

Krugers' Reply is Looked Upon as Creating a Crisis in Negotiations, for Further Diplomacy is Clearly Out of the Question, the Boers Having Thrown Down the Gauge.

Cape Town, South Africa, Sept. 29.—The reply of the Transvaal to the last despatch of Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, the British Colonial Secretary, dated September 22nd, has been sent from Pretoria, and is to the effect that the Boer republic strictly adheres to the London Convention of 1884 and asks for nothing further. The question of the suzerainty of Great Britain over the Transvaal is entirely ignored in the despatch.

It will be remembered that on Sept. 8th Mr. Chamberlain proposed a five-year franchise for the Uitlanders, quarter representation in the gold fields, equality of Dutch and English languages and equality of old and new burghers in elections.

On September 18th President Kruger in his reply repudiated suzerainty, reverted to the seven years' franchise which he had previously improved upon, declined to give equality to the Dutch and English languages, and was generally defiant.

On September 22nd Mr. Chamberlain informed the Transvaal that Great Britain would be satisfied with nothing short of the demands made on September 8th, and that his sole motive was to obtain justice for the Uitlanders.

The reply of the Transvaal, fallin back upon the London convention, must be looked upon as creating a crisis in the negotiations, for further diplomacy is clearly out of the question, the Boers having thrown down the guage. War appears the only way out of the difficulty.

BRITISH CABINET MEETS.

London, Sept. 29.—The meeting of British Cabinet, on whose deliberations practically hinge war or peace in South Africa, began at 1 o'clock this afternoon. President Kruger's reply to the last note of the Imperial Government has now been received, and will be the pivot of to-day's discussion. The despatch from Cape Town cabled to the Associated Press is given the leading place in the afternoon papers. While it is too brief to give an adequate idea of the Transvaal's attitude the impression it produced was rather favorable than otherwise.

The crowds began to gather in the vicinity of the Foreign Office as early as 11 o'clock. The Home Secretary, Sir Mathey White Ridley, was the first to arrive at 11.15. Mr. A. J. Balfour, the First Lord of the Treasury, came down from Scotland, and Lord Salisbury came from Hatfield. They reached Downing street shortly after noon.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, drove to the Colonial Office at 12.15 p.m. As he passed through the crowd assembled in Whitehall he was greeted with cheers, which were renewed when he alighted.

A large force of police was stationed about Downing street, although perfect order was maintained.

Military Activity.

In the meanwhile despatches from the Cape continue the story of military activity in the Transvaal, Natal and Cape Colony. The Boers are concentrating in the country contiguous to Natal, where the first outbreak of hostilities is likely to occur. Large contingents of burghers are converging from various parts on this probable battlefield. The excitement continues at fever heat. The commandant general has issued a notice ordering the commanders to assemble at a specified spot on the Natal border. The commander from Krugersdorf, whose burghers checkmated the Jameson raiders embarked on trains for the frontier to-night.

Burghers Assemble.

There is great activity at the war office at Pretoria. The artillery reserve have been called out, the arrangements to defend the frontier are now complete and the work of equipment is proceeding rapidly. The Burghers are congregating in the towns, ready to join their commandos, which, however, have strict orders not to approach too near the frontier and to avoid a collison with the British forces. The Boer forces are gathering at their bases of action, a short distance from the border, such as Harrismith, Volksrust, Vryheid and Bremersdorp.

Telegraphic communication between Cape Town and Pretoria has become strangely delayed during the last couple of days.

The Cabinet adjourned at 7.15 p.m. The Ministers were heartily cheered by the waiting crowds. It is said from Boer sources that Mr. Chamberlain's proposals submitted to the Cabinet include an indemnity for the cost of sending out troops, the disarmament of the Transvaal forts, the suppression of Dr. Leyd's legation, judicative and legislative independence for the judges, the equality of the English and Dutch languages, and full and complete admission of the supremacy of British interests throughout South Africa.

WAR MEASURES TAKEN.

Pretoria, Sept. 29.—The Government has issued a notice of the measure to be observed in the unhoped-for event of war. The mines may continue working, reasonable protection being afforded. The liquor trade is prohibited, and special police will maintain order. The Rand gold produced during the war is to be deposited with the Government, who will mint therefrom sufficient to pay its working expenses. The rest will be returned after the war. Strict pass-port regulations have also been provided.

BALFOUR EXPECTS WAR.

London, Sept. 29.—The Right Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, Government leader in the House of Commons, expects war with the Transvaal. That was the tenor of a speech delivered by him at Dundee to-day.

He declared that the British Government had been long-suffering and had displayed great moderation. It had striven long, earnestly, and conscientiously to arrive at a peaceful solution. If the solution now was not peaceful the fault would not rest with Great Britain.

He added that he had not abandoned all hope of peace, but he was compelled to speak in very different tones from what he could have used a month, or even a fortnight, ago. The point had now been reached when, apparently, the Dutch would not give way, and Great Britain could not give way because her interests in South Africa and civilization and national honor made such a course impossible.

Grenadiers Embark.

As the second battalion of Grenadiers embarked on a transport at Gibraltar for London this afternoon they received a "hurry call" ordering them to proceed to the Cape, for which place they start to-morrow.

The Birmingham Post says 50,000 improved Mausers, 500,000 cartridges and several mortars for dynamite charges will be sent from Rotterdam or Hamburg to-day for the Transvaal.

The Lord Says Fight.

A despatch to The Chronicle from Cape Town says that a friend of President Kruger has received a letter from the Boer President, in which he says that he prayed for three hours, and the Lord told him to fight. He added that he was not afraid of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain.

A cable despatch to the Times from Cape Town says: "The Boers would have taken the initiative by now, but for the scarcity of water. There will be great difficulty in providing food supplies for the people remaining at Johannesburg after hostilities have commenced.

Proof of Conspiracy.

A despatch to the Financial News from Cape Town says there is reason to believe that Sir Alfred Milner, the British High Commissioner, holds absolute proof of a conspiracy between President Kruger and a number of highly-placed politicans of Cape Colony for declaring Cape Colony Independent and forming an Afrikander Republic.

Irish Boasts.

The London Daily News, in commenting on the reports that Irishmen intend to join the Boer forces in case of war says that the Irishmen cannot believe that any of their kith and kin have joined hands with the Transvaal. In contrast to these reports, the News states that in answer to a circular issued to the members of the London Irish Rifles, volunteers, in London by the acting commandant, Major Stephenson, every man has signified his readiness to go for service for foreign or home work if required.

BURIED GLACIER FOUND.

Two Men Find Unlimited Cold Storage While Digging Trenches in an Alaskan Gold Field.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 29.—A buried glacier has been discovered on Boulder Creek, Alaska. The glacier was uncovered while putting in some trenches in Brockway and Chase's placers. There was about eight inches of earth over the glacier, on which trees eight inches in diameter were growing, showing the ice mountain, which is clear and pale blue, has been there for a long time. The ice is as solid as possible. Brockway and Chase decided to investigate the strange phenomenon, and dug down twenty feet, but met the same solid clear ice. Around Boulder Creek in summer the ice disappears and the weather is hot. The glacier is to be utilized as cold storage during the hot months.

BHILL RAIDERS DEFEATED.

British Troops in India Have a Fierce Encounter.

Bombay, Sept. 29.—It is reported that a body of armed Bhils have raided the country near Khergoum and that the police and two companies of native infantry from Baroda overtook the Bhils, with whom they had a fierce encounter. The raiders are said to have lost two hundred in killed and wounded.

Great Battle at Hand.

New York, Sept. 29.—A despatch to the Herald from Caracas says: Thursday Martin Sanavria, President of the Cassation Court, General Fonseca, Ortega Martinez and others were banished yesterday by the Government. Apparently the hostile forces are on the eve of a great battle. Negotiations for peace have failed.

Held Up By a Footpad.

Skaguay, Sept. 22, via Seattle, Wash., Sept. 29.—The stage running between Atlin and Discovery was held up by a lone highwayman on Tuesday night. There were nine passengers, but none carried much money or valuables and the plunder secured was light. The robber escaped. The highwayman hailed the stage, saying he wanted to ride, and when it halted he covered the driver and passengers, telling them if they wanted to save their lives they would have to give up their money.

More Gold in Sight.

Among recent discoveries in mining in the mineral lands of Hastings and Peterborough counties says the Campbellford Herald, is a vein of gold bearing quartz on property owned by Mr W F Post, in the 4th concession of Methuen township. It is located near the Belmont line, a short distance from the Government road, and only a few miles from the Belmont mine. Prospectors who went through that locality years ago, stated that mineral existed there, but it was not till recently that it received any attention from men interested in mining. Some days ago samples of the quartz were sent to the Belmont mine to be tested, and was pronounced to be equal to what is being mined there, but its value was not given. At the present time a gang of men has been employed to sink three shafts on the east half of the lot, as beginning to the development of the property, and good results are expected in the near future.

ELEVEN WERE DROWNED

WAS WRECKED A WEEK AGO

Stories of Privation and Hardship Told by Passengers.

Eleven of Her Passengers Were Drowned While Disembarking From the Wrecked Steamer—Outrageous Conduct of the Crew—Great Courage and Coolness Displayed By Women Passengers.

Rimouski, Que., Sept. 29.—The Dominion Line, S S Scotsman was wrecked eight days ago, southeast of Change Island, eight miles from Belle Isle lighthouse, and eleven of her passengers were drowned while disembarking from the wrecked steamer.

The Scotsman is a total wreck.

The names of those who were drowned were:

Mrs Robinson, wife of the manager of Sunlight Soap Co., Toronto.

Miss Robinson, her daughter.

Miss R Weavers.

Mrs Talbot.

Miss Scott.

Miss Skelton.

An infant of Mrs Roberts, second cabin and steerage passengers.

The names of the others who are missing cannot be obtained.

The steamer Montfort, with 249 of the Scotsman's passengers on board, reached Montreal at 11 o'clock this morning. The Montford brought to Rimouski all of the Scotsman's passengers, except some 56 second cabin and steerage passengers who were left on the island, and nine passengers and forty-five of the crew, who were taken off by the Monterey and carried to Liverpool.

The passengers who were left on the island will come on to Rimouski on the Allan Line steamship Germanic.

Hardship and Suffering.

The story told by the passengers who arrived here this morning is one of untold hardship and suffering.

Mr Emerson, who was representing the firm of Messrs Christy & Co, the well known hatters, of London, was a passenger on board the Scotsman. According to his story, the vessel struck at 2.30 on Friday morning, the 22nd. All the passengers were in bed. There was a dense fog at the time, and the first warning the passengers had was when the vessel struck the rock. There was a crash and a heavy crushing sound as the ship piled head on the rocks. In a moment all was confusion. Passengers crowded on deck, partly dressed.

The Boats Lowered.

There was a high running sea at the time, and the ship's officers fearing she would slip from the rock on to which she had struck and into deep water, had the boats lowered. The women and children were lowered into the boats with great difficulty. One of the boats foundered after it had had been filled with women and children. It is said by those who were in the boat that the plug was out and the boat filled in with water, and it was through this accident that the loss of life occurred.

Women and Children.

Four boats in all were lowered, and each was crowded with women and children. They put out to sea and remained as near the wreck as possible until day light. Passengers in the meantime were lowered to the rocks by means of ropes. By Saturday noon all the passengers had reached the shore. The women and children were carried over the wrecked vessel to the rocks.

Outrageous Conduct.

The conduct of the crew was simply outrageous. No sooner had the ship foundered than the crew invaded all the cabins and attacked the baggage of the passengers. During the night these brutes, in a disgustingly drunken condition, swaggering about among helpless passengers, swearing and singing ribald songs. The ship's officers were utterly unable to control the crew, being busily engaged saving the lives of the passengers.

Too much cannot be said of the courage displayed by the woman passengers. They behave nobly.

Out of Her Course.

It is hard to say what was the cause of the accident, but it was evident to all that the ship was entirely out of her course.

Galliffet Traitor To France?

Paris, Sept. 29.—Marquis de Galliffet, the Minister of War, having written to Figaro asserting that he had never written to the Duc d'Orleans since the end of 1896, when he declined the latter's invitation to shoot at Woodnorton, the Intransigeant this morning replies by publishing a letter, which, the paper says, was seized among the papers of M. Andree Buffet, one of the persons recently placed on trial on the charge of having conspired against the state.

In this letter the Marquis de Galliffet says:

"If the Republicans are so stupid as to confide the Ministry of War to me you, Monseigneur, will not have occasion to be dissatisfied with me."

NOTES AND COMMENT.

•• •• ••

Good morning.

•• •• ••

If that Alaska disputed boundary has been settled by granting the United States a few more miles of ice and snow it will not increase the coolness between that country and this.

•• •• ••

What Peterborough needs in the social line is less formality. The ladies cannot make a call unless they put on their best "bib and tucker" to do it. And the editor of this g. f. j. would suggest a Mother Hubbard afternoon, when the callers could get out on the lawn and turn the hose on each other.

•• •• ••

As in the famous case of the tiger, now that he's got hold of the British lion's tail Kruger doesn't know whether to hold on or let go.

•• •• ••

That mass meeting in Trafalgar square was evidently loaded for Boer.

•• •• ••

Twelve thousand striking workmen in Havana is certainly a striking commentary on the spread of American ideas in Cuba.

•• •• ••

A later idea is the chair trust. This is evidence they want to make it unpleasant for people even to sit down and talk it over.

•• •• ••

South Africa is well enough off in gold and silver without needing lead and iron to come in by way of the Transvaal.

•• •• ••

When France shakes hands with itself over the apparent finish of the Dreyfus case it still has a right to indulge in that eminently Gallic trait, a shrug of the shoulder.

•• •• ••

They say that down east it costs $1 each to put a masculine arm around a young woman's waist without her consent. Not knowing anything about the down east girls the editor of this g. f. j. cannot say whether or not that is a waist of money, but if they are half as winsome as the Peterborough girls he would be a grouchy man indeed who would kick at the cost.

•• •• ••

Counting pensions as a military expense, the United States is now carrying the largest military budget in the world, and yet many Americans express sincere sympathy with the poor downtrodden taxpayers of Europe because they are compelled to bear such heavy military burdens.

•• •• ••

It seems the Boers won't back down because it would practically be backing down steep Majuba Hill.

•• •• ••

Naturally Dreyfus was glad to see his children. For some time past none of his troubles have been little ones.

MEN OF MARK.

President McKinley finds little leisure for light reading, but is a careful student of the newspapers.

Joseph Leiter has by no means decided to drop the stock market. He is a constant visitor to Wall street.

J. Pierpont Morgan is an expert pool player and an evening rarely passes when he does not enjoy an after dinner game.

Joel Chandler Harris, Georgia's famous author, breeder and poet, is to have an exhibit of Jersey cattle at the Paris exposition.

Senator Clark has just bought in Paris, for his Washington house, an old stained glass window, once the property of the Countess de Janze, for $30,000.

Sims Reeves says he lost $400,000 during his career as a public singer because he was too conscientious to appear on the stage unless sure he could do his best.

Ex-Representative Ben T. Cable is to furnish much of the money for the building of a chapter house for the Zeta Psi fraternity at the University of Michigan.

John Stuart, superintendent of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, was formerly a telegraph operator at Hohendauqua, Pa. He is now receiving $15,000 a year.

The Russian Prince Cantacuzene, whose betrothal to Miss Julia Grant has just been announced, has retired to his Russian estates to make preparations for the reception of his bride.

Before Rear Admiral Kautz left for Samoa a young woman asked him whether he had ever "felt afraid in battle." "Once," he answered. "A stray ball knocked my cigar out of my mouth and there wasn't another aboard."

The late ex-Governor Flower was once asked by a less successful financier how to succeed in Wall street. "By working harder than at any other trade or profession on earth," was the answer. "But won't that wear you out?" "Not before your time."

Mayor Moir of Scranton was years ago a journeyman tailor in Philadelphia. John Ross of the former city needed a workman, and Mr. Moir, being recommended, was offered inducements to go to Scranton. In February last Mr. Moir was elected chief executive of the city.

Henry G. Kittredge, editor of the Textile World, Boston, has been appointed assistant director of textiles for the commissioner general of the United States to the Paris exposition of 1900. Mr. Kittredge has long been identified with the textile industries of the United States.

Russell Sage is no friend of the camera, and very rarely is it that a photographer is quick enough to get a snap shot of the millionaire. As for sitting for a picture, that has probably occurred less frequently during the millionaire's long life than that of any other equally prominent man in the country.

TOWN TOPICS.

The curfew bell was rung last night at 8:30 o'clock. Nothing sensational resulted. It just rung; that was all.—Freeport Bulletin.

Abilene is getting to be a front porch town. Nearly every resident improvement includes a porch.—Abilene (Kan.) Reflector.

The companies are selling their gas so cheaply in New York that several of the metropolitan newspapers are filled with it every day.—Detroit Journal.

Buffalo is to have a new union station to cost $6,000,000, with a waiting room 90 by 235 feet, that will be the largest in the world. How about this, Boston?—Gardiner Reporter-Journal.

Buffalo is in a flutter over an extremely wicked Midway that it expects to have at the Pan-American exposition, and can't think of a suitable name for it. Why not call it Hamburg Paradise?—Rochester Democrat.

All because of a blessed war to the knife squabble between rival companies New York is now enjoying 65 cent gas. Father Knickerbocker will be a weak old gentleman if he lets them restore the higher rate.

MOTIVES AND METHODS.

A Missouri girl killed herself because her sweetheart had gone to the war.

Because his mother would not let him go in swimming an Arkansas boy cut his throat.

Forked branches of an apple tree were used as a noose by a Stroudsburg (Pa.) suicide.

Champagne with arsenic in it was used by a San Francisco man as a means of self destruction.

Her husband wanted to move, and she did not. That led a Connecticut woman to drink poison.

Fearing that his wife would scold him for getting home late a newly made London bridegroom committed suicide.

"Ah, to see the moon at a distance of one meter," was the note left by a Paris suicide explaining his motive for death.

THE CYNIC.

After a man has told you his troubles you know more about his kin.

You will find a loafer leech attached to every industrious man or woman.

An honest man is one who admits that his baldness is due to old age and not to sickness.

Every bridegroom finds an excuse to return from his wedding journey sooner than originally planned.

Every circus man lays all his plans on the assumption that the people are chumps. Every circus man gets rich.

After the people have worked themselves to death to raise a preacher's salary, he decides that he can do better elsewhere and resigns.

It would be interesting to know how much longer the week should be, in order that the men may find their Sunday underwear ready without fussing.—Atchison Globe.

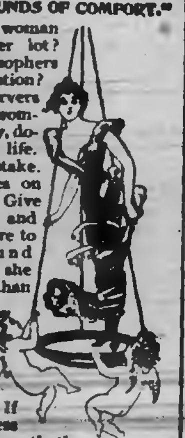
ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Work of laying the cable from Vancouver to Fanning island and thence to Australia and New Zealand will begin this summer, it is announced.

The new Nernst electric light dispenses with the usual vacuum bulb and replaces the hairlike filament with a short bar of refractory material, thereby greatly increasing the light and cheapening the cost.

Experiments have been made lately by French government officials with a new telephone, which enables persons to converse without putting their mouth and ear to the apparatus, the words being distinctly audible in any part of the room.

"A THOUSAND POUNDS OF COMFORT."



What makes a woman contented with her lot? How many philosophers can answer this question? Some shallow observers imagine that all a woman wants is an easy, do-nothing sort of a life. But that's a big mistake.

A woman thrives on kindness and care. Give her an affectionate and congenial atmosphere to work in, and sound physical health and she will work harder than the average man and never grow discontented. If you have a fretful wife, find out some new way to be kind to her. If there is any weakness or diseased condition that causes irritability, see that she has the proper remedy right away.

That wonderful medicine originated by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., his "Favorite Prescription" for women's diseases, will restore perfect organic vitality and health. It will give cheerfulness, energy and power. In the words of a New York lady, Mrs. O. N. Fisher, of 1861 Lexington Ave., it will give a "thousand pounds of comfort."

"I feel it a duty to inform you," writes Mrs. Fisher in an earnest letter to Dr. Pierce, "that I had been a sufferer for many years from nervousness with all its symptoms and complications. I was constantly going to see a physician or purchasing medicine for this or that complaint as my troubles became unbearable. In the spring of 1897 my husband induced me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. After taking one bottle and following your advice I was so encouraged that I took five more bottles and then I did not take any more for several weeks as I felt so much better.

"I am not now cross and irritable. I have a good color in my face; have gained about ten pounds in weight and one thousand pounds of comfort, for I am a new woman once more and your advice and your 'Favorite Prescription' caused it, coupled with your 'Pleasant Pellets' which are not to be dispensed with. I will not take any more unless you so advise, for I do not see that I need it."

Dr. Pierce will send advice by mail entirely free of charge. Address as above

Following are extracts from the report of Capt. T. H. Trethewey, M.E., upon the Company's properties which are now being vigorously developed, and upon which will be installed the 6 drill compressor plant, which was purchased from the Canadian Rand Drill Co. on the 5th inst. for immediate delivery.

MR. TRETHEWEY SAYS;

"The vein on these properties is well defined, and, where exposed by the workings near the line between the Western Hill and Virginia, averages fully 18 ft. in width. The gangue consists of a somewhat crushed and iron-stained quartz, sparingly mineralized with Galena, Copper and Iron Pyrites, with here and there small amount of Blend and Graphite disseminated throughout."

"On the Western Hill, a a shaft has been sunk to a depth of 27 ft. on the foot wall, and the ledge has been exposed by a cross-cut to its full width, it here appears to be divided into hanging and foot wall portions by a seam of somewhat decomposed clay material which appears to dip toward the hanging wall, cutting out the leaner and allowing the richer portions of the vein to increase with depth."

"Samples taken in this shaft, across an 8 ft. face lying next to the foot wall, gave an average return of $7.00 in Gold and $1.25 in Silver, making a total of $8.25 per ton, while the balance of the vein gave a return of $2.00 in Gold and 70 cents in Silver making a total of $2.70 per ton for a width of ten feet, so that $5.25 may be considered a fair average for the full width of the vein."

"The conclusion I have drawn after a thorough examination and study of the facts as here presented is, that judicious development should locate extensive bodies of pay ore, as even if only the 8 ft. next to the foot wall be extracted, the values continuing in depth as there is no reason why they should not, while leaner portions may be encountered they could be left in the mine to support the walls, and you would still have a proposition of unlimited tonnage well worthy of judicious expenditure in exposing its resources."

"The general conditions, elevation, etc., are so favorable that mining operations can be carried on for many years by simply tunnelling into the mountain and following the trend of the vein, and hundreds of thousands of tons of ore can readily be made available without the use of hoisting or pumping machinery."

"Situated as these claims are about 2000 ft. above the bank of the Okanagan River, with a natural outlet for Ærial or other tramway, and only about three miles from the "Black Hawk" Claim, which is within easy reach of the river, the question of transportation of ore from the mine to the mill could be easily arranged."

"With an electric plant established at Dog Falls, which is possibly ten miles distant, ample power could be generated at a nominal cost for all purposes, and by adopting the most modern methods of mining, milling and concentrating, together with an unlimited supply of ore, the cost of production should be reduced to a minimum."

"If the present promising assurances are borne out, the opening up of the three levels could develope at least a three years supply of ore for a plant of large capacity, and I would stongly recomend the erection and installation of a mill of not less than from 250 to 300 tons daily capacity."

"With cheap power an unlimited supply of ore and a plant capable of handling the quantity I have suggested, the cost of mining and milling ought not to exceed from $1.50 to $2.00 per ton, and under capable management it should be kept within the lower limits."

"Thus even if the lowest values, $3.05 be taken as a basis of calculation and allowing that 85 p. c. of this can be saved, it would yield a profit of $1.09 for each ton of ore treated, but I am of opinion that much higher values may be confidently expected, and if there is a profit winner in the camp, all conditions considered, this one can be conscientiously recommended to the investing public."

At the next Annual Meeting of the Company, which will be held on the 6th day of November next, several of Montreal's most prominent business men will accept Directorship.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it is constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

Manufactured under the patents of Bell, Tainter, Edison and Macdonald. Our establishment is headquarters of the world for Talking Machines and Talking Machine Supplies. Write for catalogue.

THE SCOTCHMAN AGROUND.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—Information was received this morning from the Montreal office of the Dominion Line that the Scotsman was ashore off Bell Isle, the most dangerous section of the route from the Old Country to Canada. No particulars have been received as to the manner in which the vessel went ashore, but it is believed she went out of her course owing the fog. The passengers are safe, having been transferred to the SS Montfort, which is now on her way up the Gulf, passing Heath Point signal station inward a 8 a. m. this morning.

Among the passengers were Mr John J Lundy and Miss B Lundy of Peterborough.

The Scotsman was built in 1895 by Harland & Wolff, of Belfast, and was one of the most popular steamers on the route. Her length is 471 feet, breadth 49 feet, and tonnage 6,040 tons. Her machinery is composed of two sets of tripple-expansion engines developing 6,000 horse power and propelling the steamer 14 to 15 knots per hour. The staterooms are large and luxuriously furnished, and accomodate two, three and four passengers. In addition there are two family rooms on the bridge deck containing six berths each. The second cabin, on the upper deck, will accommodate 120 passengers. A larg esmoking room was also provided for the second cabin passenger. The steerage was exceptionally good, special attention being given to this class of passengers.

Belle Isle, the scene of the accident is a desolate place. It lies midway between Newfoundland and Labador about fifty miles east of the narrowest part of the straits, and the prevailing weather is bleak, cold and foggy. From the Isle to Heath Point, the eastern extremity of Anticosti, is three hundred miles, and from Heath Point to Rimouski about three hundred and nine miles. If the Montfort passed Heath Point at 8 o'clock this morning she will reach Rimouski—unless delayed by fog or otherwise—in about twenty-two hours, which would mean 6 a.m. on Friday. A special train would reach Quebec, 160 miles to the west, about noon on Fridry, and the passengers will likely be able to catch the regular afternoon train to Montreal. They could then proceed by night train to Toronto, reaching here Saturday morning at 7 o'clock.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. The Telltale Eye.

"No matter how self possessed a man may appear on the surface," said a close observer, "there are certain involuntary movements by which he will always betray himself to minute scrutiny. To illustrate the point, here's a neat little parlor trick in mind reading.

Seat yourself directly in front of your subject and tell him to hook his finger tips together before his chest and pull as hard as he can, at the same time thinking intently of some letter of the alphabet. Then look fixedly at his right eye and repeat the letters aloud, beginning with A. When you come to the one he is thinking about, a swift, indescribable change will flash across the pupil. It is purely unconscious and involuntary, and no human being alive can prevent it. The purpose of the finger tip pulling is merely to distract his thoughts and keep him from baffling you by concentration of will. Try it some time."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Bringing Up the Average.

Old Rufus Gogblink, a slow, deliberate sort of man, dropped in one day in a casual sort of way to see his friend, Stephen Nobbler. It was the first time he had been in to see Stephen in 42 years.

"Um-m! You don't come in very often, Rufus," said Mr. Nobbler.

"No," said Mr. Gogblink.

But he went in to see his friend Mr Nobbler again the very next day.

"Um-m! You're coming in pretty often now, Rufus," said Mr Nobbler.

"Ya-as," said Mr. Gogblink. "I'm sort o' bringing up the average."—New

WOMEN OF NOTE.

Mrs. James M. Barrie, wife of the author of "The Little Minister," is said to be a very pretty woman.

Mme. Navarro's (Mary Anderson's) sister is Mother Dominica, a nun in the Convent of the Assumption in London.

Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer disposes of some $75,000 each year on her whims and never asks the price of an article that strikes her fancy, but orders it sent home.

Erie, Kan., has two newspapers edited by women. Mrs. Belle Harbaugh edits The Republican Record and Miss Elizabeth Frazier has charge of the Erie Sentinel.

Helen Gould's income is the largest of any unmarried woman in the country. She does not spend much on herself. On churches and charities she spends $100,000 a year.

Mme. Loubet greatly resembles her friend, Mme. Carnot, in her charitable tendencies. She disposes of large sums among the poor, and is a regular visitor at the hospitals.

Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, formerly Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, is said to be the most extravagant woman in society. She spends quite $100,000 each year on trifles and knickknacks.

Mrs. S. V. Harkness of New York city, formerly of Cleveland, has offered to build a chapel at the College For Women of the Western Reserve university in Cleveland. She had previously founded a biblical professorship in that college.

The young Duchess of Marlborough and several other ladies of much wealth and rank are going in for falconry. It is an expensive form of sport, an ordinary hawk costing as much as $600 and requiring quite an outlay for maintenance and training.

Mrs. William Rockefeller's hobby is for carnations, one of the greenhouses at her country place at Scarborough-on-the-Hudson being devoted exclusively to their culture. She is said to spend thousands of dollars every year for the plants she imports for her own pleasure.

At a public dress rehearsal of a new play in Paris Mme. Casimir-Perier, wife of the former president of the French republic, was requested to remove her hat, but declined to do so. When she learned that the rule would be enforced in her case as in all others, she left the theater in disgust.

Lady Randolph Churchill is thus described by T. P. O'Connor in his weekly: She is still a very pretty woman. Her raven black hair does not show a single thread of gray; her figure is slight and svelte, and the deep, dark blue eyes have all their vivacity undimmed by their years of tears. She is certainly one of the most widely accomplished women of her time.

A FAITHFUL DOG.

Its Owner Realized Its Worth, as Well He Might.

"Well, I wouldn't have believed it," exclaimed Jones in astonishment as he dropped in to see Smith the other evening and was met in the hall by a St. Bernard dog.

"Wouldn't have believed what?" asked Smith.

"Why, that you'd have a dog in your house," continued Jones. "It belongs to one of your neighbors, I suppose?"

"No, sir; that's my dog," replied Smith proudly.

"You don't really mean it, old man? Why, I've known you now for five years, and you've always had a marked aversion for dogs."

"Yes, I did have until lately, but I wouldn't be without one now. This brute is a noble, faithful fellow, and I wouldn't take $100 spot cash for"—

But at this juncture he was interrupted by his wife calling down over the banister:

"Henry Smith, who was it that scattered these cigar ashes all over my dresser?"

"It must have been the dog, my dear," was his reply.

"And who was it that dropped these apple peelings on the floor?" she demanded.

"The dog, my dear," answered Smith.

"And there's a bottle of mucilage spilled on the hall carpet up here too. Is that some of your work, Henry?"

"No, my dear; the dog's to blame for that."

"And, goodness gracious," she continued angrily, "if some one hasn't been whittling up here again! How many times have I told you not to do that in the house?"

"But I had nothing to do with it, my dear. The dog's been up there probably chewing a stick."

"Well, it's a burning shame the way this house is mussed up. Your collars and ties are scattered all over the rooms."

"Are they, my dear? That dog's been up there again then. Yes," continued Smith as he drew his friend into the parlor, "I wouldn't take a big pot of money for that dog. Why, the noble fellow saves me about 20 jawings a week."

"So I see," chuckled Jones, "and you bet I'll have one before noon tomorrow."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

They Keep One Eye Shut.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mine, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, noting his surprise, explained the matter. He said the candles belonging to the barateros (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but where, nevertheless, the barateros see well enough not to run their heads against the rocks, but, on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures.

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpse of light, they drop the eyelid of one eye and keep this down while they are discharging their ore and until they have redescended the shaft.

When they are again in the dark, they open the eye kept hitherto in reserve and at once see everything distinctly, while the other eye, previously open and somewhat blinded by the daylight, perceives nothing at all.

Shopgirl's Hard Lot.

Persons complain that shopgirls do not jump actively to wait upon them when they enter a store. Why not? The other day I saw a girl approach a respectably dressed woman of middle age—that's 55—and heard her ask, over the counter, "What would you like, ma'am?"

To this polite attention I was shocked to hear the woman reply: "You shut up! Don't you talk to me! I can ask for what I want, and I don't want any impudence from clerks!"

A few rebuffs from such creatures are quite enough to cool the ardor of any shopgirl.

EUGENE FIELD AND TABOR.

How the Humorist Made Life a Burden For the Millionaire.

"Up to middle age the late Senator Tabor's life was one of great hardship," said a former resident of the Silver State, "and when he suddenly became fabulously rich he plunged into luxuries like a starving man wading into a banquet. One of his early freaks was the purchase of several magnificent lace nightrobes which cost $100 apiece and which he kept locked up in a safe during the day. Eugene Field was editor of the Denver Tribune at the time, and those lace nightrobes made him simply hysterical. He wrote column upon column about them, describing the garments in detail, with numerous diagrams depicting sections fore and aft. The diagrams were hideous affairs, which Field carved out himself with a penknife on the back of old wood type. He used to describe how Tabor would forget the combination of the safe and sit up, shivering and naked, half the night trying to remember the right figures.

"Altogether he kept Denver in a roar for weeks and made Tabor so wild that one day he rushed into his office, snatched the unfortunate nightrobes out of their compartment and tore them to threads. 'There, now!' he exclaimed, wiping his forehead and kicking the tattered fragments into a corner, 'I hope that fool will be satisfied. I'll be hanged if I ain't going to get a gunny sack,' he continued, 'cut some holes in the end for my head and arms, and then sleep in it for the rest of my life!'

"When Tabor was appointed to the senate to fill an unexpired term of exactly 29 days, Field broke loose again and had all kinds of fun with the old man. He declared that Tabor opposed the tariff bill on the ground that it encouraged lawlessness in the west. 'I don't know this tariff bill,' he reported the senator as saying in a speech, 'but we have entirely too many of 'em out where I live. There's Wild Bill and Pecos Bill and Billy the Kid—all no good. If you let Tariff Bill have everything to do with the custom house he is liable to steal the Atlantic ocean.' Many of the honest frontier folk took these flights of fancy seriously, and drove Tabor nearly distracted by long letters of remonstrance, urging him to read up and get posted, so as not to disgrace the state.

"At the expiration of the senator's brief term he circulated an autograph album among his fellow members, and the incident tickled Field immensely. He gave what purported to be a copy of the 'sentiments' inscribed in the volume by the different statesmen—such things as 'When this you see, remember me, Roscoe Conkling,' and 'Sure as the moss grows 'round a stump you are my darling sugar lump—I mean chump—George F. Hoar,' and similar nonsense, all of which maddened his victim.

"I think 'Gene Field was the only man Tabor never forgave, for in spite of his gaunt, forbidding exterior, the miner magnate was as tender hearted as a girl. He was really full of sterling qualities, and in his proper sphere he would have been anything but grotesque. One thing is sure—if every fellow he helped in secret would have joined his funeral procession he would have gone to his grave like an emperor of old."

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired and often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sickness to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the aching step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fire of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and so Death gathers in his sheaves.

SIDES WITH THE BOERS

Orange Free State Declares a Brotherhood of Arms Between Them.

THEY WILL FIGHT TOGETHER

Possibility That All the Dutch May Unite Against Great Britain—Boers Are Massing and Preparing to Make a Dash Through Part of Zululand.

London, Sept. 28.—The decision of the Volksraad of the Orange Free State to join with the Transvaal in the event of hostilities, although fully expected, is the leading news to-day and will, naturally stiffen the Boer's independent attitude. The Raad's resolution has made the brotherhood-of-arms between the Transvaal and the Orange Free State, of which, hitherto, there was only a strong probability, an absolute certainty and the British will have to face the situation.

The Volksraad's resolution was as follows: "The Raad having read paragraph 2 of the President's speech and the official documents and correspondence submitted therewith.

"Having regard for the strained state of affairs throughout the whole of South Africa, which has arisen in consequence of the difference between the Imperial Government and the Government of the Transvaal, which threatens to lead to hostilities, the calamitous consequence of which to the white inhabitants will be immeasurable.

"Being connected with the Transvaal by the closest ties of blood and confederacy.

"And, standing in the most friendly relationship with the Imperial Government and, fearing that should war break out, a hatred between the European races will be born which will arrest and retard the peaceful development of all the States and colonies of Africa and develop a distrust of the future,

"Feeling that the solemn duty rests upon it of doing everything possible to avoid the shedding of blood;

"Considering that the Transvaal Government, during its negotiations with the Imperial Government, which have extended over several months, have made every endeavor to arrive at a peaceful solution of the differences raised by the aliens of the Transvaal and taken up by the Imperial Government as its own cause, which endeavors have, unfortunately, only had this result, that British troops were concentrated on the border of the Transvaal and are still being strengthened,

"Resolved, that we instruct the Government to still use every means to maintain and ensure peace and, in a peaceful manner, contribute towards the solution of the existing difficulties, providing it be done without violating the honor and independence of the Free State and the Transvaal and wishes the Ministry to make known its opinion that there exists no cause for war and that war against the Transvaal, as now undertaken or occasioned by the Imperial Government, will, morally be a war against the whole white population of Africa and in its consequences, criminal, for, come what may, the Free State will honestly and faithfully fulfil its obligations towards the Transvaal by virtue of the political alliance between the two republics."

Intense excitement continues to prevail at Pretoria, where, apparently, it is considered that there is no escape from war. The commission appointed to consider the matter reported to-day as to what officials are necessary to carry on the Government in the event of war and fixing their salaries.

The field cornet at Pretoria is again [illegible] is actively proceeding, and all preparations are being made to take the field. An Englishman named Robertson has been arrested at Johannesburg charged with high treason. He is alleged to have enlisted troops for the Imperial Light horse.

THE ENTREE AN ECONOMY.

Dulls the Eater's Appetite For the Dinner Proper.

In the French and Italian cuisine, where economy is studied far more scientifically and thoroughly than in the English or American kitchen, the entree is not considered an extravagance. On the contrary, it is looked upon rather as an attractive economy—like soup, which dulls the eater's appetite so that he partakes less heartily of the more costly meat courses that follow. On the continent the luncheon never begins, as with us, with the chief dish of substantials. There is an introduction in the shape of a soup, or a dish of eggs, or of rice, or of macaroni, or semolino prepared in appetizing mode. Upon this the luncher tries the first edge of his appetite, so to speak. The piece de resistance comes afterward.

In the same manner, at dinner, the soup is almost invariably followed by one or two entrees. In the more ambitious menus these may consist of fish or poultry, or even of meat, prepared in croquettes or rissoles, or vol-au-vent. If there are two entrees, the vegetable will come second. But when, as is the case at many tables, there is only one entree, this is nearly always a vegetable and is served directly after the soup.

It must be borne in mind that the old fashioned custom which prevailed so generally some years ago in America, and is still to be found in certain places, of serving a number of vegetables with the principal meat dish is not followed on the continent. In England it is not unusual to see half a dozen dishes of vegetables appear with the roast. There they have even less idea of variety than is common with us, for precisely the same vegetables are offered day after day until one grows weary of the very sight of them. This, of course, is not the case among those people who have made a study of dinner giving and have grafted French customs on the British stock.

On the continent, however, things are done in a different fashion. At a simple dinner, containing, let us say, five courses, the first will be soup, the second a vegetable entree, the third meat of some kind, with one, or at the most two, vegetables and one of them rarely fails to be a salad. Then comes a sweet, and after it fruit or cheese. The vegetable that appears as an entree need not of necessity be costly or unusual. Perhaps it is only a cauliflower, served with a good white sauce, or spinach, not cooked as we see it here—the stems and leaves coarsely chopped—but minced to a powder and then put through a colander, so that it is deliciously smooth and soft before it is dressed with butter or cream and surrounded with three cornered bits of toast or friend bread, or the entree may be nothing more elegant than white turnips or young carrots cut into small pieces, stewed tender and served with a cream sauce, or celery divided into three inch lengths, fried brown and seasoned with a tomato gravy. The name of the combination is legion, but they all have one point in common—that they are comparatively inexpensive.—Harper's Bazar.

Poison Bottle Ornaments.

At the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in New York city, there is a great collection of ancient jewelry, much of it in gold richly adorned with precious stones. Jewelers in the metropolis frequently visit the museum for the purpose of obtaining suggestions. This collection at the Metropolitan museum is in fact the finest assemblage of antique objects of personal ornaments in existence. Some of them date as far back as 900 B. C. Those of them which are made of silver have been practically destroyed by oxidation, but the gold ones being cleaned are as bright and new looking as they were 2,500 or 3,000 years ago. The jewelry from Cyprus is the work of ancient Phoenicians and Greeks.

One thing very noticeable is the frequency of tiny gold bottles attached to objects of jewelry derived from those ancient times. All evidence points to the conclusion that they were employed to hold poison, for in those days life was by no means secure, and at any time an emergency might arise where a man or woman would be glad to end existence promptly to escape lifelong imprisonment or indescribable torture by the horrible means used by the ancients.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, my friend," argued the warder, "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

A DYSPEPSIA CURE

Ever Reliable and Welcomed by the Most Delicate Stomach is Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets.

Let the worst dyspeptic eat a pineapple a day for six months, and, so greatly would his health improve, he would look and feel like a new person. The reason is plain. The pineapple holds a generous supply of vegetable pepsin, which, next to the juices of the stomach, is the greatest digestive known. Very few people can obtain the daily pineapple but everyone can get Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets which are mainly composed of this precious fruit juice. They are eaten as candy, are as harmless as ripe fruit, and always give satisfaction.

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. They are taken in at Mr. Caleb Davis's Shop, at the Fortification; Mr. Andrew Gillespie's, near Dr. Clark's; Mr. Andrew Randale's, near Phillips's Wharf; and Mr. John Boies's in Long Lane; Mr. Frothingham's in Charleston; Mr. Williams's in Marblehead; Mr. Ellison's in Salem; Mr. John Harris's in Newbury; Mr. Daniel Fowle's in Portsmouth; and at the Paper Mill in Milton.

"Rags are as Beauties, which concealed lie;
But when in Paper, how it charms the Eye;
Pray save Rags, new Beauties to discover,
For Paper truly, every one's a Lover:
By th' Pen and Press such Knowledge is displayed,
As wouldn't exist if Paper was not made.
Wisdom of Things, mysterious, divine,
Illustriously doth on Paper shine."

But They Weren't Civilized.

Traveling in southern India, one day I was taken into the country to see tapioca roots gathered and ground for use. The adults working in the grove, men and women, had each a rag around the loins, but the boys and girls, with their black, glossy skins, were free of all incumbrance.

Our guide explained to these people that we were from a country so far away and so different from theirs that the waters were sometimes made solid by the extreme cold and we could walk upon them; that sometimes it was so intensely cold that the rain was frozen into particles and lay on the earth so deep that people could not walk through it, and that three and four layers of heavy clothes had to be worn.

This happy people, as our guide told us, wondered why we staid there, why we did not come and enjoy life in their favored clime.—Andrew Carnegie in North American Review.

Misunderstood.

Yesterday an Irishman came into the dentist's office suffering with a toothache.

WANTED FIRE BELL CLOTHES.

He Just Made Up His Mind to Kill That Town of St. Joe.

"Ah'm come back home for some clothes, an Ah want 'em wahm," said a tall young negro to a Walnut street haberdasher one day last spring. "Ah'm jes' agoin to kill that town of St. Joe. Show me the beatedest clothes yo' got in the house."

He was not cool as to raiment to start with. His overcoat was cream colored, overlaid with pearl buttons the size of those small butter plates still in use in restaurants. His trousers were green and ended in yellow shoes with brown shot silk tops. His hat was light blue, mottled in brown; his gloves were red and his cane heavily silvered.

"Can't no St. Joe nigger tell me Ah come from Raytown," he muttered. "Ah goes up to St. Joe to work, and the coons there laugh at me and tell me Ah ain't from Kansas City, because mah clothes is so inconspicuous, and Ah just save up mah money, and Ah'm agoin back to kill the town. Now what I want is some underclothes and socks and shirts and things that are the wahmest you've got."

"How will these do?" asked the haberdasher, exposing some scarlet hosiery, banded with wide white stripes.

"That's it. That's the kind of clothes Ah want. They ain't nothin in St. Joe like that. Lemme look at them underwear."

He inspected some red underwear with white stripes, some of baby blue with pink stripes and others of green with blue, black and red stripes. He bought neckscarfs of every shade of red, blue and green and of the most bewildering patterns. His purchases included zebra collars and pale pink shirts, diamond scarfpins at 35 cents each, but with $85 of shine, and a brown waistcoat with scarlet moons emblazoned on it.

"Ah've got 'em dead," he exclaimed when he has finished. "They've ceased to live. When Ah get back to that town of St. Joe they'll ask me if I come from Raytown, will they? Ah'm agoin to take back to that little ole burg such wahm clothes that they'll meet me with the fish department. That town's dead now, and Ah've killed it."

How Wealth Is Carried.

"It is rather amusing," remarked the head of the biggest bureau de change in London to the writer, "to notice the various methods in which men of different nationalities carry their worldly wealth. The Englishman carries his all loose in his right hand trousers pocket—gold, silver and copper all mixed up together. He pulls a handful of the mixture out of his pocket in a large, opulent way and selects the coins he has need of. The American carries his wad of bills in a peculiar long, narrow pocketbook, in which the greenbacks lie flat; the Frenchman makes use of a leather purse with no distinguishing characteristics, while the German uses one gayly embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Lottchen or Mina.

"The half civilized capitalist from some torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly devised pockets to baffle the gentlemen with the light fingers. Some of these belts are very expensive. The Italian of the poorer classes ties up his little fortune in a gayly colored handkerchief secured with many knots, which he secretes in some mysterious manner about his clothes. A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding place for his savings."—London Answers.

A CLEVER RUSE.

The Auctioneer Was Quick Witted and Finally Made a Sale.

An auctioneer on East Washington street—one of those redoubtable individuals commonly termed "slick"—was the cause of a farcical scene recently that would have done credit to a burlesque show. He had been talking industriously for a long time to a crowd of interested but enthusiastic listeners.

The affable auctioneer conscientiously went through his repertory from beginning to end, but somehow the crowd did not "warm up to him—to quote his own language. Finally, with a dark look that bordered on despair, he grabbed up a well known pasteboard hatbox containing about 50 spools of silk thread of different colors. With the grace of a conjurer he extracted five of the spools, and, arraying them in a tempting semicircle on the counter, announced that they were "to go at any price."

But the audience, while admitting with nods of approval that they were good spools of thread, displayed no marked inclination to become excited over them. Not a bid was offered.

"I'll sell 'em for 10 cents," suggested the auctioneer timidly. It was plain from the tone of his voice that he was losing faith in himself and in all the world. There were no takers. The man of the red flag added three more spools to the semicircle. "All for 10 cents," he declared. But thread stock was far below par. The auctioneer caught up all the spools from the counter and flung them into the box with an impressive gesture. The light of inspiration flashed from his eyes.

"The whole blamed box for 10 cents!" he cried.

"I'll take it," was the prompt response, and a little man in a washed out overcoat and wearer of red chin whiskers stepped out from the crowd with a dirty 10 cent piece in his upraised hand. The auctioneer clutched the money feverishly, and, turning the box upside down so that all the spools dropped into a basket on the counter, he handed the worthless piece of ancient pasteboard to the anxious customer. A roar of hilarious laughter rose from the crowd that was heard throughout that neighborhood.

"I don't want your blamed old box!" wailed the unfortunate purchaser.

"You said you'd take it," replied the auctioneer. "I'll leave it to the crowd—didn't he?"

"Yes!" came in a strong chorus from the delighted audience.

"I bought the spools!"

"No, you didn't! You bought the box! I'll leave it to the crowd—didn't he?"

"Yes!" came the answer again, stronger than ever. The red whiskered man stalked indignantly from the place with the box under his arm.

"What you going to do with it?" yelled the crowd.

"That's what!" cried the speculator as he held the pasteboard box in both hands, football fashion, and kicked it vigorously into the middle of Washington street.

They Keep Moving.

The religion of a Bedouin tribe seems to be to "move onward." Having once begun the nomadic life, it becomes almost necessary for them to keep it up. In the first place, they don't want to settle down, and they wouldn't have any place to stop if they wanted to. Sometimes it becomes expedient that they make great haste in these long journeys. Wandering around over the plains are other tribes whose only occupation is "moving on." There is frequently enmity between two of these Arabian families, and should one pursue the other it behooves the pursued to hasten onward with all the speed their animals are capable of. Or it may be that the springs of water are so widely separated that hard travel is necessary to make the distance from one to the other in a day.

When either of these contingencies arises, they cook and eat while on the march. They don't eat much. Two or three dinners such as American boys and girls are used to every day and something extra for Sundays and company are supposed not to agree with Bedouin children's stomachs. When on the road, bread is their chief food. This is baked while riding. One woman will mix the coarse flour which is carried in a sack on the back of her camel, another will roll and shape the dough, which is brought to her in small quantities, and a third will make a fire in an earthen vessel and attend to the baking. Women or boys on foot run along from one cook to the other and carry the material, and when the feast is ready they distribute it among the various members of the tribe.

Some women who never work for anything else will work like slaves for a church.

An old maid dearly loves to watch a quarrel between a husband and wife to see how it comes out.

If a man truly loves his wife, he is very apt to become confidential and tell her a lot of stories on the other fellows.

In talking it is well to know that people will not remember what you are saying unless they can use it against you.

A man always rises in his own estimation when he gets on familiar terms with a person of whom he once stood in awe.

There probably never was a woman too good to try to pass her children off as under age when traveling on the railroad.—Atchison Globe.

WEATHER PROPHETS.

Peacocks are reliable weather prophets. Before a storm the gaudy birds become restless and clamorous.

The green woodpecker is said to laugh his "Ya-ha-ha" in different, more liquid tones when rain is coming, and especially gifted persons claim his cry really changes to "rain, rain, rain!"

In Dorsetshire, England, they foretell storms by the flight of the rooks. When they are pitch falling or playing at tumbling, diving and wheeling in the air, they say a storm is due.

Sea fowl are very clever in foretelling a storm. To a sailor bad weather means wind, and to a landsman it means rain, but the screaming of the water birds usually foretells a change of some sort for the worse in the prevailing weather.

A Good Idea.

A correspondent suggests in another column the advisability of inviting the Government professional road-maker to Peterborough to instruct us in the art of road-making. It is quite evident that what we know in Peterborough about good roads would not make much in print and a few lessons might not come amiss. The Times is aware that it is not a popular suggestion to make that a man does not understand his business. Even so, we venture to state that our so-called road builders should be taught their business.

THE BOARD OF WORKS.

Lively Meeting Over the Paving Contracts Yesterday.

A meeting of the Board of Works took place yesterday at 11.30, called for the purpose of dealing with the paving contracts. It was a warm meeting.

The Mayor and Aldermen Best, McWilliams, Denne and Sawers paid a visit to the corner of Charlotte and Stewart streets, where Mr. George Rose is laying pavements for the town by day work to make a test. They found that it took nine bags of Star cement to fill a box 3 ft x 3 ft. x 12 in.

They also ordered a strip of pavement to be laid composed of two parts of granite and one of cement and on examination it was found that it had made a very satisfactory pavement.

At the meeting yesterday there were present Ald Best, Denne, Sawers, Corkery, McWilliams, Langford and the Mayor, who is acting chairman. The Town Engineer had asked to have the meeting called because he wanted the council's instructions as to whether he was to let the work, both contract and day, go on as it now is, that is, of granite, sand and cement, or whether he should enforce the specifications of two parts of granite and one of cement.

After considerable discussion it was moved by Ald. Best, seconded by Ald. Denne, that Mr. Hay be authorized to order Mr. Rose to go on with the day work according to the original specifications, two parts of granite to one of cement, until further notice, on Stewart street, as far as Hunter.—Carried.

A hot discussion followed, Ald. Langford arguing in favor of the contractors. Mayor Davis supposed that Mr. Sheehy was putting in the same proportions of granite, sand and cement, as last year.

Aldermen McWilliams and Sawers contended that specifications were furnished every contractor and that they had no right to follow anything else.

Ald. Dennie struck the nail on the head when he asked why Inspector Ranney had not stopped the work when he discovered the way it was being done.

The engineer stated that he had not authorised any deviation from specifications in contracts.

Ald. McWilliams expressed the opinion that the business way for the council to act was to make a test according to the specifications; then make a test according to the way the work is done, then find the cost per foot each way and withhold from the contractor the difference.

The matter was formally disposed of for the time being by the committee ordering the engineer to report on Monday night.

The Times and the ratepayers would like to know from Engineer Hay why he allowed the work to go on after Inspector Ranney reported to him the way it was being done.

Our Mineral Wealth.

Mr John Webber, head of the firm of John Webber & Sons, mining brokers, 14 Victoria Street, Toronto, called on the Times yesterday on his way home from a week's prospecting tour in Burleigh. Mr Webber is after tin and thinks that our back country is rich, not only in tin, but in other minerals. He predicts a great future for the back country when the extent of the mineral wealth which undoubtedly lies hidden there becomes known.

Bad Piece of Road.

Those who attended the fair could hardly help noticing the horrible condition of the roadway near the C P R. Many will remember the fact that this road was "overhauled" and "rebuilt" some months ago, and a substantial (?) foundation of mud laid, on which gravel and stone was placed. The result is as might be expected—mud almost up to the hubs of the vehicles that are forced to pass over it.

A Grandma Tale ...ABOUT... Grape-Nuts

A man said, when he was a boy his grandma used to brown some slices of bread and pound them up in an old mortar and feed them with milk to his brothers and himself.

He remarked that he believed Grape-Nuts, the famous food, was made in the same way, but a gentleman in the party remarked that he had investigated Grape-Nuts carefully and found that the grain from which it was made was prepared by various processes of long soaking, warmth and time, by which the peculiar element under the shell of wheat and barley is developed. This element is called diastase and its work is to change the starch of grains into grape-sugar. This same process is gone through with in the human body when any whole grain preparation is used, such as rolled wheat or oats, or entire wheat bread. But the trouble is that so many people are weak in their intestinal digestion and bread and the starch containing cereals are not properly digested, thus producing gas and bowel complaints, often ending in appendicitis or kindred difficulties. Grape-Nuts food being predigested mechanically before going into the human body is ready for quick and easy assimilation and people of weak digestion can thus obtain the full value from a healthful and most nourishing natural food. The favor of Grape-Nuts is a delicate sweet, that of true grape-sugar to be seen glistening on the little particles. This sugar is not added to them, but is produced in the change from starch to grape-sugar and evolved in the processes. The famous food is sold by all first-class grocers and made by the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., at Battle Creek, Mich.

CONTRACTOR SHEEHY SPEAKS.

He States that he is Simply Following Instructions.

Yesterday Mr Richard Sheehy told the Times that he was simply following instructions in the matter of building cement walks. He says that he is preparing the material in the same way now as he did at the start, using the same proportion of cement. The other contractors in town who are building granolithic walks do the same. He felt that he was being badly treated, and thought the Times should not have made it appear that he was the only contractor who was using the Ensign cement. Mr Sheehy felt exceedingly sore over the statement made by Ald McWilliams and published in the Times to the effect that he had "approached" several Aldermen, and emphatically denied the assertion.

We are sure, as far as the Times is concerned, that Mr Sheehy has little cause to complain. Personally we have a friendly regard for Mr Sheehy, and feel that the fault is largely with the chairman of the Board of Works and the Town Engineer. If what the Inspectors says is true, to the effect that he notified the Chairman and Engineer that the proper quantity of cement was not being put in, then who, we ask, is the chief sinner? Is it not these men?

Mr Sheehy states that he was instructed in the matter of the quantity of cement to use, and he followed these instructions. Then, who instructed him? Why was he allowed to go on? Why are the other contractors allowed to go on, if what Mr Sheehy says is true, that they are using the same proportion and quality of cement?

The Times believes in according Mr Sheehy British fair play. If he has been following instructions, we don't see how he can be held responsible. Let those in authority be brought to a strict account for the present very grave state of affairs

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Copies of the Times were at a premium yesterday, and after nine o'clock could not be had for love or money. The charges of Mr Ranney against contractor Sheehy as given in our columns caused considerable talk. Read the Times for future developments.

To Go to Egypt.

Mr A G Kirkpatrick, C E., for a time with the Grand Trunk railway here, has accepted a position as engineer on the government system in Egypt, with head quarters at Cairo. Mr Kirkpatrick is a relative of Mrs J F Dennistoun, Peterborough. He is to get a salary of $300 a month.

A Suggestion.

Editor Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—As the air around your city hall is full of investigations and suggestions, allow me, as a visitor to your town, to suggest that your Council invite Mr A W Campbell, the Provincial Road Instructor, to come and give the people of Peterborough the benefit of his experience as to how good streets can be made. When the Ontario Government has seen fit to have such an official, and one who has given excellent advice in other places, I think that he can show you where a few improvements can be made in your town's thoroughfares. Thanking you, I am,

Yours truly,
J F SCARTH.

In a New Role.

Mayor Davis read the first lesson at St Luke's church on Thursday night, on which occasion the members of the Council, with one exception, we understand, were present. The Council as a body have made several remarkable "breaks" during the year, but this one is certainly novel. It is to be hoped that they prevailed on the Town Engineer and contractors also to attend so that they will have a clearer conception of their duty in regard to mixing cement.

DROPPED IN A BARREL.

When a Plump, Pretty Maiden Stands on Susceptible Barrel There's Trouble.

The Times advises its readers not to pick fruit from the top of a barrel.

In a house not far removed from Peterborough lives a young lady whom we will call Addie.

Addie wanted grapes the other day, so she went several "versts" from the habitation in quest of the fruit which, in fable lore, was libeled by the fox, the latter making some reference to acidulation.

At any rate grapes was what Addie was after, but in order to reach them she needed some sort of stand. No step-ladder was handy, so she took a barrel. With her little feet gaining the head of the barrel [illegible] of the brain she plucked the fruit of the vine and was happy, very happy in her pristine, maidenly way.

No picture could be more enticing than a lovely maiden standing on a barrel—a barrel that had served its original usefulness—plucking the globules of the vine.

Addie was perfectly happy until something happened.

The head of the barrel, pulsating with [illegible] and joy at bearing such lovely weight, gave way and Miss Addie dropped within the confines of the staves.

There would have been no necessity of this story having been written if Addie had been attenuated, scrawney, etc.

She was not. She is a plump, pleasing young woman, and if she had been measured for a barrel she would have required a size larger.

This new wooden hoopskirt was a close fit. While it had not a Parisian finish or a Worth or Redfern touch, still it had a clinging effect and there was no escape.

Nothing was left in the line of feminine argument but to scream. This was what the lady with the lignum overskirt did.

The barrel was full of girl and the girl was full of grapes, and plethora of grape juice, has in many ages, caused trouble, but this was a case of the plain grape of husbandry, or wifery.

At any rate, the screams of Miss Addie did nothing but put dents in the atmosphere. In the meantime her vocal struggles had caused the barrel to upset and it was impossible for the maiden to right her prison.

According to dry measure 32 gals make one barrel.

This was proved by a base misstatement. This one "gal" overflowed one barrel and the other 31 "gals" were excess "baggage."

To simmer the matter down. Miss Addie found herself in a quandary, and incidentally a barrel. She was on her side and her cries availed her naught, but in fact they were not naughty cries, but still something had to be done and Addie while she couldn't rise to the occasion, did the best to navigate the barrel towards home

She was without compass, chart or rudder, but she started to roll in the direction of home and mother. Ever and anon she would halt in her peculiar style of locomotion long enough to send forth piercing cries for aid.

One-half hour had been consumed in this barrel—narrow-guage system of locomotion—when her cries pierced ears that were not callous.

Assistance arrived, but it was not until the hoops had been cut and the staves yanked away that Miss Addie escaped from her wooden-hoop skirt.

A vow has been registered by the young woman to the effect that the next time she stands on a barrel she won't stand on it.

A Touching Incident.

There was an auction sale in the little house, and one after another the widow's few possessions fell beneath the hammer. Presently the auctioneer took up a large bowl which happened to be full of sugar, and the poor woman, anxious to save its contents, hastened into the next room to find something in which to put them.

Just as she returned the auctioneer cried, "Sold!" and the purchaser insisted that the sugar was his. The widow pleaded for the little that was much to her, but the man was obdurate, and murmurs of indignation arose from the crowd. Angry at this demonstration, the man turned, and his eye rested on Henry. A. Wise.

"Mr. Wise," said he, "you are a lawyer. Am I right or not? If you say I am not, I will give back the sugar. If you say I am, I am entitled to it, and I'll keep it."

"My friend," replied Wise, in his gentlest tone, "you put a delicate and unpleasant responsibility on me. Hadn't you better decide the matter for yourself?"

"No," replied the fellow, curtly. "I know what your opinion is going to be, and I want you to give it so that this whole crowd can hear it."

"Then," said Wise, "I advise you that the sugar is yours. The widow cannot take it from you. She has no redress."

"Aha!" cried the man, turning to the spectators. "What did I tell you?"

"Stop!" thundered Wise, whose manner at once changed. "I've advised you at your persistent request, as I can prove by these people. It remains for me to tell you that I charge you five dollars for my advice, and I demand immediate payment. If you trifle with me in the matter of payment, you will most certainly regret it."

The man turned scarlet, and, fumbled in his wallet, produced a five-dollar bill. The crowd [illegible] approval, but suddenly became silent as Mr Wise walked up to the widow and said:

"This money is mine. I have earned it honestly. Take it and buy more sugar for your fatherless children."

PERSONNEL OF THE FORCE.

Generals Who Will Lead the Army In South Africa.

Almost Certain That General Buller, Former Adjutant-General, Will Have the Supreme Command—Dissatisfaction is Expressed With White's Inexperience.

London, Sept. 30th.—Comment regarding the personnel and material of the British force which is expected to be fighting within a short time in South Africa continues to occupy a large share of public attention. Many criticisms appear, blaming the Government for not permitting the War Office many months ago to put an adequate defensive force on the probable scene of action. But the rumors of the forthcoming departure of an army corps somewhat appease these critics. It is almost certain General Sir Redvers Henry Buller, the former Adjutant General, will have supreme command in South Africa. In the meantime the military responsibility is divided between Major-General Sir George Stewart White and Lieut.-Gen. Sir Fredrick William Forestier-Walker, the latter at the Cape and the former in Natal, each being supreme over his own district. General White, who is described as a fighting man "keen as mustard," has not yet arrived in Natal. Upon him will develop the duty of checking any desultory Boer raids, or, in case of a premature outbreak of actual hostilities, of holding Natal until General Buller's army corps arrives, when the aggressive British campaign will probably occur.

Dissatisfaction.

Some dissatisfaction is expressed because General White has never served in South Africa. But it is generally thought that his fighting abilities will more than make up for his lack of topographical knowledge. Under Generals White and Walker will be a host of officers specially selected for their knowledge of Boer methods and South African campaigning. General Sir William Symons, General White's second in command, is one of the few survivors of the massacre of Isandlwhana. The artillery in Natal will be commanded by Colonel Downing, late chief instructor at the School of Gunnery, Shoeburyness, who has the highest scientific and practical reputation.

A Dashing Officer.

Much has been said regarding the physical unfitness of a large percentage of the British rank and file going to South Africa or already there. A great difference of opinion on the subject exists. But it can be said that the regiments selected are believed to have the highest standard of physique, and all are comparatively long-service men.

Many of the British officers believe the Mauser, with which the Boers are armed, is superior to the Lee-Metford rifle of the British for use against civilized troops. A small-arms expert said to a reporter of the Associated Press: "The Lee-Metford will stop savages, but that is not the object most desirable when fighting against civilized forces. Under a well managed Mauser fire troops will come on, dropping gradually from the effect of galling wounds and not realizing the necessity of cover or retreat until when within the deadly zone, they find half their number disabled and unable to face the full weight of short range fire. In other words, Mauser-armed troops are more deceptive to the enemy than those armed with Lee-Metfords, the effect of the latter being immediately visible to the officers directing the fight."

The Colonial Horses.

The Indian and Australian horses which will be much used by the cavalry and mounted infantry, will probably suffer more from the change of country than the men, being obliged to live on oats and mealies, a form of fodder they are utterly unaccustomed to.

The apparent inclination of the Secretary of State for War, the Marquis of Lansdowne, to run the campaign preparations on his own idea and his tendency to support subordinate officers have called forth a published reminder that he has a capable commander-in-chief at his elbow. P

CAPT. CALVERT'S TALE

Officers of Scotsman Almost Went Down on Their Knees.

MORE DEATHS PROBABLE

Unless Immediate Reaches Them on the Island.

When Passengers and Crew Were Brought Alongside They Were Unable to Climb Up the Ladder, and on Reaching the Deck Fell Down Exhausted.

Quebec, Sept. 30.—The people who arrived on the Grecian are in the most destitute condition, but they are more fortunate than those on the Montfort, owing to the fact that the Grecian had plenty of provisions to feed them. Capt. C. H. Calvert told the story of the rescue as follows: He was near the scene of the disaster when the fog came down very thick. The Montfort, however, had sighted him and went to meet him, blowing fog signals frequently. The captain thought that probably the Montfort was some vessel going out so as to avoid accidents; he came to a stop to await the shifting of the fog and provide against collison. The two vessels answered each other with the fog signals, and thus kept apart.

At nine o'clock the fog lifted and both vessels started to move. Capt. Calvert was very much surprised when the Montfort fired a rocket, as the sea was calm and there seemed to be nothing the matter. In a few minutes later they fired a bomb and then the Grecian turned around and went within hailing distance.

Informed of Wreck.

He was then informed of the wreck, and proposed to stand by to take off the rest of the survivors in the morning. He agreed to do so and the Montfort continued. Almost immediately the engineer of the new fog signal, now being constructed on the island, together with the chief officer of the Scotsman, came off in a boat and begged almost on their knees to get the poor people aboard at the earliest opportunity. Accordingly, the captain launched the life boat and putting in six sailors towed the engineer's boat back to the light-house. The next morning the rescue began. During the night the Grecian ran down to the wreck, but although very close, the captain was unable to see the vessel, owing to the intense darkness, and the fact that she lay over in the shadow of the cliff. Capt. Calvert could not express an opinion as to whether or not the ship was a total loss.

Scotsman Won't Last Long.

He says that if the officers of the ship are correct the Scotsman will not last long, but there is no means at present of getting absolutely fixed information. At day break the captain sent a life boat ashore and brought off about thirty of the crew. The next boat brought the seventeen passengers who were then at the light house. Early in the morning searching parties had gone out to gather in the stragglers, but they did not meet with great success, as there are perhaps forty or fifty still on the island all scattered in parties of two or three.

Were Very Weak.

When the passengers and crew were brought alongside they were so weak that they were unable to climb the ladder, and all had to be hoisted on deck. Many of them as soon as they reached the Grecian's deck overcome with exhaustion and the relief of finding a place of safety.

More Deaths Probable.

Although Capt. Calvert says that never in his life has he heard such terrible tales of suffering and seen such pitiable sights he is of the opinion that there will be many deaths on the island unless immediate relief reaches there.

Seven or Eight Dead.

Mr. Walter White, of Cressington Park, Liverpool, is a merchant, who was coming out here in connection with some timber business. He is a passenger on the Grecian, and the only clothes he has consist of a night shirt, a pair of trousers and a dressing gown, which belongs to another gentleman. He is of the opinion that there are already seven or eight deaths on the island.

Two Bodies Seen.

Mr. Jones told Mr. White that he had seen two bodies, and the second mate of the Scotsman says that he buried one woman in the deep moss. He had seen her, but could not say whether she belonged to the steerage, intermediate, or cabin list, and as far as knowing her name, that was out of the question.

No Chance of Rescue.

Mr. White says that, judging from the exhausted state in which many were after their terrible struggle among the rocks, he is of the opinion that many will die. There is a very small chance of rescue, as the different passengers are scattered over the whole island. Mr. White's story of his own experiences, while walking from the ship to the place near the lighthouse from which he was taken to the ship, is almost a thrilling recital.

THE CREW WORKED FAITHFULLY

Montreal, Sept. 30.—Third Officer Williams of the Scotsman, who represented the officers of the wrecked vessel, was asked for an official statement. "I cannot enter into any discussion as to the accident," he said. "When the alarm was given it was the duty of every officer and certain members of the crew to reach the deck with all possible haste. This they did, and the work which falls to the lot of each man on such an occasion was faithfully done. I am told that some of the crew stole from the cabins. This may be so, but I have no personal knowledge of it. I cannot say anything whatever as to the cause of the accident."

Noble Fellows.

Mr Albert McFarlane of the Dominion Line, did not deny for a moment the stories of the looting and disgraceful conduct of some of the men. He wished to point out, however, that the men who were really considered the crew were noble fellows, who had done their duty. There were a number of firemen engaged in Liverpool, and these he feared had been guilty of the crimes charged against them.

The Ship's Doctor.

Dr. H. M. Henderson, of the Scotsman, stated that he did not care, owing to his position, to discuss the wreck, but on being questioned he said that, considering the circumstances, the health of the passengers was very good. A number of course, were suffering from exposure, but it was not at all serious. The doctor could not tell the number of lives lost and would not make an estimate. He was continuously with the passengers on the rocks until the arrival of the Montfort.

Crew Arrested.

Under orders from Capt. Skrimshire all members of the crew brought up this morning on the Grecian were held under arrest to be searched.

It is stated, however, that the majority of the stokers who were guilty of pillage were shipped aboard the Monterey

The Salvage Operations.

A private despatch from Liverpool received in the city this morning states that Captain Young of the salvage steamer Ranger has been sent out from Liverpool to conduct wrecking operations on the steamer Scotsman.

Attacked the Monarchy.

Madrid, Sept. 30.—A meeting of Republicans was held here last evening, which was attended by 6,000 persons Among those present were a number of leading French, Italian and Portuguese Republicans.

Several violent speeches were made, in the course of which the monarchy was attacked.

At the Burgos Catholic Congress a committee was appointed to establish a Republican union. A resolution was passed demanding that steps be taken to secure the liberation of the Spanish prisoners held by the insurgents in the Philippines.

BOERS GETTING NASTY

THE CRISIS APPROACHING.

Preparations for War Are Going Ahead Rapidly.

Reported That a Down Train Has Been Stopped at Volksrust for the Purpose of Seizing Prominent Uitlanders—An Act of Treason to Great Britain.

London, Sept. 30.—The Boer reply had not reached the Colonial Office at noon, much to the astonishment of the officials, who remained on duty all night long, expecting its arrival at any moment.

If possible, the war preparations are more active than ever. At Southampton there was a scene of considerable excitement, two transports leaving that port to-day. Further contingents of troops of various arms, on a third transport, left the Mersey this afternoon. Four liners were chartered at Liverpool this morning to call at Naples, where each vessel will embark 3,000 mules.

Opinions in Cape Town.

The Cape Town Times says: It is impossible to say what are the real grounds for the Transvaal military activity until the nature of the despatches of the Imperial Government, Orange Free State and Transvaal are known, therefore it is useless to speculate on the chances of an early recourse to hostilities.'

Commenting upon the apathy of Premier Schreiner's colleagues, the paper says:

"If the Premier possesses information leading him to the belief that there is no necessity for the precautions which others believe are urgently demanded, it is Mr Schreiner's duty to set the public mind at rest."

Boers Have Troubles.

According to advices from Pretoria, it appears that the authorities there are serving out no more Mausers, but are giving the burgers Martinis instead. This is mainly due to the defective Mauser cartridge, which is constantly bursting in the barrels, and destroying the bolt action.

A telegram from Pretoria, dated yesterday, says the wildest excitement prevails there, and that the war preparations are proceeding apace. Big guns, field telegraphs, burghers, munitions of war, and provisions, are being hurried off to Volksrust, the projected base of against Natal. Crowds gather at the station to witness the departure of the military trains. The Boer War Office is working night and day and commandering is actively proceeding.

The Raad, in order to secure the support of many Uitlanders, has decided that Uitlanders who help the Boers will receive the franchise. Several of the Transvaal Government departments close to-morrow, including the High Court. Immediately is proclaimed, outside postal communication will be stopped. The secret session which the Raad is holding this afternoon will probably adjourn until Wednesday for the result of the British Cabinet meeting.

The Transvaal is concentrating artillery along the Natal border, and its reserve artillery has been despatched to Standardton and to Wakkerstroom, and also to Rustemberg, which will probably form the base of an attack on Bechuanaland, in the direction of Mafeking, where a British counter force is assembling and fortifications are being raised.

Boers are Insulting.

The occupants of trains from the Transvaal, arriving at Ladysmith, confirm the movement of burghers in the direction of the frontier. They also declare that the Boers insulted them when passing the stations, and that one Boer assaulted a passenger without provocation.

About 1,500 Boer artillerymen, including the reserves are encamped at Volksrust where the field cornet has now issued 925 rifles and 45,000 cartridges.

Arresting Uitlanders.

It is reported that a down train, due at Durban to-morrow, has been stopped at Volksrust for the purpose of seizing prominent Uitlanders.

Treason to Britain.

From Vryburgh it is said that a native laborer has sworn an affidavit before a magistrate that he saw troops between 12 and 20 armed Boers, enter the colony from the Transvaal, and visit a farmer named Haasbruck. They remained in the house a considerable time, then crept back across the frontier by a dry watercourse.

A telegram from Aliwal in the north, says the Orange Free State is stopping wagons, produce and live stock, en route to Cape Colony. The Burghers, it is further said, are allowed to cross the frontier for business but are expected to return immediately.

IN AN OPEN BOAT.

Exciting Adventures of the Crew of the Steamer Arosia.

Glasgow, Sept. 30.—A remarkable story of privation is told by the fourteen survivors of the steamer Arosia, which foundered while on a voyage from Elba to Glasgow.

When the vessel began to sink twenty-six men forming the crew got into two boats—sixteen in a whale-boat, and ten in the other—but so rapidly did the steamer go down that they were scarcely able to get anything in the way of provisions away with them.

As night came on those in the whale-boat lost sight of the second boat, and they believe she has been lost in the bad weather experienced in the following days. The whale-boat itself was partially swamped time after time by big seas, and the first mate and one of the crew were carried overboard and drowned, reducing the number in the boat to fourteen.

The water they had on board was spilt by the seas which came aboard, and all they had for sustenance was a bag of ship biscuits which had got soaked with sea water. Even this provision ran out, with the result that they were without food or water for a day or two. Bailing the boat continually was also a great tax on their strength.

At last, after they had been six days in the boat, they saw with delight the packet-boat Lou Cettori coming towards them. Although there was a heavy sea on at the time, and they were utterly exhausted, they were safely got on board this vessel and were subsequently landed at Marseilles.

AGUINALDO GOES AHEAD.

He Outbids General Otis in the Purchase of Arms.

London, Sept. 30.—The Times publishes this morning long extracts from a private letter from Manila, dated Aug. 21, whose writer asserts that Aguinaldo is getting the best of it; that the Americans are making no practical progress; that Aguinaldo has regained his influence over the villages, and has lately obtained a lot of money, with which he is endeavoring to ferment disturbances in Manila.

'Aguinaldo,' says the writer, 'offers double the amount of the rewards for American rifles and arms that General Otis offers for Filipino weapons. The result is that the Americans get none of the latter, while their own are being constantly stolen.'

After calling Gen. Otis 'good-intentioned, but sluggish and extremely parsimonious,' the letter attributes the difficulty of the Americans very largely to false economies. Many towns are inadequately policed, but the officers know it would be useless to ask for more. The hospitals are inadequently staffed, but General Otis declares, according to the writer, that half the men in the hospitals are not sick, and to increase the hospitals would only result in an increase of pretended invalids.

Advice to Volunteers.

London, Sept. 30.—Sir Redvers Buller, in his report upon the visit of 12,305 volunteers from London, Liverpool and the Midland counties to Aldershot during the summer months, whilst saying that the behavior of the volunteers was very good, said that he has received satisfactory reports as to their work in the field, and that the camps were better kept than in previous years, observes:

"There is one remark though which I should like all volunteer commanders to lay to heart. They harass their men with unnecessary movements. Owing, I fancy, to the fact that most of their opportunities for training are in drill halls, the commanders, when at field operations, pay too much attention to drill. Men are frequently moved to get them into an exact formation when they are well where they are, and would be better if permitted to rest. It is very difficult to learn, but at field exercises volunteer commanding officers of all ranks should strive to pay less attention to what their men are doing and more to what they are going to do with their men.

Lipton is an Expert.

London, Sept. 30.—M A P (Mainly About People) says it has been Sir Thos Lipton's keen ambition for many years to become the challenger for the America's Cup, and that the popular conception of him as not knowing much about yachts is a mistake, as, twelve years ago, when the Thistle was fitting out, Lipton, who was then in business in Glasgow, took the greatest interest in all the details of her sails and he has done a great deal for yachting in a quiet way and knows how to handle a boat better than ninety-nine out of a hundred of his critics.

Shot a Girl, Then Himself.

Rodney, Ont., Sept. 30.—Last night about six o'clock Philip McPhail, who worked for P Doyle, farmer, near Wardsville, shot P Doyle's eldest daughter, a young lady about 19 years of age, and afterwards went to his home, about a mile from Doyle's place, and shot himself in the left breast, dying about 12 o'clock at night.

Miss Doyle was shot in the left ear. The doctors in attendance think she will recover. No reason is known why McPhail committed the act.

Sir Louis Davies' Mission.

London, Sept. 30.—Sir Louis Davies expects to finish his share of the Alaskan boundary matter in two weeks and will probably return home October 10. The negotiations at present are confined to consultations between Great Britain and Canada.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, SEPTEMBER 30, 1899

DATE OF THANKSGIVING.

Canadian papers are renewing their appeal for the selection of an earlier and more suitable date for Thanksgiving Day than the latter part of November. The date chosen by the government during the last three years, while suitable enough in New York, and even New Ealand, perhaps, in this latitude generally gives a blank between-seasons day, neither calculated to create thanksgiving nor suitable to play football on. An October Thanksgiving Day would be preferable in several ways.

REDEMPTION OF BANK NOTES.

Under the Banking Act, when a bank fails and the liquidator does not within two months redeem the notes of the defunct bank at par with six per cent interest from the date of suspension, the minister of finance or the receiver general may order the notes to be paid out of a fund called the Bank Circulation Redemption fund, which is provided by a contribution from the banks of five per cent of their paid up capital stock, which is retained by the government at the time the charter is granted. In case the fund is not sufficient to redeem the notes during any one year an additional assessment may be made on the banks of one per cent of the average amount of their notes in circulation.

As a result of the failure of the Ville Marie bank the draught on this sum is likely to be heavy because the bank is alleged to have in circulation about $200,000 in excess of what it was authorized to issue. This was done in contravention of the law. It is possible that a question may arise as to the right of the government to redeem these illegally issued notes from the fund referred to, for the reason that the issue was illegal. It is held by some banking authorities that the fund is for the redemption of bank notes legitimately circulated and that two-thirds of the circulation of the Ville Marie being unauthorised cannot be paid out of the fund. The banking act does not appear to provide for this contingency and the contention is that the redemption fund is for the protection of the public from loss on bona fide bank notes issued according to law, and not for the redemption of the illegal issues, whether they be forgeries or otherwise, put into circulation unlawfully. If the point is raised it may result in an interesting suit.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Good morning.

* * *

The Premier of British Columbia don't ever take time by the forelock. He proposes catching the Chinese by the queue and throwing them out of the country.

THE SPICE OF LIFE.

An Ohio girl laughed four hours without stopping. The name of the youth who wore the golf suit is not given.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Twentieth Kansas regiment is a vindication of the scholar in war. It contains more students than any other regiment under the flag.—Kansas City Star.

If the peace conference does any good in disarming Europe, it might be a good idea to try disarming the man who carries a gun in the United States.—Pittsburg Times.

Seats on the New York Stock Exchange sell at $40,000 nowadays. Few are more costly, but Uncle Sam's expenses at the seat of war to date have not been small.—Boston Globe.

It is stated that the English language is growing faster than any other, past or present. This is because those who use it have a great deal to say in this world.—Philadelphia Times.

An eastern prophet is quite positive that we are booked for a "long, hot, dry summer." Perhaps this seer is a first cousin to the fellow who predicted an early spring.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Chelsea woman who planted some peanuts this spring and mourned because the expected plants did not result has just learned that peanut growers usually select nuts for planting that have not been roasted.—Washington Post.

One way of distinguishing diamonds from glass and paste is to touch them with the tongue. The diamond feels much the colder. None of the editors of our acquaintance are complaining of chilblains on their tongues.—Minneapolis Times.

"With secret initiatory exercises," says a Chicago dispatch, "the well known suffrage leaders, Susan B. Anthony and the Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, have been made members of the American Woman's Relief corps, No. 31." Was there a sidesaddle on the goat?—Buffalo Express.

Giovanni Cattetta came to this country on the Bretagne with a hump on his back. Some superstitious custom house officials touched it, obeying the old adage that to touch a hump brings good luck. They were rewarded, for the hump was artificial and filled with $1,000 worth of jewelry.—Boston Traveler.

PERT PERSONALS.

May Irwin is billed to play Juliet. Probably she will do it by the pound.—St. Louis Republic.

It is Russell Sage's desire to die rich—and be buried as cheaply as possible.—Washington Post.

If money talks, John D. Rockefeller can hold the floor the balance of his natural life.—Nashville American.

There will be no Hobson business when General Funston comes home. There is a Mrs. Funston.—Kansas City Star.

The kaiser has been called a "poodle prince" and can't do anything but treat the aspersion with dogged indifference.—St. Paul Dispatch.

Congressman Elect Roberts only bears an occasional Mauser bullet from the firing line now, but wait until he gets into range at Washington.—San Francisco Chronicle.

William Winter sarcastically says that "Maude Adams as Juliet bleats her part." This has aroused such a protest that probably William feels sheepish himself.—Boston Advertiser.

We understand that Dr. Mary Walker is opposed to woman's rights. She believes only she and other sensible men can understand the blessed privileges of the ballot.—Louisville Post.

General Merritt says he hugs himself because he is an American citizen. A man who would rob his wife of that marital right is scarcely worthy to be called an American citizen.—Denver Post.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The oldest queen of Europe now is the queen of Hanover, who was 81 years old in April. Queen Victoria comes next, being 80, while the ex-Empress Eugenie is 73.

Duke Karl Theodor of Bavaria, the oculist and brother of the late empress of Austria and of the ex-queen of Naples, has just celebrated his silver wedding at the castle of Tegernsee.

The Duke of Connaught is less than six years younger than the Duke of Saxe-Coburg, to whom he now becomes heir presumptive. The latter was born on Aug. 6, 1844, and the Duke of Connaught on May 1, 1850.

The Prince of Wales is said to have determined to give up yachting. His ventures in the sport have never resulted well, and he has already withdrawn from two yacht clubs with which he has been long identified.

POLITICAL QUIPS.

What a congressman learns during his first term he doesn't always tell when seeking a second.—Chicago News.

Every candidate for speaker this side of the Hudson river appears to be running as a western man.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The dinner has come to be a big factor in politics—not that men must eat, but that men must talk.—Cascade (Ia.) Courier.

When he insists that only honest men should hold office, Governor Roosevelt forgets how many offices there are.—Detroit News.

A majority of our politicians have small knowledge of the science which they assume to represent and in which they presume to teach their fellow citizens.—Atlanta Journal.

RAILWAY RUMBLES.

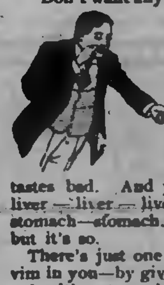
The Siberian railway has already 80 refrigerator cars for taking butter to the Russian cities.

On Chinese railways the highest paid employees are the telegraph operators, who get $17.50 per month.

At the railway stations in Russia books are kept in which passengers may enter any complaints they may wish to make.

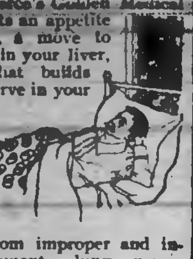
Railway whistles inflict torture on so many people that the efforts abroad to check the plague will be followed with interest. Austria has introduced a system of dumb signaling to start and stop the trains. Belgium is trying compressed air whistles instead of steam, and Germany [illegible] with horns.

IT IS BREAKFAST TIME!



"Don't want any." "It's time to go to work!" "Leave me alone." There you are, limp as a rag, lying in bed when there's good cold cash waiting for you down-town. But your head is heavy. Your eyelids are lead. Your tongue tastes bad. And you don't care. It's liver—liver—liver. And stomach—stomach—stomach. You don't know it, but it's so.

There's just one remedy that will put vim in you—by giving you clean bowels, a healthy stomach, a lively liver, and blood that is rich and red and don't stagnate. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It puts an appetite in your stomach, a move to your bowels, life in your liver, and the stuff that builds bone, flesh and nerve in your blood. It will make you sleep at night, wake in the morning, eat your meals and work with a zest. It cures all diseases resulting from improper and insufficient nourishment — lung, nerve, liver and blood troubles. It contains no alcohol to inebriate or create craving for stimulants. An honest dealer won't offer you an inferior substitute for a little extra profit.



In a letter received from A. D. Weller, Esq., of Pensacola, Escambia Co., Fla. (Box 544), he states: "I have, since receiving your diagnosis of my case as stomach trouble and liver complaint, taken eight bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and must say that I am transformed from a walking shadow (as my friends called me) to perfect health. I value your remedies very highly and take pleasure in recommending them to any and all who suffer as I did. Four months ago I did not think to be in shape to assist our 'Uncle Samuel' in case of hostilities, but thanks to you, I am now ready for the 'Dons.'"

Keep your bowels open. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will do it without griping. All medicine dealers.

Light and Airy.

The Abyssinian soldier's ordinary dress is not very attractive. It consists, it is said, of a white linen shirt down to his knees and a pair of light linen trousers to half way down his calf. Over this he wears a belt of folded linen, and, as a rule, a "shamma," or white cotton sheet, draped round him. Cloaks of blue, red, green, yellow or violet, ornamented with rough embroidery, leopard skins, sheepskins and even lion skins are worn on special occasions by the officers and small chiefs, and the army then presents a noble show.

Any man who has killed a lion or an elephant or has distinguished himself much in battle wears an aureole, or lion's mane, on his head. For each five men he has killed he wears a silver band on his sword scabbard. The highest recompense for valor is a sort of velvet top hat ornamented with silver, and great officers are given shields covered with velvet and ornamented with gold and silver.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

One Exception.

"Do you love me so much," she demanded, "that you would be willing to give up your all for me?"

"Yes," he replied, "I would willingly give up all for you; but, of course, that doesn't include what I expect from your father."—Kalamazoo Telegraph.

Looking Ahead.

"It is only a matter of time," said Golfer, "when the expansion policy will carry us into Canada."

"What makes you think that?"

"Oh, we will need the land on the other side of the border for golf links!"—Philadelphia North American.

Miss Ethel—Music always makes me feel sad. Doesn't it you, Mr. Suds?

Mr. S.—Yes, but I like it—it's awfully jolly to feel sad, don't y' know.—Brooklyn

BURIED GLACIER FOUND.

Two Men Find Unlimited Cold Storage While Digging Trenches in an Alaskan Gold Field.

Vancouver, B. C., Sept. 29.—A buried glacier has been discovered on Boulder Creek, Alaska. The glacier was uncovered while putting in some trenches in Brockway and Chase's placers. There was about eight inches of earth over the glacier, on which trees eight inches in diameter were growing, showing the ice mountain, which is clear and pale blue, has been there for a long time. The ice is as solid as possible. Brockway and Chase decided to investigate the strange phenomenon and dug down twenty feet, but met the same solid clear ice. Around Boulder Creek in summer the ice disappears and the weather is hot. The glacier is to be utilized as cold storage during the hot months.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the graphophone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a graphophone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your witty friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Write for catalogue No. 30 to the COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, No. 313 Main street Buffalo, N. Y.

Great Battle at Hand.

New York, Sept. 29.—A despatch to the Herald from Caracas says: Thursday Martin Saavria, President of the Cassation Court, General Fonseca, Ortega Martinez and others were banished yesterday by the Government. Apparently the hostile forces are on the eve of a great battle. Negotiations for peace have failed.

Held Up By a Footpad.

Skaguay, Sept. 22, via Seattle, Wash., Sept. 29.—The stage running between Atlin and Discovery was held up by a lone highwayman on Tuesday night. There were nine passengers, but none carried much money or valuables and the plunder secured was light. The robber escaped. The highwayman hailed the stage, saying he wanted to ride, and when it halted he covered the driver and passengers, telling them if they wanted to save their lives they would have to give up their money.

All because of a blessed war to the knife squabble between rival companies New York is now enjoying 65 cent gas. Father Knickerbocker will be a weak old gentleman if he lets them restore the higher rate.

MOTIVES AND METHODS.

A Missouri girl killed herself because her sweetheart had gone to the war.

Robert F. Hayes, a Boston clerk, hanged himself with his necktie as the noose.

Because his mother would not let him go in swimming an Arkansas boy cut his throat.

Forked branches of an apple tree were used as a noose by a Stroudsburg (Pa.) suicide.

Champagne with arsenic in it was used by a San Francisco man as a means of self destruction.

Her husband wanted to move, and she did not. That led a Connecticut woman to drink poison.

Fearing that his wife would scold him for getting home late a newly made London bridegroom committed suicide.

"Ah, to see the moon at a distance of one meter," was the note left by a Paris suicide explaining his motive for death.

FLIMSIEST KIND OF EVIDENCE.

Ottawa, Sept. 29.—In a recent issue of The Christian Guardian reference was made to the subject of canteens in military camps of instruction. It is alleged that at a camp in London nine canteens were open day and night and that beer was sold freely and without disguise of secrecy.

Enquiry at the Department of Militia elicits the information that it is not the intention to hold an enquiry. The evidence, so called, is regarded as of the flimsiest character, being chiefly hearsay. The headquarters staff say that, taken on the whole, the camps were never better conducted than they have been this year. At headquarters the view is held that it would be [illegible] to enforce absolute prohibition, and that a well-regulated canteen is far better.

PLAGUE STILL SPREADS.

The Disease Makes Its Appearance at Bagola.

Oporto, Sept. 29.—Confirmation has been obtained of the report that the bubonic plague has made its appearance at Bagola, a village outside the sanitary cordon. The disease was introduced there by two fugitives from the hospital. Last evening a carriage in which foreign doctors were on their way to attend a post-mortem examination here was stoned by a number of persons. The police drove off the assailants and the doctors escaped unhurt.

WANTED FIRE BELL CLOTHES.

He Just Made Up His Mind to Kill That Town of St. Joe.

"Ah'm come back home for some clothes, an Ah want 'em wahm," said a tall young negro to a Walnut street haberdasher one day last spring. "Ah'm jes' agoin to kill that town of St. Joe. Show me the heatiest clothes yo' got in the house."

He was not cool as to raiment to start with. His overcoat was cream colored, overlaid with pearl buttons the size of those small butter plates still in use in restaurants. His trousers were green and ended in yellow shoes with brown shot silk tops. His hat was light blue, mottled in brown; his gloves were red and his cane heavily silvered.

"Can't no St. Joe nigger tell me Ah come from Raytown," he muttered. "Ah goes up to St. Joe to work, and the coons there laugh at me and tell me Ah ain't from Kansas City, because mah clothes is so inconspicuous, and Ah just save up mah money, and Ah'm agoin back to kill the town. Now what I want is some underclothes and socks and shirts and things that are the wahmest you've got."

"How will these do?" asked the haberdasher, exposing some scarlet hosiery, banded with wide white stripes.

"That's it. That's the kind of clothes Ah want. They ain't nothin' in St. Joe like that. Lemme look at them underwear."

He inspected some red underwear with white stripes, some of baby blue with pink stripes and others of green with blue, black and red stripes. He bought neckties of every shade of red, blue and green and of the most bewildering patterns. His purchases included sateen collars and pale pink shirts, diamond scarfpins at 50 cents each, but with $25 of shine, and a brown waistcoat with scarlet moons emblazoned on it.

"Ah've got 'em dead," he exclaimed when he had finished. "They've ceased to live. When Ah get back to that town of St. Joe they'll ask me if I come from Raytown, will they? Ah'm agoin to take back to that little ole burg such wahm clothes that they'll meet me with the fire department. That town's dead now, and Ah've killed it."

How Wealth is Carried.

"It is rather amusing," remarked the head of the biggest bureau de change in London to the writer, "to notice the various methods in which men of different nationalities carry their worldly wealth. The Englishman carries his all loose in his right hand trousers pocket—gold, silver and copper all mixed up together. He pulls a handful of the mixture out of his pocket in a large, opulent way and selects the coins he has need of. The American carries his wad of bills in a peculiar long, narrow pocketbook, in which the greenbacks lie flat; the Frenchman makes use of a leather purse with no distinguishing characteristics, while the German uses one gayly embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Lottchen or Mina.

"The half civilized capitalist from some torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly devised pockets to baffle the gentlemen with the light fingers. Some of them belts are very expensive. The Italian of the poorer classes ties up his little fortune in a gayly colored handkerchief secured with many knots, which he secretes in some mysterious manner about his clothes. A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding place for his savings."—London Answers

More Gold in Sight.

Among recent discoveries in mining in the mineral lands of Hastings and Peterborough counties says the Campbellford Herald, is a vein of gold bearing quartz on property owned by Mr W F Post, in the 4th concession of Methuen township. It is located near the Belmont line, a short distance from the Government road, and only a few miles from the Belmont mine. Prospectors who went through that locality years ago, stated that mineral existed there, but it was not till recently that it received any attention from men interested in mining. Some days ago samples of the quartz were sent to the Belmont mine to be tested, and was pronounced to be equal to what is being mined there but its value was not given. At the present time a gang of men has been employed to sink three shafts on the east half of the lot, as beginning to the development of the property, and good results are expected in the near future.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CASE.

Has a Large Number of Peculiar Snakes Taken from Her Intestines.

Napoleon, Ohio, Sept. 29.—It was thought that Mrs Elisabeth Gehrken was laboring under an hallucination when she persisted that she was "full of snakes," but an operation that was performed upon the old lady proved that she knew what she was talking about.

More than a year ago, while drinking water which she had drawn from a well, Mrs Gehrken claims to have swallowed a snake, which has caused her no end of trouble.

An emetic was administered a few days ago, which resulted in bringing forth a number of of small snakes, with heads shaped like those of a fish. The aged lady persisted that the snakes were not all removed.

A consultation was held by local physicians, and it was decided to perform an operation, which resulted in taking from the intestines nine snakes, the longest of which is two feet three inches and the smallest one seven inches and about half the size of the ordinary lead pencil about the thickest part of the body.

"Yes, we removed nine snakes, or something that resembled snakes, from Mrs Gehrken's stomach. These things are something knew to me," picking up the jar in which the snakes had been placed in alcohol, "and I am unable to give you a name for them. They have eyes like those of a fish, but a regular snake body. We placed two or three of them on the floor, and they ran around and wriggled like an ordinary snake until they became chilled through and then died. It is a most extraordinary case.

TIRED OF LIVING.

Samuel Wood, Burford Township, Blows His Head Off With a Gun Near Kelvin.

Brantford, Sept. 29.—Word reached this city yesterday of a melancholy tragedy which occurred on Wednesday near the village of Kelvin, in Burford township.

A man named Samuel Wood, tired of life, first shot his faithful dog dead and then blew out his own brains. Wood was 50 years of age and unmarried. He had had a lot of trouble and his mind is supposed to have been unhinged. On Wednesday he took his shot gun, and, calling his dog, walked towards a woods not far from his home in search of small game. The man must have been brooding over his troubles, for just before he reached the woods he turned on the dog at his heels and shot him dead. He then walked into the bush, where he came upon some men at work. The men asked him what he had shot at and he replied that he had killed his dog, but would give no reason except that it was better dead. Wood then strolled back to where the dog lay, and before anyone noticed what he was doing, placed the muzzle of the gun to his head and pulled the trigger by means of a stick. The whole top of his head was blown off and he fell dead instantly close beside the body of his four-footed companion. The coroner was notified, but did not deem an inquest necessary.

A Touching Incident.

There was an auction sale in the little house, and one after another the widow's few possessions fell beneath the hammer. Presently the auctioneer took up a large bowl which happened to be full of sugar, and the poor woman, anxious to save its contents, hastened into the next room to find something in which to put them.

Just as she returned the auctioneer cried, "Sold!" and the purchaser insisted that the sugar was his. The widow pleaded for the little that was much to her, but the man was obdurate, and murmurs of indignation arose from the crowd. Angry at this demonstration, the man turned, and his eye rested on Henry A. Wise.

"Mr. Wise," said he, "you are a lawyer. Am I right or not? If you say I am not, I will give back the sugar. If you say I am, I am entitled to it, and I'll keep it."

"My friend," replied Wise, in his gentlest tone, "you put a delicate and unpleasant responsibility on me. Hadn't you better decide the matter for yourself?"

"No," replied the fellow, curtly. "I know what your opinion is going to be, and I want you to give it so that the whole crowd can hear it."

"Then," said Wise, "I advise you that the sugar is yours. The widow cannot take it from you. She has no redress."

"Ah!" cried the man, turning to the spectators. "What did I tell you?"

"Stop!" thundered Wise, whose manner at once changed. "I've advised you at your persistent request, as I can prove by these people. It remains for me to tell you that I charge you five dollars for my advice, and I demand immediate payment. If you trifle with me in the matter of payment, you will most certainly regret it."

The man turned scarlet, and, fumbled in his wallet, produced a five-dollar bill. The crowd yelled its approval, but suddenly became silent as Mr. Wise walked up to the widow and said:

"This money is mine. I have earned it honestly. Take it and buy more sugar for your fatherless children."

Coughlin Almost Dissected.

New York, Sept 28.—John J. Coughlin, a trolley conductor, was officially pronounced dead at 6 o'clock on Monday night as the result of a fall from his car at the corner of Railroad and Liberty avenues. At 10 o'clock that night Coroner Delap directed Dr. Newman to make an autopsy at St. Mary's Hospital. Then came a startling surprise. As the doctor, knife in hand, bent over the body, just ready to cut open Coughlin's breast he fancied there was the faintest flutter of a heart beat. A hasty examination disclosed the fact that the man was alive. Other doctors were at once summoned, and by their united efforts the dead man was revived, and will now probably recover.

A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

The Victim Was the Samoan King Malietoa and the Victor an American Naval Officer—The Jack Pot That Caused the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymaster in the navy with King Malietoa several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever indulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kalakaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little brush on this line. Well, Malietoa's opportunity to test his belief came one day when an American man-of-war—never mind which one—sailed into the harbor at Apia. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the fullest extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an assistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malietoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Malietoa requested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Malietoa had almost phenomenal luck, winning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a smile of pleasure and triumph combined, announced that he would open it $20 worth. Every player staid. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Malietoa showed his blood by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others staid. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped out. After the king's last raise the paymaster hesitated a moment, put his cigar to one side and shoved $50 to the middle of the mahogany.

"The king put up the equivalent in Chilean silver dollars, the currency of the islands, and, drawing a small sack from his pocket, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Samoa, amounting to $79 in silver. The paymaster's face grew serious, and he looked at his royal opponent in a hesitating, puzzled sort of way. Could this be a Samoan Ah Sin he had run against? Had this kingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evening? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance some of it in finding out.

"After a few moments of undecision he drew $579 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malietoa gave a gasp and called for a glass of kava to steady his nerves. This he gulped down and announced that he was out of funds, requesting at the same time that the paymaster take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smiling and looking fixedly at the pot. Then the excited monarch offered to put up the island of Manono, one of the finest in the Samoan group, against the $500. To this the paymaster consented, and a transfer deed of the property, duly signed, attested by the trader, who was a notary public, and witnessed by the other two officers, was put in the pot. Then the king called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four aces and a five spot.

"With a look of horror and a Samoan wail of despair, his majesty exposed to view three kings, an eight spot and a deuce. Then he fell off his chair in a faint, the excitement having been too much for his nerves. Kava in copious quantities brought him around sufficiently to enable his removal to his own castle. The paymaster shoveled his money into a sack and placed it in the trader's iron safe, but the deed for the island he carefully placed in his pocket.

"Next morning the details of the big poker game were known to nearly every inhabitant of the place, and the German and English consuls sent official communications to the American consul protesting in most emphatic terms against the action of the king in disposing of the island of Manono to an American or to any one else, and warning the consul that unless the paymaster returned the deed for the island to the king at once they would direct the attention of their respective governments to the case.

"Here was a pretty state of affairs. The officer had, no doubt, won the island fairly, and the king's action was binding, but in the tension in which Samoan affairs were at that time the German and English governments would only too willingly have taken advantage of the circumstances as an excuse for international complications, ending ultimately in a disastrous way to American interests.

"The facts were fully explained to the paymaster, and on the promise of Malietoa that he would give the officer a number of fine mats and other Samoan articles of value the deed was returned to the king and destroyed. By mutual consent of the consuls and others interested the affair was hushed up in every way and was thus allowed to die out. Malietoa took an oath that he would never again play poker."

Reciprocal.

"Yes, sir," remarked the amiable man, "I look to see an Englishman come over here and drop his h's once in a while."

"Yes," answered the man who has been to Epsom downs, "and he likes see us go over there and drop our

ELEVEN WERE DROWNED

Shocking Mishap to One of the Scotsman's Life-Boats.

WAS WRECKED A WEEK AGO

Stories of Privation and Hardship Told by Passengers.

Eleven of Her Passengers Were Drowned While Disembarking From the Wrecked Steamer—Outrageous Conduct of the Crew—Great Courage and Coolness Displayed By Women Passengers.

Rimouski, Que., Sept. 29.—The Dominion Line, S S Scotsman was wrecked eight days ago, southeast of Chance Island, eight miles from Belle Isle lighthouse, and eleven of her passengers were drowned while disembarking from the wrecked steamer.

The Scotsman is a total wreck.

The names of those who were drowned were:

Mrs Robinson, wife of the manager of Sunlight Soap Co., Toronto.

Miss Robinson, her daughter.

Miss Street, of Montreal, travelling companion of Miss Duncan, of Montreal.

Miss R Weavers.

Mrs Talbot.

Miss Scott.

Miss Skelton.

An infant of Mrs Roberts, second cabin and steerage passengers.

The names of the others who are missing cannot be obtained.

The steamer Montfort, with 240 of the Scotsman's passengers on board, reached Montreal at 11 o'clock this morning. The Montford brought to Rimouski all of the Scotsman's passengers, except some 86 second cabin and steerage passengers who were left on the island, and nine passengers and forty-five of the crew, who were taken off by the Monterey and carried to Liverpool.

Hardship and Suffering.

The story told by the passengers who arrived here this morning is one of untold hardship and suffering.

Mr Emerson, who was representing the firm of Messrs Christy & Co, the well known hatters, of London, was a passenger on board the Scotsman. According to his story, the vessel struck at 2 30 on Friday morning, the 22nd. All the passengers were in bed. There was a dense fog at the time, and the first warning the passengers had was when the vessel struck the rock. There was a crash and a heavy crashing sound as the ship piled head on the rocks. In a moment all was confusion. Passengers crowded on deck, partly dressed.

The Boats Lowered.

There was a high running sea at the time, and the ship's officers fearing she would slip from the rock on to which she had struck and into deep water, had the boats lowered. The women and children were lowered into the boats with great difficulty. One of the boats foundered after it had had been filled with women and children. It is said by those who were in the boat that the plug was out and the boat filled in with water, and it was through this accident that the loss of life occurred.

Women and Children.

Four boats in all were lowered, and each was crowded with women and children. They put out to sea and remained as near the wreck as possible until day light. Passengers in the meantime were lowered to the rocks by means of ropes. By Saturday noon all the passengers had reached the shore. The women and children were carried over the wrecked vessel to the rocks.

Outrageous Conduct.

The conduct of the crew was simply outrageous. No sooner had the ship foundered than the crew invaded all the cabins and attacked the baggage of the passengers. During the night these brutes, in a disgustingly drunken condition, swaggering about among helpless passengers, swearing and singing ribald songs. The ship's officers were utterly unable to control the crew, being busily engaged saving the lives of the passengers.

Too much cannot be said of the courage displayed by the women passengers. They behave nobly.

Out of Her Course.

It is hard to say what was the cause of the accident, but it was evident to all that the ship was entirely out of her course.

BHILL RAIDERS DEFEATED.

British Troops in India Have a Fierce Encounter.

Bombay, Sept. 29.—It is reported that a body of armed Bhils have raided the country near Khergoum and that the police and two companies of native infantry from Baroda overtook the Bhils, with whom they had a fierce encounter. The raiders are said to have lost two hundred in killed and wounded.

Gallifet Traitor To France?

Paris, Sept. 29.—Marquis de Gallifet, the Minister of War, having written to Figaro asserting that he had never written to the Duc d'Orleans since the end of 1898, when he declined the latter's invitation to shoot at Woodnorton, the Intransigeant this morning replies by publishing a letter, which, the paper says, was seized among the papers of M. Andree Buffet, one of the persons recently placed on trial on the charge of having conspired against the state.

In this letter the Marquis de Gallifet says:

"If the Republicans are so stupid as to confide the Ministry of War to me you, Monseigneur, will not have occasion to be dissatisfied with me."

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

ON THE TROLLEY.

The red is melting in the river,
The red is dying in the sky.
The evening star begins to quiver,
Belated birds go darting by—
Come, let us follow, follow, follow,
And find how fine it is to fly.

By pine woods where when noon was sweet
The air with spicy balsams flowed,
By gardens full of sweets and honey
Where summer long the rose has glowed,
By weary wife and loitering lover,
Come, flash along the river road.

The forest wall across the river
Darkens within the curling tide,
The fragrant winds about us shiver,
We rock, we race, we rush, we ride,
Thrilled with the sweep of airy motion
And glad because the world is wide!

The night stars up the purple spaces,
The whirling winds divide the deep,
Strange gleams are on familiar places,
Swift lightnings underneath us leap.
As forward flying, flying, flying,
Upon the thunderbolt we sweep!

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. They are taken in at Mr. Caleb Davis's Shop, at the Fortification; Mr. Andrew Gillespie's, near Dr. Clark's; Mr. Andrnes Randale's, near Phillips's Wharf; and Mr. John Boies's in Long Lane; Mr. Frothingham's in Charleston; Mr. Williams's in Marblehead; Mr. Ellson's in Salem; Mr. John Harris's in Newbury; Mr. Daniel Fowle's in Portsmouth; and at the Paper Mill in Milton.

"Rags are as Beauties, which concealed lie;
But when in Paper, how it charms the Eye;
Pray save Rags, new Beauties to discover,
For Paper truly, every one's a Lover:
By th' Pen and Press such Knowledge is displayed,
As wouldn't exist if Paper was not made.
Wisdom of Things, mysterious, divine,
Illustriously doth on Paper shine."

But They Weren't Civilized.

Traveling in southern India, one day I was taken into the country to see tapioca roots gathered and ground for use. The adults working in the grove, men and women, had each a rag around the loins, but the boys and girls, with their black, glossy skins, were free of all incumbrance.

Our guide explained to these people that we were from a country so far away and so different from theirs that the waters were sometimes made solid by the extreme cold and we could walk upon them; that sometimes it was so intensely cold that the rain was frozen into particles and lay on the earth so deep that people could not walk through it, and that three and four layers of heavy clothes had to be worn.

This happy people, as our guide told us, wondered why we staid there, why we did not come and enjoy life in their favored clime.—Andrew Carnegie in North American Review.

OUTWITTING AN ELEPHANT.

A Hunter Saved by His Knowledge of the Beast's Habits.

Only those familiar with the "manners and customs" of the elephant have any idea what a nimble creature it really is. Massive and slow footed as it looks, it is capable, when roused, of feats that would be difficult for much fleeter animals. Especially is this the case with African elephants, which, though taller, are generally lighter than their Asiatic brethren. Moreover, accustomed for ages to lead a wild life and often depending on their alertness and speed of foot for their very existence, they have acquired a skill in gymnastics which has occasionally taken even old elephant hunters by surprise.

In illustration of this fact we are reminded of a story told by one of the sportsmen in Africa. He was "out after elephants" and had just fired at and wounded a magnificent specimen. Unfortunately for him, he had only succeeded in slightly wounding it, when, infuriated by the attack, it turned and charged him. It was a terrifying sight. With its enormous ears spread out like sails and emitting shrill notes of rage, it came thundering over the ground like a runaway locomotive. The hunter fired another shot, but missed. His nerve was shaken, and, throwing down his "express" rifle, he sought safety in flight. Near at hand was a steep hill, and to this he directed his steps, for, being but slightly acquainted with the climbing powers of the elephant, he thought his pursuer might be baffled by the steepness of the ascent.

It was a terrible disappointment to find that the elephant could climb a hill just as quickly as the hunter, nimble runner as he was. The fugitive, indeed, would have soon been overtaken if he had not thought of a really ingenious ruse. He knew that elephants never run, or even walk, down a steep incline, but always crouch down, gather their feet together, lean well back and slide down. Just as the ferocious animal had got within a few yards of him, therefore, the wily hunter suddenly doubled and ran down the hill again.

Quick as a flash the elephant turned, gathered himself together and, trumpeting with baffled rage, slid down after his victim. The hunter had just time to spring out of the way as the great beast came "tobogganing" after him, smashing trees and shrubs and carrying everything before it like an avalanche. Then once more the hunter dashed to the top of the hill, while the elephant, unable to stop itself, went careering down to the very foot, where, apparently feeling very sore and disappointed, it rose and walked wearily back to its native woods.—Chums.

Odd Disasters.

In an English coal mine a few years ago a callous youth viciously pricked a pony with his penknife. The wounded animal kicked out furiously, overturning and breaking several safety lamps. The naked flames fed the foul gases in the air and created an appalling explosion, which wrought the death of over a hundred miners.

Sun rays, shining through a decanter of water on to the cartridge of a loaded rifle, slew a sleeping man on a lounge near by. The innocent owner of the rifle was arraigned for the supposed crime and was sentenced to death, when the testimony of a shrewd detective solved the mystery and secured his reprieve.

A German family, seven in number, lost their lives by a somewhat unique accident. They slept in one large apartment, lighted by gas. Before retiring the father hung his overcoat above the gas burner. During the night this garment slipped and fell on the tap, turning the gas full on and so suffocating the slumbering inmates.

The Theater in China.

The dresses are magnificent, as bewilderingly curious as any stage manager at home ever conceived. All the talking is in strained falsetto, and there are yelling and posturing and wailing and confusion. Suddenly the band breaks in with an awful crash—such a marvelous band, five drums and ten pairs of cymbals—such a deafening smashing and banging! With hoarse screams dozens of imps, green faced and yellow eyed and horned, rush on the stage and gyrate and flout banners and draw up in lines and swing partners and set to places. An ochre faced, villainous chief demon, a heap of fantasticalness, twirls like a teetotum, and there is more banging and jumping and swinging and mad pandemonium, and the cymbals and the drums rend the air. It is terrific. At it again, with mighty clatter and heavings, spinning, flag waving, contortioning—it is the accumulated uproars of the world all pressed into one Chinese theater.

You sit tight, with fixed gaze, waiting for the drums of your ears to crack, and when the top of your head is about to fly off there is one awful thunderous bang, and the demon king, chorus, orchestra, the whole crowd, fall, flop, and the act is over.—Travel.

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and sassy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get mixed up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my dernedest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

The Hint That Failed.

The landlady looked solemnly in the direction of the delinquent one.

"It's a rule in this house to pay as you go," said she.

The delinquent one smiled.

"It's a good plan," said he. "You get it all in a bunch then or nothing."—Syracuse Herald.

A Big Sale of Republic Stocks

THE FAIRFAX CO., OF REPUBLIC, J. J. Brown, Pres., Willis Memaine Treas., after securing the Jim. Hill claim ajoining it on the north, sampled the ledge and W. H. Stowell reports on this cropping $16 60 in gold, immediately upon the result becoming known in Republic, a Mining Supt., through our agent there, Tom Angel, negotiated the purchase of $1,000 worth of Treasurer's stock, the company has authorized me to place a small amount of this stock at 5cts. Remember the Fairfax and Jim. Hill are less than 800 feet from the Mountain Lion, which is now $1.60 per share, and is an investment at that. The Fairfax at 5½ cts., is a speculation. Work is to be pushed.

MR. AND MISS LUNDY ARRIVE.

They Are Very Ill After Their Frightful Experience on the Wrecked Scotsman.

Mr J J Landy and Miss Lundy arrived home yesterday from England, having been on board the unfortunate steamship Scotsman, which was wrecked off Belle Isle. Mr Landy was in bed all day yesterday suffering from the effects of his terrible experience. Miss Lands is also considerably shaken up, and our reporter was not able to interview either of them. They were for hours adrift in a small boat in bitter cold weather, finally returning and landing on a rock close to the wreck, where they remained until succor arrived. They lost all their belongings, including a quantity of purchases made while abroad.

Third draw for the Captain's prize. 18 holes. (Handicap).

F B Francis 3, vs R Max Dennistoun (scratch).
H Ritchie 6, vs S Ray, 6.
E W Holst 4, vs H D Burnett, 6.
C McGill 10, vs J H Burnham (scratch)

Third draw for third prize in the Bankers' Handicap competition:

R C McHarrie (scratch) vs J H Carter (scratch).
W D Parker 6, vs F C Napier, 6.
A G Parker, plus 6, vs C W Bell (scratch).
R M Hamilton 9, vs E W Lamprey, plus 6.
A St. A. Smith (scratch) vs E H Skill, plus 6.

The first prize in this competition has been won by Mr Peter Campbell, and second prize by Mr F B Francis.

The prizes are three handsome cups.

In Mr R C McHarrie's competition Mr E W Holst won first prize, a driving mashie, and Mr E W Lamprey second prize, an approach mashie.

In the Banker's handicap the course is 19 holes and the score is reckoned by strokes.

Not True Repentance.

The spectacle of the mayor reading the lessons and the full council answering in the responses, has excited considerable interest amongst the ratepayers. We are taught in the good book that to believe that our sins, which are as scarlet, will be made white as wool, if we only repent. But it must be true repentance and a forsaking of evil ways. If the council is anxious to turn over a new leaf as it were, and quit its evil ways, we fancy, even at this late hour the ratepayers might be inclined to overlook many misdeeds. We fear, however, that the repentance is not genuine, that is of of the death-bed variety.

This great family journal believes that if sincere our City Fathers must show it by their acts. They must not, for instance, build sidewalks to their own homes and leave other and more deserving localities, where sidewalks are poor, and where greater traffic exists; they must not sit in the council and expect to get a rake-off on corporation contracts; they must not employ men who are known to be incompetent, and who are continually making blunders, to manage the work on the roads; they will have, in fact to run the business of the corporation as if it was their own personal concern.

If the council is prepared to subscribe to the above and hew to the line letting the chips fall where they may, it can bank on the active co-operation of this g. f. j.

A COFFEE EXPERIMENT.

Not Likely to Be Repeated.

"The work of a newspaper correspondent involves constant thought and study, with consequent brain and nerve weariness. It may interest you to know of my experience with coffee.

"Some years ago I was compelled to abandon it, as I became nearly paralyzed.

"During the forenoon of each day my arms and wrists were so benumbed that I could use them with difficulty. Alarming symptoms began to develop which my physician informed me were the forerunners of apoplexy. Coffee was therefore forsworn. Milk, of which I was very fond, made me intolerably drowsy and stupid.

"About two years ago my attention was called to Postum Cereal Food Coffee, and a trial was made, believing that if it proved half as valuable as claimed it would be of great advantage to me. On the first trial it tasted rather insipid to our strong-coffee loving family, but a little freer use of Postum and longer boiling produced a delicious drink, and within a short time the members of the family one and all became ardent advocates of Postum Food Coffee.

"In my own case it has worked wonders. I work more constantly than ever, but my general health is better than at any time in my life, and the symptoms of nervous trouble have wholly disappeared. About eight months ago I made one more trial of coffee, reducing it with nearly half milk. The experiment lasted four or five days, and is not likely to be repeated. The nervous suffering that followed was indescribable, and I did not recover from its effects for nearly two weeks.

"Nearly all of our neighbors are now using Postum Food Coffee, and it is used almost exclusively by the large [illegible] in our city." A. Maynard, Bailey Block, Helena, Mont.

Postum is sold by all first-class grocers, and made by Postum Cereal Co., ltd., at their factory, Battle Creek, Mich.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Mr R McGregor has the contract of re-shingling the wings of St. Paul's church.

All Saints' church has been formerly badly in need of sheds to accommodate those who drive to service, but this long-felt want will soon be remedied. The work of laying out the material for the new structure is in progress under an experienced carpenter, but the other portion of the work will be done by the gentlemen of the congregation.

Freight traffic is becoming unwieldy on the C P R, great inconvenience being felt through the lack of sufficient cars

The Beaver and Eclipse brought their usual Saturday quota of passengers to town on Saturday.

George McAlpine, of Auburn, appeared before the Police Magistrate on Saturday, charged with assault, but the charge was dismissed.

George Davidson was charged at the Police Court on Saturday with malicious injury to property by Mr W L Taylor, piano dealer. The case was dismissed. Mr R F McWilliams appeared for the defendant.

The regular meeting of the Town and Ashburnham Councils will be held this evening.

The Park street Baptist church will hold anniversary services next Sunday. Rev Chas Eaton will be the special preacher.

The Ministerial Association will meet this evening at ten o'clock in the Y M C A. Rev S J Shorey will read a paper on "The Individual or the Common Communion Cup."

Millbrook fall fair will be held next Thursday and Friday. On Friday evening a special train for the convenience of visitors will leave Millbrook for Peterborough at 7 o'clock.

Messrs Rye, Metheral and Dixon Best, who have been up at Ball Lake for an outing, returned Friday. Mr Rye's steam yacht, which carried the party, made a most satisfactory record for itself. Shooting was only fair, but the fishing was good.

All young women and ladies interested in the Y W C A work are cordially invited to the social to-morrow evening, at the rooms, 168 Brock street. Members of the club are earnestly requested to be present that the association may discuss with them the formation of classes. There will be a short programme followed by refreshments.

THE TIMES ON TOP.

On Friday a Mrs. Mercier lost a valise containing three pair of Children's shoes and came to the Times office for relief. A small ad. inserted once recovered the articles. The valise was found by a Mrs. Wm. Heenan, 9 Crescent St. Everybody reads the Times.

Maud and the Judge.

Maud Muller jumped on her time-worn bike
For an evening hit at the dusty pike.

An old drop frame of 'way down gear,
With a rattle the sleeping dead could hear!

The judge came pounding along behind,
Out airing his great judicial mind.

He noted the figure neat and trim
And graceful motion of hidden limb.

And he said to himself in his grave delight:
"What's matter with Maudie? She's all right!"

He drew beside her and asked her flat
Why she rode such an old ice cart as that?

And she said saleslady could ill support
Such wheel as the judge of the district court.

He told her she could on a chainless ride,
With a diamond frame if she would be his bride.

Or if she would bust up his solo life
They would tandem together as man and wife.

They ride on a tandem, now, of course,
But Maud has to work like a tread-mill horse.

For the judge has learned how to sit and shirk,
And let his darling do all the work.

He weighs two hundred and fifty-one,
But she poor girl thinks it an even ton.

And she often says with a pain-rent heart:
"I wish I was back on my old ice cart."

THIS GREAT FAMILY JOURNAL.

The New Mode of Advertising Patent Medicines Does Not Please a Subscriber.

I never take the Times just now; just quit it in disgust,
An' so swelled up with righteous rage I honest thought I'd bust;
I writ the editor to stop the g. f. j. or I
Would grab a hefty club and call to know the reason why!
Fur twenty years or more I've took the Morning Times, forsooth.
An' kept it next the Bible fur tellin' gospel truth;
But now I'll never let my eyes rest on the thing again.
Fur givin' it encouragement 'd be a mortal sin!

I read about new fangled walks, that are bildin' in the town
And how the work is bein' botched, and the people 'done' right brown,
How inspectors and contractors, and engineers and sich
Are pullin' of the people's leg, and are quickly growin' rich.

I sot with eyes a bulgin' out a readin' of band
O men in tropic jungles fasing death on every hand,
Whar sarpents was a hissin' 'round, an' lions laid in wait
To leave their homes a gleamin' in a ghastly naked state!
An' how they fought with cannibals that hankered fur their meat,
Regardin' it a luxury almighty hard to beat,
Then had the thrillin' story end with information that
They was a huntin' roots for Dr Skinny's Anti-Fat.

I read one orful story of a gay an' gallant knight
That battled with a dragon in a rough an' toumble fight;
The picter o' the monster with its baker's dozens heads
Enough to skeer the sleepers of the graveyards from their beds.

I felt like yellin' 'Glory!' whe the gallant feller stood
One foot upon the monster an' his spear all splashed with blood.
An' then I larnt thhe dragon was the fever an' the chills;
The knight, o' Dr Knockem's Pink Complected Quinine Pills.

Once I sot my wife to cryin' till I thought Her heart would break,
An, got my own eyes leakin', an' my lips begun to shake,
Readin' 'bout a lovely maiden tellin' all her folks good-bye,
An' a-sayin' she must leave 'em for a mansion in the sky.
Then a angel neighbor woman came a-runnin' in an' told
Of a heavenly decoction that was wurth its weight in gold,
An' the gal was soon as chipper as a jay-bird on the wing,
An' was singin' grateful praises of Duflicker's Liver King.

But the one that capped the climax was a sermon that I read
From a famous eastern preacher, at the close of which he said
He was goin' to quit discoursin' of the glories up on high,
Fur there now was no occasion fur his followers to die,
If they'd foller the directions of O'Whackers Anti-Death
They would never quit a-livin' from a scarcity of breath;
Then I tore the Times in fragments an' I stamped it on the floor,
An' my wife hain't yit recovered from the awful way I swore!

A WEIGHTY GATHERING.

Reunion of the Whitton Family With a Combined Weight of 2,820 pounds.

The Whitton family, of which Mr. Jas. Whitton, cheese buyer on the Peterborough Board, is a member,) held a re-union at Campbellford recently, and there were present seven sons and six daughters of the late James Whitton, with their children and grand children, in all nearly one hundred descendants of Mr. Whitton. The seven sons combined weight was 1,700 pounds, while the daughters, six in number, weighed about 1,120 pounds. Their ages ranged from 50 to 34 years.

The late Leonard Whitton, who died a short time ago in England was the heaviest of the family—650 pounds.

Mr. Whitton, the founder of this family, who came originally from Yorkshire, England, emigrated to Canada 59 years ago and settled in Pittsburg, Frontenac county, and afterwards removed to Seymore where he died.

The names and weight of the sons and daughters are as follows; William Whitton, Campbellford, 261 pounds; James Whitton, Wellman's Corners, 274 pounds; Frank Whitton, Frankford, 225 pounds; Thomas Whitton, Olean, N. Y., 224 pounds; Robert Whitton, Brighton, 204 pounds; John Whitton, Carney, Pa., 245 pounds; George Whitton, Tamworth, 240 pounds; Mrs M A Ketchen, Seymour, 288 pounds; Mrs J McLean, Nebraska, 201 pounds; Mrs E Clancy, Rawdon, 162 pounds; Mrs M Cook, Campbellford, 179 pounds; Mrs R Lowrie, Frankford, 174 pounds; Mrs S Morton, Campbellford, 174 pounds.

The Crown Seizes the Gold.

County Crown Attorney Wood instructed Constable Cochrane to take possession of the eleven twenty-dollar gold pieces which were unearthed at Bridgenorth on Thursday. The matter came before P M Dumble on Saturday, and was dismissed as he had no jurisdiction in such cases. The County Crown Attorney referred it to the Attorney-General's department, Toronto, in order to determine whether the ownership of the money belongs to the crown.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

Sept. 22, 1898
Sept. 22, 1899

What we may term a year of steady progress since our opening in Peterborough has gone by. To-day's store is different from the one you were invited to on Sept. 22nd, 1898.

During the year our trade has steadily grown so that alterations were forced upon us. We have taken down the partition dividing the store at rear thus adding 15 feet of extra shelving and counter room. We also found our Millinery and Mantle Showrooms altogether too small, and in consequence have had partitions taken down and another room thrown into these making one of the largest and most complete showrooms in town.

The Store that Never Disappoints

The 3rd and 4th story up have been opened up and filled with goods, calling into use and our handsome passenger elevator. Staffs both up and down stairs have been increased and stocks in all departments are nearly double their original size.

OUR PLATFORM STILL THE SAME

Goods bought for cash and sold for cash only. Quick and efficient attention to customers' wants no misrepresentation of goods. Money back if you ask it.

Our Saturday Economist Sales

inaugurated by us a year ago are now a part of our general store policy. Our advertising contracts for the coming year are on a liberal scale, and our store news will be found interesting and profitable. More frequent changes will be made. Watch our ads.

Yours for satisfactory shopping,

Cressman

236 OF OUR PUPILS SECURED GOOD POSITIONS in the seventeen months ending June 1st '99. What do you think of such a record?

Our pupils are now in strong demand with many of the leading business houses.

When we tell you that this large number secured positions, we are also prepared to furnish the list showing where they were placed and with whom. If interested, write for it.

☞ The Best School is the Cheapest in the End.

We pay the railway fare of pupils coming from a distance provided it does not exceed $8.00, which is the limit of our allowance in this connection.

Can secure good board for gentlemen at $2.00 to $2.50 per week and for ladies at $2.00.

During the year which closed June 30th we had pupils in attendance from Newfoundland on the Atlantic, to Seattle on the Pacific; from Manitoba on the north to Brooklyn N. Y., on the south. There were 133 cities, towns and villages in Canada and five States of the Union represented with us.

Twenty-three counties and districts outside of Chatham sent us 198 pupils. Chatham and Kent County alone sent us over 100 pupils, while Manitoba and the North-west Territories sent us six.—WHAT WE GET WE HOLD.

"HE WILL DO HIS DUTY"

In Spite of the Town Solicitor and His Threats

SO SAID ALD. McWILLIAMS

At the Meeting of the Town Council Last Night.

The Contractors Save 18-10c. per Square Foot on Sidewalk Construction—Engineer Admits This—Ministerial Deputation Regarding a House of Refuge.

The Council met in regular session last night. There were present Alds. Sawers, McWilliams, Corkery, Neil, E H D Hall, Denne and Best.

In Committee.

The Council met in committee at 8 p m sharp, when Ald. McWilliams enquired of Engineer Hay if he had given any instructions to change specifications of granolithic sidewalks. Mr Hay replied that he had not done so until the work was half done, when he found the proportions of sand, cement and stone being used was the same as last year. He then sanctioned a continuance of those proportions.

The question of paying inspectors of sidewalks, rain or shine, was here raised, the Mayor favoring the payment to them of full time.

Ald. Best thought it all very well to pay imported inspectors for wet days—they would not come otherwise. But he did not think it right to pay local men thus.

Ald. McWilliams remarked that as the inspectors in many cases worked early and late they should receive full time, fair weather or foul.

Ald. Best sarcastically rejoined that the men getting a dollar or a dollar and a quarter a day lost time in wet weather, while the men getting $2.50 or $2.75 a day received full time. He could not see the consistency of this.

It was finally decided to allow all inspectors full time.

House of Refuge.

On adjourning to the council chamber, and before taking up the general business before council, Rev. J. C. Davidson addressed the council in the matter of a House of Refuge, he in company with Rev. Dr. Torrance, having been deputed by the Ministerial Association to ask the council further information as to what action the town had taken, had taken, or intended to adopt, towards securing such an institution. The county, he contended, had decided some eighteen months ago, to act in conjunction with the town, which then appointed a committee to meet a like committee from the county. He is surprised to hear that the committee appointed so long since have never met. Some of us, continued the Rev. gentleman, feel very strongly on the question. One of the most apparent signs of the day is the replacement of older men in the workshop and office by younger men, who in most cases work for less money than those whom they succeed had been in receipt of. He thought that some provision should be made for the elder men so displaced, and who through inadequate wages have been unable to lay by against old age. He as a citizen of Peterborough, feels humiliated that since the incipiency of this movement no efforts have been taken to act according to the wishes of the Ministerial Association, which desires information as to what has been done in the past and what contemplated in the future.

Mayor Davis, replied that this matter had been carefully considered, when council decided that in order to get government aid, a good deal of money would have to be expended, and they felt that as times are hard and taxation heavy, the time was inopportune to take active steps towards securing a House of Refuge. They also thought the St. Joseph's Hospital and Protestant Home, in conjunction with the admirable work accomplished by the Charity Board, pretty well covered the ground.

Ald. McWilliams explained that the Rev. gentlemen had been misinformed inasmuch as the joint committee had met, when the county had refused to participate in the necessary expenses of ascertaining the cost of such an institution, so as to bring in a thorough scheme before the council.

Ald Langford corroborated Ald. McWilliams' statement, and further remarked that the county did not appear to desire entering into such a scheme.

Ald McWilliams here moved, seconded by Ald. Neil that a committee of the whole council meet the Ministerial Association to discuss the practicability of securing a House of Refuge. Carried.

General business was then taken up and the minutes of preceeding meeting read and confirmed.

A HARROWING TALE

The Story of Mr. and Miss Lundy's Thrilling Escape

ON THE WRECKED VESSEL

Sufferings of the Passengers Are Graphically Described.

First Boat Lowered Was Swamped With its Passengers—They Climb Up a Barren Rock About 500 Feet High—Conduct of the Stokers Was Most Outrageous.

As announced in the Times yesterday Mr. J. J. and Miss Bella Lundy arrived home from England, having been passengers in the ill-fated Scotsman which was wrecked on the coast of Belle Isle.

Mr. Lundy was to ill to give the Times an interview on Sunday, but yesterday he related his experience to local reporters as follows:

"The ship struck about half past two o'clock on Friday morning while we were asleep. I felt a thud, but felt no alarm just at the time as I thought we might have struck on an iceberg and I knew the ship to be a very strong one having been down in the hold a few days before to see some horses which were being brought over. I thought there was no danger but then we felt the scraping as the ship slid up on the rock. The lights had all gone out and everything was confusion. The ship had listed and the boats were being got ready for lowering. I met my sister on deck. The command was given "Ladies to the boats." Miss Lundy got into the second boat. The first boat that was lowered swamped with its passengers. It did not capsize but simply seemed to sink and swamp. It is the general belief of the passengers on the steamer that there was no plug in the bottom. Immediately there were women and children floating around in the water. Miss Lundy held one by the hand as long as she could but only three were saved, and of these one afterwards died.

"Four loaded boats in all were put out. The wind was blowing hard at the time and there was a dense fog. Those in the boats had instructions from the captain not to attempt to land or they would be drowned and so they stayed on the sea within distance of the ship. At daybreak they were all visible. As soon as it got light and when all the boats were off, ladders lashed together were thrown out to the low rocks. Over these men, women and children climbed, many of them doing what they would never do at home. In three-quarters of an hour all were down on the rock. About 10 o'clock those in the boats on the sea asked to be allowed to come in but the captain restrained them till about 1 o'clock, when a landing was made on the rock.

"When the tide began to come in we all climbed a barren rock, about 500 feet high. There we got on the second rock and struck a little plateau about 500 feet x 100 feet. We slept there Friday night, all day Saturday and Saturday night. On this rock the people sat and lay huddled together, men, women and children. On Friday some blankets and provisions and liquors were brought up from the ship. Some of the crew got at the liquor and got beyond control. The firemen were perfect devils. They stayed up there and sang ribald songs and insulted the passengers and it looked as if there would be a mutiny.

"On Friday afternoon, urged by the captain, a party of young fellows volunteered to start out and try and find the Belle Isle lighthouse. This was almost the only chance of being picked up as the ship was out of her course and passing ships could only be hailed from the lighthouse. They returned about dark, having been successful, and small parties started out to walk over the rocks.

"We left," said Mr. Lundy, "about 9 o'clock on Sunday morning and got there about 11 o'clock at night. The walk was terrible. I was strong on the start and helped others but wore out towards the last and could hardly walk half a dozen steps. I dropped exhausted. I lay down, fully expecting to die but could not sleep as I was chilled right through my bones. My sister gave me a few tablets of dried chocolate which she had got from the doctor and these kept me alive. She also gave me some berries which grew on the rocks, and these, I believe, saved many lives besides my own. Some of my friends kept the warmth in me but I had to be carried into the lighthouse and was unconscious for two hours. My sister started out to make the walk with a pair of slippers but when she got to the lighthouse had only one and her feet were badly torn. Parties were coming in all Monday night till daybreak and all day Monday and many arrived with sprained ankles or sprained wrists or torn and bruised feet.

"There was no accomodation at the lighthouse but the poor keeper did what he could for us. On Sunday night I slept in the stable of the lighthouse and on Monday night in the loft. The men brought in some provisions and the women baked. On Tuesday about ten o'clock we sighted the Montford and she called. We got down to the landing about one o'clock and got on board the ship. She was a cattle transport with cabin accommodation for only twelve people and was in no way prepared for the 300 that got on board. She sailed down to where the Scotsman was and after getting some provisions started for home.

The conduct of the stockers he describes as outrageous. All the cabins were robbed as soon as the ship struck. Miss Lundy's cabin was robbed of diamond rings to the value of $300 or $400 and they lost all their clothing except what they had on them and all their other baggage.

The steamer struck in a little cove with ledges of rock both at bow and stern. This kept it up. Had it struck the open coast it would altogether likely backed off and sank.

WEDDING BELLS.

Austin—Hall.

A very pretty wedding took plack at the residence of Sheriff Hall on Saturday evening, when Mr E V Austin of Detroit, Mich., formerly of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, and son of Rev. H Austin, of Gananoque, was united in marriage to Miss Lilian G Hall, Daughter of Sheriff Hall. Rev Dr Torrance performed the ceremony. Many Peterborough friends will wish them a happy married life.

Morgan—Crowe.

A wedding took place at the new English church near Hall's Glen on Sept. 20th, when Mr Fred Morgan, son of Mr John Morgan of the House, Warsaw, was united in matrimony to Miss Levina Crowe, daughter of the late William Crowe of Lummer. Rev George Warren of Lakefield officiated. The bride was attended by Miss Maud Morgan, sister of the groom, whilst Mr Thomas Crowe, brother of the bride, assisted the groom in a like manner.

The wedding march was played by Mrs S Fowler, Brockville. After the ceremony was performed the newly married couple and their friends repaired to the residence of the bride's mother, where dancing and other amusements were participated in.

The presents to the bride were both numerous and costly, and testified to the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

Mr. and Mrs Morgan are now staying at the Victoria House, McCracken's, for a shor time.

IN HUMANITY'S CAUSE.

Heart Full of Song Because South American Rheumatic Cure Has Healed Her.

"For the benefit of suffering humanity I consider it my duty to inform you of the great and lasting benefit I have received from the use of South American Rheumatic Cure. I was a great sufferer from rheumatism for a number of years—all remedies I tried failed to cure until I commenced to use this wonderful preparation. It worked a great cure. I trust other sufferers may follow my example with as satisfactory results." Mrs. Bates, 71 Gloucester Street, Toronto. Sold by Ormond & Walsh and H. S. McDonald.

THE BOERS ALL READY

Buffalo River, the Boundary of Natal, Centre of Storm.

A BIG CONSPIRACY EXISTS

To Drive Great Britain Altogether Out of South Africa.

Boers Seize a Railway, But a Blockade is Said to Have Stopped Their Military Trains—Boers Eager for War, But Paul Kruger Fears to Fire First Shot.

Following is a summary of the despatches regarding the Transvaal since Saturday up to this morning:

Dr. Leyds, the European representative of the Transvaal, has named Tuesday as the day for a formal declaration of war by the Boers.

The telegraph wires between Natal and Johannesbugh have been cut since Friday.

According to despatches from Pretoria, complete chaos reigns there.

30,000 Boers on Frontier.

It is said there are 30,000 burghers along the borders. Joubert has 10,000 on Natal border, and Cronze 30,000 on Bechuand.

The British camp near Dunnee consists of 5,000 men, with 24 guns, in a strong position.

Not the faintest hint is allowed to escape in London as to diplomatic communications.

It is noticeable that not even the Brussels agency of the Transvaal Government has yet issued Mr Kruger's latest note to the press.

The silence maintained on both sides is regarded as ominous.

Feverish Activity.

From South Africa the news is wholly concerned with feverish preparations for hostilities.

SEIZE A RAILWAY.

The Orange Free State is actively commandering.

Boers Seized a Railway.

The Transvaal Government has virtually taken over the Netherlands railway, for military purposes, and Natal trains are being turned back. The Johannesburg train was side-tracked at St. Anderton Transvaal, to make way for trains carrying burghers to the Natal border.

Troops Leave Johannesburg.

At Johannesburg the commandeering orders are completed, and the burghers are ready for the field. A large body passed through the town yesterday afternoon. Business has virtually ceased. The merchants have finished barricading their premises.

A party of 300 Germans has been notified to leave, and the Irish corps, commanded by Blake, an Irish-American, will go early in the week.

Boer Trains Blocked.

Three trains filed with armed burghers for the Natal border were last evening reported as unable to leave Bloemfontein, owing to a block on the line, which has disorganized the whole train service. Two hundred passengers left yesterday by the morning trains, and nearly a thousand more by outgoing trains last night. The Government undertakes to provide for the families of burghers who go the front.

CENTRE OF STORM.

From all points come reports of continued military activity on the frontiers, and it is evident that the narrow, wedge-like strip of Natal, whose apax is crowned with the ominous name of Majuba Hill, will be the centre of the coming storm. The Boers have established a camp at Scheeper's Nek, near Vryheid, and they will mobilize a great force on Buffalo River to-morrow, which the authorities at Dundee expect will move across the border to that spot, probably at once. It is believed that a conflict at this quarter will certainly occur.

Early in the Week.

Another force of burghers is massed at Pietersburg, 50 miles south, and outlying parties are posted at all the drifts along the Limpopo River.

Col. Plummer's column is moving 50 miles nearer the Transvaal frontier, and has established telephone connections to within six miles of Rorke's Drift on the Limpopo.

The Boers openly threaten to raid Vryburg, in British Bechuanaland, as soon as hostilities open.

The Transvaal field-cornets are taking the names of colonial Boers who are willing to cross the border in the event of war.

On Buffalo River.

It is evident that Buffalo River, the northeastern boundary of Natal, is to be the Potomac of the war. In view of its strategic value, Joshua Joubert has taken absolute command of the forces there, and is placing a strong line of pickets along the river, and has ordered the natives to drive in all the stocks.

EAGER FOR WAR.

One despatch says: Young and old Boers are fully determined to fight whatever may be said to the contrary. Large numbers of British and other Uitlanders have enrolled themselves in defence of their adopted country. The highest Government officials throw all the blame of hostilities on the British Government.

Five thousand Boers are now concentrated in close proximity to the Natal frontier, and it is reported that they are about to attack Dundee. The complete precautions have been taken.

Charleston is deserted. All the women and children have left, and not more than ten men are now there.

The Boer Ultimatum.

The sentiments of the Boers was significently manifested as the train carrying the Pretoria contingent to the front departed yesterday. Members of the Volksraad who were looking on exclaimed, "That is our ultimatum."

Big guns, field telegraphs, burghers, munitions of war, and provisions are being hurried off to Volksrust, the projected base of the Boer operations against Natal.

Four thousand Boers are at Sandprint and Volksrust, just beyond the Natal border. The Natal police are being called in from outlying stations, and the local troops and carbineers are mobolizing for the defence of Newcastle.

Cunning Kruger.

At Cape Town there is less excitement than near the frontier, and well-informed persons discredit the idea that the Boers will take the initiative. President Kruger, it is said, does not despair of the sympathy of at least a portion of the British Liberals, and he knows that if the Boers fire the first shot this sympathy will be forfeited.

DUTCH PLOT.

At Southampton there was a scene of considerable excitmant on Saturday, two transports leaving that port.

It is alleged that in conversation Mr Chamberlain said that one great factor of the situation which could not be brought before the public, for fear that the Government's objects might be misinterpreted, was the Cabinet's well defined understanding that for months a carefully fostered plot had been in progress to form a Dutch federation. He also referred to the action of the Orange Free States, and to that of the Afrikanders members of the Cape Legislature, which somewhat confirms Mr Chamberlain's view, for it is impossible to believe that such important steps would result from mere spontaneity of sentiment on a current dispute. It has long been suspected that the Cabinet was prompted by more vital questions than the Uitlander rights, and if Mr Chamberlan is quoted correctly, it would appear that Great Britain will not stop until reassured of the absolute safety of her supremacy in South Africa.

HEAVY DAMAGES.

Twenty one thousand six hundred and sixty six dollars and thirty three cents was the amount awarded by a Chicago Jury to a railway employe in a suit which he brought against the corporation which had dismissed him, black-listed his name and forwarded it to other railway companies, thus preventing him from securing employment. The plantiff had with other workmen gone out on strike. The manager refused to take him back and further pursued him, as above. A writer in the Arena remarks on this case thus :—

If a man who quits the employ of another cannot get work in his chosen occupation without first obtaining the consent of the man whose employ he has left he becomes a slave. He will not dare resist any oppression his employer may see fit to impose upon him. His wages may be cut to the starvation point; he may be called upon to work extra hours ; yet he dare not complain, as he knows he cannot leave and get employment elsewhere. If he protests his employer will say, "Very well, if you don't like it you can quit." The man having a wife and children to support will bow in submission, knowing that his master has him in his power, and that he cannot support his family if he is defiant, as he cannot get work elsewhere without the consent of his employer. This is slavery pure and simple, yet it is without exaggeration, the condition of most railroad employes in this country to-day. The blacklisting system is also being adopted in nearly all other branches of corporate employment, such as the large packing houses, street railroads, clothing manufactories and coal mines. It is one of the growing evils of the present era of combinations and trusts, menacing the liberty of a large class of our citizens.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Good morning.

•• •• ••

There is no truth in the rumor that the Mayor of Ashburnham has challenged the Mayor of Peterborough to a foot race.

•• •• ••

Rev. O. A. Eaton, the brilliant preacher of the Bloor street Baptist church, Toronto, surprised his congregation and convulsed a few last Sunday by inviting the mothers who desired to attend his ministry to come along and "bring your babies with you, hand them over to the ladies in the room behind there, and you can enjoy the service in the full confidence that they will be cared for. We have a large corps of young ladies who are skilled in nursing babies, who don't need religious services as much as some others perhaps, and they will be glad to amuse your baby for you."

THE MAGICAL MIRROR

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY A WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentous Pictures Reflected In Its Oval Surface, Although It Will Not Work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our prosaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be claimed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the sacred secrets and ceremonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery. While there she managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomless depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface; then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gazer recognized as that of his own [illegible] down the Potomac. By the next two days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his house, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in shape; a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush; a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth.

The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the asphaltum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the best known material for absorption of the aura of the human body, and this is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, airy chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by [illegible] the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post.

The Birds Save Us.

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the bugs and slugs would simply eat up orchards and crops.

Fact Vor se Fiction.

"Talk about the seven sleepers," mentioned the [illegible]; "I'll bet there are 7,000 of them between Albany and New York."

Over-burdened Women.

Many a man sees his wife bend and tug at burdens that strain the back and the heart alike, without any idea of the outrage. Children follow in too quick succession to allow the mother time to recuperate. The womanly organs become displaced, there are debilitating, disagreeable drains, with the added pain of inflamed or ulcerated parts. In this condition the woman bravely tries to carry her household load, afraid to take the rest she needs lest a meal will be late. No wonder she is pale, weak, wretched, surly of temper and snappish of tongue. She would be false to nature if she were anything else. No persons need help so much as the class of whom this woman is the type. And for such women no help is so sure, so wonderful, as that given by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It restores all the womanly organs to perfect health. It establishes regularity in their functions. It restores the strained and shattered nervous system. It clears up the complexion, rounds out the form and makes life a daily happiness. "Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol or whisky. It is the best medicine for women. Nothing can be "just as good" as the best. Tell the dealer so if he offers a substitute.

"I have long thought it my duty to write you a few lines to let you know what your 'Favorite Prescription' has done for me," writes Mrs. Euphemia Falconer, of Trent, Muskegon Co., Mich. "I am twenty-seven years old; have been married ten years. I am the mother of four children. My first two babies were still-born, and I suffered every thing but death. My friends all thought I could never recover. I was reduced to 100 pounds. When I was three months along for my third child I was taken with hemorrhage or flooding and came near having a miscarriage from female weakness. For two months I was under the care of our doctor, but was getting weaker all the time until one day I happened to come across one of your little books and I read it through, and the next day I sent and got three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of 'Pellets.' I improved so fast I continued to take your medicine until baby was born, and he is healthy and all right. He is four years old. My baby girl is two years old. My health has been good ever since. I now weigh 165 pounds."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets increase the efficiency of "Favorite Prescription" where a laxative is required.

THE TURF REVIEW.

Streak, 2:14¼, is to be tried this year at the pace, by George Saunders, according to report.

Narion, 3, by Arion, dam Nancy Hanks, is said to be showing a good gait and good speed this year.

It is said that Rose Croix, 2:18½ at three years, has shown a mile in 2:15 at the pace for McHenry, at Pleasanton, Cal.

Nelly R, ch. m., 2:26, by Red Cloud, although 12 years old, has never had a foal until this year. It is by Dan T, 2:08¾.

A horse with the peculiar name of Esaw, by Seesaw, dam by Independence, is to be raced this year by D. H. McGill.

All reports to the contrary notwithstanding, it is thought that Willis O. Foote will be able to be in the sulky this season.

There is a great deal of talk about Directly, 2:08¾, beating all the pacers out this year and taking a record faster than 2:00 besides.

Since the sale of Advertiser, Palo Alto farm has only three sons of Electioneer remaining in the stud, Altiro, Azmoor and Mendocino.

A race for a purse of $1,000 is projected for July 4, at Youngstown, O., with Lord Vincent, 2:16¼; La Honda, 2:12¼ pacing, and Oddity, 2:10¼ pacing, among the starters.

The 3-year-old bay filly Marion, by Arion, dam Nancy Hanks, is eligible to start in the New England $10,000 Futurity, and is likely to do so if the reports of the speed she is showing are correct.

The first new 2:30 trotter of the year is a dun gelding named Dot, breeding unknown, who took the first heat of the 2:40 race at Norfolk, Va., May 16, in 2:27¼.—Turf, Field and Farm.

"Holland" is said to be an abbreviation of "hollow land."

BOERS GETTING NASTY

They Insult Britishers and Cross the Line to Visit Traitors.

THE CRISIS APPROACHING.

Preparations for War Are Going Ahead Rapidly.

Reported That a Down Train Has Been Stopped at Volksrust for the Purpose of Seizing Prominent Uitlanders—An Act of Treason to Great Britain.

London, Sept. 30—The Boer reply had not reached the Colonial Office at noon, much to the astonishment of the officials, who remained on duty all night long, expecting its arrival at any moment.

If possible, the war preparations are more active than ever. At Southampton there was a scene of considerable excitement, two transports leaving that port to-day. Further contingents of troops of various arms, on a third transport, left the Mersey this afternoon. Four liners were chartered at Liverpool this morning to call at Naples, where each vessel will embark 3,000 mules.

Opinions in Cape Town.

The Cape Town Times says: "It is impossible to say what are the real grounds for the Transvaal military activity until the nature of the despatches of the Imperial Government, Orange Free State and Transvaal are known, therefore it is useless to speculate on the chances of an early recourse to hostilities."

Commenting upon the apathy of Premier Schreiner's colleagues, the paper says:

"If the Premier possesses information leading him to the belief that there is no necessity for the precautions which others believe are urgently demanded, it is Mr Schreiner's duty to set the public mind at rest."

Boers Have Troubles.

According to advices from Pretoria, it appears that the authorities there are serving out no more Mausers, but are giving the burgers Martinis instead. This is mainly due to the defective Mauser cartridge, which is constantly bursting in the barrels, and destroying the bolt action.

A telegram from Pretoria, dated yesterday, says the wildest excitement prevails there, and that the war preparations are proceeding apace. Big guns, field telegraphs, burghers, munitions of war, and provisions, are being hurried off to Volksrust, the projected base of against Natal. Crowds gather at the station to witness the departure of the military trains. The Boer War Office is working night and day and commandeering is actively proceeding.

The Raad, in order to secure the support of many Uitlanders, has decided that Uitlanders who help the Boers will receive the franchise. Several of the Transvaal Government departments close to-morrow, including the High Court. Immediately is proclaimed, outside postal communication will be stopped. The secret session which the Raad is holding this afternoon will probably adjourn until Wednesday for the result of the British Cabinet meeting.

The Transvaal is concentrating artillery along the Natal border, and its reserve artillery has been despatched to Standardton and to Wakkerstroom, and also to Rustemburg, which will probably form the base of an attack on Bechuanaland, in the direction of Mafeking, where a British counter force is assembling and fortifications are being raised.

Boers are Insulting.

The occupants of trains from the Transvaal, arriving at Ladysmith, confirm the movement of burghers in the direction of the frontier. They also declare that the Boers insulted them when passing the stations, and that one Boer assaulted a passenger without provocation.

About 1,800 Boer artillerymen, including the reserves are encamped at Volksrust where the field cornet has now issued 800 rifles and 45,000 cartridges.

Arresting Uitlanders.

It is reported that a down train, due at Durban to-morrow, has been stopped at Volksrust for the purpose of seizing prominent Uitlanders.

Treason to Britain.

From Vryburgh it is said that a native laborer has sworn an affidavit before a magistrate that he saw troops between 12 and 28 armed Boers, enter the colony from the Transvaal, and visit a farmer named Haasbroeck. They remained in the house a considerable time and crept back across the frontier by a dry watercourse.

A telegram from Aliwal in the north, says the Orange Free State is stopping wagons, produce and live stock, en route to Cape Colony. The Burghers, it is further said, are allowed to cross the frontier for business but are expected to return immediately.

Messrs Rye, Metheral and Dixon Best, who have been up at Ball Lake for an outing, returned Friday. Mr Rye's steam yacht, which carried the party, made a most satisfactory record for itself. Shooting was only fair, but the fishing was good.

A SIMPLE LITTLE MIX UP.

How It Helped One Man at the Expense of Another.

How a bunch of roses sold a couple of high priced railroad tickets is the basis of a queer little comedy of errors enacted the other day at a leading city hotel. Among the guests of the house was a wealthy Texas merchant who was en route with his wife for a visit to New England. The Texan has a local business representative here in the person of a bustling young man about town, who was especially anxious to make the stay of his principal as pleasant as possible. Accordingly he rushed to a florist's as soon as he saw the names on the register and ordered him to put up the handsomest bunch of roses he had in the shop and send them over to Mrs. Blank at such and such a hotel. In his hurry he forgot to leave his card for inclosure, and, supposing it was omitted intentionally, the florist proceeded to prepare a magnificent bouquet, which he dispatched forthwith by messenger.

It so happened at the moment the flowerman arrived that a city passenger solicitor for one of the north bound roads had just handed over his card to be sent to the Texas gentleman's apartment, and quite naturally the pasteboard and the roses went up together. The visitors were both astonished and pleased. "This is certainly a princely way of soliciting business," exclaimed the merchant, examining the flowers. "Why, these things must have cost all of $10. Show the gentleman up." The solicitor was shown up, received most cordially and given an immediate order for through transportation both ways. He departed, chuckling merrily, but a little dazed by the facility of his deal and puzzled to understand the many references to his "courtesy" and "thoughtfulness."

An hour or so later the local representative dropped around and was met by his employer in the lobby. The greeting was painfully matter of fact, and not a word was said about the flowers. The young man was greatly chagrined and began to believe he had made a bad break. Next day he accompanied the couple to the depot, and incidentally something was said about the route.

"We decided to go this way on account of the gentleman who called to sell us tickets," explained the lady. "He was so courteous and pleasant! Why, would you believe it," she continued, "he actually sent me an enormous bunch of beauty roses with his business card!"

Light dawned on the local representative, and he groaned. In his pocket was a florist's bill for $12.75.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A JUMPING TOOTHACHE.

How It Won Its Victim Credit For Bravery In Battle.

"It was a toothache," said the veteran, "that won me a reputation for daring at the battle of Bull Run. That was the only fight I was ever in where I didn't wish I could find a hole to crawl into. All this talk about coolness on the eve of battle is nonsense, invented by people who have never been there or old soldiers whose tongues get away with their memories. Our men and officers were as brave as any in the war and made good records, but they all had the ague and longed for sick leave just about the time the bullets began to fly. But I had the toothache for two days before that battle, and if there is an aggravation on earth that will make a man want to hit his best friend in the face that is it.

"On the night before the fight I did not sleep a wink. The old tooth got to jumping like a goat, and I couldn't have suffered more from an amputated leg. I was also furiously mad. I felt that I'd either got to bolt for the rear in search of relief or encourage some rebel to put a ball through my head.

"We'd been waiting in battle line for an hour, and the boys had grown white and were all choked up. I had been entirely occupied with the old tooth, and the first thing I knew the fight was on. We were holding them in check, but that didn't suffice me. As I got hold of my gun and pulled the handkerchief off my jaw I yelled out for the boys to follow, and we struck a whole brigade and whirled it around and sent it back half a mile. I felt that I could lick the whole of Lee's army for an hour or two! They told me that I yelled and dodged death a thousand times, but I remember nothing but the jumps of that tooth. When they stopped, or for what particular reason, I could never say, but after a couple of hours I came to myself, as it were, and was being complimented on all sides, and the jumps had ceased."

STATE LINES.

Kansas is a state of long obituaries and neglected graves.—Atchison Globe

What between J. Sterling Morton's new party and Senator Thurston's poetry, the state of Nebraska has our profound sympathy.—Denver News.

New York has established a state college of forestry. One of its labors will be to replant the tracts denuded of pine and other valuable conifers. It set out a large area this spring and is rearing 3,000,000 seedling pines for future use.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Proud of Him.

When he was 50, he returned to his native town "just to see how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked it and sold calico and groceries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when he thought how much those 30 years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself.

Presently he met one of the old inhabitants.

"Waal, I declare, is it really you, Hank!" said the old man incredulously. "We've heard you've been prospering fust rate sence you went west. They've made you a railroad president or suthin of the sort, ain't they? I heerd so, but I couldn't believe it. It's really true, is it? Waal, all I've got to say is they must be purty hard up for railroad presidents out there."

Shopgirl's Hard Lot.

Persons complain that shopgirls do not jump actively to wait upon them when they enter a store. Why not? The other day I saw a girl approach a respectably dressed woman of middle age—that's 35—and heard her ask, over the counter, "What would you like, ma'am?"

To this polite attention I was shocked to hear the woman reply: "You shut up! Don't you talk to me! I can ask for what I want, and I don't want any impudence from clerks!"

A few rebuffs from such creatures are quite enough to cool the ardor of any shopgirl.

Maud and the Judge.

Maud Muller jumped on her time-worn bike
For an evening hit at the dusty pike.

An old drop frame of 'way down gear,
With a rattle the sleeping dead could hear!

The judge came pounding along behind,
Out airing his great judicial mind.

He noted the figure neat and trim
And graceful motion of hidden limb.

And he said to himself in his grave delight:
"What's matter with Maudie? She's all right!"

He drew beside her and asked her flat
Why she rode such an old ice cart as that?

And she said sadly could ill support
Such wheel as the judge of the district court.

He told her she could on a chainless
ride,
With a diamond frame if she would be his bride.

Or if she would bust up his solo life
They would tandem together as man and wife.

They ride on a tandem, now, of course,
But Maud has to work like a tread-mill horse.

For the judge has learned how to sit and shirk,
And let his darling do all the work.

He weighs two hundred and fifty-one,
But the poor girl thinks it an even ton.

And she often says with a pain-rent heart:
"I wish I was back on my old ice cart."

Denver Post.

AGUINALDO GOES AHEAD.

He Outbids General Otis in the Purchase of Arms.

London, Sept. 30.—The Times publishes this morning long extracts from a private letter from Manila, dated Aug. 21, whose writer asserts that Aguinaldo is getting the best of it; that the Americans are making no practical progress; that Aguinaldo has regained his influence over the villages, and has lately obtained a lot of money, with which he is endeavoring to ferment disturbances in Manila.

'Aguinaldo,' says the writer, 'offers double the amount of the rewards for American rifles and arms that General Otis offers for Filipino weapons. The result is that the Americans get none of the latter, while their own are being contantly stolen.'

After calling Gen. Otis 'good-intentioned, but sluggish and extremely parsimonious,' the letter attributes the difficulty of the Americans very largely to false economies. Many towns are inadequatly policed, but the officers know it would be useless to ask for more. The hospitals are inadequently staffed, but General Otis declares, according to the writer, that half the men in the hospitals are not sick, and to increase the hospitals would only result in an increase of pretended invalids.

Lipton is an Expert.

London, Sept. 30.—M A P (Mainly About People) says it has been Sir Thos Lipton's keen ambition for many years to become the challenger for the America's Cup, and that the popular conception of him as not knowing much about yachts is a mistake, as, twelve years ago, when the Thistle was fitting out, Lipton, who was then in business in Glasgow, took the greatest interest in all the details of her sails and he has done a great deal for yachting in a quiet way and knows how to handle a boat better than ninety-nine out of a hundred of his critics.

PERSONNEL OF THE FORCE.

Generals Who Will Lead the Army In South Africa.

Almost Certain That General Buller, Former Adjutant-General, Will Have the Supreme Command—Dissatisfaction is Expressed With White's Inexperience.

London, Sept. 30th.—Comment regarding the personnel and material of the British force which is expected to be fighting, within a short time, in South Africa continues to occupy a large share of public attention. Many criticisms appear, blaming the Government for not permitting the War Office many months ago to put an adequate defensive force on the probable scene of action. But the rumors of the forthcoming departure of an army corps somewhat appease these critics. It is almost certain General Sir Redvers Henry Buller, the former Adjutant General, will have supreme command in South Africa. In the meantime the military responsibility is divided between Major-General Sir George Stewart White and Lieutenant-General Sir Fredrick William Forestier-Walker, the latter at the Cape and the former in Natal, each being supreme over his own district. General White, who is described as a fighting man "keen as mustard," has not yet arrived in Natal. Upon him will devolve the duty of checking any desultory Boer raids, or, in case of a premature outbreak of actual hostilities, of holding Natal until General Buller's army corps arrives, when the aggressive British campaign will probably begin.

Dissatisfaction.

Some dissatisfaction is expressed because General White has never served in South Africa. But it is generally thought that his fighting abilities will more than make up for his lack of topographical knowledge. Under Generals White and Walker will be a host of officers specially selected for their knowledge of Boer methods and South African campaigning. General Sir William Symons, General White's second in command, is one of the few survivors of the massacre of Isandlwhana. The artillery in Natal will be commanded by Colonel Downing, late chief instructor at the School of Gunnery, Shoeburyness, who has the highest scientific and practical reputation.

A Dashing Officer.

Much has been said regarding the physical unfitness of a large percentage of the British rank and file going to South Africa or already there. A great difference of opinion on the subject exists. But it can be said that the regiments selected are believed to have the highest standard of physique, and all are comparatively long-service men.

Many of the British officers believe the Mauser, with which the Boers are armed, is superior to the Lee-Metford rifle of the British for use against civilized troops. A small-arms expert said to a reporter of the Associated Press: "The Lee-Metford will stop savages, but that is not the object most desirable when fighting against civilized forces. Under a well managed Mauser fire troops will come on, dropping gradually from the effect of galling wounds and not realizing the necessity of cover or retreat until when within the deadly zone, they find half their number disabled and unable to face the full weight of short range fire. In other words, Mauser-armed troops are more deceptive to the enemy than those armed with Lee-Metfords, the effect of the latter being immediately visible to the officers directing the fight."

The Colonial Horses.

The Indian and Australian horses which will be much used by the cavalry and mounted infantry, will probably suffer more from the change of country than the men being obliged to live on oats and mealies, a form of fodder they are utterly unaccustomed to.

The apparent inclination of the Secretary of State for War, the Marquis of Lansdowne, to run the campaign preparations on his own ideas and his tendency to support subordinate officer have called forth a published reminder that he has a capable commander-in-chief at his elbow. P

HIS HAIR TURNED WHITE.

Peculiar Experience of the Man Who Dealt In High Explosives.

"Nitroglycerin, sir; high explosives accomplished it," said a well dressed man with a youthful face and snow white hair to a chance acquaintance at the Great Northern.

"But your face is not scarred? It would seem that an explosion"—

"An impending explosion it was. Two years ago I was the most successful well shooter in America. I could make the oil loosen up where others had failed. The secret lay in the explosives I employed. I made them myself and had the business down fine. At that time I went to New York to figure on a big blasting contract that would have made me a pile. I failed to make the arrangement, and the very day the negotiations fell through I started suddenly for England on a similar mission.

"'Is there such a thing as high explosives ripening?' asked the Englishman I was accompanying on the second day of our voyage.

"The question brought me to my feet and caused an exclamation of horror to escape from my lips. Many explosives undergo a ripening process, which adds greatly to their destructive power, at the same time decidedly increasing the danger of handling them. That made by me was of this character. Indeed 25 days after it was compounded it was almost certain to explode of its own volition, so to speak. And on the upper shelf of the checkroom of my New York hotel I had left a large grip containing a 20 pound can of this compound, the ripening of which meant destruction and death.

"For an hour I was almost in a state of frenzy, freely denouncing myself as a multimurderer. In vain I drew an awful picture of the devastation that would overwhelm a certain New York hotel in exactly 17 days and called upon the captain to put his ship about. He promised to transfer me to a west bound steamer if an opportunity presented itself, but fortune failed me, and I was obliged to cross the ocean. On the morning of the twenty-fifth day of the life of my ripening high explosive I sprang from a carriage and rushed into the hotel.

"No reprieved murderer ever experienced greater joy than I did as I saw the last of the terrible fluid disappear in a catch basin. Ten minutes later I started back from the mirror of the hotel bar, where I had gone for a 'bracer,' in absolute dismay. My jet black hair had turned white as snow."

VETERANS UNDER FIRE.

The Reason They Don't Stoop When the Bullets Are Flying.

"The temptation to stoop when under fire is almost irresistible," said a veteran, "and that accounts for so many of the wounds received by raw troops. You see, when a man happens to be hit in a stooping posture the chances are that the bullet plows right through his body from end to end. On the other hand, if he is standing erect, the probabilities are in favor of the wound being slight, anyhow not mortal. Old soldiers are well aware of this, and while they will drop flat and hunt cover every chance they get they never stoop.

"After a soldier has been in a few engagements he learns such tricks, and, as far as the rest of it is concerned, he becomes simply a fatalist. There is nothing strange about it, for almost all his experiences appear to lend color to that doctrine. For instance, he never dodges, because he has seen men dodge and get killed when it really seemed as if they had reached for the bullet. In fact, the strangest things are continually happening, all apparently the pure whim of chance.

"I remember near Petersburg a comrade of mine, as brave a fellow as ever lived, took refuge behind a little hut. He was wornout under fire and wanted to get a moment's breathing space. Twenty feet in the rear and a little to one side was a pile of crossties full of wrought iron nails. A bullet came along, splintered a tie and drove out one of the nails at right angles. The jagged iron struck my chum in the side, penetrated his kidneys and killed him.

"That's the blind chance of war, and after getting a few such object lessons a fellow is apt to acquire a sort of sang froid that is immensely impressive to a recruit. It isn't because he has a contempt for danger; he has merely learned the folly of trying to evade it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Where the Pot of Gold Is Buried.

How many women are fretting and struggling along on a very little money when a good sized yard or adjoining patch of ground is going to waste! Yet that very piece of ground may contain all sorts of possibilities—clothes, furniture, books, medicines, luxuries and even necessities otherwise impossible.

Clear, plow, fertilize and plant. This done, the great beginning is made, and perseverance and attention will secure the rest. Onions, tomatoes, cabbages, celery, a small poultry farm, a violet or rose farm—any one of these may add several hundred dollars to one's purse every year. Small fruits, hops, tuberoses and grapes are also very profitable. With some intelligence a blooming garden can always be made a paying one. Make it a principle to have no more waste in the garden than in the kitchen.

If there is only a very small place and just enough raised for one's own family, try, after the table is supplied, to prepare what vegetables and fruits are left over for sale for winter use. There is always a demand for good homemade canning and preserving. Do not let a valuable scrap of ground be idle.—Annetta Halliday-Antona in Woman's Home Companion.

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—Youth's Companion.

MEN CURED FREE.

A most successful remedy has been found for sexual weakness, such as impotency, varicocele, shrunken organs, nervous debility, lost manhood, night emissions premature discharge and all other results of self-abuse or excesses. It cures any case of the difficulty, never fails to restore the organs to full natural strength and vigor. The Doctor who made this wonderful discovery wants to let every man know about it. He will therefore send the receipt giving the various ingredients to be used so that all men at a trifling expense can cure themselves. He sends the receipt free, and all the reader need do is to send his name and address to L. W. Knapp, M.D. 1011 Hull Bldg., Detroit, Mich., requesting the free receipt as reported in this paper. It is a generous offer, and all men ought to be glad to have such an opportunity.

IN AN OPEN BOAT.

Exciting Adventures of the Crew of the Steamer Arosia.

Glasgow, Sept. 30.—A remarkable story of privation is told by the fourteen survivors of the steamer Arosia, which foundered while on a voyage from Elba to Glasgow.

When the vessel began to sink twenty-six men forming the crew got into two boats—sixteen in a whale-boat, and ten in the other—but so rapidly did the steamer go down that they were scarcely able to get anything in the way of provisions away with them.

As night came on those in the whale-boat lost sight of the second boat, and they believe she has been lost in the bad weather experienced in the following days. The whale-boat itself was partially swamped time after time by big seas, and the first mate and one of the crew were carried overboard and drowned, reducing the number in the boat to fourteen.

The water they had on board was spilt by the seas which came aboard, and all they had for sustenance was a bag of ship biscuits which had got soaked with sea water. Even this provision ran out, with the result that they were without food or water for a day or two. Bailing the boat continually was also a great tax on their strength.

At last, after they had been six days in the boat, they saw with delight the packet-boat Lou Cettori coming towards them. Although there was a heavy sea on at the time, and they were utterly exhausted, they were safely got on board this vessel and were subsequently landed at Marseilles.

Advice to Volunteers.

London, Sept. 30.—Sir Redvers Buller, in his report upon the visit of 12,305 volunteers from London, Liverpool and the Midland counties to Aldershot during the summer months, whilst saying that the behavior of the volunteers was very good, said that he has received satisfactory reports as to their work in the field, and that the camps were better kept than in previous years, observes:

"There is one remark though which I should like all volunteer commanders to lay to heart. They harass their men with unnecessary movements. Owing, I fancy, to the fact that most of their opportunities for training are in drill halls, the commanders, when at field operations, pay too much attention to drill. Men are frequently moved to get them into an exact formation when they are well where they are, and would be better if permitted to rest. It is very difficult to learn, but at field exercises volunteer commanding officers of all ranks should strive to pay less attention to what their men are doing and more to what they are going to do with their men.

Shot a Girl, Then Himself.

Rodney, Ont., Sept. 30.—Last night about six o'clock Philip McPhail, who worked for P Doyle, farmer, near Wardsville, shot P Doyle's oldest daughter, a young lady about 19 years of age, and afterwards went to his home, about a mile from Doyle's place, and shot himself in the left breast, dying about 12 o'clock at night.

Miss Doyle was shot in the left ear. The doctors in attendance think she will recover. No reason is known why McPhail committed the act.

Sir Louis Davies' Return.

London, Sept. 30.—Sir Louis Davies expects to finish his share of the Alaskan boundary matter in two weeks and will probably return home October 19. The negotiations at present are confined to consultations between Great Britain and Canada.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. WOMEN OF NOTE.

Mrs. James M. Barrie, wife of the author of "The Little Minister," is said to be a very pretty woman.

Mme. Navarro's (Mary Anderson's) sister is Mother Dominica, a nun in the Convent of the Assumption in London.

Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer disposes of some $75,000 each year on her whims and never asks the price of an article that strikes her fancy, but orders it sent home.

Erie, Kan., has two newspapers edited by women. Mrs. Belle Harbaugh edits The Republican-Record and Miss Elizabeth Frazier has charge of the Erie Sentinel.

Helen Gould's income is the largest of any unmarried woman in the country. She does not spend much on herself. On churches and charities she spends $100,000 a year.

Mme. Loubet greatly resembles her friend, Mme. Carnot, in her charitable tendencies. She disposes of large sums among the poor, and is a regular visitor at the hospitals.

Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, formerly Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, is said to be the most extravagant woman in society. She spends quite $100,000 each year on trifles and knickknacks.

Mrs. S. V. Harkness of New York city, formerly of Cleveland, has offered to build a chapel at the College For Women of the Western Reserve university in Cleveland. She had previously founded a biblical professorship in that college.

The young Duchess of Marlborough and several other ladies of much wealth and rank are going in for falconry. It is an expensive form of sport, an ordinary hawk costing as much as $500 and requiring quite an outlay for maintenance and training.

Mrs. William Rockefeller's hobby is for carnations, one of the greenhouses at her country place at Scarborough-on-the-Hudson being devoted exclusively to their culture. She is said to spend thousands of dollars every year for the plants she imports for her own pleasure.

At a public dress rehearsal of a new play in Paris Mme. Casimir-Perier, wife of the former president of the French republic, was requested to remove her hat, but declined to do so. When she learned that the rule would be enforced in her case as in all others, she left the theater in disgust.

Lady Randolph Churchill is thus described by T. P. O'Connor in his weekly: She is still a very pretty woman. Her raven black hair does not show a single thread of gray; her figure is slight and svelte, and the deep, dark blue eyes have all their vivacity undimmed by their years of tears. She is certainly one of the most widely accomplished women of her time.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

After a good soaking shower is the best time for hand weeding.

A good plan is to keep the growing orchard in cultivation until it comes into bearing well and then seed to clover.

Increased sunlight among the trees brings increased growth and blossom and decreases the tendency to mold and rot.

Peach, cherry and pear trees will bear very little forcing, and on this account wood ashes are better for them than ground bone.

Fruits, especially the apple, are largely controlled in character by soil and climate. Get varieties that are adapted to your locality.

Scraping the moss and old dead bark off the mature trees in the orchard and washing the trunks with some alkaline liquid can always be recommended.—Exchange.

The Unattainable One.

She—Indeed it's not an easy thing for a girl to get a husband.

He—Why, a pretty girl can make her choice of four out of every five men she meets!

She—But it's the fifth that she wants.—Harlem Life.

A bundle of spider webs, not larger than a buckshot and weighing less than a dram, would, if straightened out and untangled, reach a distance of 350 miles.

POULTRY POINTERS.

Impure water in summer often causes disease among poultry.

The objection to late hatched fowls is the danger of their being stunted.

Poultry matures within a year and is easily changed in any of its characteristics.

Irregular feeding invites derangement of the digestive organs and often causes disease.

In nearly all cases the male imparts the color. When white males are used all the chickens will be white.

Generally, ground bone is one of the best forms in which to give lime to the laying hens when they need it.

By using milk instead of water in mixing the soft feed for fowls it serves both for moisture and nourishment.

One advantage in favor of the white breeds is that the pin feathers do not show so plainly as in the black plumaged birds.

Cornmeal does not contain all the essential elements of growth, and for this reason chickens often die off when fed upon it.—St. Louis Republic.

VINEGAR, THEN LEAD.

They Settled the Trouble at the Carbonville Postoffice.

"I think my most exciting official experience," said Captain J. E. Stone, formerly United States postal inspector, "was at the town of Carbonville, Colo., in 1879. It was a star route post, and there was much complaint about the nonreceipt of mail, so I went over to investigate.

"The postmaster was a man named Wilson, who kept a general store, and the postoffice consisted of a soap box on the end of his counter. When mail arrived, it was dumped in, and every fellow helped himself, an arrangement that worked well enough until a chap known as Black Hills Pete came to town. Pete disturbed the entire system. When he didn't get a letter himself, he would tear up several others on the principle that misery loves company, and, being a notorious desperado, nobody dared interfere. I got the facts, and as the mail came in that evening I took a seat in the corner and awaited developments, first ordering the box removed.

"A little after dark the miners from camp began to assemble, and presently in came Black Hills Pete. He was a big brute of a fellow, and I saw at once there was going to be trouble. 'Where's that letter box?' he demanded of Wilson. 'I've ordered him not to use it any more,' I said, getting up. 'Who the blank blank are you?' roared Peter. 'I'm the inspector,' I replied. 'Well, you get me that box quick,' he retorted, and, seeing him reach toward his pocket, I made a grab for my gun; but, as bad luck would have it, the confounded thing caught in the holster.

"In a twinkling he had me covered, but before he could turn loose a quavering voice called out: 'Pete! Oh, Pete!' The desperado glared around, and there stood Wilson holding a large tin squirt gun used for drawing liquors. The sight was so ludicrous that the bully burst into a guffaw, and as he did so Wilson let drive the piston and hurled about a quart of the strongest kind of vinegar squarely into his face. The stuff blinded him, and before he could recover himself the storekeeper had two bullets in his shoulder.

"That's the true story of the strangest fight that ever occurred in the west. Pete recovered, but before he could be arrested was spirited away by friends to New Mexico. His right name was Luther Coleman, and there is a warrant now standing against him for destroying United States mail matter. After the episode I have narrated there was no further trouble at the Carbonville postoffice."—New Orleans

Verdict as Rendered.

"Gentlemen of the jury," asked the clerk of the court, "have you agreed upon a verdict?"

"We have," replied the foreman. "The verdict of the jury is that the lawyers have mixed this case up so that we don't know anything at all about it."—Philadelphia North American.

MANDY'S QUICK WIT

UNCLE JOHN'S MODEL WIFE WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

An Exciting Race That Was Grandly Won When It Seemed Surely Lost Just Because This Clever Woman "Seen Her Duty, and She Done It."

"My wife," remarked Uncle John Algus with an air of pride and proprietorship, somewhat more prevalent among young husbands in their honeymoons than among old ones who have been married for 50 years or more, as Uncle John was—"my wife is one uv them women the Lord only makes a few uv, and them mighty scatterin. She's jist as good natured and happy now as she was when I courted her, but Mandy ain't all mush and spoon victuals, and there's times when she has to be handled with keer er somethin will be sp'iled. She's got temper a-plenty, and she ain't afeered uv the old serpent himself. I mind one thing she done once that I'll never forgit ef I live to be older than the parson's wife's bonnet.

"In them days Mandy weighed a hunderd and eighty-seven pounds in her stockin feet, and I wus only a scant hunderd and forty. We had on the farm all the time seven er eight head uv fine horses, and one winter we had a pair uv 4-year-olds that we prided ourselves perticklar on, fer they had been takin premiums at the fair every year since they wuz yearlin's. They had speed, too, and we thought they couldn't be beat by anything in that neck uv woods, but a neighbor uv ours named Hall—everybody knowed Jim Hall, jist like they knowed me—had a pair he had bought in the next county that he offered to bet a cow and calf could beat ours hands down. He used to let 'em out past our place to kind uv tantalize us, and I tell you they wasn't a funeral percession by a long ways, but Mandy used to laugh and say we'd show him something when the goin got good.

"You see, it was along in November then, and the roads hadn't froze yet. The first snow come in December with a mighty cold spell followin and hangin on, and in about a week or ten days we had fine sleighin, and one afternoon Mandy said she guessed we ought to hitch up the bays and go out for some air and exercise. That was enough for me, and I had the team to the cutter and out at the gate waitin for the lady in less than no time.

"The team wuz feelin as frisky as kittens, and the way they slung the snow and spun over the road would stir the blood in a wooden man. When we got to the turnpike, where the folks usually let their teams out, I guess there wuz a dozen or more movin up and down at a clippin gait, and we sailed right in among 'em, and in about seven minutes we passed everything on the road.

"Jim Hall wuzn't out with his team, and I could see that Mandy wus gittin anxious, though she wuzn't sayin much. The road leadin to Jim's place struck the pike about 200 yards from the upper turn, and there wuz no sign uv him as we passed, and we didn't see him as we come back, but just after we got by his road we heard a clatter up the pike, and, by crackey, there wuz Jim a-comin lickety spit. I guess he'd been to the postoffice, and the way he wuz comin after us wuz like a mink after chickens. Mandy took one look over her shoulder and told me to let 'em go for all they wuz wuth. I didn't need to be coaxed, and by the time she had said the words we wuz fairly flyin over the smooth snow track, and Jim wus comin right behind us too. For the first few rods we gained on him, then he begun to creep up on us in spite uv all we could do. Everybody on the road knowed how me and Jim set store by our teams, and they pulled out to one side and give us all the room there wus.

"I shook up my beauties as I felt him drawin up on me, but shakin wuzn't enough, and I touched 'em once er twice with the whip, but Jim jist rared back on his strings, lookin like destruction smilin at desolation, and kept a-comin. When his horses' heads passed our dashboard and I could see the snort in their noses, I got kind uv sick and thought I'd have to let go, but Mandy nerved me up, and I hung on and leaned away forrerd as if that would help some. By this time Jim's horses had their heads even with mine, and I held him there fer a minute er such a matter, but jist as I begun to have a hope that it might be a neck and neck at the finish Mandy reached for the line next to her, and, with a sudden jerk, she pulled the team off to one side uv the road, where the snow wus in a high drift, and Jim went ahead with a yell that made my ears stand out like windmill flappers.

"I wus that dazed fer a minute at Mandy that I couldn't do a lick, and, deacon though I wus, I'm afeerd I'd a-used language that wouldn't have sounded exactly right in Sunday school, but before I had a chance to make a move Mandy made a flyin leap over the side uv the sleigh and lit in the deep snow. Then I wus dazeder than ever and had some kind uv an idea that we'd been struck by an earthquake or something and Mandy wus killed, and I must go back after her and dig her out. But the team had their senses with them, and when they felt they had nigh two hunderd pounds less load to haul than before Mandy jumped they didn't stop to see what had happened, but let themselves out on a spurt that wus chuck full uv chain lightnin, and out uv the snowdrift I could hear Mandy scream: 'Go it, John; you're all right now.'

"And so I wus, and so wus Mandy, for before Jim knowed that anything had happened I wus up with him, alongside, neck and neck, nose and nose, ahead and past, and when I pulled up at the toll gate he wus ten lengths behind and too much surprised to even cuss.

"Mandy wus in the middle uv the road brushin the snow out uv her clothes and waitin fer me as I come back, and when I said I'd give her a new silk dress for that she said it was only what any wife ought to do for her husband, but she couldn't prove it by showin me where any other wife had ever done it, and I made her take the dress in spite uv herself. That's the kind uv a heroine my wife is," and Uncle John went down into his inside pocket and fished out a quaint, old fashioned daguerreotype in a brand new gilt frame.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Picture, Not Paint.

An art patron one day came into Turner's studio when the artist was already famous. He looked at a picture and asked what was the price. The artist named the sum he had set upon it.

"What," exclaimed the buyer, "all those golden sovereigns for so much paint!"

"Oh," replied Turner, "it's paint you are buying? I thought it was pictures. Here," producing a half used tube of color, "I'll let you have that cheap. Make your own terms," and, turning his back on the astonished patron, he went on painting.

At the Police Court.

At the police court yesterday the young man who was charged with having stolen a pair of gloves from Sullivan, the Bobcaygeon mail driver, was honourably acquitted. There appears to be no direct evidence to show that accused took the gloves. He was seen pick a pair up in Clancy's but it was not shown that they were other than accused's own gloves. Mr Daniel O'Connel appeared for accused.

Mr. Gus Hay has returned to town from Toronto and will be located here permanently with the Stanley Piano Co., with whom he had been employed for some time as accountant.

A general meeting of the officers and members of the Peterborough baseball team will be held at the Oriental this evening at 8 o'clock.

Mr. John Lang, M.P., was in town yesterday.

Clear the Air.

The Mayors of Peterborough and Ashburnham proved quite an attraction at St. Luke's church harvest festival, where they read the lessons. The large congregation present was evidence that the performance of the chief magistrates was a drawing card. It is to be hoped that the example thus set will be followed by other municipal dignitaries throughout the country. The air in Municipal politics is intensely cloudy just now, and who knows but this might be the means of clearing the atmosphere?

past ten years, and how many were successful and how many unsuccessful. Town Clerk Armstrong reported as follows:

In the High Court—For the town, three; against the town, two. In which proceedings were dropped, one.

In the Division Court—For the town, two. Against the town, one.

In the County Court—Against the town one.

In the County Court—Against the town, one. In which matter was dropped, one.

By-laws—Regarding by-laws set aside or quashed: By-law No. 145 to fix the sum to be paid for tavern and shop licenses, was quashed on application of Mr. Croft. In this year, 1899, in an appeal from judgment of the Police Magistrate, the County Court decided that a provision in the "Junk" shop by-law forbidding the purchase of junk from children under 15 years of age was beyond the power of the council. I have not found any record of other by-laws having been set aside in that time. Received.

From E. B. Edwards, complaining of the action of Ald. McWilliams with reference to the office of Town Solicitor, and stating that if Ald. McWilliams or any member of council think there is any cause of complaint against him as Town Solicitor, he shall be pleased to have the charge formulated and substantiated.

In reply to this Ald. McWilliams most emphatically declared that he would not allow Mr. E. B. Edwards to interfere between him and his duty as a councillor. He had stated, he said at a meeting last January that the manner in which the Town Solicitor was being paid was not just to the ratepayers, and that stand of his had met with almost unaminious approval. The matter has been brought up by him from time to time referred to a committee and shelved, and he now intended to make a test case of it at the polls. He did not believe in paying a solicitor extra fees for winning a suit, and the town standing the damages in all cases were the solicitor proves unsuccessful. In conclusion, he pointedly remarked, I am not going to allow Mr. Edwards, with his threats, to interfere with my duty, and he may as well understand that first as last. Applause.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Auburn Power Co. stating that in view of a contemplated extension of their line to Point St Charles, they would ask permission for the placing of such poles as may be necessary for this purpose on Rink street from Park street to the river, the same to be placed under the direction of Town Engineer.—Board of Works.

From Auburn Woolen Company, Limited, drawing Council's attention to the allowance of $105 (promised by Council of 1898) for the current year, in consideration of the company's mills deriving no protection from the present water system.—Committee of Whole Council.

From W H Robertson, stating that as the pavement on Water street had not been properly constructed the town could not expect ratepayers to pay for same unless rebuilt.—Received.

From Engineer Hay giving the difference in cost of constructing granolithic sidewalks as 1 8-10 cents per square foot in favor of the specifications adopted by the contractors in violation of the specifications tendered upon.—Received.

From Engineer Hay re upon whose responsibility grading of new sidewalks was done. The engineer claimed that some of the grades were approved of by members of the Board of Works, and that the Mayor, Ald Denne and Langford inspected the Park street grade.

Ald. Denne—"And that's all right, too."

Ald. McWilliams—"I was never called upon to inspect a grade."

BOARD OF WORKS REPORT.

Gentlemen:—

Your Board of Works beg leave to report as follows:

1 Your Board instructed the Town Engineer to go on with the day work on the granolithic sidewalks using the proportions given in the specifications until further instructions are given, and that the work being done under the supervision of George Rose be stopped when he has completed the work authorized on Stewart street.

2. The Engineer was also instructed to report on the difference in the mixtures as given in the specifications for the granolithic sidewalks and that used on the work.

3 From Board recommending that full time be allowed Inspectors and foremen on granolithic sidewalks and that Mr. Ramsey be paid $2.75 per day

4. Your Board would recommend the excavation on Gilmour street sewer be allowed pending signing of contract.

5. Your Board recommend that the pavement on Stewart street and north of London be constructed of granite and sand.

A clause was also added, recommending the extension of all crossings on new granolithic sidewalks where they slope down within the line of curbs as on Water street, such being a source of danger to pedestrians.

Ald Hall said he objected to the report as read and would move that the work on Stewart street be done with same proportion of ingredients as on Charlotte and Park streets. He understood the system provided for in report would cost more than that upon which contractors had been working.

Ald McWilliams was pleased to hear that Mr Hall was beginning to recognize that following the specifications would cost more than as the work was being constructed by contractors.

Ald Denne always understood that we were getting a granolithic sidewalk until Mr Ramsey's letter informed him to the contrary.

Ald McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald Langford,—That the report be amended by adding that all sidewalks be done in granite, excepting the south side of London, between Water and George streets, which be constructed as hitherto as a test case.—Carried.

The report was then adopted.

SPECIAL REPORT ON BRIDGES.

Ald. Langford presented the following report:

Gentlemen:—

As instructed by the Council I visited and examined the Pigeon Creek bridge and the Mud Lake bridge with representatives of the County of Peterborough, and beg leave to report as follows:

Pigeon Creek Bridge.

On July 28th, 1899, I visited the Pigeon Creek bridge in company with Mr. E. Hawthorne, Warden of the County of Peterborough, Mr. W. Anderson, County Councillor of the County of Peterborough, Mr. Wm. Switzer, County Councillor of Victoria County, and Mr. J. E. Belcher, County Engineer, and after examining the bridge the following resolution was agreed to—That about 600 feet of the bridge at its weakest parts be floored with planks laid longitudinally in a similar manner to that already laid experimentally, also that one round of cedar logs be placed on the old crib pier adjoining the swing opening and that the approach at the Emily side be made good by filling in, all at an estimate cost of $200, including some other small repairs to the flooring. A further resolution was agreed to that Mr. John Flood, the car staker, receive $12 extra for his zeal in the maintenance and care of the bridge and swing for the present year.

Mud Lake Bridge.

On Sept. 1st, 1899, Mr. George Fitzgerald, on behalf of the County of Peterborough, and myself on behalf of the Town, visited the Mud Lake Bridge to see what was necessary for its temporary repair, complaints having been made as to the condition of the flooring. We found the flooring in a loose and worn state, and ordered repairs effected thereto the cost not to exceed altogether $160, for which purpose it was decided to take off the old flooring of the disused part of the bridge and lay it on the old flooring of the bridge and spike it well thereto. It was also decided to fix the weather boom to its anchorage and join it together and to repair the guard rail and apron approaches were broken.

All of which is respectively submitted.

FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT.

Ald. Langford presented the following report:

Your Fire, Water and Light Committee beg leave to report and recommend that the electric light east of the Auburn Mills gate be moved west clear of the tree, so that the light will shine north.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted as read.

Frontage Tax.

Ald Denne introduced a by-law guaranteeing the frontage tax debenture by the town. It passed its several readings.

Polling Places.

A by-law providing the following polling places and deputy returning officers passed its several readings.

Polling Sub Division No 1—H Halpin's shop, corner of George and Perry streets; A Williams, Deputy Returning Officer.

Polling Sub-Division No. 2—Thos Leplante's shop, Rubidge-st.: Jos. Lundy, Deputy Returning Officer.

Polling Sub-Division No. 3—Council Chamber; Chas Cameron, Deputy Returning Officer.

Polling Sub-Division No. 4—Green Bros' Shop, corner of Charlotte and Downie streets; J M Green, Deputy Returning Officer.

Polling Subdivision No. 5.—J. W. Metherals shop, Aylmer street; J. W. Metheral, Deputy-Returning officer.

Polling Subdivision No. 6.—M. McCall's shop, corner Reid and McDonnel sts; John Irwin, Deputy-Returning officer.

Polling Subdivision No. 7.—Wm. Lee's shop, Smith street; Geo. Powell, Deputy-Returning officer.

To Borrow Money.

A By-law to provide for borrowing money, by issuing debentures, for the construction of sewers passed its several readings.

Miscellaneous Business.

On motion of Ald. Denne, an account of $13.25 for raising Dalhousie street bridge was confirmed.

Ald. Denne, moved that the sale of land for taxes be extended one year. Carried.

Ald. Denne moved that Ald. Davison's resignation be accepted and preparations made for another election to fill his place.

A discussion here took place as to the necessity of having an election before the usual time in the event of accepting Ald. Davidsons resignation.

Town Solicitor Edwards opined that it would be imperative to elect another alderman if Mr. Davidson's resignation was accepted.

The motion then carried, and council adjourned to meet in committee of the whole to-night.

Sept. 22, 1899

What we may term a year of steady progress since our opening in Peterborough has gone by. To-day's store is different from the one you were invited to on Sept. 22nd, 1898.

During the year our trade has steadily grown so that alterations were forced upon us. We have taken down the partition dividing the store at rear, thus adding 15 feet of extra shelving and counter room. We also found our Millinery and Mantle Showrooms altogether too small, and in consequence have had partitions taken down and another room thrown into these making one of the largest and most complete showrooms in town.

The Store that Never Disappoints

The 3rd and 4th story up have been opened up and filled with goods, calling into use and our handsome passenger elevator. Staffs both up and down stairs have been increased and stocks in all departments are nearly double their original size.

OUR PLATFORM STILL THE SAME

Goods bought for cash and sold for cash only. Quick and efficient attention to customers' wants no misrepresentation of goods. Money back if you ask it.

Our Saturday Economist Sales

inaugurated by us a year ago are now a part of our general store policy. Our advertising contracts for the coming year are on a liberal scale, and our store news will be found interesting and profitable. More frequent changes will be made. Watch our ads.

Yours for satisfactory shopping,

Free State Turns Its Troops Loose to Oppose the British Forces.

RUSH FROM JOHANNESBURG

Few British People are Left There, Even Clergymen Not Safe.

Foreigners Must Leave Orange Free State Too—The Mails Being Sent Back—Export of Grain, Stock and Other Necessaries Without Permit is Forbidden.

London, Oct. 3.—Stories of the movements of Boers and British, of the hurried muster and despatch of troops on both sides, have come from other points.

A telegram from Ladysmith, Natal says that the Orange Free State troops have occupied and closed Bothas Pass on the Free State border, and that Commandant Allricks, chief of the Free State artillery, is proceeding in the direction of Kimberley with a considerable force of artillery. Another force of artillery, under Commandant Boning, has gone to Harrismith, while Commandant Smit commands a force of artillery en route for Kroonstadt.

The latest news received from Johannesburg, filed there yesterday, indicates that the last rush of Europeans to leave the town has occurred. They crowded the trains like sardines, occupying every possible inch on the trucks. There is considerable anxiety with regard to the few who remain behind, as communication seems to be cut off.

The Mining Commissioner stated officially that the proclamation of Sept. 28, relative to the protection of ministers, had been withdrawn, and he, therefore, advised all Britishers to leave as soon as possible.

The British steamer Lalpoor, now in the transport service, arrived last evening at Durban, Natal, with field artillery, a hospital corps, and commissary stores, from India. The troops were promptly disembarked, and sent by train up the country.

The Natal authorities have announced that no more mails will be despatched to the Transvaal until further notice.

FREE STATE EXPULSION.

London, Oct. 3.—Last Friday's mail was sent back from the frontier.

A Bloemfontein despatch says that the Orange Free State Government has gazetted an alien expulsion law, and also a law forbidding the export of grain, stock and other necessaries without a permit. Commandeering is proceeding there at a lively rate. A commando from Bloemfontein is assembling to-day at Bainsvlei.

BRITAIN GOES SLOW

London, Oct.—While all the despatches from South Africa dwell upon the condition of wild excitement there and the expected imminence of a Boer attack there is in reality little change in the situation, although the massing of the Boers in all directions inevitably increases the tension. While constant military orders are being issued here progress seems very slow, and it must still be weeks before Great Britain will be in a position to strike, although it is believed that the British troops now at the front, or near it, are sufficient to protect British territory.

The Government is certainly not showing any signs of haste in sending an ultimatum. This is probably due to a recognition that Great Britain is not yet ready to substitute force for negotiations, and the Cabinet, therefore, is giving the Transvaal every chance to accept the latest British proposals.

ALARMING RUMORS.

London, Oct. 3.—A despatch from Durban, Natal, announces that the Boers are expected to take the aggressive to-day. The most alarming rumors are afloat there respecting their intentions.

RANGERS READY TO FIGHT

Toronto, Oct. 3.—The Twelfth York Rangers may yet go to South Africa. On Saturday Lieut.-Col. Lloyd received a communication from Major-General Hutton thanking him for his offer and congratulating him on the spirit which the crack battalion has displayed. The Major-General asked for the number of officers who will go, their qualifications, experience and the number of men who could be obtained. He also asked for full particulars as to the facilities for speedy mobilization of the men.

On receiving this Col. Lloyd immediately put himself in communication with the officers, asking them whether they would go and what men they could furnish. Replies in the affirmative have poured in on Lieut.-Col. Lloyd, and he will send in a report that the vast majority of officers will go, and, furthermore, that the companies can easily be recruited up to full war strength.

WILL PAY BY FEES ONLY

FOR LEGAL SERVICES REQUIRED BY THE TOWN

After November the First—Such Was Council's Decision When in Committee of the Whole Last Night. The Granolithic Sidewalk Matter on the Program For Friday Night.

The Council met in committee of the whole last night, when there were present: Mayor Davis in the chair and Aldermen McWilliams, Denne, Langford, Sawers, Best and Langford.

The Auburn Woollen Mills Company's claim of $105 for current year, the cost of putting in and maintaining three hydrants necessitated by no fire protection being afforded them by the town—as guaranteed by council of 1898—was discussed, and the clerk instructed to enquire of water company what arrangement can be made in the matter of supplying the mills with the necessary service.

Mr. Bogue's account of $100 for removing the tree on Gilmour street, when constructing sewer, was pretty fully looked into. Inspector Bartlett said he kept the time of removing said tree, which he figured at 25 days for one man. Mr. Bogue claimed that the work cost him more than this in broken derrick chains, blocks, and other appliances.

Council finally decided that the task had been one of greater difficulty than at first recognized, and Ald. McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald. Langford, that Mr. Bogue be allowed $50 for the work. Carried.

The setting aside of the Junk Shop by-law was commented upon, but allowed to stand over.

No action was taken on the communication from the Board of Education asking council's co-operation in securing the interests of the county council to secure the Central Park, upon which to erect a Collegiate Institute.

A communication from Alf. J. Cameron drawing attention to the difficulty in securing the town's true limits, and asking that he be given the task of surveying the town was discussed, and town clerk authorized to ask Mr. Cameron for an estimate of what this work would cost.

The town teamsters' application for a raise in wages from $2.50 to $3.00 a day was disposed of as follows: Ald. McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald. Denne, That the teamsters' wages be raised to $3 a day. Lost on the casting vote of the Mayor.

The resolution of Ald. McWilliams re changing the system of paying for legal services came up for consideration. Ald. Sawers referred to the Mason case which he opined should never have been gone on with; the solicitor should have advised council to drop the matter.

Ald. McWilliams remarked that a town solicitor would never encourage a settlement, when engaged under salary. He favored giving the system of paying for legal services by fees a three months' test.

Communications from Brockville, Brantford, Belleville, St. Catharines, Chatham and Windsor, explaining the systems under which their respective solicitors are engaged, were read. After careful comparison with our own system, Ald. McWilliams opined that we are paying as much for legal services as some cities.

Ald. Best suggested that the people settle the matter at the next municipal elections.

Ald. Langford thought that in consideration of Mr. Edward's long term of service—20 years—it would be better to notify him that after January 1st, the system of paying the town solicitor would be changed.

Ald. McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald. Sawers,—That the clerk have a by-law prepared to abolish the engagement of a town solicitor under salary after November first, and that Mr. Edwards be asked to meet a committee to arrange for a scale of fees under which he can be re-engaged. Carried.

The committee then adjourned to meet again on Friday night, when the contractors will be present, and an attempt made to unravel the granolithic sidewalk tangle.

KILLED AT REABORO.

GEORGE RUTHERFORD AND WIFE KILLED BY A TRAIN.

While Driving to Lindsay They Were Struck by a G T R Train When on a Crossing at Reaboro.

A sad accident occurred at Reaboro yesterday morning, by which two estimable citizens residing on the Emily side of the boundary between Peterborough and Emily, lost their lives.

It appears that Mr and Mrs George Rutherford were driving to Lindsay, and were struck by the morning train which passes through Peterborough at 8.05 a m, on the crossing at Reaboro. Mrs Rutherford was killed instantly, Mr Rutherford dying on the train soon after. The horse was also killed.

The train was at once stopped and the remains of the unfortunate body placed on board, and also Mr Rutherford, whose life blood was rapidly ebbing away, and who soon after passed away.

The deceased was in Peterborough on Saturday last, and is well and favorably known to many of our citizens. Mr Valentine Best, who resides on Brock street, is, we believe, a brother-in-law of the deceased.

It is said that the horse became frightened and dashed into the train.

LOSSES IN A CAR STRIKE.

An Estimate Regarding the Cost of the London Car Strike.

London, Ont, Oct. 3.—The estimated damage done to the city so far by the street car strike, which has been on since May 22, is placed at $197,400, divided as follows: Loss to the company, $60,000; loss to the men in wages, $13,000; to the city for militia expense and extra street lighting, $4,400; to the merchants, probably $100,000; damage to property, probably $20,000. Since the strike began there has been 1,059 cases of missile throwing; 693 windows have been smashed; 285 obstructions have been placed upon the track; 70 employees have been hit and more or less hurt; 70 cars have been derailed; 54 passengers have been hit and three cars have been burned or seriously damaged. The total number of police court cases due to the strike so far is 122.

COL. HUGHES' VOLNTERS.

Twenty Thousand Canadians Offer to go to South Africa.

Otawa, Oct. 3.—Colonel Sam Hughes, M.P., arrived here last night from Port Arthur. Despite official disfavor, the colonel is as enthusiastic as ever over his proposed regiment for South Africa. That the military spirit is strong in the Dominion is abundantly evident from the number of replies received to the colonel's circular. Over 250 officers have volunteered for services, and the tender of the men ranges in the vicinity of 20,000. The offers come from all parts of Canada, the Maritime Provinces and the far West being as keen for service as the volunteers of Ontario and Quebec. Even a company of Indians from Ontario—trained volunteers—are anxious to get a slap at Oom Paul.

Colonel Hughes declines to discuss the point raised by the Militia Department that he acting contrary to the Army Act.

SUFFOCATED BY GAS.

Three People Have Been Dead Since Last Sunday.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Three people were suffocated by gas in their rooms at 4,702 State street. Their bodies were found last night by the police, and from the position of the bodies it is believed that death was caused sometime Sunday. The dead are: Mrs Kate Jungles, widow, 35 years old; John Jungles, 11 years old, son of Mrs Jungles; John Teed, 25 years old, a switchman, who boarded with Mrs Jungles.

VICTORY FOR THE BRITISH.

Award of the Venezuelan Arbitration Commission Announced at Last.

Paris, Oct. 3.—The award of the Anglo-Venezuelan boundary arbitration commission was read at noon to-day. The decision was unanimous. The award of the tribunal is a distinct victory for Great Britain and a justification of her attitude which so awakened the wrath of President Cleveland that he was guilty of an ill considered jingo message which nearly caused war. The award means that of the 600,000 square miles claimed by Venezuela the latter obtains only 100,000 formed partly of the marsh land near the river Barima and a portion of the interior, while Great Britain retains all the forest country.

The decision says that the frontier between British Guiana and Venezuela shall be:

"Starting on the coast at Point Playa, the frontier shall follow a straight line to the confluence on the Barima and the Maruimam, thence following the valley of the latter to the source of the Corentin, otherwise called the Cutari River."

Thence it shall proceed to the confluence on the Haiowa and the Amakura; thence, following the Thalweg of the Amakuru, to its source in the plain of Imataka; thence in a southwesterly direction, along the highest ridge of the Imataka Mountains to the highest point of the Imataka chain opposite the source of the Barima and the principal chain of the Imataka Mountains; thence in a southwest direction to the south of the Acarbisi.

Following the Thalwon of the Acarabisi to the Cuyuni, the northern bank of which it shall follow in a westerly direction to the confluence of the Cuyuni and the Vanamu; thence along the Thalweg of the Fanamu to its westernmost source, then in a straight line to the summit of Mount Roraima; thence to the course of the Cotinga.

"From this point the frontier shall follow the Thalweg of the Cotinga to its confluence with the Takutu, thence along the Thalweg of the Takutu to its source; thence in a straight line to the most western point of the Akarai Mountains, the highest ridge of which it shall follow to the source of the Corentin, thence it will follow the course of the river."

A Mockery of Justice.

Liverpool Oct. 3.—Four greasers, three firemen and two coal trimmers of the steamer Scotsman were charged with the possession of goods belonging to passengers. Four, having been previously convicted, were sentenced to a month's imprisonment with hard labor. The others were fined £2 and costs.

Adrift in Open Boats.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct, 3.—The Warron Line steamer Bay State, Captain Walkers, bound from Liverpool for Boston with a general cargo, is ashore near Cape Race and will probably prove a total wreck. Her crew and a number of cattlemen who were passengers are adrift in boats which are lost in the fog except one boat which has reached Cape Fuller

Has Andree Found the Pole?

Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 3.—The buoy marked 'Andree polar expedition,' which with an anchor attached, was found Sept. 9 on the north coast of King Charles Island, by the master of the Norwegian cutter Martha Larsak, has opened yesterday in the presence of a number of experts and members of the Cabinet. It was found to be the so-called North Pole buoy which Andree had arranged to drop if he succeeded in passing the Pole.

Tripple Alliance in the Far East.

Yokohoma, Oct. 3.—It would appear that an Oriental tripple alliance is on the tapis. Some light is thrown on the recent negotiations between China and Japan by a revelation of the existence of a semi-secret society with a large membership in the two countries and Korea, having for its purpose the preservation of three eastern empires.

Treeless Streets.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The Times, I notice, is as usual, fearlessly exposing the wrong doing in connection with our street work. While all attention has been given to the manner in which the paving has been done, and and the horrible grades which have been struck, not a word of protest is heard concerning the destruction of the trees on our streets. Street after street has been mutilated in this way, when a few inches more space would have saved them. Take Water street, for instance: I am sure that nearly every tree on that beautiful street will die. When Engineer Hay got down as far as the Park, someone must have pointed this out, for he left a little space for the trees. Is it possible, Mr Editor, that a man holding the responsible position of Town Engineer, did not know this at the beginning? Why, then, did he not in the same way provide for the life of the handsome trees further up the street?

I claim, Mr Editor, to know something about trees and tree planting, having been engaged in this work more or less all my life, and when I state that a majority of the trees which have been injured by the building of pavements, will die and that we will have miles of treeless streets, which are now beautiful with trees. I do not think I am exaggerating. "It is time for a change."

Thanking you, Mr Editor, I am,

Yours truly,

THE GREAT YACHT RACE

Shamrock Wins With Good Lead, But Time Limit Not Reached.

AND "NO RACE" DECLARED

Columbia's Supporters Claim That Excursion Boats Interfered.

How the Challenger Gained in the First Few Miles and Was Then Overhauled—Story of the Preparations and Progress of the Great Race—Great Excitement.

New York, Oct. 3.—The day for the first of the international yacht races opened bright, fairly clear and with a crisp north to northeast breeze blowing from three to twelve miles an hour. The weather conditions were considered excellent.

The Columbia and the Shamrock, each with her attendant squadron, had been moored over night in the upper bay off Tompkinsville. The crews were astir at daybreak preparing for the competition. They were towed through the Narrows and anchored inside Sandy Hook. A sailor was sent up the truck of the Shamrock's mast a few minutes after seven o'clock and Sir Thomas Lipton's private signal was set. By this time the Shamrock had hoisted up a jib in stops, and it looked as though she were ready to go out at any time. The Columbia at this time had not hoisted any of her sails. Meantime steam yachts, excursion steamers, large and small sailing craft and tugs loaded with sightseers were voyaging down the harbour and toward the neighborhood of the course.

Yachts in Tow of Tugs.

The Shamrock and Columbia in tow of tugs passed outside the Hook at 9 o'clock. The Vigilant, the old cup defender, was in the challenger's wake. The Columbia when near the point of the Hook began hoisting her mainsail. The Columbia broke out two head sails when about two miles east of the Hook and cast off her tow.

At the same time the Shamrock about three miles further to the east, was headed up into the wind and began hoisting her main sail. She had it well up when the Columbia passed her under her three lower sails.

Shamrock First Over Line.

The starting gun was fired at 11.15, right on time, and the Shamrock, close to the line, went over first. The Shamrock crossing the line broke out her baby jib topsail and forestaysail, which to those on shore seemed rather strange as the course was dead before the wind. The Columbia on the other hand broke out her big baloon topsail, and a minute after crossing her spinnaker was also set. The Shamrock crossed at 11.15.37 and the Columbia 11.16.20, official time.

In the first ten minutes of the race the Shamrock changed her head sails frequently. Five minutes after the start she took in her baby jib topsail and set her spinnaker to port; then she set a big balloon forestaysail. A minute or two afterwards her big balloon jib sail was swung to the wind. During this time the Columbia seemed to draw up gradually on her rival, due, as it afterwards proved, to those frequent changes of canvas on the part of the Shamrock.

Challenger a Surprise.

For the first three miles of the fifteen-mile run down the New Jersey shore the Columbia seemed to gain on her rival and at one time was not more than a hundred yards astern. Everyone was looking to see her pass the Shamrock before another mile was passed. About this time, however, the Shamrock got her sails set to the satisfaction of those on board and to the great surprise of the spectators she began to draw away from the American boat. In the next two miles of the race the Shamrock pulled out until she was almost half a mile ahead and seemed to be going very rapidly, while the Columbia acted as though lifeless.

Excursion Boats Close In.

About this time the steam yachts and excursion boats, which during the first three miles of the course had obeyed orders of the torpedo boats and kept well away, began to close in, and their actions hurt the Columbia more than it did the Shamrock. The wind became puffy and the Shamrock seemed to be getting the best of it, and this probably accounted largely for her great gain in the fourth, fifth and sixth miles. After the boats had sailed about six and one-half miles the Columbia gybed her mainsail over to port. She gybed her sail over very quickly, but it took considerable time to get the spinnaker hauled in.

Columbia's Change of Wind.

The backing of the wind towards the north was what necessitated the change of sail on the two boats. The Columbia felt the change first and shifted her sails quicker than those on Shamrock. This enabled her to close up rapidly the distance between her and her rival, and at 12.17 she passed the Shamrock and led for the first time during the race. At that time the boats had sailed about six and a half miles of the fifteen-mile run. After the wind had shifted it picked up, and as it gave the boats a [illegible] reach the Columbia seemed to benefit more by the change. Ten minutes after the Columbia took the lead she began to open out on the Shamrock and at 12.30 seemed to be about a quarter of a mile ahead and gaining as rapidly as the Shamrock lead a half hour before.

WINTER NAVIGATION.

The extraordinary demand for lake tonnage this year suggests that vessels be employed for winter navigation. Rates for freight are so high that the owners of such property will feel that they can afford to take great risks. They will be willing to pay unusual premiums for insurance, or even to try it without it when a fortnight of December or January business might mean 66 per cent. profit on the cost of their vessel, in extreme cases. For the chance of such a Winter harvest they will be ready to pay high enough wages to secure the services of venturesome and hardy crews. The attempt last year to carry coal cargoes across Lake Erie in a large "ferry steamer" resulted in a loss of two months time by being locked up in ice. It is but a question of means, however, to overcome this difficulty. Given steamships built with sufficient strength for the service and the ice formation in any of the lakes can be overcome, as is done against infinitely greater odds in the Arctic seas. Ice-breaking ships are now built to overcome every obstacle. Russia has a ship of this kind, the Yermak which, returning from the Arctic in March last, entered the frozen-up port of Cronstadt with comparative ease, and then going to Revel, liberated thirty-three vessels, of the value [illegible]. Then returning to Cronstadt starting of one and a half millions, and some of which were in great danger. Then returning to Cronstadt and St. Petersburg, she opened out the way for the entry of forty steamers several weeks before the ordinary time. This vessel was taken to the Polar sea this summer, calling at Advent Bay, Spitzbergen, en route. Polar ice was encountered in latitude 80 degrees, 15 minutes, and for over a month the Yermak was put to a very stiff trial among this. Some of the plain ice was fourteen feet thick, and the pack or ridge ice rose to a height of eighteen feet on the surface, and was ascertained by careful measurement to be as deep as seven fathoms in places. The Yermak behaved splendidly, and travelled through some 200 miles of such obstacles at an average speed of three or four knots an hour.

A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

The Victim Was the Samoan King Malietoa and the Victor an American Naval Officer—The Jack Pot That Caused the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymaster in the navy with King Malietoa several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever indulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kalakaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little brush on this line. Well, Malietoa's opportunity to test his belief came one day when an American man-of-war—never mind which one—sailed into the harbor at Apia. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the fullest extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an asistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malietoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Malietoa requested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Malietoa had almost phenomenal luck, winning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a smile of pleasure and triumph combined, announced that he would open it $20 worth. Every player staid. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Malietoa showed his blood by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others staid. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped out. After the king's last raise the paymaster hesitated a moment, put his cigar to one side and shoved $50 to the middle of the mahogany.

"The king put up the equivalent in Chilean silver dollars, the currency of the islands, and, drawing a small sack from his pocket, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Samoa, amounting to $70 in silver. The paymaster's face grew serious, and he looked at his royal opponent in a hesitating, puzzled sort of way. Could this be a Samoan Ah Sin he had run against? Had this kingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evening? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance some of it in finding out.

"After a few moments of undecision he drew $579 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malietoa gave a gasp and called for a glass of kava to steady his nerves. This he gulped down and announced that he was out of funds, requesting at the same time that the paymaster take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smiling and looking fixedly at the pot. Then the excited monarch offered to put up the island of Manono, one of the finest in the Samoan group, against the $500. To this the paymaster consented, and a transfer deed of the property, duly signed, attested by the trader, who was a notary public, and witnessed by the other two officers, was put in the pot. Then the king called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four aces and a five spot.

"With a look of horror and a Samoan wail of despair, his majesty exposed to view three kings, an eight spot and a deuce. Then he fell off his chair in a faint, the excitement having been too much for his nerves. Kava in copious quantities brought him around sufficiently to enable his removal to his own castle. The paymaster shoveled his money into a sack and placed it in the trader's iron safe, but the deed for the island he carefully placed in his pocket.

"Next morning the details of the big poker game were known to nearly every inhabitant of the place, and the German and English consuls sent official communications to the American consul protesting in most emphatic terms against the action of the king in disposing of the island of Manono to an American or to any one else, and warning the consul that unless the paymaster returned the deed for the island to the king at once they would direct the attention of their respective governments to the case.

"Here was a pretty state of affairs. The officer had, no doubt, won the island fairly, and the king's action was binding, but in the tension in which Samoan affairs were at that time the German and English governments would only too willingly have taken advantage of the circumstances as an excuse for international complications, ending ultimately in a disastrous way to American interests.

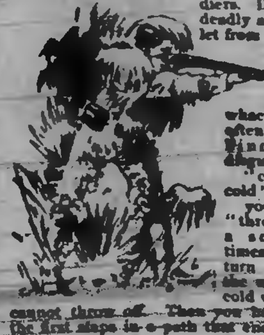
"The facts were fully explained to the paymaster, and on the promise of Malietoa that he would give the officer a number of fine mats and other Samoan articles of value the deed was returned to the king and destroyed. By mutual consent of the consuls and others interested the affair was hushed up in every way and was thus allowed to die out. Malietoa took an oath that he would never again play poker."

Recognized.

"Yes, sir," remarked the amiable man, "I look to see an Englishman come over here and drop his h's once in awhile."

"Yes," answered the man who has been to Epsom downs, "and he likes see us go over there and drop our

HIDDEN FOES.



Spanish bushwhackers, in the Cuban war, covered themselves with palmetto leaves, and, so disguised, lurked among the bushes undetected by the American soldiers. Diseases as deadly as the bullet from the bushwhacker's rifle, often lurk behind familiar disguises. A "common cold" such as you have "thrown off" a score of times, may now turn out to be the uncommon cold which you cannot throw off. Then you have taken the first steps in a path that ends in consumption.

The great protection against that hidden foe, disease, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It protects the vulnerable points, the stomach, lungs, liver and blood. When the blood is in a healthy condition, disease germs cannot find any permanent lodgement. When the stomach is sound and strong the life is sound and strong also. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is not only the best medicine for impure blood, weak nerves, weak lungs and weak stomach, but is a strictly temperance preparation. No alcohol or whisky in it. No syrup or sugar either. Still it retains its curative powers perfectly in any climate. Dr. Pierce invites you to consult with him by letter free of all cost. He has treated and cured thousands of cases, many of them doubtless just like yours. It costs you nothing to lay your case before him. Write to-day. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Charles A. Moore, of Fivemile, Mason Co., W. Va., writes: "I had been afflicted with lung trouble for two years. I tried all the surrounding physicians but they did me no good. After a long period I bought your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and after taking four bottles I was entirely cured. I now feel stronger than I ever did."

Constipation, the cause of so many diseases, is quickly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They regulate and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels. Accept no substitute

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

THE BOERS ALL READY

Buffalo River, the Boundary of Natal, Centre of Storm.

A BIG CONSPIRACY EXISTS

To Drive Great Britain Altogether Out of South Africa.

Boers Seize a Railway. But a Blockade is Said to Have Stopped Their Military Trains—Boers Eager for War, But Paul Kruger Fears to Fire First Shot.

Following is a summary of the despatches regarding the Transvaal since Saturday up to this morning:

Dr. Leyds, the European representative of the Transvaal, has named Tuesday as the day for a formal declaration of war by the Boers.

The telegraph wires between Natal and Johannesbugh have been cut since Friday.

According to despatches from Pretoria, complete chaos reigns there.

30,000 Boers on Frontier.

It is said there are 30,000 burghers along the borders. Joubert has 10,000 on Natal border, and Cronje 30,000 on Bechuand.

The British camp near Dunnee consists of 5,000 men, with 24 guns, in a strong position.

Not the faintest hint is allowed to escape in London as to diplomatic communications.

It is noticeable that not even the Brussels agency of the Transvaal Government has yet issued Mr. Kruger's latest note to the press.

The silence maintained on both sides is regarded as ominous.

Feverish Activity.

From South Africa the news is wholly concerned with feverish preparations for hostilities.

SEIZE A RAILWAY.

The Orange Free State is actively commandering.

Boers Seized a Railway.

The Transvaal Government has virtually taken over the Netherlands railway, for military purposes, and Natal trains are being turned back. The Johannesburg train was side-tracked at St. Anderton Transvaal, to make way for trains carrying burghers to the Natal border.

Troops Leave Johannesburg.

At Johannesburg the commandeering orders are completed, and the burghers are ready for the field. A large body passed through the town yesterday afternoon. Business has virtually ceased. The merchants have finished barricading their premises.

A party of 300 Germans has been notified to leave, and the Irish corps, commanded by Blake, an Irish-American, will go early in the week.

Boer Trains Blocked.

Three trains filed with armed burghers for the Natal border were last evening reported as unable to leave Bloemfontein, owing to a block on the line, which has disorganized the whole train service. Two hundred passengers left yesterday by the morning trains, and nearly a thousand more by outgoing trains last night. The Government undertakes to provide for the families of burghers who go the front.

CENTRE OF STORM.

From all points come reports of continued military activity on the frontiers, and it is evident that the narrow, wedge-like strip of Natal, whose apex is crowned with the ominous name of Majuba Hill, will be the centre of the coming storm. The Boers have established a camp at Scheeper's Nek, near Vryheid, and they will mobilize a great force on Buffalo River to-morrow, which the authorities at Dundee expect will move across the border to that spot, probably at once. It is believed that a conflict at this quarter will certainly occur.

THE ENTREE AN ECONOMY.

ulls the Eater's Appetite For the Dinner Proper.

In the French and Italian cuisine, where economy is studied far more scientifically and thoroughly than in the English or American kitchen, the entree is not considered an extravagance. On the contrary, it is looked upon rather as an attractive economy—like soup, which dulls the eater's appetite so that he partakes less heartily of the more costly meat courses that follow. On the continent the luncheon never begins, as with us, with the chief dish of substantials. There is an introduction in the shape of a soup, or a dish of eggs, or of rice, or of macaroni, or semolino prepared in appetizing mode. Upon this the luncher tries the first edge of his appetite, so to speak. The piece de resistance comes afterward.

In the same manner, at dinner, the soup is almost invariably followed by one or two entrees. In the more ambitious menus these may consist of fish or poultry, or even of meat, prepared in croquettes or rissoles, or val-au-vent. If there are two entrees, the vegetable will come second. But when, as is the case at many tables, there is only one entree, this is nearly always a vegetable and is served directly after the soup.

It must be borne in mind that the old fashioned custom which prevailed so generally some years ago in America, and is still to be found in certain places, of serving a number of vegetables with the principal meat dish is not followed on the continent. In England it is not unusual to see half a dozen dishes of vegetables appear with the roast. There they have even less idea of variety than is common with us, for precisely the same vegetables are offered day after day until one grows weary of the very sight of them. This, of course, is not the case among those people who have made a study of dinner giving and have grafted French customs on the British stock.

On the continent, however, things are done in a different fashion. At a simple dinner, containing, let us say, five courses, the first will be soup, the second a vegetable entree, the third meat of some kind, with one, or at the most two, vegetables, and one of them rarely fails to be a salad. Then comes a sweet, and after it fruit or cheese. The vegetable that appears as an entree need not of necessity be costly or unusual. Perhaps it is only a cauliflower, served with a good white sauce, or spinach, not cooked as we see it here—the stems and leaves coarsely chopped—but minced to a powder and then put through a colander, so that it is deliciously smooth and soft before it is dressed with butter or cream and surrounded with three cornered bits of toast or friend bread, or the entree may be nothing more elegant than white turnips or young carrots cut into small pieces, stewed tender and served with a cream sauce, or celery divided into three inch lengths, fried brown and seasoned with a tomato gravy. The name of the combination is legion, but they all have one point in common—that they are comparatively inexpensive.—Harper's Bazar.

Poison Bottle Ornaments.

At the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in New York city, there is a great collection of ancient jewelry, much of it in gold richly adorned with precious stones. Jewelers in the metropolis frequently visit the museum for the purpose of obtaining suggestions. This collection at the Metropolitan museum is in fact the finest assemblage of antique objects of personal ornaments in existence. Some of them date as far back as 900 B. C. Those of them which are made of silver have been practically destroyed by oxidation, but the gold ones being cleaned are as bright and new looking as they were 2,500 or 3,000 years ago. The jewelry from Cyprus is the work of ancient Phœnicians and Greeks.

One thing very noticeable is the frequency of tiny gold bottles attached to objects of jewelry derived from those ancient times. All evidence points to the conclusion that they were employed to hold poison, for in those days life was by no means secure, and at any time an emergency might arise where a man or woman would be glad to end existence promptly to escape lifelong imprisonment or indescribable torture by the horrible means used by the ancients.

True Boston Culture.

"Fifty cents for this beautiful little vase," called the auctioneer. "Going, going for 50. Do I hear 55 for this beautiful little vase?" and no one thought anything about the auctioneer or the vase which went for 50 cents until another one was put up, an immense affair of cloisonne. "Now we will show you an exquisite piece, not to be duplicated in this country," he went on. "An exquisite cloisonne varse"—and there the Wellesley girl said excitedly to her companion:

"Now, that is what I call true Boston culture. Would you expect a man of that kind to make such a delicate distinction? He must have been educated at a woman's college. When he is selling a 50 cent article, he says vase in the ordinary way, with the long sound of the 'a,' but when he comes to a big piece of cloisonne it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over $10 in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday vase."—New York Times.

Crocodile Tears.

The expression "crocodile tears" can be found in almost every European language, but it is doubtful if one in a thousand of those who use it have an idea of its origin. We are told in the Bestiary of Guillaume le Clerc that when the crocodile finds an unwary traveler it devours him, but afterward weeps over him all the rest of its life. This is very evidently the allusion in "Othello," "Each drop she falls would prove a crocodile" (1, 257)

There is another version of the fable, however, which is more often referred to in literature, and according to which the crocodile sheds tears in order to allure the traveler to destruction. Shakespeare alludes to this in the passage where he tells how

> the mournful crocodile
> With sorrow snares relenting passengers.
> —"2, Henry VI.," 1, 226.

WANTED FIRE BELL CLOTHES.

He Just Made Up His Mind to Kill That Town of St. Joe.

"Ah'm come back home for some clothes, an Ah want 'em wahm," said a tall young negro to a Walnut street haberdasher one day last spring. "Ah'm jes' agoin to kill that town of St. Joe. Show me the heatedest clothes ye' got in the house."

He was not cool as to raiment to start with. His overcoat was cream colored, overlaid with pearl buttons the size of those small butter plates still in use in restaurants. His trousers were green and ended in yellow shoes with brown shot silk tops. His hat was light blue, mottled in brown; his gloves were red and his cane heavily silvered.

"Can't no St. Joe nigger tell me Ah come from Raytown," he muttered. "Ah goes up to St. Joe to work, and the coons there laugh at me and tell me Ah ain't from Kansas City, because mah clothes is so inconspicuous, and Ah just save up mah money, and Ah'm agoin back to kill the town. Now what I want is some underclothes and socks and shirts and things that are the wahmest you've got."

"How will these do?" asked the haberdasher, exposing some scarlet hosiery, banded with wide white stripes.

"That's it. That's the kind of clothes Ah want. They ain't nothin in St. Joe like that. Lemme look at them underwear."

He inspected some red underwear with white stripes, some of baby blue with pink stripes and others of green with blue, black and red stripes. He bought neckscarfs of every shade of red, blue and green and of the most bewildering patterns. His purchases included zebra collars and pale pink shirts, diamond scarfpins at 35 cents each, but with $65 of shine, and a brown waistcoat with scarlet moons emblazoned on it.

"Ah've got 'em dead," he exclaimed when he has finished. "They've ceased to live. When Ah get back to that town of St. Joe they'll ask me if I come from Raytown, will they? Ah'm agoin to take back to that little ole burg such wahm clothes that they'll meet me with the fish department. That town's dead now, and Ah've killed it."

How Wealth is Carried.

"It is rather amusing," remarked the head of the biggest bureau de change in London to the writer, "to notice the various methods in which men of different nationalities carry their worldly wealth. The Englishman carries his all loose in his right hand trousers pocket—gold, silver and copper all mixed up together. He pulls a handful of the mixture out of his pocket in a large, opulent way and selects the coins he has need of. The American carries his wad of bills in a peculiar long, narrow pocketbook, in which the greenbacks lie flat; the Frenchman makes use of a leather purse with no distinguishing characteristics, while the German uses one gayly embroidered in silks by the fair hands of some Lottchen or Mina.

"The half civilized capitalist from some torrid South American city carries his dollars in a belt with cunningly devised pockets to baffle the gentlemen with the light fingers. Some of these belts are very expensive. The Italian of the poorer classes ties up his little fortune in a gayly colored handkerchief secured with many knots, which he secretes in some mysterious manner about his clothes. A similar course has charms for the Spaniard, while the lower class Russian exhibits a preference for his boots or the lining of his clothes as a hiding place for his savings."—London Answers.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Smoking in the Dark.

"How can you account for the well known fact that a cigar when smoked in the dark loses much of its flavor?" was asked of an alleged philosopher.

"The reason is," said the philosopher, "that when all the senses are active each sense is more active than it would be if it were doing duty alone. So that when the eye ceases to work the palate and nose become dulled. To express it figuratively, the eye is endowed with a rudimentary power of smell and in the dark loses not only its sight, but its contributing power of smell."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Cost Her Her Reason

A once renowned French actress lost her reason through a trifling occurrence. She was visiting at an ancient chateau, in the vicinity of Mentone, when a friend challenged her to pass the night alone in an alleged haunted chamber. She accepted the challenge. During the night she called for aid, and an attendant found her in a state of pitiful fright through certain uncanny sounds she had heard. Finally she developed a nervous disorder, which culminated in insanity. The ghostly visitants were rats.

Moving Strains.

Elderly Beau (who is making a long call, to fair singer rapturously)—Ah, that song takes me back to the home of my childhood!

Fair Singer's Irrepressible Younger Sister (in a loud whisper)—Can't you sing something that will take him back to the home of his old age?—Harper's Bazar.

Vigorous Language.

"I tell you," said Sammy Snaggs, "that man talked straight from the shoulder."

"Samuel," said Mr Snaggs severely, "you should not use slang."

"But, father, this was a deaf and dumb man, and he used the sign language."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A HARROWING TALE

The Story of Mr. and Miss Lundy's Thrilling Escape

ON THE WRECKED VESSEL

Sufferings of the Passengers Are Graphically Described.

First Boat Lowered Was Swamped With its Passengers—They Climb Up a Barren Rock About 500 Feet High—Conduct of the Stokers Was Most Outrageous.

As announced in the Times yesterday Mr. J. J. and Miss Bella Lundy arrived home from England, having been passengers in the ill-fated Scotsman, which was wrecked on the coast of Belle Isle.

Mr. Lundy was too ill to give the Times an interview on Sunday, but yesterday he related his experience to local reporters as follows:

"The ship struck about half past two o'clock on Friday morning while we were asleep. I felt a thud, but felt no alarm just at the time as I thought we might have struck on an iceberg and I knew the ship to be a very strong one having been down in the hold a few days before to see some horses which were being brought over. I thought there was no danger but then we felt the scraping as the ship ran up on the rock. The lights had all gone out and everything was confusion. The ship had listed and the boats were being got ready for lowering. I met my sister on deck. The command was given "Ladies to the boats." Miss Lundy got into the second boat. The first boat that was lowered swamped with its passengers. It did not capsize but simply seemed to sink and swamp. It is the general belief of the passengers on the steamer that there was no plug in the bottom. Immediately there were women and children floating around in the water. Miss Lundy held one by the hand as long as she could but only three were saved, and of them one afterwards died.

"Four loaded boats in all were put out. The wind was blowing hard at the time and there was a dense fog. Those in the boats had instructions from the captain not to attempt to land or they would be drowned and so they stayed on the sea within distance of the ship. At daybreak they were all visible. As soon as it got light and when all the boats were off, ladders lashed together were thrown out to the low rocks. Over these men, women and children clambed, many of them doing what they would never do at home. In three-quarters of an hour all were down on the rock. About 10 o'clock those in the boats on the sea asked to be allowed to come in but the captain restrained them till about 1 o'clock, when a landing was made on the rock.

"When the tide began to come in we all climbed a barren rock, about 500 feet high. There we got on the second rock and struck a little plateau about 500 feet x 100 feet. We slept there Friday night, all day Saturday and Saturday night. On this rock the people sat and lay huddled together, men, women and children. On Friday some blankets and provisions and liquors were brought up from the ship. Some of the crew got at the liquor and got beyond control. The firemen were perfect devils. They stayed up there and sang ribald songs and insulted the passengers and it looked as if there would be a mutiny.

"On Friday afternoon, urged by the captain a party of young fellows volunteered to start out and try and find the Belle Isle lighthouse. This was almost the only chance of being picked up as the ship was out of her course and passing ships could only be hailed from the lighthouse. They returned about dark, having been successful, and small parties started out to walk over the rocks

"We left," said Mr. Lundy, "about 9 o'clock on Sunday morning and got there about 11 o'clock at night. The walk was terrible. I was strong on the start and helped others but wore out towards the last and could hardly walk half a dozen steps. I dropped exhausted. I lay down, fully expecting to die but could not sleep as I was chilled right through my bones. My sister gave me a few tablets of dried chocolate which she had got from the doctor and these kept me alive. She also gave me some berries which grew on the rocks, and these, I believe, saved many lives besides my own. Some of my friends kept the warmth in me but I had to be carried into the lighthouse and was unconscious for two hours. My sister started out to make the walk with a pair of slippers but when she got to the lighthouse had only one and her feet were badly torn. Parties were coming in all Monday night till daybreak and all day Monday and many arrived with sprained ankles or sprained wrists or torn and bruised feet.

"There was no accomodation at the lighthouse but the poor keeper did what he could for us. On Sunday night I slept in the stable of the lighthouse and on Monday night in the loft. The men brought in some provisions and the women baked. On Tuesday about ten o'clock we sighted the Montford and she called. We got down to the landing about one o'clock and got on board the ship. She was a cattle transport with cabin accommodation for only twelve people and was in no way prepared for the 700 that got on board. She sailed down to where the Scotsman was and after getting some provisions started for home.

The conduct of the stockers he describes as outrageous. All the cabins were robbed as soon as the ship struck. Miss Lundy's cabin was robbed of diamond rings to the value of $300 or $400 and they lost all their clothing except what they had on them and all their other baggage.

The steamer struck in a little cove with ledges of rock both at bow and stern. This kept it up. Had it struck the open coast it would altogether likely backed off and sunk.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Pea fowls are small bodied birds, and it will not pay to raise them for their flesh.

Do not hatch bantams too early. Small size is desirable. Hatching in August will give the best results.

Lack of shade in hot weather and too much exposure in the sun are often prolific causes of disease.

Clean earth is a first class disinfectant and purifier. As long as it is dry it can rarely be used to excess.

Until your experience and accommodations warrant confine yourself to one or two well known varieties.

Feed systematically two or three times a day. Scatter the food so that the fowls cannot eat too fast or without proper exercise.

Get as many early chicks as you can. It means early laying pullets during the fall and eggs in winter, when good prices can be realized.

To Crisp Lettuce Leaves.

Do you know how to crisp lettuce leaves? A most simple process, but one rarely adopted judging by the wilted stuff we generally see served. A gentleman of the old school was my teacher, and while yet a mere maid I was promoted to the proud dignity of crisping the lettuce.

First carefully separate the leaves from the stalk, discarding discolored and imperfect ones and leaving untouched the tiny hearts; lay them all in cool, clear water for awhile, all morning if you choose; pick them over a couple of times before serving; wash one by one and lay in a wire basket if you have one; if not, a clean, soft towel will answer; gather the ends and sides loosely in your hand and lightly shake the lettuce; then put the leaves in a colander, which you set in the refrigerator, but not on the ice. Leave until needed, when you will find the lettuce deliciously cool and crisp enough to crack. Never cut the leaves. If very large, divide with the fingers into smaller pieces.—What to Eat.

Vastly Different.

As will be seen, it makes a great difference how one uses the muscular resources at one's command.

A member of an athletic club, after swimming the length of the large tank in the basement of the institution, came out puffing and blowing, apparently exhausted

"You don't manage your breathing right," said the swimming instructor "It ought not to tire you so. As to the upper part of your body, including your arms, you use exactly the same muscles and in very much the same way in swimming as in sawing wood."

"No, sir!" gasped the swimmer. "When it comes to sawing wood, I use the muscles of some other man."—Youth's Companion

How They Used to Kill.

In repairing an old house in Dartford, England, not long ago the workmen found several ancient death warrants, bearing the signature of the Duke of Portland, minister of King George III. One of them, dated June, 1798, gives an idea of what legal hanging and quartering were like in those days. It runs:

"Whereas, James O'Coigley, having been attainted of high treason and had sentence passed upon him to be drawn upon a hurdle to the place of execution and to be there hanged by the neck, but not until he is dead, but that, being alive, he shall be taken down and his bowels taken out and burned before his face, that his head shall be severed from his body and his body divided into four parts, and that his head and body shall be disposed of as we think fit, and whereas we think fit to remit that part of the sentence directing the burning of his bowels and dividing the body into four parts, our will and pleasure is that he shall be drawn and hanged and have his head severed from his body."

How He Misunderstood.

There were loud cries from a man in the back of the hall, and the cornetist went at it again.

There were more cries from other parts of the hall, but, with that one still ringing in his ears, the cornetist kept it up.

"What are you trying to do?" cried the manager. "That's no encore."

"No encore?" exclaimed the cornetist when he had been induced to break off. "Didn't that man back there yell, 'Toot, man!' four or five times?"

"Not any," answered the manager. "He's a Scotchman, and what he said was, 'Hoot, mon!'"

They Keep One Eye Shut.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore come out of the mine, each with one eye shut.

The foreman, asking his surprise, explained the matter. He said the candles belonging to the tarateros (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but where, nevertheless, the tarateros see well enough not to run their heads against the rocks, but, on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures.

For this reason, as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the first glimpse of light they drop the eyelid of one eye and keep this down while they are discharging their ore and until they have redescended the shaft.

When they are again in the dark, they open the eye kept hitherto in reserve and at once see everything distinctly, while the other eye, previously open and somewhat blinded by the daylight, perceives nothing at all

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

EUGENE FIELD AND TABOR.

How the Humorist Made Life a Burden For the Millionaire.

"Up to middle age the late Senator Tabor's life was one of great hardship," said a former resident of the Silver State, "and when he suddenly became fabulously rich he plunged into luxuries like a starving man wading into a banquet. One of his early freaks was the purchase of several magnificent lace nightrobes which cost $100 apiece and which he kept locked up in a safe during the day. Eugene Field was editor of the Denver Tribune at the time, and those lace nightrobes made him simply hysterical. He wrote columns upon column about them, describing the garments in detail, with numerous diagrams depicting sections fore and aft. The diagrams were hideous affairs, which Field carved out himself with a penknife on the back of old wood type. He used to describe how Tabor would forget the combination of the safe and sit up, shivering and naked, half the night trying to remember the right figures.

"Altogether he kept Denver in a roar for weeks and made Tabor so wild that one day he rushed into his office, snatched the unfortunate nightrobes out of their compartment and tore them to threads. 'There, now!' he exclaimed, wiping his forehead and kicking the tattered fragments into a corner, 'I hope that fool will be satisfied. I'll be hanged if I ain't going to get a gunny sack,' he continued, 'cut some holes in the end for my head and arms, and then sleep in it for the rest of my life!'

"When Tabor was appointed to the senate to fill an unexpired term of exactly 20 days, Field broke loose again and had all kinds of fun with the old man. He declared that Tabor opposed the tariff bill on the ground that it encouraged lawlessness in the west. 'I don't know this tariff bill,' he reported the senator as saying in a speech, 'but we have entirely too many of 'em out where I live. There's Wild Bill and Pecos Bill and Billy the Kid—all no good. If you let Tariff Bill have everything to do with the custom house he is liable to steal the Atlantic ocean.' Many of the honest frontier folk took these flights of fancy seriously, and drove Tabor nearly distracted by long letters of remonstrance, urging him to read up and get posted, so as not to disgrace the state.

"At the expiration of the senator's brief term he circulated an autograph album among his fellow members, and the incident tickled Field immensely. He gave what purported to be a copy of the 'sentiments' inscribed in the volume by the different statesmen—such things as 'When this you see, remember me. Roscoe Conkling,' and 'Sure as the moss grows 'round a stump you are my darling sugar lump—I mean chump—George F. Hoar,' and similar nonsense, all of which maddened his victim.

"I think 'Gene Field was the only man Tabor never forgave, for in spite of his gaunt, forbidding exterior, the miner magnate was as tender hearted as a girl. He was really full of sterling qualities, and in his proper sphere he would have been anything but grotesque. One thing is sure—if every fellow he helped in secret would have joined his funeral procession he would have gone to his grave like an emperor of old."

The Telltale Eye.

"No matter how self possessed a man may appear on the surface," said a close observer, "there are certain involuntary movements by which he will always betray himself to minute scrutiny. To illustrate the point, here's a neat little parlor trick in mind reading:

Seat yourself directly in front of your subject and tell him to hook his finger tips together before his chest and pull as hard as he can, at the same time thinking intently of some letter of the alphabet. Then look fixedly at his right eye and repeat the letters aloud, beginning with A. When you come to the one he is thinking about, a swift, indescribable change will flash across the pupil. It is purely unconscious and involuntary, and no human being alive can prevent it. The purpose of the finger tip pulling is merely to distract his thoughts and keep him from baffling you by concentration of will. Try it some time."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Bringing Up the Average.

Old Rufus Gogblink, a slow, deliberate sort of man, dropped in one day in a casual sort of way to see his friend, Stephen Nobbler. It was the first time he had been in to see Stephen in 18 years.

"Um-m! You don't come in very often, Rufus," said Mr. Nobbler.

"No," said Mr. Gogblink.

But he went in to see his friend Mr. Nobbler again the very next day.

"Um-m! You're coming in pretty often now, Rufus," said Mr. Nobbler.

"Ya-as," said Mr. Gogblink. "I'm sort o' bringing up the average."—New

MEN OF MARK.

President McKinley finds little leisure for light reading, but is a careful student of the newspapers.

Joseph Leiter has by no means decided to drop the stock market. He is a constant visitor to Wall street.

J. Pierpont Morgan is an expert pool player and an evening rarely passes when he does not enjoy an after dinner game.

Joel Chandler Harris, Georgia's famous author, breeder and poet, is to have an exhibit of Jersey cattle at the Paris exposition.

Senator Clark has just bought in Paris, for his Washington house, an old stained glass window, once the property of the Countess de Jauze, for $30,000.

Sims Reeves says he lost [illegible] during his career as a public singer because he was too conscientious to appear on the stage unless sure he could do his best.

Ex-Representative Ben T. Cable is to furnish much of the money for the building of a chapter house for the Zeta Psi fraternity at the University of Michigan.

John Stuart, superintendent of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, was formerly a telegraph operator at Hokendauqua, Pa. He is now receiving $15,000 a year.

The Russian Prince Cantacuzene, whose betrothal to Miss Julia Grant has just been announced, has retired to his Russian estates to make preparations for the reception of his bride.

Before Rear Admiral Kautz left for Samoa a young woman asked him whether he had ever "felt afraid in battle." "Once," he answered. "A stray ball knocked my cigar out of my mouth and there wasn't another aboard."

The late ex-Governor Flower was once asked by a less successful financier how to succeed in Wall street. "By working harder than at any other trade or profession on earth," was the answer. "But won't that wear you out?" "Not before your time."

Mayor Moir of Scranton was years ago a journeyman tailor in Philadelphia. John Ross of the former city needed a workman, and Mr. Moir, being recommended, was offered inducements to go to Scranton. In February last Mr. Moir was elected chief executive of the city.

Henry G. Kittredge, editor of the Textile World, Boston, has been appointed assistant director of textiles for the commissioner general of the United States to the Paris exposition of 1900. Mr. Kittredge has long been identified with the textile industries of the United States.

Russell Sage is no friend of the camera, and very rarely is it that a photographer is quick enough to get a snap shot of the millionaire. As for sitting for a picture, that has probably occurred less frequently during the millionaire's long life than that of any other equally prominent man in the country.

TOWN TOPICS.

The curfew bell was rung last night at 8:30 o'clock. Nothing sensational resulted. It just rung; that was all.—Freeport Bulletin.

Abilene is getting to be a front porch town. Nearly every resident improvement includes a porch.—Abilene (Kan.) Reflector.

The companies are selling their gas so cheaply in New York that several of the metropolitan newspapers are filled with it every day.—Detroit Journal.

Buffalo is to have a new union station to cost $3,000,000, with a waiting room 80 by 235 feet, that will be the largest in the world. How about this, Boston?—Gardiner Reporter-Journal.

Buffalo is in a flutter over an extremely wicked Midway that it expects to have at the Pan-American exposition, and can't think of a suitable name for it. Why not call it Hamburg Paradise?—Rochester Democrat.

All because of a blessed war to the knife squabble between rival companies New York is now enjoying 65 cent gas. Father Knickerbocker will be a weak old gentleman if he lets them restore the higher rate.

MOTIVES AND METHODS.

A Missouri girl killed herself because her sweetheart had gone to the war.

Robert F. Hayes, a Boston clerk, hanged himself with his necktie as the noose.

Because his mother would not let him go in swimming an Arkansas boy cut his throat.

Forked branches of an apple tree were used as a noose by a Stroudsburg (Pa.) suicide.

Champagne with arsenic in it was used by a San Francisco man as a means of self destruction.

Her husband wanted to move, and she did not. That led a Connecticut woman to drink poison.

Fearing that his wife would scold him for getting home late a newly made London bridegroom committed suicide.

"Ah, to see the moon at a distance of one meter," was the note left by a Paris suicide explaining his motive for death.

THE CYNIC.

After a man has told you his troubles you know more about his kin.

You will find a loafer leech attached to every industrious man or woman.

An honest man is one who admits that his baldness is due to old age and not to sickness.

Every bridegroom finds an excuse to return from his wedding journey sooner than originally planned.

Every circus man lays all his plans on the assumption that the people are chumps. Every circus man gets rich.

After the people have worked themselves to death to raise a preacher's salary, he decides that he can do better elsewhere and resigns.

It would be interesting to know how much longer the week should be, in order that the men may find their Sunday underwear ready without fussing.—Atchison Globe.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Work of laying the cable from Vancouver to Fanning island and thence to Australia and New Zealand will begin this summer, it is announced.

The new Nernst electric light dispenses with the usual vacuum bulb and replaces the metallic filament with a short bar of refractory material, thereby greatly increasing the light and cheapening the cost.

Experiments have been made lately by French government officials with a new telephone, which enables persons to converse without putting their mouth and ear to the apparatus, the words being distinctly audible in any part of the room.

Died in Winnipeg.

Mr D Belleghem received a telegram last evening from Clarke Bros & Hughes, undertakers, Winnipeg, announcing the death of James Crowe, and asking that his death be made known, and that the firm be also given authority to make arrangements for his funeral. It appears that James Crowe, one of the last of the full blooded Indians of the Hiawatha Reserve, went out to Winnipeg on one of the harvest excursions. Two Indians from the Reserve, who were in town yesterday, stated that word of his death had reached Hiawatha.

WEDDING BELLS.

Conal—Patterson.

A quiet but very pretty wedding was celebrated yesterday at the residence of Mr Jas H Patterson, 370 Hunter street, when the union of his daughter, Miss Nettie, with Mr. Jas H Conal, of Conal and Son was solemnized. The parlor was beautifully decorated with flowers. The ceremony was performed by Rev Dr Torrance, of St. Paul's. Miss Ruby Patterson was bridesmaid, and the groom was assisted by Mr. W G Morrow.

The bride's gown was of cream taffeta silk and the bridesmaid was attired in white organdie muslin.

Mr. and Mrs. Conal left on the noon train for a honeymoon trip to Rochester and Niagara Falls. On their return they will take up residence on Brock-st.

Many beautiful presents were received from their friends. The groom was made the recipient of a handsome chair and an illuminated address from the officers and teachers of St. Paul's Sunday school of which he is an esteemed member.

Macnamara—Moran.

At St. Peter's cathedral at eight o'clock yesterday morning there was an interesting wedding, being the nuptials of Mr. Martin A Macnamara to Miss Johanna M. Moran, daughter of the late John Moran. The ceremony was performed by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, assisted by Ven. Archdeacon Casey. There was quite a gathering to witness the event. The cathedral choir was present, Miss Hurley presiding at the organ. Mr Geo Ball sang a solo.

The bridesmaid was Miss Lizzie Slattery and Dr. McGrath supported the groom. Both bride and bridesmaid were very tastefully attired.

Large Coal Business.

Mr. J. H. McClellan, of the People's Coal Company, returned to town on Saturday, from Ogdensburg, and left for the west again yesterday. He reports splendid business and bright outlook. Mr McClellan has a very large business at Odgensburg, N. Y., also the harbor and dock at Wadding, N.Y. where he is the exclusive coal dealer; also Watertown, Hievelton and Madrid, N. Y., and where new sheds have been erected in each place. The People's Coal Company, whose coal he handles exclusively, is the only concern outside the great coal combine. 850 tons are taken from their mines every day, and orders ahead for six months to come. Mr. McClellan is deservedly popular with everybody, and this accounts for the large and increasing business which he has built up.

COFFEE HEART.

Many People Think They Have Heart Disease.

My husband and I used to drink Mocha and Java coffee at forty cents a pound. We made it strong and always had it for breakfast; sometimes in cold weather for luncheon and dinner. A form of heart disease came on to both of us. Husband complained of his heart missing a beat sometimes and that he could not sleep after drinking coffee for the six o'clock dinner. I had pains at the heart, and very peculiar smothering sensations, frequently accompanied with sick headache. My physician forbid the use of coffee, and we were put on Postum Food Coffee, with the result that both husband and myself have fully regained our health and our hearts are all right, and perfect now.

"I have reached such perfection in making Postum that husband cannot tell either by look or taste whether he is drinking fine coffee or Postum, and he is a connoisseur in coffee. We drink Postum two or three times a day and it never palls on our taste.

"A good many people make Postum in a very slipshod manner; that is, they dash a little into the coffee pot and let it bubble up a little while and serve it, but that makes the flattest kind of a drink. On the contrary, when four heaping teaspoons to the pint of water are used and the Postum allowed to boil fully fifteen minutes after the boiling begins, not counting after it is put on the stove but after the real boiling begins, then one obtains a beverage that is worth while.

"I have no objections to your using my name." Mrs. J. M. Courtright, 600 Third street, S, Minneapolis, Minn. Postum is sold by all first-class grocers.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

ENNISMORE.

Correspondence of the Times.

The following, taken from a Toronto paper, refers to an Ennismore couple, who visited the Toronto fair:

On Saturday afternoon we had not a little amusement watching a young man and his wife, who, hand in hand, were doing the big building. When we first noticed them they were gazing with the deepest interest at the young woman who is exhibiting the tortoise shell hair fasteners as she skilfully did up a switch in graceful twists round the projecting points of the comb. Then they consulted together, the man apparently urging his wife to buy one of the said combs, but she shook her head and walked on. When we next met them they were enjoying cups of tea at the pretty Blue Ribbon booth down stairs. Indeed, so much did they appreciate the beverage that during the next hour we saw them return there no less than three times to refresh themselves with more of the same brew. Between times they bought candy at three stalls, a potato peeler at another, admired various sewing machines and typewriters, but never let go each other's hands for more than a fraction of a second until we lost sight of them afterwards in the crowd.

Peterborough's "Cementless" Walks

(By the Poetical Editor of the Times.)

We have the wireless telegraph,
The horseless carriage and
The cowless milk, the grapeless wine
Are everywhere at hand.

Now doctors, with their microbe scares
Would like full well, I ween,
To have the kissless maiden, too,
Appear upon the scene.

But come may what may through human skill
And brains that always talks,
The chances that we never will
Have GOOD cementless walks.

A SERIOUS INDICTMENT

U. S. Army in Phillippines Composed of Drunkards and Rakes.

MISSIONARIES ARE USELESS

Hundreds of Saloons of Western States Variety Flourish.

Army Secretary Peyton, of Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Declares That Religious Progress is Altogether Out of the Question While American Soldiers Are There.

New York, Oct. 4.—Army Secretary Peyton, of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, who has just returned from a stay of six months in the Phillippines, declares that the United States has 45,000 "drunkards, rakes and gamblers" in and around Manila, and that religious progress is quite out of the question while American soldiers are there. He says the Roman Catholic priests have made up with Tagalos, and are losing no time and sparing no money to tell the Filipinos that the Americans now in Manila, who have made that city what Mr Peyton calls a "Hell hole" are fair specimens of Protestant civilization.

Mr Peyton went to the Phillipines under commission from Bishop Doane, of Albany, chairman of the Board of Domestic and Foreign Missions of the Protestant Episcopal Church, charging him to examine conditions and return in time to report at the Missionary Council, which will meet this month in St. Louis. In the course of an interview he said: "Without any qualifying exceptions, the Tagalos are the most moral and most religious people I ever saw, but they are mere children in ability to govern themselves. It would never do, in my judgment, for the United States to abandon them.

Work is Useless.

"At the present time there is no chance for Protestant effort. It is practically useless to undertake to do anything there until the United States troops depart or reform. The United States troops has in and around Manila at this moment, or had when I left a few weeks ago, 45,000 drunkards, rakes and gamblers. When the American troops landed in Manila there was only a saloon or two in the whole place. To-day Manila is a hell hole. There are 430 or more saloons, typical places of the Western frontier, or worse, and the saloons are more respectable than are many of the other places within the city which Americans have either planted or keep alive by their support.

"When the insurrection was at its height many Spanish priests were driven out and left the island. With the coming of the Americans a common danger has brought Tagalos and Spaniards together and old sores have been healed. To-day not only Luzon, but the islands to the west and south are covered with friars who are active as they never were before. Everywhere they are preaching to the people this: "Behold these men. They are a sample of Americans. America is an infidel, or, what is the same thing, a Protestant nation. See the danger of fighting the mother church. An infidel nation has sent the flower of its men here, and behold them. Your lots may be hard. You may have had grievances in the past. We may have sinned, but your state is certainly better than that of Americans. You are moral. You are religious." It is useless for Protestants to try to convert Tagalos and other Filipinos. Let the army do its work and get away. Then, and not until then, will Methodists, Presbyterians and Episcopalians stand any chance.

Didn't View Seriously the Protest.

Ottawa, Oct. 4. The Ministerial Association has entered a mild protest againt a member of the Government going to Quebec to attend a welcome on behalf of the Ministry to Mgr. Falconio, the Papal delegate. Mr Scott, when his attention was called to the matter, laughed, and said surely no one would deny to him the right to go to Quebec and welcome the delegate on behalf of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and himself. He had not assumed to represent the Government at Quebec.

Five Years in Prison.

Glasgow, Oct. 4. James Colquhoun, former City Treasurer of Glasgow, and former representative of the City Corporation on the Unniversity Court, who was arrested on August 1st on charges of embezzling funds of the city and of estates committed to his charge, in amounts aggregating nearly £160,000, pleaded guilty to-day before the High Court and was sentenced to five years penal servitude.

THE BOER OFFICIALS SEIZE UITLANDERS' BOODLE!

Two Million and Ahalf Dollars in Gold Was Seized While on the Way to Capetown,

BRITAIN ACCEPTS CANADA'S OFFER OF TROOPS.

The Imperial Parliament Will Meet October 17th, When a Large Sum Will Probably be Asked for War Purposes. Boers Demand Withdrawal of Troops.

London, Sept. 4.—The most sensational news from South Africa this morning is a reiteration of yesterday's report of the acquisition by the Transvaal authorities of $2,500,000 in gold which was on the way from Cape Town from Johannesburg. The confirmation of the story comes from two sources.

The Cape Argus asserts that the Boers made the seizure at Vereeniging, the amount being the week's shipment of gold on the way from the Rand to Cape Town, and forwarded the treasurer to Pretoria.

The report is also confirmed by a cablogram received to-day by a mining company in London from their representative, which is to the effect that the train upon which he was travelling from Johannesburg to Cape Town was held $1,500,000 in gold, the amount being considerably less than the original estimate. There is nothing very tangible in to-day's war news, but the situation remains as strained as ever, unless hope may be derived from the apparent fact that the forces on the frontier are regarded by both sides as wholly defensive for the present and from the statement that Mr. J. Hofmeyer, the Afrikander leader in Cape Colony, is still prepared to endeavor to secure the adhesion of the Transvaal Government to irreducible minimum, proposed at the Bloemfontein conference to President Kruger by Sir Alfred Milner, the British High Commissioner, if the Imperial Government will stand by the High Commissioner's original proposal.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt has another slashing attack in to-day's paper upon the policy of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain. He reiterates his original statement that Mr. Chamberlain's assertion that the Transvaal refused to redress the grievances of the Outlanders is the reverse of the case; and he insists that Great Britain is responsible for "slamming the door in the face of President Kruger just when arrangements were approaching a settlement."

A more extended account of the speech of President Kruger at the adjournment of the Raads yesterday is now obtained. According to trustworthy reports he said: "Everything points to war because a spirit of falsehood has overtaken other countries and because people of the Transvaal wish to govern themselves. Although thousands may come to attack us, we have nothing to fear; for the Lord is the final arbiter and He will decide.

"Bullets came by thousands at the time of the Jameson raid, but the burghers were untouched. Over a hundred were killed on the other side, showing that the Lord directed our bullets. The Lord rules the world."

BOERS HAVE GONE BACK.

London, Oct. 4.—The Standard's correspondent in Natal says that the forward movement of the Boers to the Natal frontier has been arrested and that a majority of them have fallen back to their original base, near Sandsprint. The motive of the action is not known.

A Last Effort.

A Cape Town despatch says that Mr. Hofmeyer, the Afrikander leader, will proceed to Pretoria to-night to make a last effort for the maintenance of peace.

In the course of an address to the Volksraad yesterday on the eve of its adjournment President Kruger declared that war would be unjust and unnecessary. He denied that the Uitlanders wanted the franchise.

It is stated that the Transvaal reply is ready, and will be forwarded when the British proposals are received.

It is reasserted that the Transvaal will treat further landing of British troops as a casus belli.

Subsidized Vessels.

In London there are no new developments in the Transvaal situation. The military activity at the War Office still continues. Five vessels of the Cunard Line are now engaged as transports by the Government. One result of the war scare is the advance of one shilling to eighteen pence in the price asked for wheat offered in the London market today.

Boer Outrages.

According to a despatch from Lourenzo Marques, Portuguese East Africa, a crowd of Boers, who were assembled at the Machadorp station, forced the refugee to uncover during the singing of a Boer national air and severely maltreated several Englishmen, stabbing one and kicking and trampling upon others. It is reported there also that two ladies have been outrageously assaulted at Paarde Kop station by the Boers, one being struck in the face by a rifle shoved through the railway carriage window and the other struck by her assailant's fists.

It is thought that the date for the reassembling of Parliament will be fixed for Oct. 17 and that the members will be asked to vote £10,000,000 for war.

Canada's Offer Accepted.

Last night the British Government cabled to the Canadian authorities that it gladly accepts Canada's loyal offer of troops for South Africa. Acceptances have also been cabled to Queensland and an opportunity of giving England's enemies a magnificent object lesson in the solidarity of her Empire cannot be neglected.

Canada's proposal has not yet taken the shape of a formal Government offer, but was outlined in a despatch from Sir Wilfrid Laurier to Mr. Chamberlain with a view to learning whether Canada's cooperation would be acceptable and in what form it would be most serviceable.

The British Government does not desire any large number of troops, such as a thousand, but only enough to add a fighting unit from each colony to present a United Empire in the field.

TWELVE THOUASND MULES.

New York, Oct. 4.—Agents of the British Government are now in this country picking up horses and mules by the hundred, and arranging for speedy shipment. New York dealers says that 12,000 horses and mules are to be bought for use in South Africa. Some are to be shipped from Gulf ports, others from New York. It has been long known that American horses are meeting exceptional favor abroad, but it was not hitherto understood that our stock was so highly regarded as this action of the British War Office would seem to indicate.

Not many mules have gone abroad, and especially to South Africa, it is true, but enough to make them popular there. For one thing, the mule is never troubled by the tsetse fly, so prevalent in Africa, that drives horses wild, and it can do good work in a campaign if it cannot be fed oftener than once in twenty-four hours.

Artillery Horses.

The horses that are to be purchased by the British agents are the heavy well built horses, chiefly from the Middle States. They are at present greatly favored in London for cab and draught purposes. They are valued at from $125 to $150 each, and stand, on the average, about 16 hands high. The mules that are being looked out for are those of excellent quality, but not of the best sort. The finest American mule to-day costs from $165 to $200, as much as a first-class horse of equal draught power, and he runs from 16 1-2 to 17 1-2 hands high, at times even up to 18 hands. The Missouri stock is perhaps the best known.

The British Government is understood to be looking out for a class of mules smaller and less expensive. It has, it is said, fixed on a mule 15 hands high and costing about $125, of the same general stock, however.

A Boer Ultimatum.

Paris, Oct. 4.—A number of papers say that the Boers have sent an ultimatum to England demanding the withdrawal of the troops from the frontier within forty-eight hours. The papers congratulate President Kruger for coming to this decision.

FIRE IN VANCOUVER.

Fireman Burned to Death in the Presence of His Comrades.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 3.—On Saturday a blaze wiped out the central block of hotels in Cascade City. It was 12.30 in the morning when the fire broke out, in the busiest block of the best built portion of the town. In rapid succession the Club Hotel, Britannic Hotel, Grand Central, and Railroad Headquarters Hotel succumbed to the flames, and those were followed by Francis and Miln's and the Montana Hotel. Eric Arvall was burned to death while trying to save the Montana Hotel. His cries for help was piteous indeed, but the intense heat warded off all assistance. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

Slump in Bicycles.

London, Oct. 4.—The inflated price of bicycles has been for long a cause fo grumbling. Last year saw a slight fall in the price of machimes, but it was evident to anyone who closely observed the cycle boom of 1897 that there must come a violent reaction sooner or later, and that reaction has come with a vengance, for it is stated that a still further reduction will be announced very shortly. Two well-known houses, the Humber Company, Limited, and the Raleigh Cycle Company, Limited, are said to be about to join issue, and as a result we may expect the announcement of a $42 bicycle. To whatever cause is due the slump in the price of bicycles, it will be welcomed by those who have the best interests of British commerce at heart, for it is an undoubted fact that the cheaper cycle or the American and the German was fast driving the British bicycle maker out of all foreign markets.

Card-Playing Increasing.

London, Oct. 4.—The official publication of figures concerning the stamp duty on playing cards is interesting, as showing, firstly, that the demand for the English-made article is steadily increasing, to the detriment of the import trade; and, secondly, that card games generally are becoming more popular every year.

Revenue returns for the last financial year show that a stamp duty of threepence was paid on 1,952,456 packs made in the United Kingdom yielding a revenue of £28,785 14s, as against £5,346 on those from abroad. The figures are interesting and instructive, as proof that the English-made card is outpacing in popularity its foreign competitors, simply because we have produced a far better article at the money than our competitors

Military Kite Balloon.

Berlin, Oct. 4.—Brigadier-General A. W. Greely, honorary vice-president of the International Geographical Congress, accompanied by Major H. T. Allen, military attache of the United States Embassy in Berlin, to-day ascended at Potsdam in a military kite balloon, the invention of Mr Percival Siegsfeld. Emperor William granted Gen. Greely a special permit to make the ascent. Gen Greely has purchased a similar balloon for the United States Government.

Celebrated Their Golden Wedding.

London, Ont., Oct. 4.—Sir John and Lady Carling celebrated their golden wedding at their home yesterday evening. Mr and Mrs Fred Carling, with their children, and Mr and Mrs Vernon Nicholson, of Ottawa, arrived here on Monday to take part in the family reunion. Sir John was 71 years old last evening. Lady Carling was Miss Hannah Dalton, daughter of the late Henry Dalton, of this city.

PLEASED WTIH AWARD

Influential Journals Consider the Decision Most Satisfactory.

MORE THAN WAS ASKED.

And a Sinful and Immature Quarrel Avoided by Arbitration.

The Award and the Rapidity With Which it Was Rendered Cannot Fail to Give a Strong Impetus to International Arbitration—A Slap at the Yankees.

London, Oct. 4.—The award of the Anglo-Venezuelan boundary arbitration commission is referred to by the afternoon papers as eminently satisfactory from the English point of view.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "Without doubt Great Britain has done uncommonly well. If it were not already sufficiently obvious, it is now made clear that the arbitration has shown the disposition of one Government to be pleasant and patient rather than risk a sinful and unnatural quarrel. This must have its impression in America, and thus must have sown good seed, which has already grown into a flourishing plant."

The St. James Gazette says: "Arbitration has resulted in giving British Guiana an indisputable title to the northwestern district, where her future lies. Everyone will gladly join in the universal congratulations to the tribunal upon the happy results of difficult and delicate labors."

Result Satisfactory.

The Westminster Gazette says: "The result is decidedly satisfactory. Great Britain gets more than on various occasions she had expressed herself as willing to concede to Venezuela. The practical future of the case is that we have substantially succeeded against Venezuela, while vastly improving our relations with the United States. The award and the rapidity with which it was rendered cannot fail to give a strong impetus to international arbitration."

The Globe says: "For once arbitration has not operated to our disadvantage. There are others besides the Venezuelans who should now recognize that Great Britain will not suffer what she considers her rights to be subjected to the terrorism or warlike menace, whether in one part of the world or in another, whether by a great power or a small state."

Britain's Claims Substantiated.

Paris, Oct. 4.—One of the counsel for Great Britain made the following statement yesterday regarding the Venezuelan award:

"The award practically endorses the judgment of Sir Robert Schomberg, whose line it follows except in a few particulars. Great Britain acquires the whole of the River Cayuni, including a site which Venezuela alleged to be a fort at the junction of the Curumu and the Cuyuni. The marshy Barima district has been awarded to Venezuela, possibly on the principle of national security, but with the condition that the Orinoco shall be a free waterway to all nations. The piece of land covers about thirty square miles. It had been offered with much more land by every British Foreign Minister since the time of Lord Aberdeen. Great Britain has substantiated almost all her extreme claims. All the valuable plantations and gold fields are now indisputably settled within British territory.

WHAT THE TIMES SAYS.

London, Oct. 4.—The Times, referring to the award of the Anglo-Venezuelan tribunal of arbitration, says: "The award on the whole favors England, since it practically declares the Schombergh line to be the true frontier. England has repeatedly offered to surrender the Barima point with a much larger slice of territory than is now awarded if Venezuela would abandon the more preposterious portion of her general claim. The monstrous nature of that claim is best shown by the text of the award. It included 60,000 miles of territory, while the award gives her about 200 square miles of unsurveyed country and swamp, or very much less than any of the British Ministers whose proposals for compromise she rejected, were prepared to offer her out of friendly regard."

PEMISSION NECESSARY.

Laurier Says Expenditure on Transvaal Must be Approved.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier was interviewed this afternoon in regard to the Government's proposition to furnish a contingent of Canadians for service in the Transvaal. The Premier stated that while there was no doubt as to attitude of the Government on all questions that menace British interests, yet in the present instance the Cabinet's limitations were such as to prevent the offer of a military contingent without first having obtained the permission of Parliament to make the necessary expenditure. Consequently no official offer had been made nor the government discussed the question. The Militia Department duly transmitted individual offers to the Imperial Government, and the reply from the War Office had already been published. The statement in The Military Gazette this morning is a pure invention.

CHEAP FUEL.

The United States Consul at Stratford, Ontario, discusses in a report to the State department at Washington the problem of Canada's fuel supply, and gives some interesting facts about the peat beds of the Dominion. The scarcity and high price of fuel in Canadian cities, where wood ranges from three to eight dollars a cord and coal sells at five or six dollars a ton, he says, to experiments in the production of a marketable fuel from peat. There are in the Province of Ontario about one hundred thousand acres of peat bog, of a depth ranging from one foot to twenty feet. The peat is cut from the bog and dried in the air, after which it is run through a pulverizing machine and pressed into cylinderical blocks of about the same density as coal. Eighty-three pounds of compressed peat compares in bulk with seventy-three pounds of bituminous coal and ninety-three pounds of anthracite. The peat is free from sulpher, smoke, soot, dust and clinkers, and it makes a satisfactory fuel for all domestic purposes, giving a bright flame and intense heat. As a steam-producer one hundred pounds of peat are said to equal 86.15 pounds of coal. Best of all, perhaps, is the announcement that this fuel can be produced at a cost of sixty cents a ton, and if the experiments prove successful in all respects, the people of Toronto and other cities in Ontario will be assured of a cheap and good fuel, at least as long as the deposits of peat hold out.

We notice that an effort is being made to dry the peat by machinery, which will be much more expeditious, and perhaps cheaper than the method of laying it out in the sun to dry. It is not to be supposed that because the peat can be manufactured at a cost of sixty cents a ton, it will be sold for any such figure. The value of the deposits, the royalty on the machinery, freight and the middleman's profit—all these things must be considered. If compressed peat is sold at retail at three dollars a ton, the public may well be satisfied.

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and sassy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him. I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man. 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap. For a man of ordinary size he had the hugest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my derndest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin. I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I. 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly. Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands. When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

The Hint That Failed.

The landlady looked solemnly in the direction of the delinquent one.

"It's a rule in this house to pay as you go," said she.

The delinquent one smiled.

"It's a good plan," said he. "You get it all in a bunch then or nothing."—Syracuse Herald.

What a difference there is in women! The actual number of years they have lived seems to have little to do with their looks. Some women at 45 look and act younger than others at 30. Their eyes are brighter, their complexions fairer, and there are not nearly so many wrinkles. Old Father Time deals gently with a healthy woman, but when a woman is run-down with the drains, pains, displacements and weaknesses peculiar to her sex, she ages fast. The wrinkles come early. The roses in the cheeks vanish, and an unwholesome pallor spreads over her features. She becomes nervous, petulant, fidgetty. She loses flesh, and drags about in a most miserable state of body and mind. Such a sick woman needs Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This medicine will restore the looks of younger days by strengthening her in a womanly way. It will do what powders and paints and "beautifiers" can never do. It is a non-alcoholic and non-narcotic preparation. The stimulation and strength it imparts are permanent. It cures all the distressing ailments commonly called "female troubles." There is no other remedy so good for this purpose. When a medicine dealer urges upon you something else as a substitute for it, he is attempting a personal injury. Never take any substitute for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

"I have been in poor health more or less all my life," writes Mrs. M. F. Long, of Le Loup, Franklin Co., Kans. "A specialist said I had ulceration of the womb and that an operation would have to be performed. At last I wrote to Dr. Pierce asking advice. I received an answer advising me to try his medicines, his 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and also his 'Pleasant Pellets.' In one month I gained eight pounds. After taking two bottles of each medicine, I began to look like a woman and not like a wasted skeleton. That weary, tired feeling has all left me."

"Next to the art of living justly and kindly with our fellows comes the art of maintaining a life of happiness and tranquillity," writes the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis of "The Secrets of a Happy Life" in The Ladies' Home Journal, "for the soul was made for joy and good cheer. Life is a school; labor and sorrow, victory and defeat toil together as teachers, but happiness is life's aim and graduating point. Next to the duty of self denial comes the duty of delight. What ripeness is to an orange, what song is to the lark, what culture and refinement are to the intellect, that happiness is to the soul. As vulgarity and ignorance betoken a neglected mind, so unhappiness and misery proclaim the neglected heart.

"The normal nature will keep strong and fresh the chords that vibrate joy. Depression and worry take the nerve out of man's arm, take the keen edge from his mind, rob life of its victory, for unhappiness wins no battles, gloom invents no tool, wretchedness writes no drama. Earth's great achievements represent those whose hearts sang over the tasks. To meet storm with calm, defeat with faith, ingratitude with charity, is not an easy thing. Nothing requires so much wisdom, practice and skill as learning how to live habitually above the distemperatures of life."

Free State Turns Its Troops Loose to Oppose the British Forces.

RUSH FROM JOHANNESBURG

Few British People are Left There, Even Clergymen Not Safe.

Foreigners Must Leave Orange Free State Too—The Mails Being Sent Back—Export of Grain, Stock and Other Necessaries, Without Permit is Forbidden.

London, Oct. 3.—Stories of the movements of Boers and British, of the hurried muster and despatch of troops on both sides, have come from other points.

A telegram from Ladysmith, Natal says that the Orange Free State troops have occupied and closed Bothas Pass on the Free State border, and that Commandant Allriche, chief of the Free State artillery, is proceeding in the direction of Kimberley with a considerable force of artillery. Another force of artillery, under Commendant Boning, has gone to Harrismith, while Commandant Smit commands a force of artillery en route for Kroonstadt.

The latest news received from Johannesburg, filed there yesterday, indicates that the last rush of Europeans to leave the town has occurred. They crowded the trains like sardines, occupying every possible inch on the trucks. There is considerable anxiety with regard to the few who remain behind, as communication seems to be cut off.

The Mining Commissioner stated officially that the proclamation of Sept. 20, relative to the protection of ministers, had been withdrawn, and he, therefore, advised all Britishers to leave as soon as possible.

The British steamer Lalpoor, now in the transport service, arrived last evening at Durban, Natal, with field artillery, a hospital corps, and commissary stores, from India. The troops were promptly disembarked, and sent by train up the country.

The Natal authorities have announced that no more mails will be despatched to the Transvaal until further notice.

FREE STATE EXPULSION.

London, Oct. 3.—Last Friday's mail was sent back from the frontier.

A Bloemfontein despatch says that the Orange Free State Government has gazetted an alien expulsion law, and also a law forbidding the export of grain, stock and other necessaries without a permit. Commandering is proceeding there at a lively rate. A commando from Bloemfontein is assembling to-day at Bainsolei.

BRITAIN GOES SLOW

London, Oct.—While all the despatches from South Africa dwell upon the condition of wild excitement there and the expected imminence of a Boer attack there is in reality little change in the situation, although the massing of the Boers in all directions inevitably increases the tension. While constant military orders are being issued here progress seems very slow, and it must still be weeks before Great Britain will be in a position to strike, although it is believed that the British troops now at the front, or near it, are sufficient to protect British territory.

The Government is certainly not showing any signs of haste in sending an ultimatum. This is probably due to a recognition that Great Britain is not yet ready to substitute force for negotiations, and the Cabinet, therefore, is giving the Transvaal every chance to accept the latest British proposals.

ALARMING RUMORS.

London, Oct. 3.—A despatch from Durban, Natal, announces that the Boers are expected to take the aggressive to-day. The most alarming rumors are afloat there respecting their intentions.

RANGERS READY TO FIGHT

Toronto, Oct. 3.—The Twelfth York Rangers may yet go to South Africa. On Saturday Lieut.-Col. Lloyd received a communication from Major-General Hutton thanking him for his offer and congratulating him on the spirit which the crack battalion has displayed. The Major-General asked for the number of officers who will go, their qualifications, experience and the number of men who could be obtained. He also asked for full particulars as to the facilities for speedy mobilization of the men.

On receiving this Col. Lloyd immediately put himself in communication with the officers, asking them whether they would go and what men they could furnish. Replies in the affirmative have poured in on Lieut.-Col. Lloyd, and he will send in a report that the vast majority of officers will go, and, furthermore, that the companies can easily be recruited up to full war strength.

Has Andree Found the Pole?

Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 3.—The buoy marked 'Andree polar expedition,' which with an anchor attached, was found Sept. 9 on the north coast of King Charles Island, by the master of the Norwegian cutter Martha Largask, has opened yesterday in the presence of a number of experts and members of the Cabinet. It was found to be the so-called North Pole buoy which Andree had arranged to drop if he succeeded in passing the Pole.

THE MAGICAL MIRROR

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY A WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentous Pictures Reflected In Its Oval Surface, Although It Will Not Work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our prosaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alora, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the sacred secrets and ceremonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery. While there she managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomless depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface; then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gazer recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac. By the mail two days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his home, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in shape; a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth.

The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the asphaltum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the best known material for absorption of the aura of the human body, and this is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, airy chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post.

The Birds Save Us.

A French naturalist says that if the world were to become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time. In spite of all the sprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects the bugs and slugs would simply eat up orchards and crops.

Fact Versus Fiction.

"Talk about the seven sleepers," said the [illegible]. "I'll bet there are 7,000 of them between Albany and New York."

SUFFOCATED BY GAS.

Three People Have Lain Dead Since Last Sunday.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Three people were suffocated by gas in their rooms at 4,702 State street. Their bodies were found last night by the police, and from the position of the bodies it is believed that death was caused sometime Sunday. The dead are: Mrs Kate Jungles, widow, 35 years old; John Jungles, 11 years old, son of Mrs Jungles; John Teid, 25 years old, a switchman, who boarded with Mrs Jungles.

A Mockery of Justice.

Liverpool Oct. 3.—Four greasers, three firemen and two coal trimmers of the steamer Scotsman were charged with the possession of goods belonging to passengers. Four, having been previously convicted, were sentenced to a month's imprisonment with hard labor. The others were fined £2 and costs.

The Telltale Eye.

"No matter how self possessed a man may appear on the surface," said a close observer, "there are certain involuntary movements by which he will always betray himself to minute scrutiny. To illustrate the point, here's a neat little parlor trick in mind reading.

Seat yourself directly in front of your subject and tell him to hook his finger tips together before his chest and pull as hard as he can, at the same time thinking intently of some letter of the alphabet. Then look fixedly at his right eye and repeat the letters aloud, beginning with A. When you come to the one he is thinking about, a swift, indescribable change will flash across the pupil. It is purely unconscious and involuntary, and no human being alive can prevent it. The purpose of the finger tip pulling is merely to distract his thoughts and keep him from balking you by concentration of will. Try it some time."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Bringing Up the Average.

Old Rufus Gogblink, a slow, deliberate sort of man, dropped in one day in a casual sort of way to see his friend, Stephen Nobbler. It was the first time he had been in to see Stephen in 42 years.

"Um-m! You don't come in very often, Rufus," said Mr. Nobbler.

"No," said Mr. Gogblink.

But he went in to see his friend Mr. Nobbler again the very next day.

"Um-m! You're coming in pretty often now, Rufus," said Mr. Nobbler.

"Ya-as," said Mr. Gogblink. "I'm sort o' bringing up the average."—New York [illegible]

Tripple Alliance in the Far East.

Yokohoma, Oct. 3.—It would appear that an Oriental tripple alliance is on the tapis. Some light is thrown on the recent negotiations between China and Japan by a revelation of the existence of a semi-secret society with a large membership in the two countries and Korea, having for its purpose the preservation of three eastern empires.

Award of the Venezuelan Arbitration Commission Announced at Last.

Paris, Oct. 3.—The award of the Anglo-Venezuelan boundary arbitration commission was read at noon to-day. The decision was unanimous. The award of the tribunal is a distinct victory for Great Britain and a justification of her attitude which so awakened the wrath of President Cleveland that he was guilty of an ill-considered jingo message which nearly caused war. The award means that of the 600,000 square miles claimed by Venezuela the latter obtains only 100,000, formed partly of the marsh land near the river Barima and a portion of the interior, while Great Britain retains all the forest country.

The decision says that the frontier between British Guiana and Venezuela shall be:

"Starting on the coast at Point Playa, the frontier shall follow a straight line to the confluence on the Barima and the Maruimam, thence following the valley of the latter to the source of the Corentin, otherwise called the Cutari River."

Thence it shall proceed to the confluence on the Haiowa and the Amakura; thence, following the Thalweg of the Amakura, to its source in the plain of Imataka; thence in a southwesterly direction, along the highest ridge of the Imataka Mountains to the highest point of the Imataka chain opposite the source of the Barima and the principal chain of the Imataka Mountains; thence in a southwest direction to the south of the Acarbisi.

Following the Thalwea of the Acarabisi to the Cuyuni, the northern bank of which it shall follow in a westerly direction to the confluence of the Cuyuni and the Vanamu; thence along the Thalweg of the Fanamu to its westernmost source, then in a straight line to the summit of Mount Roraima; thence to the course of the Cotinga.

"From this point the frontier shall follow the Thalweg of the Cotinga to its confluence with the Takutu, thence along the Thalweg of the Takutu to its source; thence in a straight line to the most western point of the Akarai Mountains, the highest ridge of which it shall follow to the source of the Corentin, thence it will follow the course of the river."

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 30 years. When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony. One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane. Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly. "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

The Victim Was the Samoan King Malietoa and the Victor an American Naval Officer—The Jack Pot That Caused the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymaster in the navy with King Malietoa several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever indulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kalakaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little brush on this line. Well, Malietoa's opportunity to test his belief came one day when an American man-of-war—never mind which one—sailed into the harbor at Apia. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the fullest extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an assistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malietoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Malietoa requested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Malietoa had almost phenomenal luck, winning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a smile of pleasure and triumph combined, announced that he would open it $20 worth. Every player staid. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Malietoa showed his blood by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others staid. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped out. After the king's last raise the paymaster hesitated a moment, put his cigar to one side and shoved $50 to the middle of the mahogany.

"The king put up the equivalent in Chilean silver dollars, the currency of the islands, and, drawing a small sack from his pocket, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Samoa, amounting to $79 in silver. The paymaster's face grew serious, and he looked at his royal opponent in a hesitating, puzzled sort of way. Could this be a Samoan Ah Sin he had run against? Had this kingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evening? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance some of it in finding out.

"After a few moments of undecision he drew $570 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malietoa gave a gasp and called for a glass of kava to steady his nerves. This he gulped down and announced that he was out of funds, requesting at the same time that the paymaster take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smiling and looking fixedly at the pot. Then the excited monarch offered to put up the island of Manono, one of the finest in the Samoan group, against the $500. To this the paymaster consented, and a transfer deed of the property, duly signed, attested by the trader, who was a notary public, and witnessed by the other two officers, was put in the pot. Then the king called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four aces and a five spot.

"With a look of horror and a Samoan wail of despair, his majesty exposed to view three kings, an eight spot and a deuce. Then he fell off his chair in a faint, the excitement having been too much for his nerves. Kava in copious quantities brought him around sufficiently to enable his removal to his own castle. The paymaster shoveled his money into a sack and placed it in the trader's iron safe, but the deed for the island he carefully placed in his pocket.

"Next morning the details of the big poker game were known to nearly every inhabitant of the place, and the German and English consuls sent official communications to the American consul protesting in most emphatic terms against the action of the king in disposing of the island of Manono to an American or to any one else, and warning the consul that unless the paymaster returned the deed for the island to the king at once they would direct the attention of their respective governments to the case.

"Here was a pretty state of affairs. The officer had, no doubt, won the island fairly, and the king's action was binding, but in the tension in which Samoan affairs were at that time the German and English governments would only too willingly have taken advantage of the circumstances as an excuse for international complications, ending ultimately in a disastrous way to American interests.

"The facts were fully explained to the paymaster, and on the promise of Malietoa that he would give the officer a number of fine mats and other Samoan articles of value the deed was returned to the king and destroyed. By mutual consent of the consuls and officers interested the affair was hushed up in every way and was thus allowed to die out. Malietoa took an oath that he would never again play poker."

LOSSES IN A CAR STRIKE.

An Estimate Regarding the Cost of the London Car Strike.

London, Ont, Oct. 3.—The estimated damage done to the city so far by the street car strike, which has been on since May 22, is placed at $197,400, divided as follows: Loss to the company, $60,000; loss to the men in wages, $13,000; to the city for militia expense and extra street lighting, $4,400; to the merchants, probably $100,000; damage to property, probably $20,000. Since the strike began there has been 1,059 cases of missile throwing; 693 windows have been smashed; 285 obstructions have been placed upon the track; 70 employees have been hit and more or less hurt; 70 cars have been derailed; 54 passengers have been hit and three cars have been burned or seriously damaged. The total number of police court cases due to the strike so far is 122.

COL. HUGHES' VOLNTERS.

Twenty Thousand Canadians Offers to go to South Africa.

Otawa, Oct. 3.—Colonel Sam Hughes, M.P., arrived here last night from Port Arthur. Despite official disfavor, the colonel is as enthusiastic as ever over his proposed regiment for South Africa. That the military spirit is strong in the Dominion is abundantly evident from the number of replies received to the colonel's circular. Over 250 officers have volunteered for services, and the tender of the men ranges in the vicinity of 20,000. The offers come from all parts of Canada, the Maratime Provinces and the far West being as keen for service as the volunteers of Ontario and Quebec. Even a company of Indians from Ontario—trained volunteers—are anxious to get a slap at Oom Paul.

Colonel Hughes declines to discuss the point raised by the Militia Department that he acting contrary to the Army Act.

A Curious Old Ad.

A Boston paper has unearthed this curious old advertisement from the Boston Post Boy and Advertiser for March 16, 1767: "The Bell-Cart will go through Boston, before the End of next March, to Collect Rags for the Paper Mills at Milton, when all People that will encourage the Paper Manufactory may dispose of them; the best Price will be given. They are taken in at Mr. Caleb Davis's Shop, at the Fortification; Mr. Andrew Gillespie's, near Dr. Clark's; Mr. Andrew Randale's, near Phillips's Wharf; and Mr. John Boies's in Long Lane; Mr. Frothingham's in Charleston; Mr. Williams's in Marblehead; Mr. Ellson's in Salem; Mr. John Harris's in Newbury; Mr. Daniel Fowle's in Portsmouth; and at the Paper Mill in Milton.

'Rags are as Beauties, which concealed lie;
But when in Paper, how it charms the Eye;
Pray save Rags, new Beauties to discover,
For Paper truly, every one's a Lover:
By th' Pen and Press such Knowledge is displayed,
As wouldn't exist if Paper was not made.
Wisdom of Things, mysterious, divine,
Illustriously doth on Paper shine."

But They Weren't Civilized.

Traveling in southern India, one day I was taken into the country to see tapioca roots gathered and ground for use. The adults working in the grove, men and women, had each a rag around the loins, but the boys and girls, with their black, glossy skins, were free of all incumbrance.

Our guide explained to these people that we were from a country so far away and so different from theirs that the waters were sometimes made solid by the extreme cold and we could walk upon them; that sometimes it was so intensely cold that the rain was frozen into particles and lay on the earth so deep that people could not walk through it, and that three and four layers of heavy clothes had to be worn.

This happy people, as our guide told us, wondered why we staid there, why we did not come and enjoy life in their favored clime.—Andrew Carnegie in North American Review.

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Proud of Him.

When he was 50, he returned to his native town "just to see how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked it and sold calico and groceries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when he thought how much those 30 years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself.

Presently he met one of the old inhabitants.

"Waal, I declare, is it really you, Hank?" said the old man incredulously. "We've heerd you've been prospering fust rate since you went west. They've made you a railroad president or suthin, ain't they? I heerd so, but I couldn't believe it. It's really true, is it? Waal, all I've got to say is they must be purty hard up for railroad presidents out there." [illegible]—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Where the Pot of Gold is Buried.

How many women are fretting and struggling along on a very little money when a good sized yard or adjoining patch of ground is going to waste! Yet that very piece of ground may contain all sorts of possibilities—clothes, furniture, books, medicines, luxuries and even necessities otherwise impossible.

Clear, plow, fertilize and plant. This done, the great beginning is made, and perseverance and attention will secure the rest. Onions, tomatoes, cabbages, celery, a small poultry farm, a violet or rose farm—any one of these may add several hundred dollars to one's purse every year. Small fruits, hops, tuberoses and grapes are also very profitable. With some intelligence a blooming garden can always be made a paying one. Make it a principle to have no more waste in the garden than in the kitchen.

If there is only a very small place and just enough raised for one's own family, try, after the table is supplied, to prepare what vegetables and fruits are left over for sale for winter use. There is always a demand for good homemade canning and preserving. Do not let a valuable scrap of ground be idle.—Annetta Halliday-Antona in Woman's Home Companion.

An Unprofitable Bone.

Last summer a friend presented us with a tortoise. I do not know whether our dog had heard of turtle soup or whether he regarded the creature as a new kind of bone that walked about; at any rate, he determined to eat it.

Whenever the tortoise started out on a constitutional down the garden path Gyp arrested it and carried it into his kennel, where he gnawed at the impenetrable armor till his jaws ached.

The calm and philosophical manner in which the tortoise resumed its interrupted promenade irritated the dog exceedingly, but no failure discouraged him. Whenever we reminded him of the tortoise, he would go in search of it all round the garden, peering into every crevice, till eventually the creature was found, and then fresh but futile attempts were made to extract the meaty portions from the shell.—Youth's Companion.

A SIMPLE LITTLE MIX UP.

How It Helped One Man at the Expense of Another.

How a bunch of roses sold a couple of high priced railroad tickets is the basis of a queer little comedy of errors enacted the other day at a leading city hotel. Among the guests of the house was a wealthy Texas merchant who was en route with his wife for a visit to New England. The Texan has a local business representative here in the person of a hustling young man about town, who was especially anxious to make the stay of his principal as pleasant as possible. Accordingly he rushed to a florist's as soon as he saw the names on the register and ordered him to put up the handsomest bunch of roses he had in the shop and send them over to Mrs. Blank at such and such a hotel. In his hurry he forgot to leave his card for inclosure, and, supposing it was omitted intentionally, the florist proceeded to prepare a magnificent bouquet, which he dispatched forthwith by messenger.

It so happened at the moment the flowers arrived that a city passenger solicitor for one of the north bound roads had just handed over his card to be sent to the Texas gentleman's apartment, and quite naturally the pasteboard and the roses went up together. The visitors were both astonished and pleased. "This is certainly a princely way of soliciting business," exclaimed the merchant, examining the flowers. "Why, these things must have cost all of $10. Show the gentleman up."

The solicitor was shown up, received most cordially and given an immediate order for through transportation both ways. He departed, chuckling merrily, but a little dazed by the facility of his deal and puzzled to understand the many references to his "courtesy" and "thoughtfulness."

An hour or so later the local representative dropped around and was met by his employer in the lobby. The greeting was painfully matter of fact, and not a word was said about the flowers. The young man was greatly chagrined and began to believe he had made a bad break. Next day he accompanied the couple to the depot, and incidentally something was said about the route.

"We decided to go this way on account of the gentleman who called to sell us tickets," explained the lady. "He was so courteous and pleasant! Why, would you believe it," she continued, "he actually sent me an enormous bunch of beauty roses with his business card!"

Light dawned on the local representative, and he groaned. In his pocket was a florist's bill for $12.75.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A JUMPING TOOTHACHE.

How It Won Its Victim Credit For Bravery in Battle.

"It was a toothache said the veteran, "that won me a reputation for daring at the battle of Bull Run. That was the only fight I was ever in where I didn't wish I could find a hole to crawl into. All this talk about coolness on the eve of battle is nonsense, invented by people who have never been there or old soldiers whose tongues get away with their memories. Our men and officers were as brave as any in the war and made good records, but they all had the ague and longed for sick leave just about the time the bullets began to fly. But I had the toothache for two days before that battle, and if there is an aggravation on earth that will make a man want to bat his best friend in the face that is it.

"On the night before the fight I did not sleep a wink. The old tooth got to jumping like a goat, and I couldn't have suffered more from an amputated leg. I was also furiously mad. I felt that I'd either got to bolt for the rear in search of relief or encourage some rebel to put a ball through my head.

"We'd been waiting in battle line for an hour, and the boys had grown white and were all choked up. I had been entirely occupied with the old tooth, and the first thing I knew the fight was on. We were holding them in check, but that didn't suffice me. As I got hold of my gun and pulled the handkerchief off my jaw I yelled out for the boys to follow, and we struck a whole brigade and whirled it around and sent it back half a mile. I felt that I could lick the whole of Lee's army for an hour or two! They told me that I yelled and dodged death a thousand times, but I remember nothing but the jumps of that tooth. When they stopped, or for what particular reason, I could never say, but after a couple of hours I came to myself, as it were, and was being complimented on all sides, and the jumps had ceased."

Guns Repaired

On Hunter street, opposite the English church. O. Bell.

First Prize.

For best shoes by Kidd the shoe man, low prices too.

Board.

Good board and rooms for three or four gentlemen at 20 Queen street. Two minutes walk from Ontario Bank.

A Smoker.

The Peterborough Baseball Club propose to hold a smoking concert at an early date in the opera house, when a programme, consisting of boxing bouts between some local men who are handy with the gloves, and vocal and instrumental music will be presented. There no doubt will be a bumper house.

Granolithic Sidewalks

Are great (grate) for taking the soles off the shoes. Never mind; Kidd sells Shoes so cheap that you can afford to throw the old ones away.

Religion and the Bicycle.

The Roman Catholics of Canada have been debating whether cycling is consistent with the office of the priest, and the Archbishop of Ottawa has declared ex-cathedra that it is not. The result is that no priest dares to mount a bicycle. It remains to be seen whether other bishops of the Church will follow the example of the Ottawa bishop.

If you would exterminate the obnoxious caterpillar, look well at your trees now. If owners of trees will take the trouble to examine them carefully they would find on the branches clusters of eggs of the caterpillar ready for next year's hatching. The clusters are deposited on the branches and then gummed over by the mother, so that the eggs may be protected from the elements. Pierce the gum and soft eggs are shown. These clusters can be easily seen, and all seen should be destroyed.

REPORTED RICH FIND.

Mineral Deposits of Great Value Discovered in Burleigh.

The Times was told yesterday that mineral deposits of great value have been discovered in Burleigh township, and that extensive mining operations will be started in the spring, or perhaps the fall. Rich gold quartz has, we are told, been discovered, containing from $20 to $150 to the ton.

The parties interested reside in Toronto, and are keeping the matter quiet, presumably until they secure the property on which the find was made. We were unable to learn the names of the parties interested.

We know that a prominent Toronto mining broker and expert returned from a prospecting trip to Burleigh a few days ago, and when asked by the Times to state the object of his visit, replied that he was prospecting. He said that he was not at liberty to speak at present in regard to the result of his sojourn in Burleigh, but that it was not altogether fruitless. He said, however, that there was a great future ahead for the northern portion of Peterborough county, which was teeming with minerals.

Too Little Cement.

Complaints have been made to the Times that the new pavements contains too much sand, too little cement to prevent the sand from showing itself on the surface of the walks. Any one can see for themselves that the sufrace of the pavement is in many places, covered with fine sand. This simply shows that there is not sufficient cement to harden the surface. A lady who lives on one of the streets on which this quality of pavement is laid, told us yesterday that her carpets were being destroyed with sand from the walks in front of her house. The Council seem to be in bad luck, if they are to have the women down on them in addition to the army of dissatisfied and indignant taxpayers.

Last Night's Blaze.

A fire occurred last evening about 8.30 o'clock, when the barns and outbuildings owned by Mr John Mervin, butcher, were destroyed. The buildings contained some stock, hay, etc., the former being rescued by those present at the scene. The buildings were situated in North Monaghan, just outside the town limits, consequently the Fire Brigade was not called upon. The loss is estimated at about $2,500 and is partly covered by insurance. The blaze attracted a considerable crowd from town.

DOCTORS IN LINE.

Prejudices all Vanish, and They Prescribe Dr. Agnew's Ointment Because its Virtues Demand Recognition.

Dr. M. Barkman, of Binghampton, N Y., writes: "Send me 12 dozen more of Dr. Agnew's Ointment. I prescribe large quantities of it in my practice. It is a grand remedy for tetter, salt rheum, eczema and all skin diseases, and never-failing cure for piles." The strongest evidence of its virtue is that doctors can so highly recommend it. One application relieves. Sold by Ormond & Walsh and H. S. McDonald.

Can This be Tommy?

Can this be Tommy? this the boy—
His mother's pet, his father's joy—
Who at the corner now does stand,
A lighted cigaret in his hand?

Just see him, as he puffs away,
How one eye up the street does stray—
His open one, his weather eye—
For fear the old man chance to spy.

His olive branch, before his face,
Picture of innocence and grace,
Using the weed upon the sly;
Enough to make a parson sigh.

Why have his feet gone thus astray
That now he stands and puffs away?
And mother often says with joy,
Her Tommy's such a dear good boy!

The reason is, 'twixt you and I,
What is born in the bone will never die;
And the old man knows, if he thinks aright.
He was just like Tommy when out of sight.

PERSONAL

A BUTTER BOARD.

The Peterborough Cheese Board Agitating the Subject.

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held yesterday morning, the president Mr. Drummond in the chair.

The following buyers were present: Messrs Rollins, Cook, Moore, Cluxton, Kerr, Fitzgerald, Whitton, Wrighton, Squires and Bailey.

Mr Stewart Payne, before the bidding opened, brought before the board the matter of continuing the market for a couple of months for the purpose of disposing of the butter output of the factories that also make cheese. He understood that the buyers present handled butter, and there were about eight or more facteries in this district making the article.

Messrs Fitzgerald Whitton, Cluxton, and others spoke in favor of the idea. It was decided to take some definite action in this line at the next meeting of the board.

The factories boarded as follows:

Factories	Boxes
Keene	135
Warminster	85
Shearer	115
Central Smith	100
North Smith	145
Villiers	70
Warsaw	100
Westwood	195

Lakeview	50
Trewern	75
Cedardale	168
Stony Lake	25
Cavanville	145
Mount Pleasant	87
Perrytown	65
Daisy D.	71
Fleetwood	190
Orono	93
Kendal	93
Indian River	125
Hope	55
Crown	165
Oak Leaf	24
Bensfort	125
Total	3941

The first shot was fired by Mr Cook at 11 cents, and it soon ran up to 11¼ by Whitton. His selections Keene, Ormonde, Lang and Villers.

For the second bid Mr Rollins called out 11¼. It closed at 11 3-16 by Mr Cook. He called Westwood, which accepted but North Smith, Oakdale, Pine Grove refused.

At 11¼ Mr Rollins took Warminster, Cedardale, Stony Lake, Oakdale, North Smith, Maple Leaf, North Dummer. Mr Bailey at 11¼ called Shearer, Central Smith, Missing Link, Lakefield, Pine Grove, Peterborough, Fraserville, Bensfort. They all accepted.

Mr Cook then offered 11¼ and took Warsaw, Melrose Abbey, Indian River. He then offered 11 6-8 for further selection. Mr Whitton went 11 11-16 and took Hope, Crown, Kendal, Orono, Fleetwood, Perrytown, and Young's Point (at Peterborough inspection) and Cavanville.

Tavern and Lakeview went to Mr Rollins at 11 11-16.

Mr Cook offered 11¼ for further selections and called Mount Pleasant, Myrtle, Oak Leaf, which accepted. Otonabee Union remained unsold.

It was decided to adjourn for three weeks when the last meeting of the board for the season's supply of cheese will be offered.

BETHANY.

Correspondence to the Times.

Some of the patrons of the cheese factory not 10 miles from here having heard that this was a growing time, and in consequence concluded that a little water in the milk was necessary in order to keep it down to the required strength, others seeing that butter was a staple article, decided to just skim a little bit that in fact the milk was too strong. But it may seem strannge that the inspector could not see matters in the light of a "growing time," and requested a little cash from the parties referred to, to balance matters up. It does seem strange that there should be individuals who will fall so low. A good idea for the inspector would be to publish the names of all parties who indulge in such dishonest work.

As the time comes round for aspirants for municipal honors to look for votes, they are seemingly more amenable to the wants of their long suffering constitutents as a result our side walks that have been a disgrace to any civilized community, are being repaired. The electors should see to it that we have a man in the next council who will be interested in giving this portion of the township its just dues.

Dame rumor has it that Dr. Gillespie, of Lindsay, intends locating in this village. His very many patients in this township would be no doubt be pleased if such should be the case as he is evidently an up-to-date man.

Miss Leach, of Millbrook, is in town visiting her brother Will, who has charge of the drug store here.

Miss Shore, of Palgrove, is in the town a guest of her sister, Mrs. John S. Buckman, G.T.R. agent.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Ryley, of Little Current, is in town the guest of Mrs. Ryley, senior.

The Rev. C. W. Barrett, of this village, has gone on an extended visit to friends in Apsley.

At the meeting of the school board on Saturday evening, Mrs. Jas. N. Moffatt, the present popular teacher, was re-engaged as principal for another year.

Miss Annie Bray, one of our most popular young ladies, left for Omemee where she has secured a good position as milliner with Messrs. Terry and Sons.

Dear Ald. McWilliams,—The citizens thank you through the Times for having a change made in the town's contract with its solicitor. Peterborough has no use for lawsuits. Now, please give attention to the street paving scandals.

Town Engineer Hay says that he authorized the proportions of sand, granite and cement which were used in the paving contracts. If this is true few will blame the contractors. Mr Hay made a most serious mistake and must be brought to strict account therefor.

Mr John Hays, of Peterborough, who has a contract for putting down granolithic pavement in Lindsay, commenced work before signing the contract and was taken to task in the Council for it. It is evident that the work in Lindsay will be done according to specifications, which is in happy contrast with Peterborough's methods of doing street work.

Leonard Judge, a 16 year old lad, was struck by a train and instantly killed at Andover, Mass. He formerly worked in the Lock Works here.

The Keene show is now on.

Mr. James Hall, the G T. R. driver, who was injured by the derailing of his engine a couple of weeks ago, was able to return to work yesterday. Mr James Gordon, of town, his fireman, who was also injured in the accident, is still off duty with the double fracture of his collar bone.

Three former Peterborough citizens—Messrs Cox, Flavelle and Ames, subscribed amongst them $75,000 to Methodist institutions. The editor of this g. f. j. feels like going down in his dip and making it an even $100,000, but is forced to forego the pleasure until he sees if the coming winter is likely to be a severe one or not.

A double decker of hogs arrived at the Matthews Company yesterday from McDougal, Brandon & Austin, Fenelon Falls.

The dew of toil was on his face,
His hands were knotted hard,
His cheery smile had give place
To scowls that sadly marred.
He pushed, and tugged, and pushed again,
And wiped the sweat away,
And struggled as in direst pain,
And roundly cursed the day
Once more he tugged, and creaked and swore—
The neighbors looked aghast—
Then down the steps he flung the mower,
And bellowed: "That's the last!"

OCEAN MAIL SERVICE

The Allans Not Able to Fill the Conditions of the New Contract

BOATS TO CONVEY TROOPS.

Government Asked For Concessions in Shape of a Slower Service.

The Allan Line Has Sold or Leased Two of Its Fastest Vessels to the British Admiralty for Conveying Troops to South Africa.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—It is understood that the Allan Line has either sold or leased two of its fastest steamers to the British admiralty to be used for conveying troops to the Transvaal, and in consequence the company has notified the Department of Trade and Commerce that it cannot accept the contract for carrying the British mails with the present conditions which it asks for. If slower vessels be accepted then the company will of course accept.

The matter is now under the consideration of the department. Very recently an Order in Council was passed giving the contract for two years from November next to the Allans, but it was not signed, as there was some trouble about freight at St. John, owing to the difference of opinion that existed between Mr Shaughnessy and Mr Blair on that matter. The Allans were afraid that the Canadian Pacific Railway might run to Boston, in that case their boats might not get the necessary freight at St. John.

G T R Half-Yearly Report.

London, Oct. 5.—The Grand Trunk railway report published yesterday is quite a colorless document, concerned alone with the satisfactory figures for the half year and the text of the agreement with the Government concerning the Intercolonial.

The half year's operations show a net improvement of £29,752. Passenger receipts improved £50,988, the average fair received increasing from 2s 11 1-4d to 3s 5 1-4d. The freight carried increased 440,807 tons, but the increase of low-rated through traffic caused the average receipt per ton per mile on the entire freight traffic to decrease from 0.66 of a cent to 0.58.

KILLED ON A BRIDGE.

John Ion Caught by a G T R Train at Oakville.

Oakville, Ont., Oct. 5.—Mr John Ion (70), farmer, residing near here was struck and instantly killed by the west bound G T R express due here at 8.30 this morning. Mr Ion had been to the station to get his morning paper. He was in the centre of the bridge on returning, when his attention was called to the rapidly approaching train. Mr Ion started to run, but was caught about four feet from the end of the bridge and hurled twenty feet, striking a post. The train stopped and picked up the body, taking it to the station. One leg, one arm and the base of the skull were broken. Coroner Williams decided that an inquest was unnecessary. Mr Ion was an ex-Town Councillor and prominent in Methodist circles of this place.

Canal Completed.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—The opening of the Soulanges canal is to take place on Saturday. Mr Blair will go down for the occasion and there will likely be visitors from Montreal and elsewhere. It is not expected that there will be much traffic through the canal this season, and the old Beauharnois canal will continue to be used for vessels up to the draught of nine feet.

Caught in a Wheel.

St. Thomas, Oct. 5.—On his way to school a son of James Bole, aged about seven years, attempted to climb on a buckboard of a single rig, driven by Mr S Robinson, and in his attempts to get on put one of his legs through the spokes of the wheel. In an instant he was wound around the wheel. The lad's leg is broken in two places and is terribly shatterd. His recovery is doubtful.

Lake of the Woods Milling Co.

Montreal, Oct. 5.—The annual general meeting of shareholders of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company was held in the office of the company here yesterday. A dividend of 8 per cent. on the capital stock of the company was declared for the year ending August 31st, 1899. The company is increasing their capital by one million dollars. The output of the present mills will be largely increased, or new mills will be erected at other points.

A SENSATIONAL, BUT NOT CONFIRMED, DESPATCH

States That Boers Are Now Occupying Laing's Nek and Hold the Mountains Near Volkrust.

WILL ASK PARLIAMENT FOR FORTY MILLIONS.

A Special War Correspondent Says That the Boers Will Begin War This Week and Their Leaders Are Confident of Scoring the First Successes.

London, Oct. 6.—The Daily Telegraph publishes in its second edition this morning a despatch from Newcastle, Natal, dated yesterday, announcing that the Boer advance began yesterday, with a general movement of artillery.

The despatch continues: "The Boers are occupying Laing's Nek and now hold the mountains to the southwest of Volkrust. There are no British troops nearer than Ladysmith, and preparations are being made to abandon Natal from the frontier to Glencoe.

"The inhabitants of Newcastle met to-day and decided not to attempt to defend the town in the event of a Boer advance in force. General Symons is prepared to evacuate within twenty-four hours. The people are crowding the trains for Ladysmith.

MOVING ON THE FRONTIER.

London, Oct. 6.—A special from Newcastle, near the Natal border, says: The Boers have left the Laager at Volksrust and are moving towards the frontier. The situation is most critical. The magistrates and municipal officers have assembled in the town hall to concert measures for the defence of the town against an unexpected attack. All the women and children have been ordered to leave for the interior of Natal.

CONTRADICTORY RUMORS.

London, Oct. 6.—Although to-days news from South Africa is unmistakably grave, the advocates of peace still derive a glimpse of hope from some of the despatches that the stage of negotiation is not yet finally terminated.

The news is contradictory. Side by side with the announcement that the Boers have occupied Langs Nek is printed a despatch from Pretoria stating that the Transvaal Government has issued strict injunctions to the commandants that British territory must not be invaded, and that Commandant General Joubert has issued a proclamation threatening to shoot any man who crosses the border.

A DISAPPOINTMENT.

Scarcely had the advocates of peace exchanged congratulations over the announcement from Pretoria that Mr. J. H. Hofmeyer, the Afrikander leader, and Mr. W. P. Schreiner, the Cape Premier, had undertaken a joint semi-official peace mission and had actually started for Pretoria, where they ought to have arrived last evening, when later messages from the Transvaal capital declared that the Boer Government knew nothing of this alleged mission and that in any event nothing could preserve peace but the withdrawal of the British demands. While it is not necessary to accept all the sensational statements regarding the advance of the Boers, there is not a jot of evidence going to show that the burghers contemplate receding. Up to 3 o'clock this afternoon nothing has arrived to confirm the despatch from Newcastle to the Daily Telegraph announcing that a general advance of Boer forces began yesterday. The War Office and the Colonial Office profess entire ignorance in the matter.

THE PHILAE ARRIVES.

Durban, Natal, Oct. 6.—The British cruiser Philae has arrived in the harbor.

ASK FOR FORTY MILLIONS.

London, Oct. 6.—The Daily Telegraph's special war correspondent, Bennett Burleigh, has sent a despatch from Charlestown, Natal, saying that the Boers intend to begin war this week. Their leaders are very confident of scoring the first successes. The despatch adds that thirty-six trains full of troops left Pretoria on September 30. Mr. Burleigh describes the Transvaal forces, all of whom are mounted, as "a huge guerilla mob of 30,000 men." Their ammunition is defective and they are not properly uniformed. General Joubert, he says, has 15,000 men between St. Anderton and Volksrust, with which he will invade Natal. Certainly serious and bloody actions are impending.

He adds that Pretoria, despite its five well-armed forts, is hopelessly weak. There is no grass yet in the Transvaal, the crop being a month late. The Boers' medical arrangements are practically nil, and their transport service is little better. Discipline as the British understand it is non-existent. The volunteers loot at will.

Men and Guns.

The Daily Mail's correspondent at Lorenzo Marques reports that H.M.S. Philomel has gone to Durban for the purpose of landing men and guns.

It is announced in London that the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, has already sanctioned the provisional expenditure of $15,000,000, and the Government will not exceed that limit, until Parliament sanctions a larger expenditure. The House has been summoned to meet on Tuesday, October 7, and will be asked to vote a sum not exceeding $40,000,000.

It is stated that the War Office has decided that the army corps for service in South Africa shall be much larger than originally estimated, and that it now consists of over 40,000 men. The preparations for the despatch of this force, including the chartering of big ocean liners, is steadily and satisfactorily proceeding.

No Demand Made.

The British Foreign Office at five o'clock this afternoon stated that absolutely nothing was known there of any Transvaal demand for the withdrawal of the British troops from the frontier.

Will Be Banished.

A special despatch from Johannesburg says that British subjects are being urged to leave, and it is believed that all who do not will be marched under escort along the railway until a train is reached to carry them off. Orders have been issued from Pretoria closing all the saloons in the gold fields. The theatres in Johannesburg have also been closed.

Liberals in Support.

The Liberal members of the House of Commons met to-day and resolved to support the Government's Transvaal policy on the reassembling of Parliament, even at the expense of placing the present official leaders of the Liberal party in conflict with their former colleagues, Sir William Vernon Harcourt and Mr. John Morley.

Reply To Devonshire.

A despatch has been received from Pretoria in reply to the Duke of Devonshire's speech at Manchester last Saturday. The despatch says that while the Government are gratified to learn that powerful influences are at work to secure a peaceful settlement, yet, in view of the fact that Great Britain has seen fit to reject the Transvaal's franchise proposals and also to abandon the proposed joint commission, the Republic does not feel at liberty to reformulate the rejected proposals. If the desire for peace be earnest and sincere, an excellent opening is afforded by the Transvaal's acceptance of the joint commission, a proposition emanating from the British Government, which, if carried out, would undoubtedly bring a satisfactory and honorable settlement.

Sir George White.

Advices from Cape Town announce that General Sir George Stewart White, V.C., who will command the British forces in Natal, proceeded to Durban yesterday by train. Further despatches received late yesterday afternoon indicate a widespread impression there that unless the Boers begin hostilities by Thursday they will not fight, but will yield to the Imperial demands when formulated.

MORE VESSELS SUBSIDIZED.

Boston, Oct. 4.—The steamers Catadonia, Pavonia, Corinthian, and Cephadonia, of the Cunard Line and Armenian, of the Leyland Line, considering five of the very best steamers plying between Boston and the English ports, have been taken by the British Admiralty for use as transports to the Transvaal.

C. P. R. MACHINISNS ON STRIKE

Two Hundred Men Demand an Increase in Wages.

Winnipeg, Oct. 5.—The machinists employed in the C P R shops from Fort William to Vancouver, including Winnipeg, struck yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. About 200 men are out. The strike is the result of a movement by which the machanists wish to have their order—the International Association of Machinists of America—recognized by the railway company. Delegates met here for several days and could come to no agreement with the company, and the strike was ordered to-day.

W McLean, of Vancouver, vice-president of the union, stated the case for the men as: "What we want may be summed up under three heads: (1) Recognition of our union, (2) establishment of a minimum wage clause, (3) increase of the allowance made for overtime.

"Union representatives came to Winnipeg from points all the way from Fort William to Vancouver, and on arriving here the manager of the company refused to see them, thus failing to recognize the union. We are also taking advantage of the busy season of the year to press our demands, as we feel that they are perfectly just, and that the company has had ample time to consider them and produce any information as to the rates paid on other roads. The minimum wage asked for is: From Brandon to Fort William, 25 cents per hour; from Laggan to Brandon, 27 1-2 cents per hour, and Vancouver to Laggan, 30 cents. I might say that this schedule is very reasonable and considerably lower than the rates of wages on either the Northern Pacific or the Great Northern Railway.

It is reported here that the engineers and apprentices, all, in fact, below the first and second engineers on the Empress of India, now at Vancouver, will join the strikers, and that the Empress will not be able to sail on Monday next.

The principal machine shops belonging to the railway company in Ontario are at Toronto Junction, Smith's Falls, and Havelock. General Superintendent Leonard, who has control of the middle district of the road, said yesterday afternoon that any strike on the lines west of Fort William would have no effect on the road in his district.

At the shops at the Junction between 50 and 60 machinists are employed, not including about 30 apprentices. The majority of them do no belong to a union, but several of them express themselves as being anxious to go out if a general strike occurs. The unorganized state of the mechanics, however, makes a strike at present improbable.

Attack on Paranaque.

Manila, Oct. 5.—An attack upon Paranaque was made by the insurgents last night and the rebel sympathizers in the town set fire to a number of buildings. Colonel Daget repulsed the attack and declined offers of assistance from Bacoor. The extent of the damage done by the incendiary fires has not yet been learned.

Dunning Lost $50,000

Honolulu, Sept. 27, via Victoria B. C., Oct. 5.—R B Dunning, who left here August 30 on the steamship Australia, lost a valise containing nearly $50,000 in bank notes, bonds and sugar stock, in the Occidental Hotel just after he arrived in San Francisco. The valise was shipped by mistake on the Nippin Maru as part of the personal effects of Purser Piver. The latter discovered the mistake before arriving here and left the valise on the Pacific mail wharf. He evidently had no idea of the value of the contents of the valise, as he made no report to the steamship's company's agents, and the valise containing a small fortune lay compartively unprotected among other uncalled for packages until advice received yesterday by the Belgian King resulted in a search being made. The lost valise was found intact.

QUEEN VS ARMOUR.

The Award to Chief Justice Armour Stand Appeal Dismissed.

In the Supreme Court at Ottawa Tuesday in the case of Queen v. Armour, appeal was dismissed, Justice Gwynn and Girouard dissenting. There may be added to the judgment, if the Crown so desires, the decision respecting the subway referred to in the case. In this case Chief Justice Armour claimed compensation for property expropriated for the Trent Valley Canal. The Crown tendered $6,860, which was refused, and the Exchequer Court awarded him $3,908 as to the value of the land, $10,250 damages for property injuriously affected, making in all $14,158 with interest from date of expropriation, and the Crown claims that the damages were assessed upon a wrong principle.

THE ELECTION TRIAL

Thomas Lewis Denies Sworn Testimony of Bossard and Shantz.

HE GAVE NO INSTRUCTIONS.

He Utters a Sweeping Denial of Stories of Both Witnesses.

Hon. E. J. Davis on the Stand But His Evidence of Small Importance—Evidence on General Charges of Agency is Now About Concluded.

Berlin, Ont., Oct. 5.—Thomas Lewis, of London, is the man whom Allan R. Shantz stated yesterday instructed him in the art of spoiling and switching ballots, and whom Bossard claimed gave money to bribe voters, and was present in his hotel when four voters were given money. He gave evidence at the North Waterloo trial this morning. He said: "I came into this riding to work for the Liberals at the request of Mr. Reid, of London. I paid my own expenses because I can afford it and take an interest in politics. My expenses were about fifty dollars for hotel and drinks. I spent no money to try and elect Breithaupt. I am in the hotel business and always spend money freely in other hotels when away. I came to do registration work, but was not put at it. I was in the riding from the 9th of May until the 17th of May, when I went to Toronto. Some of the time was spent in Waterloo. I was in Simon Snyder's store there to get the name of the chairman at New Germany. This was the only occasion of my being there. It was midday.

"If Mr. Hughes says it was evening he is mistaken. Snyder is stating falsely if he says I told him I was organizing for Breithaupt. I never told any one such a thing. I was never at Polemski's house with Albert Bossard. I never drove to Preston with Polemski or any one who spoke Polish.

"I know John Brant. I met him at Oshawa in the South Ontario election. I worked openly there, and was charged with crimes against the Election Act. I don't know Allan R. Shantz I never saw him till this trial began. I received the letter from him, put in yesterday. I saw a declaration made by Shantz; it was shown to me by Mr. Macdonald in his office at Toronto, about the 6th or 7th of September. I gave the letter to Macdonald. I know nothing about the matters contained in it. Shantz did not know me and had no business to write me on any subject. I was present at Bossard's when he gave some parties some money. I don't know how much or what for. They were speaking in German, and I didn't understand a word.

"It is absolutely false what Bossard says about my giving him money to bribe voters or for any purpose whatever. Vance and I were at Bossard's on May 24th for a few minutes, but it is also false that he accounted to us for money spent, and that he gave him fifty dollars for his own work. Shantz's story that I met him at the Walper House and instructed him how to switch or spoil ballots is false. I had nothing to do with any such scheme if it ever did exist. I deny ever paying him any money for services in the election or for any other purpose.

"I deny that I told him or Shantz that they would not get into any trouble in case of a recount, as the ballots would come out the same as the count. I never spoke to Shantz at any time and don't know him."

Allan Huber said that Bossard spoke to him in front of the Walper House and said the Liberals had treated him badly. He had got a license for only three months instead of a year; that they had ruined his business and he would fix Breithaupt and connect him with the wrong-doing in the election. He never mentioned Lewis' name. He made no answer to what he said and left him."

S. A. Grant, recalled: "I sent Lewis for Bossard on Sept. 8, before the latter gave his evidence, and wanted him to call at the Walper House. We met at Frank Heiman's, where Bossard stated that the money he spent on the election was given him by a stranger whom he did not know. He never said a word then of having got any from Lewis. I knew he was going to give evidence and had heard of his implicating Lewis."

Hon. E. J. Davis, Provincial secretary; "I am not a member of the Ontario Reform Association. I don't know who composes it or carries it on. I was in this riding during the campaign because it was intimated that the Tories might carry the election, and if so it would be a repudiation of the Reform party. I felt it my duty to see friends of the party and discuss our policy so as to interest all our friends and urge them to work for and return a Liberal. I know Alex. Smith and James Vance were here, but had nothing to do with sending them. I knew nothing about Lewis. I asked Mr. McDougall, the returning officer, if he had appointed Cummings a deputy returning officer on his first list. He answered 'Yes,' but had struck his name off because he heard he had taken some ballots from the printers to the committee rooms instead of to the court house. He afterwards found this information wrong and reinstated Cummings. I know J. W. Thompson, who was engaged in the Education Department. I know Bossard, and was passing his hotel one day when Mr. Smith or McCallum introduced us. This was outside. He never said a word about his license to me, and I know nothing about any trouble about it. I spoke to him just as I would when introduced to any stranger. I was never at his place with Mr. Hardy and don't know of Mr. Hardy ever being near his place."

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

Municipal ownership of public franchises is receiving a good deal of attention all over Ontario these days. The Ottawa Electric Light Company has offered to sell out its business to the city for $1,341,740, being the total of its capital stock at par and its bonded and other indebtedness. Its profits last year paid the interest on the debt, and 6 per cent. on the stock. Ottawa thus gets a chance to make an experiment in municipal ownership under very favorable circumstances.

In Woodstock a special committee is at work studying out the question while the Express of that town comes out flatly in favor of municipal ownership. The comparatively small town of Orillia, is expending $75,000 in a very comprehensive system for supplying electricity for lighting and power purposes, from which the town expects to derive a large revenue and at the same time, reduce the cost for street lighting and to its consuming citizens by fifty per cent. from what they have hitherto been paying. Nine years ago the town of Picton established an electric lighting system of its own, and so satisfactory have been the results that a few weeks ago the ratepayers passed a by-law to expend an additional sum of $15,000 in adding to and improving the old plant, which had cost $12,000. The population of Picton is about 2,500 and the revenue from private consumers is estimated at $5,000 per annum, which will be sufficent to pay off the existing debt on account of the old plant, and the cost of the projected movements is less than fifteen years, besides giving the town lights for its streets during that time, for which only $1,200 a year is allowed

THE C. P. R. AND COBOURG.

Our esteemed contemporary the Campbellford Herald, has the following:

> The item which we published in these columns, two weeks ago, with reference to the C.P.R. building a branch line to Campbellford and Cobourg, has been copied by a score of newspapers, not one of which has ventured to doubt the possibility of the project.

The Times copied the article without comment letting it go for what it is worth. Now, when we come to think the matter over, however, there is about as much probability of the C.P.R. diverting its line to Toronto via Campbellford and Cobourg as there is of constructing a road to the moon.

One reason alone should be sufficient; such a line would mean duplicating the expense of operating, as regards number of section men, station agents, switchmen, etc. When the time comes to double track the C.P.R. between Ottawa and Toronto, the second set of rails will be laid longside of the first.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Good morning.

∗ ∗ ∗

The latest news from Kitchener indicates that before many weeks Great Britain will be carrying the war into both ends of Africa.

MEN OF MARK.

President McKinley finds little leisure for light reading, but is a careful student of the newspapers.

Joseph Leiter has by no means decided to drop the stock market. He is a constant visitor to Wall street.

J. Pierpont Morgan is an expert pool player and an evening rarely passes when he does not enjoy an after dinner game.

Joel Chandler Harris, Georgia's famous author, breeder and poet, is to have an exhibit of Jersey cattle at the Paris exposition.

Senator Clark has just bought in Paris, for his Washington house, an old stained glass window, once the property of the Countess de Jause, for $30,000.

Sims Reeves says he lost $400,000 during his career as a public singer because he was too conscientious to appear on the stage unless sure he could do his best.

Ex-Representative Ben. T. Cable is to furnish much of the money for the building of a chapter house for the Zeta Psi fraternity at the University of Michigan.

John Stuart, superintendent of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, was formerly a telegraph operator at Hokendauqua, Pa. He is now receiving $15,000 a year.

The Russian Prince Cantacuzene, whose betrothal to Miss Julia Grant has just been announced, has retired to his Russian estates to make preparations for the reception of his bride.

Before Rear Admiral Kautz left for Samoa a young woman asked him whether he had ever "felt afraid in battle." "Once," he answered. "A stray ball knocked my cigar out of my mouth and there wasn't another aboard."

The late ex-Governor Flower was once asked by a less successful financier how to succeed in Wall street. "By working harder than at any other trade or profession on earth," was the answer. "But won't that wear you out?" "Not before your time."

Mayor Moir of Scranton was years ago a journeyman tailor in Philadelphia. John Ross of the former city needed a workman, and Mr. Moir, being recommended, was offered inducements to go to Scranton. In February last Mr. Moir was elected chief executive of the city.

Henry G. Kittredge, editor of the Textile World, Boston, has been appointed assistant director of textiles for the commissioner general of the United States to the Paris exposition of 1900. Mr. Kittredge has long been identified with the textile industries of the United States.

Russell Sage is no friend of the camera, and very rarely is it that a photographer is quick enough to get a snap shot of the millionaire. As for sitting for a picture, that has probably occurred less frequently during the millionaire's long life than that of any other equally prominent man in the country.

TOWN TOPICS.

The curfew bell was rung last night at 8:30 o'clock. Nothing sensational resulted. It just rang; that was all.—Freeport Bulletin.

Abilene is getting to be a front porch town. Nearly every resident improvement includes a porch.—Abilene (Kan.) Reflector.

The companies are selling their gas so cheaply in New York that several of the metropolitan newspapers are filled with it every day.—Detroit Journal.

Buffalo is to have a new union station to cost $6,000,000, with a waiting room 80 by 225 feet, that will be the largest in the world. How about this, Boston?—Gardiner Reporter-Journal.

Buffalo is in a flutter over an extremely wicked Midway that it expects to have at the Pan-American exposition, and can't think of a suitable name for it. Why not call it Hamburg Paradise?—Rochester Democrat.

All because of a blessed war to the knife squabble between rival companies New York is now enjoying 65 cent gas. Father Knickerbocker will be a weak old gentleman if he lets them restore the higher rate.

MOTIVES AND METHODS.

A Missouri girl killed herself because her sweetheart had gone to the war.

Robert F. Hayes, a Boston clerk, hanged himself with his necktie as the noose.

Because his mother would not let him go in swimming an Arkansas boy cut his throat.

Forked branches of an apple tree were used as a noose by a Stroudsburg (Pa.) suicide.

Champagne with arsenic in it was used by a San Francisco man as a means of self destruction.

Her husband was led to move, and she did not. That led a Connecticut woman to drink poison.

Fearing that his wife would scold him for getting home late a newly made London bridegroom committed suicide.

"Ah, to see the moon at a distance of one meter," was the note left by a Paris suicide explaining his motive for death.

THE CYNIC.

After a man has told you his troubles you know more about his kin.

You will find a loafer leech attached to every industrious man or woman.

An honest man is one who admits that his baldness is due to old age and not to sickness.

Every bridegroom finds an excuse to return from his wedding journey sooner than originally planned.

Every circus man lays all his plans on the assumption that the people are chumps. Every circus man gets rich.

After the people have worked themselves to death to raise a preacher's salary, he decides that he can do better elsewhere and resigns.

It would be interesting to know how much longer the week should be, in order that the men may find their Sunday underwear ready without fussing.—Atchison Globe.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Work of laying the cable from Vancouver to Fanning island and thence to Australia and New Zealand will begin this summer, it is announced.

The new Nernst electric light dispenses with the usual vacuum bulb and replaces the hairlike filament with a short bar of refractory material, thereby greatly increasing the light and cheapening the cost.

Experiments have been made lately by French government officials with a new telephone, which enables persons to converse without putting their mouth and ear to the apparatus, the words being distinctly audible in any part of the room.

HIS HAIR TURNED WHITE.

Peculiar Experience of the Man Who Dealt in High Explosives.

"Nitroglycerin, sir; high explosives accomplished it," said a well dressed man with a youthful face and snow white hair to a chance acquaintance at the Great Northern.

"But your face is not scarred? It would seem that an explosion"—

"An impending explosion it was. Two years ago I was the most successful well shooter in America. I could make the oil loosen up where others had failed. The secret lay in the explosives I employed. I made them myself and had the business down fine. At that time I went to New York to figure on a big blasting contract that would have made me a pile. I failed to make the arrangement, and the very day the negotiations fell through I started suddenly for England on a similar mission.

"'Is there such a thing as high explosives ripening?' asked the Englishman I was accompanying on the second day of our voyage.

"The question brought me to my feet and caused an exclamation of horror to escape from my lips. Many explosives undergo a ripening process, which adds greatly to their destructive power, at the same time decidedly increasing the danger of handling them. That made by me was of this character. Indeed 25 days after it was compounded it was almost certain to explode of its own volition, so to speak. On the upper shelf of the checkroom of my New York hotel I had left a large grip containing a 20 pound can of this compound, the ripening of which meant destruction and death.

"For an hour I was almost in a state of frenzy, freely denouncing myself as a multimurderer. In vain I drew an awful picture of the devastation that would overwhelm a certain New York hotel in exactly 17 days and called upon the captain to put his ship about. He promised to transfer me to a west bound steamer if an opportunity presented itself, but fortune failed me, and I was obliged to cross the ocean. On the morning of the twenty-fifth day of the life of my ripening high explosive I sprang from a carriage and rushed into the hotel.

"No reprieved murderer ever experienced greater joy than I did as I saw the last of the terrible fluid disappear in a catch basin. Ten minutes later I started back from the mirror of the hotel bar, where I had gone for a 'bracer,' in absolute dismay. My jet black hair had turned white as snow."

VETERANS UNDER FIRE.

The Reason They Don't Stoop When the Bullets Are Flying.

"The temptation to stoop when under fire is almost irresistible," said a veteran, "and that accounts for so many of the wounds received by raw troops. You see, when a man happens to be hit in a stooping posture the chances are that the bullet plows right through his body from end to end. On the other hand, if he is standing erect, the probabilities are in favor of the wound being slight, anyhow not mortal. Old soldiers are well aware of this, and while they will drop flat and hunt cover every chance they get they never stoop.

"After a soldier has been in a few engagements he learns such tricks, and, as far as the rest of it is concerned, he becomes simply a fatalist. There is nothing strange about it, for almost all his experience appears to lend color to that doctrine. For instance, he never dodges, because he has seen men dodge and get killed when it really seemed as if they had reached for the bullet. In fact, the strangest things are continually happening, all apparently the pure whim of chance.

"I remember near Petersburg a comrade of mine, as brave a fellow as ever lived, took refuge behind a little hut. He was worn out under fire and wanted to get a moment's breathing space. Twenty feet in the rear and a little to one side was a pile of crossties full of wrought iron nails. A bullet came along, splintered a tie and drove out one of the nails at right angles. The jagged iron struck my chum in the side, penetrated his kidneys and killed him.

"That's the blind chance of war, and after getting a few such object lessons a fellow is apt to acquire a sort of sang froid that is immensely impressive to a recruit. It isn't because he has a contempt for danger; he has merely learned the folly of trying to evade it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

They Keep Moving.

The religion of a Bedouin tribe seems to be to "move onward." Having once began the nomadic life, it becomes almost necessary for them to keep it up. In the first place, they don't want to settle down, and they wouldn't have any place to stop if they wanted to. Sometimes it becomes expedient that they make great haste in these long journeys. Wandering around over the plains are other tribes whose only occupation is "moving on." There is frequently enmity between two of these Arabian families, and should one pursue the other it behooves the pursued to hasten onward with all the speed their animals are capable of. Or it may be that the springs of water are so widely separated that hard travel is necessary to make the distance from one to the other in a day.

When either of these contingencies arises, they cook and eat while on the march. They don't eat much. Two or three dinners such as American boys and girls are used to every day and something extra for Sundays and company are supposed not to agree with Bedouin children's stomachs. When on the road, bread is their chief food. This is baked while riding. One woman will mix the coarse flour which is carried in a sack on the back of her camel, another will roll and shape the dough, which is brought to her in small quantities, and a third will make a fire in an earthen vessel and attend to the baking. Women or boys on foot run along from one cook to the other and carry the material, and when the feast is ready they distribute it among the various members of the tribe.

Minutes and Seconds.

At least 25 centuries B. C. the Babylonians used a sexagesimal system of notation, consisting of sari and sossi, of which we have vestiges when we reckon 60 minutes to the hour and 60 seconds to the minute, or 3,600 seconds—that is, a saros of sossi—to the hour. That we count 12 inches to the foot, 24 hours to the day, 360 degrees of longitude around the equator, 90 degrees of latitude from the equator to the poles and 60 miles to a degree may also be traced to the same duodecimal Babylonian system of numeration, which originally reckoned 60 shekels to the mina and 60 minas to the talent. All these numbers are factors or multiples of the dozen, or 60. Our measures of time, money, of linear and angular space, are all derived from the Greeks, who obtained them from the Babylonians, probably through the Phoenicians.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

Graphophones are sold for $10 and up

A SERIOUS INDICTMENT

U. S. Army in Philippines Composed of Drunkards and Rakes.

MISSIONARIES ARE USELESS

Hundreds of Saloons of Western States Variety Flourish.

Army Secretary Peyton, of Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Declares That Religious Progress is Altogether Out of the Question While American Soldiers Are There.

New York, Oct. 4.—Army Secretary Peyton, of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, who has just returned from a stay of six months in the Phillippines, declares that the United States has 45 000 "drunkards, rakes and gamblers" in and around Manila, and that religious progress is quite out of the question while American soldiers are there. He says the Roman Catholic priests have made up with Tagalos, and are losing no time and sparing no money to tell the Filipinos that the Americans now in Manila, who have made that city what Mr Peyton calls a "Hell hole" are fair specimens of Protestant civilization.

Mr Peyton went to the Phillipines under commission from Bishop Doane, of Albany, chairman of the Board of Domestic and Foreign Missions of the Protestant Episcopal Church, charging him to examine conditions and return in time to report at the Missionary Council, which will meet this month in St. Louis In the course of an interview he said: "Without any qualifying exceptions, the Tagalos are the most moral and most religious people I ever saw, but they are mere children in ability to govern themselves. It would never do, in my judgment, for the United States to abandon them.

Work is Useless.

"At the present time there is no chance for Protestant effort. It is practically useless to undertake to do anything there until the United States troops depart or reform. The United States troops has in and around Manila at this moment, or had when I left a few weeks ago, 45,000 drunkards, rakes and gamblers. "When the American troops landed in Manila there was only a saloon or two in the whole place. To-day Manila is a hell hole. There are 430 or more saloons, typical places of the Western frontier, or worse, and the saloons are more respectable than are many of the other places within the city which Americans have either planted or keep alive by their support.

"When the insurrection was at its height many Spanish priests were driven out and left the island. With the coming of the Americans a common danger has brought Tagalos and Spaniards together and old sores have been healed. To-day not only Luzon, but the islands to the west and south are covered with friars who are active as they never were before. Everywhere they are preaching to the people this: "Behold these men. They are a sample of Americans. America is an infidel, or, what is the same thing, a Protestant nation. See the danger of fighting the mother church. An infidel nation has sent the flower of its men here, and behold them. Your lots may be hard. You may have had grievances in the past. We may have sinned, but your state is certainly better than that of Americans. You are moral. You are religious." It is useless for Protestants to try to convert Tagalos and other Filipinos. Let the army do its work and get away. Then, and not until then, will Methodists, Presbyterians and Episcopalians stand any chance.

Didn't View Seriously the Protest.

Ottawa, Oct. 4. The Ministerial Association has entered a mild protest against a member of the Government going to Quebec to attend a welcome on behalf of the Ministry to Mgr. Falconio, the Papal delegate. Mr Scott, when his attention was called to the matter, laughed, and said surely no one would deny to him the right to go to Quebec and welcome the delegate on behalf of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and himself. He had not assumed to represent the Government at Quebec.

WOMEN OF NOTE.

Mrs. James M. Barrie, wife of the author of "The Little Minister," is said to be a very pretty woman.

Mme. Navarro's (Mary Anderson's) sister is Mother Dominica, a nun in the Convent of the Assumption in London.

Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer disposes of some $75,000 each year on her whims and never asks the price of an article that strikes her fancy, but orders it sent home.

Erie, Kan., has two newspapers edited by women. Mrs. Belle Harbaugh edits The Republican-Record and Miss Elizabeth Frazier has charge of the Erie Sentinel.

Helen Gould's income is the largest of any unmarried woman in the country. She does not spend much on herself. On churches and charities she spends $100,000 a year.

Mme. Loubet greatly resembles her friend, Mme. Carnot, in her charitable tendencies. She disposes of large sums among the poor, and is a regular visitor at the hospitals.

Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, formerly Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, is said to be the most extravagant woman in society. She spends quite $100,000 each year on trifles and knickknacks.

Mrs. S. V. Harkness of New York city, formerly of Cleveland, has offered to build a chapel at the College For Women of the Western Reserve university in Cleveland. She had previously founded a biblical professorship in that college.

The young Duchess of Marlborough and several other ladies of much wealth and rank are going in for falconry. It is an expensive form of sport, an ordinary hawk costing as much as $500 and requiring quite an outlay for maintenance and training.

Mrs. William Rockefeller's hobby is for carnations, one of the greenhouses at her country place at Scarborough-on-the-Hudson being devoted exclusively to their culture. She is said to spend thousands of dollars every year for the plants she imports for her own pleasure.

At a public dress rehearsal of a new play in Paris Mme. Casimir-Perier, wife of the former president of the French republic, was requested to remove her hat, but declined to do so. When she learned that the rule would be enforced in her case as in all others, she left the theater in disgust.

Lady Randolph Churchill is thus described by T. P. O'Connor in his weekly: She is still a very pretty woman. Her raven black hair does not show a single thread of gray; her figure is slight and svelte, and the deep, dark blue eyes have all their vivacity undimmed by their years of tears. She is certainly one of the most widely accomplished women of her time.

EUGENE FIELD AND TABOR.

How the Humorist Made Life a Burden For the Millionaire.

"Up to middle age the late Senator Tabor's life was one of great hardship," said a former resident of the Silver State, "and when he suddenly became fabulously rich he plunged into luxuries like a starving man wading into a banquet. One of his early freaks was the purchase of several magnificent lace nightrobes which cost $100 apiece and which he kept locked up in a safe during the day. Eugene Field was editor of the Denver Tribune at the time, and those lace nightrobes made him simply hysterical. He wrote column upon column about them, describing the garments in detail, with numerous diagrams depicting sections fore and aft. The diagrams were hideous affairs, which Field carved out himself with a penknife on the back of old wood type. He used to describe how Tabor would forget the combination of the safe and sit up, shivering and naked, half the night trying to remember the right figures.

"Altogether he kept Denver in a roar for weeks and made Tabor so wild that one day he rushed into his office, snatched the unfortunate nightrobes out of their compartment and tore them to threads. 'There, now!' he exclaimed, wiping his forehead and kicking the tattered fragments into a corner, 'I hope that fool will be satisfied. I'll be hanged if I ain't going to get a gunny sack,' he continued, 'cut some holes in the end for my head and arms, and then sleep in it for the rest of my life!'

"When Tabor was appointed to the senate to fill an unexpired term of exactly 20 days, Field broke loose again and had all kinds of fun with the old man. He declared that Tabor opposed the tariff bill on the ground that it encouraged lawlessness in the west. 'I don't know this tariff bill,' he reported the senator as saying in a speech, 'but we have entirely too many of 'em out where I live. There's Wild Bill and Pecos Bill and Billy the Kid—all no good. If you let Tariff Bill have everything to do with the custom house he is liable to steal the Atlantic ocean.' Many of the honest frontier folk took these flights of fancy seriously, and drove Tabor nearly distracted by long letters of remonstrance, urging him to read up and get posted, so as not to disgrace the state.

"At the expiration of the senator's brief term he circulated an autograph album among his fellow members, and the incident tickled Field immensely. He gave what purported to be a copy of the 'sentiments' inscribed in the volume by the different statesmen—such things as 'When this you see, remember me, Roscoe Conkling,' and 'Sure as the moss grows 'round a stump you are my darling sugar lump—I mean chump—George F. Hoar,' and similar nonsense, all of which maddened his victim.

"I think 'Gene Field was the only man Tabor never forgave, for in spite of his gaunt, forbidding exterior, the miner magnate was as tender hearted as a girl. He was really full of sterling qualities, and in his proper sphere he would have been anything but grotesque. One thing is sure—if every fellow he helped in secret would have joined his funeral procession he would have gone to his grave like an emperor of old."

Deceived by a Thread.

As we came in on a Big Four train from Delaware we noticed a well barbered and highly scented "young man of the period" complacently admiring a fine pair of patent leather shoes which were elevated on the seat in front of him. Finally he espied a thread on one of his shoes, and, seizing it, he gently drew it to him. It seemed to be quite long, so he wound around it his kid gloved hand. After getting quite a knot of it he found it was fast to his side, and, glancing along his leg, he discovered that he had unraveled one seam of his trousers leg, which hung in a loose flap. The last we saw of him he had borrowed two pins from the conductor and was retreating sidewise toward the smoking car with horror and disgust plainly depicted on his countenance.—

FIRE IN VANCOUVER.

Fireman Burned to Death in the Presence of His Comrades.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 3.—On Saturday a blaze wiped out the central block of hotels in Cascade City. It was 12 30 in the morning when the fire broke out, in the busiest block of the best built portion of the town. In rapid succession the Club Hotel, Britannic Hotel, Grand Central, and Railroad Headquarters Hotel succumbed to the flames, and those were followed by Francis and Mila's and the Montana Hotel. Eric Arvall was burned to death while trying to save the Montana Hotel. His cries for help was piteous indeed, but the intense heat warded off all assistance. The loss is estimated at $45,000.

Slump in Bicycles.

London, Oct. 4.—The inflated price of bicycles has been for long a cause for grumbling. Last year saw a slight fall in the price of machines, but it was evident to anyone who closely observed the cycle boom of 1897 that there must come a violent reaction sooner or later, and that reaction has come with a vengance, for it is stated that a still further reduction will be announced very shortly. Two well-known houses, the Humber Company, Limited, and the Raleigh Cycle Company, Limited, are said to be about to join issue, and as a result we may expect the announcement of a $42 bicycle. To whatever cause is due the slump in the price of bicycles, it will be welcomed by those who have the best interests of British commerce at heart, for it is an undoubted fact that the cheaper cycle of the American and the German was fast driving the British bicycle maker out of all foreign markets.

Card-Playing Increasing.

London, Oct. 4.—The official publication of figures concerning the stamp duty on playing cards is interesting, as showing, firstly, that the demand for the English-made article is steadily increasing, to the detriment of the import trade; and, secondly, that card games generally are becoming more popular every year.

Revenue returns for the last financial year show that a stamp duty of threepence was paid on 1,952,456 packs made in the United Kingdom yielding a revenue of £28,785 14s, as against £5,346 on those from abroad. The figures are interesting and instructive, as proof that the English-made card is outpacing in popularity its foreign competitors, simply because we have produced a far better article at the money than our competitors.

Relief Expedition Sent Out.

Ottawa, Oct. 4.—The Department has been notified that relief party of Mounted Police has been sent over the Mackenzie River trail. The men are provisioned for a six weeks' journey.

Dewey's Uncle Dead.

Wichita, Kan., Oct. 4.—H H Dewey, of Sheffield, Ill., uncle of Admiral Dewey, and father of Mr H H Dewey, of this city, died yesterday at Sheffield. His son thinks excitement over the Admiral's honors hastened his death.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

Coconnut oil thickens and darkens the eyebrows.

A raw egg swallowed will detach a fishbone in the throat.

A good cure for corns is to rub them night and morning with a piece of ordinary sandpaper. If this method is persevered in, great relief is at once obtained, and the corns will gradually disappear.

"A good stout toothbrush, plenty of water and some antiseptic dentifrice applied morning and night," says one who has given much thought in the interests of antiseptic purity, "will afford a greater safeguard against many diseases than most people are aware."

THE NEW SPAIN.

About the worst that can be said of Spain now is that it is the Washington Baseball club of nations.—Chicago News.

Nothing seems to be said about what Spain is going to do at the Paris exposition. It might at least make a display of mananas.—Council Bluffs Nonpareil.

Now that we are friends with Spain once more, she may give us the contract of building her new navy. She has reason to know that we build a fairly good article of warship.—St. Louis Republic.

Light and Airy.

The Abyssinian soldier's ordinary dress is not very attractive. It consists, it is said, of a white linen shirt down to his knees and a pair of light linen trousers to half way down his calf. Over this he wears a belt of folded linen, and, as a rule, a "shamma," or white cotton sheet, draped round him. Cloaks of blue, red, green, yellow or violet, ornamented with rough embroidery, leopard skins, sheepskins and even lion skins are worn on special occasions by the officers and small chiefs, and the army then presents a noble show.

Any man who has killed a lion or an elephant or has distinguished himself much in battle wears an aureole, or lion's mane, on his head. For each five men he has killed he wears a silver band on his sword scabbard. The highest recompense for valor is a sort of velvet top hat ornamented with silver, and great officers are given shields covered with velvet and ornamented with gold and silver.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

One Exception.

"Do you love me so much," she demanded, "that you would be willing to give up your all for me?"

"Yes," he replied, "I would willingly give up all for you; but, of course, that doesn't include what I expect from your father."—Kalamazoo Telegraph.

Looking Ahead.

"It is only a matter of time," said Golfer, "when the expansion policy will carry us into Canada."

"What makes you think that?"

"Oh, we will need the land on the other side of the border for golf links!"—Philadelphia North American.

PLEASED WITH AWARD

Influential Journals Consider the Decision Most Satisfactory.

MORE THAN WAS ASKED.

And a Sinful and Immature Quarrel Avoided by Arbitration.

The Award and the Rapidity With Which it Was Rendered Cannot Fail to Give a Strong Impetus to International Arbitration—A Slap at the Yankees.

London, Oct. 4.—The award of the Anglo-Venezuelan boundary arbitration commission is referred to by the afternoon papers as eminently satisfactory from the English point of view.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "Without doubt Great Britain has done uncommonly well. If it were not already sufficiently obvious, it is now made clear that the arbitration has shown the disposition of one Government to be pleasant and patient rather than risk a sinful and unnatural quarrel. This must have its impression in America, and thus must have sown good seed, which has already grown into a flourishing plant."

The St. James Gazette says: "Arbitration has resulted in giving British Guiana an indisputable title to the north-western district, where her future lies. Everyone will gladly join in the universal congratulations to the tribunal upon the happy results of difficult and delicate labors."

Result Satisfactory.

The Westminster Gazette says: "The result is decidedly satisfactory. Great Britain gets more than on various occasions she had expressed herself as willing to concede to Venezuela. The practical future of the case is that we have substantially succeeded against Venezuela, while vastly improving our relations with the United States. The award and the rapidity with which it was rendered cannot fail to give a strong impetus to international arbitration."

The Globe says: "For once arbitration has not operated to our disadvantage. There are others besides the Venezuelans who should now recognize that Great Britain will not suffer what she considers her rights to be subjected to the terrorism or warlike menace, whether in one part of the world or in another, whether by a great power or a small state."

Britain's Claims Substantiated.

Paris, Oct. 4.—One of the counsel for Great Britain made the following statement yesterday regarding the Venezuelan award:

"The award practically endorses the judgment of Sir Robert Schomberg, whose line it follows except in a few particulars. Great Britain acquires the whole of the River Cayuni, including a site which Venezuela alleged to be a fort at the junction of the Curumu and the Cuyuni. The marshy Barima district has been awarded to Venezuela, possibly on the principle of national security, but with the condition that the Orinoco shall be a free waterway to all nations. The piece of land covers about thirty square miles. It had been offered with much more land by every British Foreign Minister since the time of Lord Aberdeen. Great Britain has substantiated almost all her extreme claims. All the valuable plantations and gold fields are now indisputably settled within British territory.

WHAT THE TIMES SAYS.

London, Oct. 4.—The Times, referring to the award of the Anglo-Venezuelan tribunal of arbitration, says: "The award on the whole favors England, since it practically declares the Schombergh line to be the true frontier. England has repeatedly offered to surrender the Barima point with a much larger slice of territory than is now awarded if Venezuela would abandon the more preposterous portion of her general claim. The monstrous nature of that claim is best shown by the text of the award. It included 60,000 miles of territory, while the award gives her about 200 square miles of unsurveyed country and swamp, or very much less than any of the British Ministers whose proposals for compromise she rejected, were prepared to offer her out of friendly regard."

Snap Shots With a Graphophone

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photograph camera is to the eye and more, for the gramaphone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a gramaphone is to make records of your friends' voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one, just as she sang it and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. A CLEVER RUSE.

The Auctioneer Was Quick Witted and Finally Made a Sale.

An auctioneer on East Washington street—one of those redoubtable individuals commonly termed "slick"—was the cause of a farcical scene recently that would have done credit to a burlesque show. He had been talking industriously for a long time to a crowd of interested but enthusiastic listeners.

The affable auctioneer conscientiously went through his repertory from beginning to end, but somehow the crowd did not "warm up to him—to quote his own language. Finally, with a dark look that bordered on despair, he grabbed up a well known pasteboard hatbox containing about 50 spools of silk thread of different colors. With the grace of a conjurer he extracted five of the spools, and, arraying them in a tempting semicircle on the counter, announced that they were "to go at any price."

But the audience, while admitting with nods of approval that they were good spools of thread, displayed no marked inclination to become excited over them. Not a bid was offered.

"I'll sell 'em for 10 cents," suggested the auctioneer timidly. It was plain from the tone of his voice that he was losing faith in himself and in all the world. There were no takers. The man of the red flag added three more spools to the semicircle. "All for 10 cents," he declared. But thread stock was far below par. The auctioneer caught up all the spools from the counter and flung them into the box with an impressive gesture. The light of inspiration flashed from his eyes.

"The whole blamed box for 10 cents!" he cried.

"I'll take it," was the prompt response, and a little man in a washed out overcoat and wearer of red chin whiskers stepped out from the crowd with a dirty 10 cent piece in his upraised hand. The auctioneer clutched the money feverishly, and, turning the box upside down so that all the spools dropped into a basket on the counter, he handed the worthless piece of ancient pasteboard to the anxious customer. A roar of hilarious laughter rose from the crowd that was heard throughout that neighborhood.

"I don't want your blamed old box!" wailed the unfortunate purchaser.

"You said you'd take it," replied the auctioneer. "I'll leave it to the crowd—didn't he?"

"Yes!" came in a strong chorus from the delighted audience.

"I bought the spools!"

"No, you didn't! You bought the box! I'll leave it to the crowd—didn't he?"

"Yes!" came the answer again, stronger than ever. The red whiskered man stalked indignantly from the place with the box under his arm.

"What you going to do with it?" yelled the crowd.

"That's what!" cried the speculator as he held the pasteboard box in both hands, football fashion, and kicked it vigorously into the middle of Washington street.

VINEGAR, THEN LEAD.

They Settled the Trouble at the Carbonville Postoffice.

"I think my most exciting official experience," said Captain J. E. Stone, formerly United States postal inspector, "was at the town of Carbonville, Colo., in 1879. It was a star route post, and there was much complaint about the nonreceipt of mail, so I went over to investigate.

"The postmaster was a man named Wilson, who kept a general store, and the postoffice consisted of a soap box on the end of his counter. When mail arrived, it was dumped in, and every fellow helped himself, an arrangement that worked well enough until a chap known as Black Hills Pete came to town. Pete disturbed the entire system. When he didn't get a letter himself, he would tear up several others on the principle that misery loves company, and, being a notorious desperado, nobody dared interfere. I got the facts, and as the mail came in that evening I took a seat in the corner and awaited developments, first ordering the box removed.

"A little after dark the miners from camp began to assemble, and presently in came Black Hills Pete. He was a big brute of a fellow, and I saw at once there was going to be trouble. 'Where's that letter box?' he demanded of Wilson. 'I've ordered him not to use it any more,' I said, getting up. 'Who the blank blank are you?' roared Peter. 'I'm the inspector,' I replied. 'Well, you get me that box quick,' he retorted, and, seeing him reach toward his pocket, I made a grab for my gun; but, as bad luck would have it, the confounded thing caught in the holster.

"In a twinkling he had me covered, but before he could turn loose a quavering voice called out: 'Pete! Oh, Pete!' The desperado glared around, and there stood Wilson holding a large tin squirt gun used for drawing liquors. The sight was so ludicrous that the bully burst into a guffaw, and as he did so Wilson let drive the piston and buried about a quart of the strongest kind of vinegar squarely into his face. The stuff blinded him, and before he could recover himself the storekeeper had two bullets in his shoulder.

"That's the true story of the strangest fight that ever occurred in the west. Pete recovered, but before he could be arrested was spirited away by friends to New Mexico. His right name was Luther Coleman, and there is a warrant now standing against him for destroying United States mail matter. After the episode I have narrated there was no further trouble at the Carbonville postoffice."—New Orleans

The Theater in China.

The dresses are magnificent, as bewilderingly curious as any stage manager at home ever conceived. All the talking is in strained falsetto, and there are yelling and posturing and wailing and confusion. Suddenly the band breaks in with an awful crash—such a marvelous band: five drums and ten pairs of cymbals—such a deafening smashing and banging! With hoarse screams dozens of imps, green faced and yellow eyed and horned, rush on the stage and gyrate and flout banners and draw up in lines and swing partners and set to places. An ochre faced, villainous chief demon, a heap of fantasticalness, twirls like a teetotum, and there is more banging and jumping and swinging and mad pandemonium, and the cymbals and the drums rend the air. It is terrific. At it again, with mighty clatter and heavings, spinning, flag waving, contortioning—it is the accumulated uproars of the world all pressed into one Chinese theater.

You sit tight, with fixed gaze, waiting for the drums of your ears to crack, and when the top of your head is about to fly off there is one awful thunderous bang, and the demon king, chorus, orchestra, the whole crowd, fall, flop, and the act is over.—Travel.

PERMISSION NECESSARY.

Laurier Says Expenditure on Transvaal Must be Approved.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier was interviewed this afternoon in regard to the Government's proposition to furnish a contingent of Canadians for service in the Transvaal. The Premier stated that while there was no doubt as to attitude of the Government on all questions that menace British interests, yet in the present instance the Cabinet's limitations were such as to prevent the offer of a military contingent without first having obtained the permission of Parliament to make the necessary expenditure. Consequently no official offer had been made nor the government discussed the question. The Militia Department duly transmitted individual offers to the Imperial Government, and the reply from the War Office had already been published. The statement in The Military Gazette this morning is a pure invention.

THE SPECTRAL BELL.

A Superstition of the Sea Sometimes Met With on Land.

The tolling of a spectral bell is one of the familiar superstitions of the sea, and especially is the illusion common along this section of the gulf coast. What causes it nobody has ever learned, but there is hardly a luggerman from Mobile to the passes who has not, at one time or another, heard the sound. They describe the note as extraordinarily sweet and clear, rising and falling in solemn cadence and always seemingly close at hand. It is entirely different, they say, from any other noise of the ocean, and they scout the theory that it could possibly be produced by waves.

"It isn't water," said an old seafaring man the other night, "and, for that matter, it's sometimes heard on land. I know, because I've listened to it myself. Back in 1877, if you care to hear the story, I quit sailorising for awhile and went out west and tried mining. I had a partner named Whicher, and, away up in the Sierra Madre range, in north New Mexico, we found an outcropping of rotten quartz that showed gold. It looked so good that we started to sink a shaft, although it was the most God forsaken spot you ever laid eyes on. It was in a little canyon, a thousand miles from nowhere, ugly black peaks all around us, and lonely—well, lonely is no name for it.

"One day, while Whicher was in the hole and me at the windlass he heard the bell. It was clear as my voice and seemed right over a mountain spur, where we knew there was no living being for three days' travel. It rang awhile and then stopped. Next day it rang again, slow, solemn and plainer than ever. It was broad daylight, and that made the thing all the worse, which sounds funny, but is true. We stood it four times, and then Whicher climbed out of the hole and said, 'Let's go.' I was willing. I believe we had a good thing, but that bell—it was too many for us. It makes my flesh crawl to think about it even now."

Shopgirl's Hard Lot.

Persons complain that shopgirls do not jump actively to wait upon them when they enter a store. Why not? The other day I saw a girl approach a respectably dressed woman of middle age—that's 35—and heard her ask, over the counter, "What would you like, ma'am?"

To this polite attention I was shocked to hear the woman reply: "You shut up! Don't you talk to me! I can ask for what I want, and I don't want any impudence from clerks!"

A few rebuffs from such creatures are quite enough to cool the ardor of any shopgirl.

OUTWITTING AN ELEPHANT.

A Hunter Saved by His Knowledge of the Beast's Habits.

Only those familiar with the "manners and customs" of the elephant have any idea what a nimble creature it really is. Massive and slow footed as it looks, it is capable, when roused, of feats that would be difficult for much fleeter animals. Especially is this the case with African elephants, which, though taller, are generally lighter than their Asiatic brethren. Moreover, accustomed for ages to lead a wild life and often depending on their alertness and speed of foot for their very existence, they have acquired a skill in gymnastics which has occasionally taken even old elephant hunters by surprise.

In illustration of this fact we are reminded of a story told by one of the sportsmen in Africa. He was "out after elephants" and had just fired at and wounded a magnificent specimen. Unfortunately for him, he had only succeeded in slightly wounding it, when, infuriated by the attack, it turned and charged him. It was a terrifying sight. With its enormous ears spread out like sails and emitting shrill notes of rage, it came thundering over the ground like a runaway locomotive. The hunter fired another shot, but missed. His nerve was shaken, and, throwing down his "express" rifle, he sought safety in flight. Near at hand was a steep hill, and to this he directed his steps, for, being but slightly acquainted with the climbing powers of the elephant, he thought his pursuer might be baffled by the steepness of the ascent.

It was a terrible disappointment to find that the elephant could climb a hill just as quickly as the hunter, nimble runner as he was. The fugitive, indeed, would have soon been overtaken if he had not thought of a really ingenious ruse. He knew that elephants never run, or even walk, down a steep incline, but always crouch down, gather their feet together, lean well back and slide down. Just as the ferocious animal had got within a few yards of him, therefore, the wily hunter suddenly doubled and ran down the hill again.

Quick as a flash the elephant turned, gathered himself together and, trumpeting with baffled rage, slid down after his victim. The hunter had just time to spring out of the way as the great beast came "tobogganing" after him, smashing trees and shrubs and carrying everything before it like an avalanche. Then once more the hunter dashed to the top of the hill, while the elephant, unable to stop itself, went careering down to the very foot, where, apparently feeling very sore and disappointed, it rose and walked wearily back to its native woods.—Chums.

Odd Disasters.

In an English coal mine a few years ago a callous youth viciously pricked a pony with his penknife. The wounded animal kicked out furiously, overturning and breaking several safety lamps. The naked flames fed the foul gases in the air and created an appalling explosion, which wrought the death of over a hundred miners.

Sun rays, shining through a decanter of water on to the cartridge of a loaded rifle, slew a sleeping man on a lounge near by. The innocent owner of the rifle was arraigned for the supposed crime and was sentenced to death, when the testimony of a shrewd detective solved the mystery and secured his reprieve.

A German family, seven in number, lost their lives by a somewhat unique accident. They slept in one large apartment, lighted by gas. Before retiring the father hung his overcoat above the gas burner. During the night this garment slipped and fell on the tap, turning the gas full on and so suffocating the slumbering inmates.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

After a good soaking shower is the best time for hand weeding.

A good plan is to keep the growing orchard in cultivation until it comes into bearing well and then seed to clover.

Increased sunlight among the trees brings increased growth and blossom and decreases the tendency to mold and rot.

Peach, cherry and pear trees will bear very little forcing, and on this account wood ashes are better for them than ground bone.

Fruits, especially the apple, are largely controlled in character by soil and climate. Get varieties that are adapted to your locality.

Scraping the moss and old dead bark off the mature trees in the orchard and washing the trunks with some alkaline liquid can always be recommended.—Exchange.

MANDY'S QUICK WIT

UNCLE JOHN'S MODEL WIFE WAS EQUAL TO THE OCCASION.

An Exciting Race That Was Grandly Won When It Seemed Surely Lost Just Because This Clever Woman "Seen Her Duty, and She Done It."

"My wife," remarked Uncle John Algus with an air of pride and proprietorship, somewhat more prevalent among young husbands in their honeymoons than among old ones who have been married for 50 years or more, as Uncle John was—"my wife is one uv them women the Lord only makes a few uv, and them mighty scatterin. She's jist ez good natured and happy now as she was when I courted her, but Mandy ain't all finish and spoon victuals, and there's times when she has to be handled with keer or somethin will be spilled. She's got temper a plenty, and she ain't afeered uv the old serpent himself. I mind one thing she done once that I'll never fergit ef I live to be older than the parson's wife's bonnet.

"In them days Mandy weighed a hunderd and eighty-seven pounds in her stockin feet, and I wuz only a scant hunderd and forty. We had on the farm all the time seven er eight head uv fine horses, and one winter we had a pair uv 4 year olds that we prided ourselves pertickeler on, fer they had been takin premiums at the fair every year since they wuz yearlin's. They had speed, too, and we thought they couldn't be beat by anything in that neck uv woods, but a neighbor uv ours named Hall—everybody knowed Jim Hall, jist like they knowed me—had a pair he had bought in the next county that he offered to bet a cow and calf could beat ours hands down. He used to let 'em out past our place to kind uv tantalize us, and I tell you they wuzn't a funeral procession by a long ways, but Mandy used to laugh and say we'd show him something when the goin got good.

"You see, it was along in November then, and the roads hadn't froze yet. The first snow come in December with a mighty cold spell followin and hangin on, and in about a week er ten days we had fine sleighin, and one afternoon Mandy said she guessed we ought to hitch up the bays and go out for some air and exercise. That was enough for me, and I had the team to the cutter and out at the gate waitin for the lady in less than no time.

"The team wuz feelin as frisky as kittens, and the way they slung the snow and spun over the road would stir the blood in a wooden man. When we got to the turnpike, where the folks usually let their teams out, I guess there wuz a dozen or more movin up and down at a clippin gait, and we sailed right in among 'em, and in about seven minutes we passed everything on the road.

"Jim Hall wuzn't out with his team, and I could see that Mandy wuz gittin anxious, though she wuzn't sayin much. The road leadin to Jim's place struck the pike about 200 yards from the upper turn, and there wuz no sign uv him as we passed, and we didn't see him as we come back, but just after we got by his road we heerd a clatter up the pike, and, by crackey, there wus Jim a-comin lickety spit. I guess he'd been to the postoffice, and the way he wuz comin after us wuz like a mink after chickens. Mandy took one look over her shoulder and told me to let 'em go for all they wuz wuth. I didn't need to be coaxed, and by the time she had said the words we wus fairly flyin over the smooth snow track, and Jim wus comin right behind us too. For the first few rods we gained on him, then he begun to creep up on us in spite uv all we could do. Everybody on the road knowed how me and Jim set store by our teams, and they pulled out to one side and give us all the room there wuz.

"I shook up my beauties as I felt him drawin up on me, but shakin wuzn't enough, and I touched 'em once or twice with the whip, but Jim jist rared back on his strings, lookin like destruction smilin at desolation, and kept a-comin. When his horses' heads passed our dashboard and I could see the snort in their noses, I got kind uv sick and thought I'd have to let go, but Mandy nerved me up, and I hung on and leaned away forrerd as if that would help some. By this time Jim's horses had their heads even with mine, and I held him there fer a minute er such a matter, but jist as I begun to have a hope that it might be a neck and neck at the finish Mandy reached for the line next to her, and, with a sudden jerk, she pulled the team off to one side uv the road, where the snow wus in a high drift, and Jim went ahead with a yell that made my ears stand out like windmill flappers.

"I wus that dazed for a minute at Mandy that I couldn't do a lick, and, deacon though I wus, I'm afeerd I'd a-used language that wouldn't have sounded exactly right in Sunday school, but before I had a chance to make a move Mandy made a flyin leap over the side uv the sleigh and lit in the deep snow. Then I wus dazeder than ever and had some kind uv an idee that we'd been struck by an earthquake or something and Mandy wus killed, and I must go back after her and dig her out. But the team had their senses with them, and when they felt they had nigh two hunderd pounds less load to haul than before Mandy jumped they didn't stop to see what had happened, but let theirselves out on a spurt that wuz chuck full uv chain lightnin, and out uv the snowdrift I could hear Mandy scream 'Go it, John; you're all right now.'

"And so I wus, and so wus Mandy, for before Jim knowed that anything had happened I wus up with him, alongside, neck and neck, nose and nose, ahead and past, and when I pulled up at the toll gate he wus ten lengths behind and too much surprised to even cuss.

"Mandy wus in the middle uv the road brushin the snow out uv her clothes and waitin for me as I come back, and when I said I'd give her a new silk dress for that she said 'it wus only what any wife ought to do for her husband, but she couldn't prove it by showin me where any other wife had ever done it, and I made her take the dress in spite uv herself. That's the kind uv a heroine my wife is," and Uncle John went down into his inside pocket and fished out a quaint, old fashioned daguerreotype in a brand new gilt frame.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Picture, Not Paint.

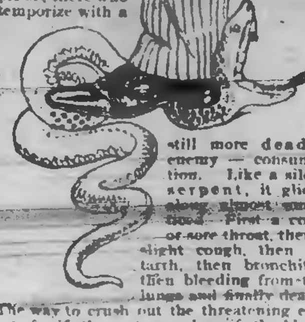
An art patron one day came into Turner's studio when the artist was already famous. He looked at a picture and asked what was the price. The artist named the sum he had set upon it.

"What," exclaimed the buyer, "all those golden sovereigns for so much paint!"

"Oh," replied Turner, "it's paint you are buying? I thought it was pictures. Here," producing a half used tube of color, "I'll let you have that cheap. Make your own terms," and, turning his back on the astonished patron, he went on painting.

DANGER AVERTED.

If a man should cross a deadly snake in his pathway, he would quickly crush it beneath his heel before it could sink its poisonous fangs into his flesh. He would not step out of the way and temporize with the dangerous reptile. And yet how many people are there who temporize with a still more deadly enemy — consumption. Like a silent serpent, it glides along, almost unnoticed. First a cold, or sore throat, then a slight cough, then catarrh, then bronchitis, then bleeding from the lungs and finally death.



The way to crush out the threatening evil is to fortify the system and purify the blood with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Every weakness and abnormal condition that precedes consumption is cured by this non-alcoholic remedy. At the first sign of derangement of stomach, liver and blood, look out! It is only a question of time until the lungs will be attacked through the impure blood, and then the danger will be most deadly.

It should be known to every sick person that Dr. R. V. Pierce will give carefully considered, fatherly, professional advice by mail to all who write him at Buffalo, N. Y. No charge or fee of any nature is asked.

"I am a railroad agent," writes I. B. Staples, Esq., of Barclay, Osage Co., Kans., "and four years ago, my work keeping me in a warm room and stepping out frequently into the cold air, gave me bronchitis, which became chronic and deep seated. Doctors failed to reach my case. A friend advised me to try Dr. Pierce's medicine. I commenced taking 'Golden Medical Discovery' and by the time I had taken the first bottle I was better and after taking four bottles my cough was entirely gone. This was a year ago last winter, and again last winter I took about three bottles to prevent a return of the trouble."

An honest dealer will not try to persuade you to take a worthless substitute in place of the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the sake of a little added profit.

POULTRY POINTERS.

Impure water in summer often causes disease among poultry.

The objection to late hatched fowls is the danger of their being stunted.

Poultry matures within a year and is easily changed in any of its characteristics.

Irregular feeding invites derangement of the digestive organs and often causes disease.

In nearly all cases the male imparts the color. When white males are used all the chickens will be white.

Generally, ground bone is one of the best forms in which to give lime to the laying hens when they need it.

By using milk instead of water in mixing the soft feed for fowls it serves both for moisture and nourishment.

One advantage in favor of the white breeds is that the pin feathers do not show so plainly as in the black plumaged birds.

Cornmeal does not contain all the essential elements of growth, and for this reason chickens often die off when fed upon it.—St. Louis Republic.

It is said that rustics who live on a bread and milk diet nearly always have thick hair to an advanced age, while people who lunch and dine on meat rarely have thick hair after [illegible].

The Weighing of Coal.

Several months ago a petition was presented to the Council asking that all coal be weighed on the market scales. The matter was referred to the Market Committee for action, and there it has stuck. We call the attention of Ald. Sawers to the matter in the hope that the matter will be put through at once. It would be a step in the right direction to have all coal weighed on the public scales.

Barns Burned.

The barns and contents belonging to Mr John Walsh, of Asphodel, within about one mile of Hastings, were completely consumed by fire yesterday morning. The barns contained all this season's crop unthreshed, four valuable horses, one cow and all his fowl. The fire was the work of an incendiary. Loss about $2,000, with only $900 insurance. Much sympathy is felt for Mr Walsh.

THE SHERIFF'S REPORT.

Sheriff Hall Makes Out His Annual Report for the County.

Sheriff Hall has just completed his yearly report concerning the inmates of of the goal and forwarded it to the Ontario Government yesterday.

On the first of October 1898 there were 10 males and 1 female confined in the goal and during the year ending Sept. 30th, 1899 there were 168 males and 34 females committed, making a total of 213 persons in custody during the year. Of these 18 were under 16 years of age, 108 were committed for the first time, 29 for the second time, 22 for the third time and 43 for more than that. Thirty-two persons were committed as of unsound mind, 3 were sent to the Central Prison, 5 to the Mercier Reformatory for women, 2 to the penitentiary and 2 to the Reformatory for boys. The expense of 18 of the persons were defrayed by the Government and of 194 by the municipalities. The Government prisoners were in custody 683 days and the municipal prisoners for 4586 days.

Their nationalities were as follows: Canadian 157, English 36, Irish 16, Scotch 8, United States 8, other countries 3.

Forty-seven of the prisoners were married and 165 unmarried; 23 could not write 130 were temperate—so they said—and 83 intemperate.

The expenditure for food clothing, fuel, etc., amounted to $1076.88. The officer's salaries aggregate $1250.00.

The greatest number of persons confined in the goal at any time was 22 and the least 8.

The offence for which the prisoners were committed to goal were as follows: abusive language 1, assault 8, contempt of court 2, destroying property 5, detained as witness 1, drunk and disorderly 10, forgery 3, fraud 1, horse stealing 5, robbery 1, larceny 52, lunatics 32, prostitution 2, seduction 1, selling liquor without a license 1, trespass 1, vagrancy 51, want of sureties to keep the peace 3, other offences 14.

GOOD WORK BEING DONE.

Salvation Army Now Seventeen Years in Canada.

The Salvation army announces that arrangements are now completed for holding its annual anniversary meetings in Toronto, the dates of which will be Oct. 7 to 12. Seventeen years ago the 'Army' 'invaded' Canada; during this time a great and substantial institution has been built up. As an indication of the success of its operations, it is stated that during the past year nearly three million persons attended its Sunday meetings and two and a half million the week night services. The 'War Cry' has a weekly circulation of 41,000. In connection with its social operations in the Dominion, 108,662 beds and 267,224 meals were provided, while 787 women were admitted to the Rescue Homes, (9) of whom have turned out satisfactorily. Of 388 children admitted to the shelters, 321 were placed in good homes, which is not an unusual record. Officers from all parts of the country will be present for the big meetings which will be held by Field Commissioner Eva Booth, that of Sunday afternoon, Oct. 8, taking place in the Pavillion of the Horticultural Gardens. Special rates on all railways have been arranged for.

Wood for Sale.

Having purchased the old "Red Mills" at Nassau, I am tearing them down, and will have in consequence a very large quantity of fine dry pine for sale, suitable for kindling. Geo. Stevens, Ashburnham.

Golf.

A match in which there has been evinced considerable interest within the last few days took place yesterday afternoon on the Auburn links, the contestants being Bank of Montreal and Bank of Commerce. The competition from start to finish was of the keenest character.

It was no Cobourg match, but a trial of strength between players evenly balanced.

The play of Mr. Francis, of the Commerce, and Captain Hamilton, of the Peterboro Club, was probably the best exhibition of golf ever seen on the links. It was a royal battle. The two players tied on the fourteenth hole, the fifteenth being won by Mr. Hamilton. Mr. Burnham, one of the best players in the club, evinced the keenest interest in the contest by accompanying the players in this particular match. After sixty holes had been played, in which each of them played their part, it was found that the Montrealers were 5 holes up.

The Commerce players are to be congratulated, although they lost because of the fact that they were all young players. They took their beating, although it was only 5 holes in 60, in good sportsmanlike way, each player congratulating his opponent with hopes of a return match.

The following is the score:

Mr. Miles Hamilton won from Mr. Francis by 1 hole.

Mr. Napier from Mr. Houston by 3 holes.

Mr. Neil from Mr. Carter by 2 holes.

Mr. Parker lost to Mr. McHarrie by 2 holes.

We understand that the Commerce team undaunted by the result yesterday, have issued a challenge to the Canadian General Electric Company, four men a side, to play Saturday.

Whose Fault Is It?

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—As everybody reads the Times, I would like to ask you, Mr. Editor, through the columns of your valuable paper, if the contractors are obliged to leave the streets in as good shape as they got them after they got through with putting down pavement? I was told by Ald. Sawers that such was the case, but cannot believe it, as I see town teams and men "cleaning up" after them.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for your valuable space, I am, &c.,

[Reply—We understand the contracts contain a condition to the effect that the streets are to be left in as good condition after as before the work.—Ed. Times.]

WEDDING BELLS.

Greer-Stewart.

A very pretty house wedding took place at one o'clock yesterday afternoon at the residence of Dr Greer, corner Aylmer and Simcoe streets, when his sister, Miss Lizzie Greer, daughter of the late Henry Greer, Esq., was united in marriage to Mr John J Stewart, of Britannia.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev J S Shorey, of the George street Methodist church, in the drawing room, which was tastefully beautified with flowers, the floral decorations being the work of Mr J H Cobb, florist. The guests included only relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride who was most attractively gowned in cream dutchesse satin trimmed with chiffon and applique lace, was given away by her brother, Dr Greer. The services of both brideimaid and groomsman were dispensed with

After the ceremony the wedding dejuneur was served by Mr H Long, caterer.

Mr and Mrs Stewart left on the afternoon train for a honeymoon trip to western points, and on their return will reside at Britannia.

The handsome array of wedding gifts received by the bride testified to the good wishes of a host of friends who unite in wishing the happy couple a happy life, a sentiment in which the Times cordially joins.

Hooper—Cheverill.

Rev W L Armitage of All Saints church officiated at an interesting event on Wednesday evening, when at half past eight o'clock, at the residence of her father, Mr Thomas Hooper, of North Monaghan, Miss Nellie Hooper was united in marriage to Mr Charles H Cheverill, of town.

The bride was stylishly gowned in a brown travelling suit and was assisted by her sister, Miss Katie Hooper, who wore an iron gray cloth costume.

The groomsman was Mr John W Mein.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the guest present sat down to a bountiful wedding dejeuner.

Mr and Mrs Cheverill have taken up residence at 278 Simcoe street.

A SATISFACTORY RECORD.

The Horticultural Society Have a Balance on the Right Side.

There was a meeting of the Horticultural Society yesterday afternoon, and some business of importance was transacted.

The Treasurer was authorized to pay the prizes in connection with the flower show amounting to $160.

It was decided, after some discussion, to pay all prizes conditionally that a declaration be made by the exhibitor to the effect that he or she was the owner of the exhibit for which prizes given for a period of not less than two months prior to the exhibition.

The committee on lawns presented their report, awarding first prize for best kept lawn to Mr Frank Wise, and the second prize to W J Thompson. The prizes were $5 and $4 respectively.

Messrs Cobb and Foord were appointed to plant the tulip bulbs this fall in Victoria Park.

Monthly Report.

The following is the monthly report in connection with the Nicholls Hospital:

Very Sad Death.

It is with sorrow the Times is forced to chronicle the death of Miss Mary Barclay, which occurred at Nicholls Hospital yesterday. The young lady was the only child of Mr and Mrs John Barclay, 583 George street, and was about 23 years of age. She was employed as stenographer in the law office of Messrs Roger & Bennett. She was an active worker in the Epworth League and George Street Methodist church. For some considerable time Miss Barclay had not been well, and was advised to give up her duties and take a rest. This she did not do with the result that typhoid fever supervened. She was a young lady that was immensely popular, and death will be deplored by many. The funeral will take place from the family residence to morrow afternoon at 2.30. The Times extends its sympathy to the sorrowing parents.

Still More Bungling.

As a sample of the way our street affairs have been mismanaged, the attention of the Times has been called to the way the work has been done on George street, between Murray and Smith streets. This portion of George street was all nicely fixed up during the summer, a lot of money being spent on it. It was made almost as smooth as a board, the steam roller having been used for many days. A short time after the job was completed, work on the permanent pavement began, and the street was ripped up and destroyed. What the Times would like to know is, why was the repairing of the streets not left until after the pavement was put down? Who is responsible for such criminal waste of money?

The Rutherford Fatality.

At the inquest held in Lindsay on the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford, who were killed on the railway crossing near Reaboro a few days ago, resulted in the following verdict:—

"That George Rutherford and Ann Rutherford came to their death on Oct. 3rd, 1899, by the vehicle they were driving coming in contact with the engine of the G. T. R. train while attempting to drive over the crossing in front of the train. Further, that no blame can be attached to the employees of the G. T. R. Company. We further say that the said crossing is highly dangerous."

The Post in referring to an item in the Times anent the pulling down of the Red Mills at Nassau, says: "That's not the way we do things in Lindsay—we build new mills and factories, and make additions to the old ones." My son, you are away off in your conjectures. This mill is being taken down to provide room for another power house to help to drive the ever-increasing list of Peterborough's factories.

PERSONAL

Miss Preston has returned home after visiting friends in Bailieboro.

Messrs Fred Davidson and Ernie Sager leave to-day on a wheeling expedition to Belleville, Napanee and other points.

Mr Frank Wood, who has been for some time connected with the local branch of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Co., left yesterday to take a position in the Montreal branch of that company.

Pearson Acquitted.

Silas Pearson, a young man in the employ of Stephen Harrison, of Smith, appeared before County Magistrate Edmison yesterday, charged with the theft of a small sum of money, the property of the Methodist church. After hearing the evidence the case was dismissed. Mr R E Wood, County Crown Attorney, appeared for the Crown and Mr D O'Connell for the defence.

Nearly Drowned.

A little child, the daughter of Mr Alex T Dugan, Cambridge street, while playing in the vicinity of the creek, fell into the water. Her playmates gave the alarm, and her mother and several others were quickly on the spot and the child was taken from the water in an unconscious state. Dr Eastwood was sent for and after the usual means of resuscitation were used, the little one rallied, and is now nearly as well as ever.

236 OF OUR PUPILS SECURED GOOD POSITIONS in the seventeen months ending June 1st '99. What do you think of such a record?

Our pupils are now in strong demand with many of the leading business houses.

When we tell you that this large number secured positions, we are also prepared to furnish the list showing where they were placed and with whom. If interested, write for it.

☞ The Best School is the Cheapest in the End.

We pay the railway fare of pupils coming from a distance provided it does not exceed $8.00, which is the limit of our allowance in this connection.

Can secure good board for gentlemen at $2.00 to $2.50 per week and for ladies at $2.00.

During the year which closed June 30th we had pupils in attendance from Newfoundland on the Atlantic, to Seattle on the Pacific; from Manitoba on the north to Brooklyn N. Y., on the south. There were 133 cities, towns and villages in Canada and five States of the Union represented with us.

Twenty-three counties and districts outside of Chatham sent us 198 pupils. Chatham and Kent County alone sent us over 100 pupils, while Manitoba and the North-west Territories sent us six.—WHAT WE GET WE HOLD.

Write for handsome catalogue of either department. Mention which catalogue you want.

A SENSATIONAL ARREST

A Collector of Customs Arrested on Charges of Conspiracy.

SEEMS A WIDESPREAD PLOT

His Nephews Have Been Sentenced For Scuttling a Schooner.

Information Has Also Been Laid With the Crown Concerning Wilful Destruction by Fire of Other Buildings and Vessels—Great Sensation Caused.

Guysboro, N. S., Oct. 6.—The excitement reached fever heat this morning when it became known that Enos L Munro, Collector of Customs for Whitehead, had been arrested on charges of conspiracy and arson.

The arrest of Munro will prove particularly interesting to Halifax in view of the fact that it was he who obtained a verdict against Detective Power for alleged false arrest for over $600 damages, which the County Council paid. Munro was arrested by Power on charge of

from the cashier of the Portland Packing Company. The cashier boarded at Munro's residence, and the money, it was alleged, was stolen from his room. Munro was apprehended by Power and Wright and handcuffed, and subsequently acquitted, and a suit for damages instituted. The payment of the amount by the Halifax City Council caused much talk at the time.

To-day Power's prosecutor is again in the hands of the law, and warrants have been issued for the arrest of others. The information on which the collector was apprehended was laid before Stipendiary Davidson by Munro's sister, Mrs Hugh Munro, who deposed that Enos L Munro, Granswick Munro and Howard Munro, of Whitehead, Cuysboro, between October 1st and November 1st, 1897, at Whitehead, did wilfully conspire to set fire to Government buildings at Whitehead oil house and boat house. The information further charges that the accused did set fire to said buidings.

A Widespread Case.

Munro was arrested at daylight this morning at the house where he is boarding. His surprise was great. He had decided to leave for home this morning, having come here to testify for the clearance of the vessel Juventer in the scuttling case. Mrs Hugh Munro, the informant, is not only a sister of the collector, but is also the mother of Perry Munro and Arthur Munro, who were sentenced yesterday to Penitentiary in the perjury and scuttling cases.

Information has also been laid with the Crown concerning the wilful destruction by fire of other buildings and vessels.

It looks as though many more arrests will follow. The Munros hitherto have been looked upon as among the most respectable residents of Guysboro county. The family quarrel promises to eclipse any sensation made public in Halifax. Munro was arraigned before Stipendiary Davidson this morning and remanded until to-morrow for preliminary examination. Several witnesses have been sent for.

THE BALLOON COLLAPSED.

Perilous Adventure of a Female Aeronaut at the Danbury Fair in Connecticut.

Danbury, Conn., Oct. 6.—One of the features of the Danbury Fair yesterday was a balloon ascension by Miss Laura Hasbrook, a young woman from Newark, Del. She made the ascension clinging to a trapeze, which swung from a parachute attached to the balloon. She expected to cut the parachute from the ballooon at the height of about a thousand feet, but was unable to use her knife. She was carried over this city. At Prospect street the baloon collapsed at the height of 500 feet and fell rapidly. The parachute ropes caught in a tree, holding it fast. The woman clung to the ropes until she was rescued by means of ladders. Then she lost consciousness.

The Floor Gave way.

London, Oct. 6—While a party of farm laborers were sitting at dinner in the granary of a farm at Westwell, near Ashford, yesterday, the floor above, on which some twelve tons of oats were stored, suddenly gave way. Benjamin Hole, Ashford, and another man whose name is unknown were killed instantly, and a third man injured.

Blew Out the Gas.

Sarnia, Ont., Oct. 6.—Emily Smith, an aged lady from Port Elgin, Ont., put up at the Beichamber House on Wednesday. On retiring she blew out the gas. Her body was found dead in bed. The woman was on her way to Duluth to visit a daughter.

HAS THERE BEEN BREACH OF TRUST

Malfeasance or Any Other Similar Misconduct

IN GRANOLITHIC CONTRACTS

Is What the County Judge Will Be Now Asked to Decide.

Such is the Substance of Ald. McWilliams' Resolution at the Committee Meeting Last Night—Mr. Sheehy and His Counsel Were Present—Council Unanimous in Carrying the Matter Before the Judge—But Ald. Corkery Would Not Vote—It Looks as Though Startling Developments Were on the Tapis.

"If I hadn't taken the course I have in this matter, I believe the Town would have been swindled out of $3,000 on these three granolithic contracts."

The above was the startling statement made by Ald. McWilliams at the Town Council committee meeting held last night.

Although the meeting, being one in committee, was semi-private, many citizens, anxious to witness the unravelling of the pavement tangle, found their way into Town Clerk Armstrong's comfortable office where committee met and manifested marked interest in the proceedings—something altogether foreign at previous committee meetings—and quite an air of expectancy pervaded both inner and outer offices.

Seated around the committee board were Mayor Davis in the chair and Aldermen Best, Sawers, McWilliams, Corkery, Denne, E. H. D. Hall and Langford, while Town Solicitor Edwards, Engineer Hay, R. Max Dennistoun, solicitor for contractor Sheehy, and the latter gentleman himself was also present.

At the incipiency of the meeting, Mr. John Carnegie, representing the Auburn Power Company, asked for the right of way on streets, to erect poles for carrying power to McDonnel's box factory. The matter was left in the hands of the Board of Works.

THE SIDEWALK TANGLE.

At this juncture the evening's business began in earnest, and the question taken up as to whether contractor Sheehy was entitled, under the circumstances, to any monies on granolithic contract No. 2 and the position of his sureties, who, while having signed the original contract, object to attaching their signatures to one which, by resolution of council, it was proposed to amend, gone into.

Town Solicitor Edwards explained that the whole question depended upon whether the terms of specification had been carried out or not, and whether Engineer Hay was empowered under contract to vary the quantities of ingredients used in building sidewalks under dispute.

R. M. Dennistoun here addressed Council, and claimed that the engineer had authorized the continuance of the work as constructed by his client, contractor Sheehy. Continuing he read clause 32 of contract which reads, "The Engineer should have the right to make any changes he deemed proper—to increase or decrease the quantity of materials used, and to alter grades, the difference in expense to be added to, or deducted, from original amount of contract." Under these provisions, argued the speaker, the Council places absolute control in the Engineer's hands.

Ald. McWilliams stated that it was not a question of payment, but one of violation of contract, whereby the longevity of the work is shortened.

Contractor Sheehy here remarked that he did not propose that his bondsmen should suffer in any way on his account, but was prepared to stand by his work, which he claimed to be first-class and according to instructions.

R. M. Dennistoun,—"You had better let me do the talking, that's what I'm here for." The legal gentleman then quoted from the Reform Government's specifications for such work, which provided that finished surfaces should be one and a half inches thick, the concrete to contain one part cement to one of clean sharp sand, and three of crushed granite or lime stone. The Government's specifications thus call for nine of cement, thirty-six parts of granite and sand, while Mr. Sheehy's work contains eleven to thirty-six.

Mr. Sheehy's specifications were here referred to, which allowed for the following proportions: Top surface to be of 1 1-2 inches thick, and composed of one part best Portland cement to two of best granite or crushed quartz.

The question of sand being used, contrary to specifications, then arose, Mr. Dennistoun, reasserting that it had been approved of by the Engineer.

Mr. Sheehy again took the floor, and claimed that Inspector Ranney had authorized the changes from specifications. He experimented half a day in the matter and then sanctioned the use of 5 1-2 bags of cement to the box, and the man who says I purloined 2 1-2 bags lies." Continuing, he drew attention to the Inspector's report in which he says "With 5 1-2 bags of cement to two boxes of granite, of course the mixture would not trowel, and one box of sand had to be added, and this proportion has been carried out on all work done this year.

"Now," thundered Mr. Sheehy, "the man who made that statement must have been asleep."

Here Mr. Dennistoun interposed, that what Mr. Ranney should have said was, "One box of sand had to be substituted, not added."

Ald. McWilliams then remarked that in the test made, it was found that it took nine bags of cement to the box to follow the provisions of contract.

Mr. Dennistoun,—"Inspector Ranney was out one box of granite in his report."

Mr. Sheehy,—"Screen granite won't work without sand."

Ald. McWilliams claimed that they are doing the work in Toronto without sand.

Ald. Best argued that Toronto's engineer claimed that first-class work required two to one of cement and granite.

Ald. McWilliams,—"For my part I favor the matter being ventilated before the Judge. We did not cut Mr. Sheehy down in his figures, and he should have followed his specifications, irrespective of the Inspector or Engineer."

Mr. Sheehy,—"Had you not put an inspector over me you would have had specifications followed out to the letter."

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun said an investigation before the County Judge would not cost less than $1,000. Mr. Sheehy is not a wealthy man, and as the investigation would simply be the preliminary to further litigation, which would prove ruinous to his client, he would suggest that the matter be settled by the Council.

At this juncture the question of payment to Mr. Sheehy on No. 2 contract came up, when Ald. McWilliams said he would not favor paying one dollar less than Engineer Hay's report calls for, and besides, he understood Mr. Sheehy had informed the Mayor that he would not take one cent less than his contract called for.

Mr. E. B. Edwards remarked that according to a resolution of the Board of Works he had prepared a clause for insertion in the bonds notifying the sureties of the difficulty that existed between Council and contractors and also that they would be held responsible for all work not done in accordance with original specifications, and the bondsmen had refused to sign.

Mr. Dennistoun claimed that the Town Engineer had authorized the continuance of work as done by his client.

Engineer Hay here admitted that when contract had been half completed he had authorized its continuance notwithstanding the violation of specifications.

Mr. Dennistoun thought that as Sheehy's sureties had signed the original bond as prepared by Council, his client should be paid. "The financial standing of the sureties cannot be objected to," he argued, "and we don't propose to sign any other bonds."

THE JUDGE TO DECIDE.

Ald. McWilliams then introduced the following pointed resolution:

Ald. McWilliams moved, seconded by Ald. Denne,—That whereas it has been alleged in this Council that the work of building the granolithic pavements has not been carried out in accordance with the contracts entered into between the Town and various contractors, viz—F. Sheehy and Evans and Langford, and that said contractors have failed to fulfill their contracts, and that one or more of the officers of the corporation, or members of the Council or contractors, have been guilty of malfeasance, breach of trust or other misconduct in connection with such contracts.

Therefore, be it resolved, that the Judge of the County Court of the County of Peterborough be requested to investigate all matters which may be brought before him by any interested party in connection with the said contracts and particularly as to the following questions in relation to each of the above referred two contracts:—

1. Has the contract been fulfilled in accordance with the specifications stated therein?
2. If not, in what particulars and to what extent is there a difference?
3. Has such difference increased or decreased the cost of the work to the contractor, and to what amount?
4. If the specifications have been changed, by whom, and on what authority was such change made?
5. Did the Inspectors, the Town Engineer and the Chairmen of the Board of Works, respectively, take all proper steps according to their duties to prevent or report any alteration or inferiority in the work called for by the contract?
6. Is there any evidence of fraud upon the part of the contractors or any of their employees.
7. Has any member of the Council, or officer of the Corporation, or any of the said contractors been guilty of any malfeasance, breach of trust or other misconduct in relation to the duties or obligations of such member, officer or contractor to the municipality in connection with any of said contracts?

And that in such investigation all members of the Council, officers of the Corporation and contractors and their sureties shall be considered to be interested parties and shall be permitted to be heard and to be represented if they so desire.

And that the Clerk be instructed to forward this resolution to the County Judge at once, and to request him to take up such investigation and report thereon as speedily as possible.

Ald. Langford,—"I am very much pleased to see this resolution to-night. It is the proper way to settle the matter."

Ald. E. H. D. Hall, objected to the resolution in one particular only, he would move in amendment that the wording, "Whereas it has been alleged in this council," should be substituted by "Whereas it has been alleged by Ald. McWilliams." "The only allegation I know of," he said, "is that made by Ald. McWilliams, who has stated that some members of the Council have been approached by Mr. Sheehy."

Ald. Sawers,—"Let the resolution stand and let us have the whole matter threshed out."

Ald. McWilliams here stated that his resolution was quite in order with his previous action. "I am following out my statements, and am prepared to see the matter settled before the County Judge. Up to the last Council meeting there was not a Councillor more eager to have this matter cleared up than you—Ald. Hall—and now you want to wiggle out of it. And if you don't think my stand sufficient, let you and I resign our seats, and appeal to the people, when we can see how we stand in the eyes of the ratepayers."

Ald. Hall,—"I didn't want to wiggle out of it; but I say that the only allegation made was that by Ald. McWilliams."

Ald. McWilliams,—"If I hadn't taken the couse I have this Town would have been swindled out of $3,000 on these three contracts."

The resolution was here voted upon and carried.

Ald. McWilliams insisted upon the ayes and nays being taken, when the vote was found to be unanimous, excepting Ald. Corkery, who was excused at his own request.

Treasurer Brownscombe here wanted to know if he was to pay any monies on other contracts.

Ald. McWilliams objected to any further certificates being issued until this matter was threshed out by the County Judge.

Town Solicitor Edwards advised that the Council would have to meet its obligations, either to the full amount of contracts or to that proposed by the Engineers on account of deviations from contracts.

Ald. McWilliams complained that the sidewalks, as constructed, would not wear, and he did not think the Council justified in issuing any more certificates.

Solicitor Edwards replied that the contracts only call for the maintenance of sidewalks for 3 years in some cases, and five in others. Outside of these periods their duration cannot be taken into consideration.

Engineer Hay said he had kept back 20 per cent., on all contracts to allow for the deviations from specifications.

After the transaction of routine business on hand, Council adjourned.

CROSSES AFTERWARDS ADDED.

Sixteen North Waterloo Voters Swear Their Ballots Were Altered.

Berlin, Ont., Oct. 6.—The charges in which Wildfong and Cummings are accused of spoiling and switching ballots were taken up at the North Waterloo election trial yesterday afternoon. F W Sheppard, a voter in No. 3 division, was the first witness. Judge Meredith was of the opinion that he might be asked any question but how he had voted. Judge Osler combatted this view. The voter, he contended, could not be asked to disclose the way he had voted or any questions leading up to this point, but he agreed that he might be asked as to whether the ballot was in the same plight and condition as when it left the voter's hand.

SPORTING ITEMS.

There will be a Rugby football match at the P A A A grounds this afternoon at 4 o'clock, between a combination team from the banks and the electric works and a team chosen from the town players. No admission fee will be charged and it is hoped that there will be a big turnout of the lovers of the game present to witness the sport. The teams will be picked from the following:

Electric-Bankers—Hal Burnham, W D Parker, Garnet Bell, N Bell, W Crowley, A Collins, A A Hollingshead, A Skill, Campbell, C Bell, Maybee, R Dobbie, H Rush.

SOUTH AFRICAN CRISIS

Sixty-Seven Steamers Chartered to Convey the Troops.

FREIGHTS ARE ADVANCED.

Removal of Carrying Vessels From the Atlantic Causes a Panic.

Conviction in England That Peace May Yet Be Made—Imperial Government Will Accept Five Hundred Canadians for Service in South Africa.

New York, Oct. 6.—A special to The Herald from Boston says: It was learned to-day that sixty-seven trans-Atlantic steamers have been chartered by the British Admirality to transport troops and supplies to South Africa. That the Columbian and Chicago of the Furness line had been taken was confirmed today. It is also said that the Oakmore, of the Johnston line, which leaves here tomorrow, will, upon the discharge of her cargo in London, be turned over to the Government. Mr Wylie, the local agent of the line, has received no official advice of the charter. The steamer Nomadic, of the White Star line, has been taken; also the new Allan line steamer Bavarian, which has made two trips to Montreal.

Freights have advanced nearly 50 per cent on account of the removal of so much tonnage from the Atlantic seaboard and there is every indication of a still greater advance. Grain charters closed Saturday at 2 3-4 pence per bushel and fixtures made yesterday were on a basis of 4 pence per bushel. The rate to Liverpool Saturday was 2 1-4 pence, while yesterday 3 1-2 pence per bushel was quoted. It is understood that some of the Elder-Dempster line steamers plying in the Montreal service are among the fleet taken by the British Government.

The Door is Still Open.

London, Oct 6.—All the reliable intelligence from South Africa points to a continuance of the existing situation for some time, as both sides are apparently diffident about commencing an attack. A well defined conviction is prevalent that the Foreign office is trying to discover a way out of impasse which has been created by admitted mistakes and miscalculations, and it is evident that peace advocates and peace counsels are gaining ground, although Mr Chamberlain's refusal to seize the chance given him by the petition of fifty-eight members of the Cape House of Assembly seems to show a personal determination on the part of the Secretary of State for the Colonies not to yield an iota in the interest of peace.

While the distaste for war evidently increases in Great Britain, despatches from the scene of possible hostilities grow more and more lurid. It is said that the Boer forces at Volkrust will advance today to the Natal border, and according to Gen Symons, although Commandant General Joubert is personally adverse to hostilities, his patient tactics will not last, as the Boers will soon either demand to be disbanded or to receive orders to invade Nathal.

Canadian Troops Accepted.

London, Oct. 5.—Queensland and New Zealand have been notified by the Imperial Government that their offers of 200 and 250 troops respectively have been accepted, and their troops are to be fully equipped and at the disposal of the British commander in Cape Town by October 31.

Canadian Troops.

As cabled on Tuesday, the Canadian Government has made no formal offer yet, but has, in a letter from Sir Wilfrid Laurier to Hon Mr Chamberlain, practically invited suggestions. The original idea was a force of 1,000 men from Canada. The Canadian Government has now, however, been advised that should Canada desire to place at the disposal of the British commander at Cape Town by October 31 four fighting units, numbering 500 in all, infantry preferred, the Imperial Government will accept the offer with the sincerest gratitude and the fullest appreciation of the high Imperial aims dictating the proposal."

The proposal is that these 500 Canadians should be officered by one major, with captains and subalterns. The desire in so limiting the numbers is to ensure that each colonial unit shall have what a soldier always prays for, the best possible show in the fighting line.

Train Falls Into a River.

Montreal, Oct. 6.—An accident occurred on the Grand Trunk Railway at Ste. Anne's yesterday morning, when part of a freight train bound from Montreal westward jumped the track on the bridge that spans the Ottawa River near that town, and was participated into the river. The engine and the two first cars got over in safety to the western side of the span, but the five succeding cars left the metals and tumbled into the waters of the Ottawa. The making of improvements had weakened the bridge and rendered the accident possible.

MEN CURED FREE.

A most successful remedy has been found for sexual weakness, such as impotency, varicocele, shrunken organs, nervous debility, lost manhood, night emissions, premature discharge and all other results of self-abuse or excesses. It cures any case of the difficulty, never fails to restore the organs to full natural strength and vigor. The Doctor who made this wonderful discovery wants to let every man know about it. He will therefore send the receipt giving the various ingredients to be used so that all men at a trifling expense can cure themselves. He sends the receipt free, and all the reader need do is to send his name and address to L.W. Knapp, M.D. 1011 Hull Bldg., Detroit, Mich., requesting the free receipt as reported in this paper. It is a generous offer, and all men ought to be glad to have such an opportunity.

THE TRENT WATERWAY.

The Buffalo Express has an article on the Canadian waterways as compared with the Erie Canal. Our valued contemporary refers to a speech made recently by Hon. Mr. Tarte, in which the Minister of Public Works stated that a two-cent rate would be in vogue when the harbour of Port Colbourne was enlarged. To this the Express refers as follows:—

"If a two-cent rate is the best the Canadians will be able to offer their competition will not be formidable. It might draw some traffic from the New York route, as it is at present, but the least expensive of the plans for improving the Erie Canal would put this State again in the ascendancy.

Had Mr. Tarte chosen he could have told the people that the competition of the Trent Canal was near at hand, when the distance to the seaboard would be very much reduced as compared with the Erie. We are not prepared to state just what grain can be carried to the seaboard over the Trent route, but the route is shorter and consequently less expensive than either by the Welland or by the Erie routes, it will naturally be cheaper.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

•• •• ••

Good morning.

•• •• ••

The Venezuelan award appears to have resulted in a decided victory for Great Britain, though the American papers designate it as a compromise decision. Of the 600,000 square miles at stake Venezuela was awarded 100,000, mostly consisting of marsh, while Britain gets 500,000, including the valuable forest country. A "compromise" on the same lines would be very acceptable in the Alaska boundary dispute.

Such a sensible paper as the Chicago Inter-Ocean prints a hifaluting poem on Dewey's return, which poem concludes as follows:—

So is the ancient prophecy fulfilled,
The heel of love has crushed the serpent's head.
A nation's wealth, a nation's blood is spilled
That stranger feet a smoother way may tread.
The treasure Dewey won across the sea
In heaven's charge—another race is free.

The poet must mean that the race is a free-for-all with the betting strong on Aguinaldo, up to date.

Robert Mackie, who has already put in upwards of 14 months in goal in connection with the Napanee bank robbery, and who was sentenced at Cobourg the other day to a term of imprisonment quite out of proportion to the share he took in the crime, is likely either to be pardoned or have his term very much reduced. People everywhere feel that this should be done, and we simply give expression to this sentiment, which is nowhere stronger than in Peterborough.

A CURIOUS GLASS OWNED BY A WASHINGTON MAN.

Several Well Known Persons Have Seen Portentous Pictures Reflected In Its Oval Surface, Although It Will Not Work For All.

While all of us have heard in early childhood of the tales of magical mirrors, in which impossible heroes saw impossible heroines in danger, from which said heroes proceeded to rescue the fair maidens, yet such things have been relegated by most of us to the region of the imagination. We regard such things as being outside of the real world of today and belonging to the region of myth and fable. Yet, in spite of our prosaic nineteenth century, it is nevertheless a fact that a Washington gentleman is the possessor of an article which might be classed as appropriately belonging to the time of Aladdin and the wonderful lamp.

This strange acquisition is a mirror which came from India, and in which one can see the events which the future will bring forth. That such is its power is attested by some of the best known gentlemen of the city, who, for obvious reasons, do not wish their names to be mentioned.

This mirror came into the possession first of a Washington lady who was traveling in India, and, being interested in the religion of the country, took a trip to the famous temple of Alura, which lies in a rocky side of the foothills of the Himalaya mountains. This temple is now but a ruin of jagged rocks, jutting out harshly into the soft greensward that rolls smoothly down into the valley below. Above tower the vast mountains with their glittering caps of snow looking down on the peaceful tropical scene where for ages the followers of Brahma have performed their sacred rites.

The ruins of the temple stand open to the weather, and its ancient glory, which shone in such splendor before the English came to India, is now diminished. But a small band of Brahman monks still kept the sacred secrets and ceremonies alive. Few Europeans ever penetrate this section of the mountains, but the Washington lady mounted and visited the monastery. While there she managed to secure possession of one of the mirrors made by the monks and reputed to possess wonderful properties.

The lady brought the mirror with her on her return to town, and at her death it came into the possession of Mr. Lowdermilk. From him it was bought by a gentleman who takes great interest in such matters, but who would not like the fact of the existence of the mirror in his house to be known, as it would attract thousands of seekers after the curious. After paying quite a large sum for the glass the mirror was brought home and put to the test.

The mirror is oval in shape, about a foot long and is surrounded by a wooden frame two inches in width and painted a dark green. The back of the glass is coated with asphaltum and then covered with dark linen, so that the whole has the appearance of a lustrous opal. The method of use is by sitting with the mirror in one's lap and holding the glass so that there is no reflection of other objects shining on the surface of the glass. If the test is a success, there will appear in about a quarter of an hour a thin, cloudy mist, which will slowly float over the surface, and then the images of future events will be mirrored in the seemingly fathomless depth of the dark glass.

The gentleman who owns the mirror has never been himself successful in seeing anything, but a friend of his, a prominent judge and a thirty-third degree Mason, had a remarkable experience. He placed the mirror in his lap, and, after half an hour, a mist floated over the surface; then he saw reflected in the glass a picture of a coffin, within which was the still, white face of a dead man. At first glance the features seemed those of the gazer, but on looking closely it was seen that they represented exactly the brother of the gentleman—a man then in perfect health. In a second the picture shifted, and another face—that of a friend—appeared within the sides of the coffin. The gentleman in two weeks afterward lost his brother, and in a short while his friend, whose face he had also seen, passed to another world.

A son of the owner was one evening looking into the mirror, when he saw within a picture of a house in flames. There were the servants leaping from the porches, then returning to drag out the furniture. The glare shone around on a yard which the gazer recognized as that of his own farmhouse down the Potomac. By the mail two days afterward he received from his housekeeper an account of a fire which had destroyed his home, and the description tallied exactly with the picture seen in the mirror.

Another man, a gentleman employed in the bureau of ethnology and well known as a scientist and linguist, has also seen many pictures in the mirror—pictures of events in his life which were afterward realized to the letter.

By a student of occultism the following directions were given in a treatise on that subject, which dealt with the methods employed in making such mirrors: The materials used are one glass, 6½ inches by 8½ inches, free from flaws and concave in shape; a small amount of turpentine asphaltum, a pint of spirits of turpentine, a small hairbrush, a box in which to case the mirror, and a half a yard of new cloth.

The glass is placed in a clean, light and airy room, the materials washed perfectly clean; then the brush and the glass are wiped over with turpentine. Afterward the back of the glass is coated smoothly with a thin varnish of the asphaltum and left to dry, the operation being repeated for the two following days. At the end of that time the mirror is magnetized by placing the hands above it and slowly waving them to and fro, so that the animal magnetic force may be well absorbed by the asphaltum. The asphaltum is the best known material for absorption of the aura of the human body, and this is the reason for its use. The test should be made also in a clean, airy chamber when alone and when the mind is composed, and by perseverance the inquirer is sure to be rewarded—so say the books on magic.—Washington Post

To Crisp Lettuce Leaves.

Do you know how to crisp lettuce leaves? A most simple process, but one rarely adopted judging by the wilted stuff we generally see served. A gentleman of the old school was my teacher, and while yet a mere maid I was promoted to the proud dignity of crisping the lettuce.

First carefully separate the leaves from the stalk, discarding discolored and imperfect ones and leaving untouched the tiny hearts; lay them all in cool, clear water for awhile, all morning if you choose; pick them over a couple of times before serving; wash one by one and lay in a wire basket if you have one; if not, a clean, soft towel will answer; gather the ends and sides loosely in your hand and lightly shake the lettuce; then put the leaves in a colander, which you set in the refrigerator, but not on the ice. Leave until needed, when you will find the lettuce deliciously cool and crisp enough to crack. Never cut the leaves. If very large, divide with the fingers into smaller pieces.—What to Eat.

Vastly Different.

As will be seen, it makes a great difference how one uses the muscular resources at one's command.

A member of an athletic club, after swimming the length of the large tank in the basement of the institution, came out puffing and blowing, apparently exhausted.

"You don't manage your breathing right," said the swimming instructor. "It ought not to tire you so. As to the upper part of your body, including your arms, you use exactly the same muscles, and in very much the same way, in swimming as in sawing wood."

"No, sir!" gasped the swimmer. "When it comes to sawing wood, I use the muscles of some other man."—Youth's Companion.

The GRAPHOPHONE

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain: it requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment.

Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

OCEAN MAIL SERVICE

The Allans Not Able to Fill the Conditions of the New Contract.

BOATS TO CONVEY TROOPS.

Government Asked For Concessions in Shape of a Slower Service.

The Allan Line Has Sold or Leased Two of Its Fastest Vessels to the British Admiralty for Conveying Troops to South Africa.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—It is understood that the Allan Line has either sold or leased two of its fastest steamers to the British admirality to be used for conveying troops to the Transvaal, and in consequence the company has notified the Department of Trade and Commerce that it cannot accept the contract for carrying the British mails with the present conditions which it asks for. If slower vessels be accepted then the company will of course accept.

The matter is now under the consideration of the department. Very recently an Order in Council was passed giving the contract for two years from November next to the Allans, but it was not signed, as there was some trouble about freight at St. John, owing to the difference of opinion that existed between Mr Shaughnessy and Mr Blair on that matter. The Allans were afraid that the Canadian Pacific Railway might run to Boston, in that case their boats might not get the necessary freight at St. John.

Woes of Millionaires.

An English millionaire has just been adjudged incapable of looking after his property. He imagines himself the Prince of Wales.

Some years ago a rich merchant took the idea that he was penniless. His sons, to stop his worrying, assured him they had rescued his business and was to continue it. They offered him a clerkship at a small salary in his own office. He took it and kept at work nearly 20 years When he died, he left nearly $15,000,000.

Two English millionaires were noted for their parsimony One picked up and smoked cigar ends. The other, after fine receptions in his house, would go around carefully collecting candle ends to be used again. Neither of these men was insane Both were shrewd in business.

Another millionaire imagined for a considerable time that he was a squirrel, and would eat nothing but nuts.

Another was too parsimonious even to buy himself a warm overcoat. Some of his friends made him a present of one, and he promptly sold it at secondhand and pocketed the money.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Was Hanged Over Again.

G. W. Stevens, who traveled extensively in India, tells the following interesting story: A Pathan was being hanged, when the rope broke. The warder bade him go up on to the scaffold again, but he objected. "No," he said, "I was sentenced to be hanged, and hanged I've been."

"Not so, friend," argued the warder; "you were sentenced to be hanged until you were dead, and you're not dead."

It was a new view to the Pathan, and he turned to the superintendent. "Is that right, sahib?"

"Yes, that's right."

"Very well. I didn't understand," and he went composedly up the steps and was hanged again like a man.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

What He Really Owed.

"Doctor," said the grateful patient, seizing the physician's hand, "I shall never forget that to you I owe my life."

"You exaggerate," returned the doctor mildly "You owe me only for 15 visits. That is the point which I hope you will not fail to remember."

Verdict as Rendered.

"Gentlemen of the jury," asked the clerk of the court, "have you agreed upon a verdict?"

"We have," replied the foreman. "The verdict of the jury is that the lawyers have mixed this case up so that we don't know anything at all about it."—Philadelphia North American.

THE BOXER'S FINISH.

ONE BOUT THAT SETTLED HIS PUGILISTIC AMBITION.

He Didn't Know the Man He Ran Up Against Until He Came Back to Consciousness, After Having Seen a Large Display of Stars.

"When I was much younger," said the portly government official, "I was a husky young fellow, chesty and easy about my pugilistic ability. I got the boxing bee in my bonnet and practiced hard with the gloves every night. I had been sparring with fellows in my gymnasium for about six months and picking up what I thought was a whole lot of cleverness, when I moved to a boarding house on Pierrepont street, in Brooklyn. I had a room on the top floor of this boarding house. The top floor's rooms were all occupied by young fellows like myself—law and medical students, newspaper chaps and that sort. It was rather a scapegrace lot, and I got acquainted with most of them immediately. I had a lot of athletic gear along with me—clubs, dumbbells, weight pulling machines and stuff—and from the jump I gave these floor mates of mine to understand that I was some considerable pumpkins as an athlete. When I showed 'em my boxing gloves, I was particular to dwell upon the fact that boxing was my one particular graft, and I think I modestly threw the hint out that I'd never yet met a man of my weight that could put the gloves on with me in the amateur class. For a couple of nights running I let them look at me in the act of punching a bag I had suspended from the ceiling of my room, and they all agreed, I think, that I'd be rather an unsafe proposition to get addled up with in a scrap.

"One of the occupants of that top floor was away when I struck the house, and he didn't return until I had been in the house for about a week. When he got back, the other fellows introduced me to him I didn't catch his name at the time, but he didn't strike me as being a very cheerful chap, and I rather ignored him. Well, all got to talking on my favorite subject, sparring, after awhile, and I invited any of the fellows present to put on the gloves for a little 'go' with me.

"'I won't hurt you, you know,' said I. 'I'll just tap you lightly, and you can hit me as hard as you want. It's raining, and I don't want to go to the gym tonight, and I wish one of you ducks 'ud just slip 'em on with me.'

"I didn't quite understand what they all meant when they exchanged glances and pushed forward the man who had been away since my advent in the house and whom I had just met.

"'Go on and put 'em on with him,' they urged this man 'He won't hurt you. You've had the gloves on once or twice, anyhow, while none of the rest of us knows anything about boxing. Go ahead and give him a little exercise.'

"'All right,' said this man rather reluctantly. He looked just like an ordinary man with his coat on, and I felt that he would be dead easy as a subject upon whom to practice and to show the other fellows what I knew about the fine points of the game. When he returned from his room, however, stripped to his trousers and his gauze undershirt, I couldn't help but look at the chap For a man of ordinary size he had the biggest chest I had ever seen, and his arms and shoulders were simply knotted and twisted with muscles. He was as quiet spoken a duck as ever I saw, though, and he didn't look to be lively on his feet, so we went at it.

"Well, say that was a one man bout, and the other fellow was the one man. There was nothing to it but him. From the very minute that we squared off I could see by the way he handled his dukes that the boxing game was his'n and that I was like six lead nickels in comparison with him. He just fooled with me at first—rapped me here and there at will, adding insult to injury by quietly announcing where he was going to jolt me next—and I never got in a lick or a dab on him. I tried my derndest when I saw I was totally outclassed to get in just one belt at him somewhere or other, but it was no go. He had a lightning guard for every essay I made to crack him one, and after about five minutes I was puffing like a tree toad and still taking whacks all over my hide, while he was as cool as a cucumber.

"'You're pretty good,' I gasped when we took a momentary rest. 'You've been at this game often, haven't you?'

"'I've had 'em on a few times,' he replied quietly. 'Let's have another short go.'

"Then we went at it again. He fiddled around for a minute, and then he caught me one with his left fist right under the chin I went sailing up into the air—I saw enough stars to have gone sailing right up among 'em—and I was out when I came down—good and out, as clean a case of knocked out boxer as ever happened in a prize ring. It was fully ten minutes before I came to, and when I did the other fellows were all fanning me and rubbing my head with ammonia and wondering if I was a sure enough dead 'un. I was all right after I got my head under the cold water spigot, and then one of the fellows took me into the center of the gang and said to me:

"'Maybe you didn't quite catch the name of the man you boxed with when you were introduced to him, hey?'

"'No, I didn't,' said I 'Who is he—John L. Sullivan?'

"'Not exactly Mr. Ford, step up and shake hands again. This,' went on the young fellow doing the introducing addressing me, 'is Malcolm W. Ford, the champion all around athlete of America. He has held that title for three years, earning it each year in competition with the best men in the whole country in athletic games. He holds the record for the running broad jump, the standing high jump, the pole vault, hammer throwing, shot putting, and he's among the best in the world as a 100 yard sprinter. He's all right.'

"'Yes,' said I. 'I think he is—even if he is a party to this awful job on me,' and we shook hands When the gang saw I was game enough to take my roasting good naturedly, they let up on me. But my pugilistic ambition wilted absolutely from that night."

The Hint That Failed.

The landlady looked solemnly in the direction of the delinquent one.

"It's a rule in this house to pay as you go," said she.

The delinquent one smiled.

"It's a good plan," said he. "You get it all in a bunch then or nothing."—Syracuse Herald.

KILLED ON A BRIDGE.

John Ion Caught by a G T R Train at Oakville.

Oakville, Ont., Oct. 5.—Mr John Ion (70), farmer, residing near here was struck and instantly killed by the west bound G T R express due here at 8.30 this morning. Mr Ion had been to the station to get his morning paper. He was in the centre of the bridge on returning, when his attention was called to the rapidly approaching train. Mr Ion started to run, but was caught about four feet from the end of the bridge and hurled twenty feet, striking a post. The train stopped and picked up the body, taking it to the station. One leg, one arm and the base of the skull were broken. Coroner Williams decided that an inquest was unnecessary. Mr Ion was an ex-Town Councillor and prominent in Methodist circles of this place.

G T R Half-Yearly Report.

London, Oct. 5.—The Grand Trunk railway report published yesterday is quite a colorless document, concerned alone with the satisfactory figures for the half year and the text of the agreement with the Government concerning the Intercolonial.

The half year's operations show a net improvement of £29,752. Passenger receipts improved £50,988, the average fair received increasing from 2s 11 1-4d to 3s 5 1-4d. The freight carried increased 440,807 tons, but the increase of low-rated through traffic caused the average receipt per ton per mile on the entire freight traffic to decrease from 0.66 of a cent to 0.58.

Canal Completed.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—The opening of the Soulanges canal is to take place on Saturday. Mr Blair will go down for the occasion and there will likely be visitors from Montreal and elsewhere. It is not expected that there will be much traffic through the canal this season, and the old Beauharnois canal will continue to be used for vessels up to the draught of nine feet.

Lake of the Woods Milling Co.

Montreal, Oct. 5.—The annual general meeting of shareholders of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company was held in the office of the company here yesterday. A dividend of 8 per cent. on the capital stock of the company was declared for the year ending August 31st, 1899. The company is increasing their capital by one million dollars. The output of the present mills will be largely increased, or new mills will be erected at other points.

VIVID HEALTH

Nothing so rare as charity, easily impaired and often lost—the envy of all and the grandest jewel in the crown of life is—vivid health. Many a man has paid the forfeit of sickness to the gain of wealth. A loaded purse cannot atone for the deranged liver, the altering step, the rebellious stomach. Every pulse beat of impoverished blood carries weakness and disease. Gradually all nerve power leaves you and the fire of life is gone. An empty sack cannot stand upright, and no health gathers in his cheques.

CO BO

Stimulants and Purgatives cannot cure you, but The GREAT INDIAN BLOOD MEDICINE must and will

Every bottle of this universal blood maker and flesh builder carries a positive GUARANTEE. Evidence of many tails of hidden disease. A deranged stomach will undermine the entire system. CO BO, in its direct action on the liver, kidneys and stomach, cures every phase of mal-nutrition, makes blood and carries food and strength to every tissue, and gives back health when once lurked death. THE ELECTION TRIAL

Thomas Lewis Denies Sworn Testimony of Bossard and Shantz.

HE GAVE NO INSTRUCTIONS.

He Utters a Sweeping Denial of Stories of Both Witnesses.

Hon. E. J. Davis on the Stand But His Evidence of Small Importance—Evidence on General Charges of Agency is Now About Concluded.

Berlin Ont., Oct. 5.—Thomas Lewis, of London, is the man whom Allan R. Shantz stated yesterday instructed him in the art of spoiling and switching ballots, and whom Bossard claimed gave money to bribe voters, and was present in his hotel when four voters were given money. He gave evidence at the North Waterloo trial this morning. He said: "I came into this riding to work for the Liberals at the request of Mr. Reid, of London. I paid my own expenses because I can afford it and take an interest in politics. My expenses were about fifty dollars for hotel and drinks. I spent no money to try and elect Breithaupt. I am in the hotel business and always spend money freely in other hotels when away. I came to do registration work, but was not put at it. I was in the riding from the 9th of May until the 17th of May, when I went to Toronto. Some of the time was spent in Waterloo. I was in Simon Snyder's store there to get the name of the chairman at New Germany. This was the only occasion of my being there. It was midday.

"If Mr. Hughes says it was evening he is mistaken. Snyder is stating falsely if he says I told him I was organizing for Breithaupt. I never told any one such a thing. I was never at Polemski's house with Albert Bossard. I never drove to Preston with Polesmski or any one who spoke Polish.

"I know John Brant. I met him at Oshawa in the South Ontario election. I worked openly there, and was charged with crimes against the Election Act. I don't know Allan R. Shantz I never saw him till this trial began. I received the letter from him, but in yesterday. I saw a declaration made by Shantz: it was shown to me by Mr. Macdonald in his office at Toronto, about the 6th or 7th of September. I gave the letter to Macdonald. I know nothing about the matters contained in it. Shantz did not know me and had no business to write me on any subject. I was present at Bossard's when he gave some parties some money. I don't know how much or what for. They were speaking in German, and I didn't understand a word.

"It is absolutely false what Bossard says about my giving him money to bribe voters or for any purpose whatever. Vance and I were at Bossard's on May 24th for a few minutes, but it is also false that he accounted to us for money spent, and that he gave him fifty dollars for his own work. Shantz's story that I met him at the Walper House and instructed him how to switch or spoil ballots is false. I had nothing to do with any such scheme if it ever did exist. I deny ever paying him any money for services in the election or for any other purpose.

"I deny that I told him or Shantz that they would not get into any trouble in case of a recount, as the ballots would come out the same as the count. I never spoke to Shantz at any time and don't know him."

Allan Huber said that Bossard spoke to him in front of the Walper House and said the Liberals had treated him badly. He had got a license for only three months instead of a year; that they had ruined his business and he would fix Breithaupt and connect him with the wrong-doing in the election. He never mentioned Lewis' name. He made no answer to what he said and left him."

S. A. Grant, recalled: "I sent Lewis for Bossard on Sept. 8, before the latter gave his evidence, and wanted him to call at the Walper House. We met at Frank Heiman's, where Bossard stated that the money he spent on the election was given him by a stranger whom he did not know. He never said a word then of having got any from Lewis. I knew he was going to give evidence and had heard of his implicating Lewis."

Hon. E. J. Davis, Provincial secretary; "I am not a member of the Ontario Reform Association. I don't know who composes it or carries it on. I was in this riding during the campaign because it was intimated that the Tories might carry the election and if so it would be a repudiation of the Reform party. I felt it my duty to see friends of the party and discuss our policy so as to interest all our friends and urge them to work for and return a Liberal. I know Alex. Smith and James Vance were here, but had nothing to do with sending them. I knew nothing about Lewis. I asked Mr. McDougall, the returning officer, if he had appointed Cummings a deputy returning officer on his first list. He answered 'Yes,' but had struck his name off because he heard he had taken some ballots from the printers to the committee rooms instead of to the court house. He afterwards found this information wrong and reinstated Cummings. I know J. W. Thompson, who was engaged in the Education Department. I know Bossard, and was passing his hotel one day when Mr. Smith or McCallum introduced us. This was outside. He never said a word about his license to me, and I knew nothing about any trouble about it. I spoke to him just as I would when introduced to any stranger. I was never at his place with Mr. Hardy and don't know of Mr. Hardy ever being near his place."

Attack on Paranaque.

Manila, Oct. 5.—An attack upon Paranaque was made by the insurgents last night and the rebel sympathizers in the town set fire to a number of buildings. Colonel Dager repulsed the attack and declined offers of assistance from Bacoor. The extent of the damage done by the incendiary fires has not yet been learned.

MOTIVES AND METHODS.

A Missouri girl killed herself because her sweetheart had gone to the war.

Robert F. Hayes, a Boston clerk, hanged himself with his necktie as the noose.

Because his mother would not let him go in swimming an Arkansas boy cut his throat.

Forked branches of an apple tree were used as a noose by a Stroudsburg (Pa.) suicide.

Champagne with arsenic in it was used by a San Francisco man as a means of self destruction.

Her husband wanted to move, and she did not. That led a Connecticut woman to drink poison.

Fearing that his wife would scold him for getting home late a newly made London bridegroom committed suicide.

"Ah, to see the moon at a distance of one meter," was the note left by a Paris suicide explaining his motive for death.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Work of laying the cable from Vancouver to Fanning island and thence to Australia and New Zealand will begin this summer, it is announced.

The new Nernst electric light dispenses with the usual vacuum bulb and replaces the hairlike filament with a short bar of refractory material, thereby greatly increasing the light and cheapening the cost.

Experiments have been made lately by French government officials with a new telephone, which enables persons to converse without putting their mouths and ears to the apparatus, the words being distinctly audible in any part of the room.

C. P. R. MACHINISNS ON STRIKE

Two Hundred Men Demand an Increase in Wages.

Winnipeg, Oct. 5.—The machinists employed in the C P R shops from Fort William to Vancouver, including Winnipeg, struck yesterday morning at 11 o'clock. About 200 men are out. The strike is the result of a movement by which the mechanists wish to have their order—the International Association of Machinists of America—recognized by the railway company. Delegates met here for several days and could come to no agreement with the company, and the strike was ordered to-day.

W McLean, of Vancouver, vice-president of the union, stated the case for the men as: "What we want may be summed up under three heads: (1) Recognition of our union, (2) establishment of a minimum wage clause, (3) increase of the allowance made for overtime.

"Union representatives came to Winnipeg from points all the way from Fort William to Vancouver, and on arriving here the manager of the company refused to see them, thus failing to recognize the union. We are also taking advantage of the busy season of the year to press our demands, as we feel that they are perfectly just, and that the company has had ample time to consider them and produce any information as to the rates paid on other roads. The minimum wage asked for is: From Brandon to Fort William, 28 cents per hour; from Laggan to Brandon, 27 1-2 cents per hour, and Vancouver to Laggan, 28 cents. I might say that this schedule is very reasonable and considerably lower than the rates of wages on either the Northern Pacific or the Great Northern Railway.

It is reported here that the engineers and apprentices, all, in fact, below the first and second engineers on the Empress of India, now at Vancouver, will join the strikers, and that the Empress will not be able to sail on Monday next.

The principal machine shops belonging to the railway company in Ontario are at Toronto Junction, Smith's Falls, and Havelock. General Superintendent Leonard, who has control of the middle district of the road, said yesterday afternoon that any strike on the lines west of Fort William would have no effect on the road in his district.

At the shops at the Junction between 50 and 60 machinists are employed, not including about 30 apprentices. The majority of them do no belong to a union, but several of them express themselves as being anxious to go out if a general strike occurs. The unorganized state of the mechanics, however, makes a strike at present improbable.

Danning Lost $50,000

Honolulu, Sept. 27, via Victoria B. C., Oct. 5—R B Danning, who left here August 30 on the steamship Australia, lost a valise containing nearly $50,000 in bank notes, bonds and sugar stock, in the Occidental Hotel just after he arrived in San Francisco. The valise was shipped by mistake on the Nippin Maru as part of the personal effects of Purser Piver. The latter discovered the mistake before arriving here and left the valise on the Pacific mail wharf. He evidently had no idea of the value of the contents of the valise, as he made no report to the steamship's company's agents, and the valise containing a small fortune lay compartively unprotected among other uncalled for packages until advice received yesterday by the Belgian King resulted in a search being made. The lost valise was found intact.

Caught in a Wheel.

St. Thomas, Oct. 5.—On his way to school a son of James Bole, aged about seven years, attempted to climb on a buckboard of a single rig, driven by Mr S Robinson, and in his attempts to get on put one of his legs through the spokes of the wheel. In an instant he was wound around the wheel. The lad's leg is broken in two places and is terribly shatterrd. His recovery is doubtful.

"ADMIT WITHIN FIRE LINES."

An Extraordinary Motto For a Reporter's Funeral Emblem.

In his story of "The Last of the Mulberry Street Barons," in The Century, Mr. Jacob A. Riis, author of "How the Other Half Lives," tells a rather gruesome but very amusing anecdote of a fellow reporter attached to police headquarters in Mulberry street, New York.

There had been a feud of long standing between the reporters in Mulberry street, and in consequence news was plentiful. There were mutual scores to be paid off, and we paid them off in the coin of the realm. The coin of Mulberry street was murder, fire and sudden death (we had passed the stage of boxing gloves and did not speak as we passed by), and it went a long way. I do not mean, of course, that we murdered or burned up one another, but these things were the staples of our daily work as police reporters, and when we were "out" the precinct returns received an extra sifting, with the result that many a grain of newspaper wheat that would otherwise have escaped was rescued from the dust bin.

We had our specialties in this contest of wits. One was distinguished as a sleuth. He fed on detective mysteries as a cat on a chicken bone. He thought them out by day and dreamed them out by night, to the great exasperation of the official detectives, with whom their solution was a commercial, not in the least an intellectual, affair. They solved them on the plane of the proverbial lacking of honor among thieves, by the formula, "You scratch my back, and I'll scratch yours."

Another came out strong on fires. He knew the history of every house in town that ran any risk of being burned, knew every fireman and could tell within $1,000, more or less, what was the value of the goods stored in any building in the dry goods district and for how much they were insured. If he couldn't, he did anyhow, and his guesses often came near the facts, as shown in the final adjustment. He sniffed a firebug from afar and knew without asking how much salvage there was in a bale of cotton after being 24 hours in the fire. He is dead, poor fellow. In life he was fond of a joke, and in death the joke clung to him in a way wholly unforeseen.

The firemen in the next block, with whom he made his headquarters when off duty, so that he might always be within hearing of the gong, wished to give some tangible evidence of their regard for the old reporter, but, being in a hurry, left it to the florist, who knew him well, to choose the design. He hit upon a floral fire badge as the proper thing, and thus it was that when the company of mourners was assembled and the funeral service in progress there arrived and was set upon the coffin, in the view of all, that triumph of the florist's art, a shield of white roses, with this legend written across it in red immortelles: "Admit Within Fire Lines Only." It was shocking, but irresistible. It brought down even the house of mourning.

Proud of Him.

When he was 50, he returned to his native town "just to see how the old place looked." He found it unchanged. The old store, where as a lad he had clerked it and sold calico and groceries to the old farmers, was just the same. He contrasted the sleepy old place with himself and felt a glow of satisfaction when he thought how much those 30 years had done for him. "They ought to be proud of me," he said to himself.

Presently he met one of the old inhabitants.

"Waal, I declare, is it really you, Hank?" said the old man incredulously. "We've heard you've been prospering fust rate since you went west. They've made you a railroad president or suthin of the sort, ain't they? I heerd so, but I couldn't believe it. It's really true, is it? Waal, all I've got to say is they must be purty hard up for railroad presidents out there."

THE TURF REVIEW.

[illegible], 2:14¼, is to be tried this year at the pace, by George Saunders, according to report.

Marion, 3, by Arion, dam Nancy Hanks, is said to be showing a good gait and good speed this year.

It is said that Rose Croix, 2:13¼ at three years, has shown a mile in 2:15 at the pace for McHenry, at Pleasanton, Cal.

Nelly R, ch. m., 2:20, by Red Cloud, although 10 years old, has never had a foal until this year. It is by Dan T, 2:08¼.

A horse with the peculiar name of Snow, by Seesaw, dam by Independence, is to be raced this year by D. H. McGill.

All reports to the contrary notwithstanding, it is thought that Willis O. Foote will be able to be in the sulky this season.

There is a great deal of talk about Directly, 2:03¾, beating all the pacers out this year and taking a record faster than 2:00 besides.

Since the sale of Advertiser, Palo Alto farm has only three sons of Electioneer remaining in the stud, Altire, Azmoor and Mendocino.

A race for a purse of $1,000 is projected for July 4, at Youngstown, O., with Lord Vincent, 2:16½; La Honda, 2:12¼ pacing, and Oddity, 2:10¼ pacing, among the starters.

The 3-year-old bay filly Marion, by Arion, dam Nancy Hanks, is eligible to start in the New England $10,000 Futurity, and is likely to do so if the reports of the speed she is showing are correct.

The first new 2:30 trotter of the year is a dun gelding named Dot, breeding unknown, who took the first heat of the 2:40 race at Norfolk, Va., May 16, in 2:27½.—Turf, Field and Farm

RAILROAD TIES.

It is proposed to construct a railway in French Guinea.

Khartum will be reached by the railroad by November next, barring accidents. The railroad is now 80 miles south of the Atbara river.

The original capital of the Pennsylvania railroad was $350,000. The system on its fifty-third birthday represented an investment of $900,000,000. Last year it carried 71,000,300 passengers.

An "improvement" introduced by the Great Eastern railway, England, consists in widening the cars to the limit of safety in order to allow six passengers to wedge themselves into one seat.

How They Used to Kill.

In repairing an old house in Dartford, England, not long ago the workmen found several ancient death warrants, bearing the signature of the Duke of Portland, minister of King George III. One of them, dated June, 1798, gives an idea of what legal hanging and quartering were like in those days. It runs:

"Whereas, James O'Coigley, having been attainted of high treason and had sentence passed upon him to be drawn upon a hurdle to the place of execution and to be there hanged by the neck, but not until he is dead, but that, being alive, he shall be taken down and his bowels taken out and burned before his face, that his head shall be severed from his body and his body divided into four parts, and that his head and body shall be disposed of as we think fit, and whereas we think fit to remit that part of the sentence directing the burning of his bowels and dividing the body into four parts, our will and pleasure is that he shall be drawn and hanged and have his head severed from his body."

How He Misunderstood.

There were loud cries from a man in the back of the hall, and the cornetist went at it again.

There were more cries from other parts of the hall, but, with that one still ringing in his ears, the cornetist kept it up.

"What are you trying to do?" asked the manager. "That's no encore."

"No encore?" exclaimed the cornetist when he had been induced to break off. "Didn't that man back there yell, 'Toot, mon!' four or five times?"

"Not any," answered the manager. "He's a Scotchman, and what he said was, 'Hoot, mon!'"

A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

The Victim Was the Samoan King Malietoa and the Victor an American Naval Officer—The Jack Pot That Caused the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymaster in the navy with King Malietoa several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever indulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kalakaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little brush on this line. Well, Malietoa's opportunity to test his belief came one day when an American man-of-war—never mind which one—sailed into the harbor at Apia. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the fullest extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an assistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malietoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Malietoa requested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Malietoa had almost phenomenal luck, winning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a smile of pleasure and triumph combined, announced that he would open it $20 worth. Every player staid. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Malietoa showed his blood by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others staid. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped out. After the king's last raise the paymaster hesitated a moment, put his cigar to one side and shoved $50 to the middle of the mahogany.

"The king put up the equivalent in Chilean silver dollars, the currency of the islands, and, drawing a small sack from his pocket, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Samoa, amounting to $79 in silver. The paymaster's face grew serious, and he looked at his royal opponent in a hesitating, puzzled sort of way. Could this be a Samoan Ah Sin he had run against? Had this kingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evening? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance some of it in finding out.

"After a few moments of indecision he drew $579 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malietoa gave a gasp and called for a glass of kava to steady his nerves. This he gulped down and announced that he was out of funds, requesting at the same time that the paymaster take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smiling and looking fixedly at the pot. Then the excited monarch offered to put up the island of Manono, one of the finest in the Samoan group, against the $500. To this the paymaster consented, and a transfer deed of the property, duly signed, attested by the trader, who was a notary public, and witnessed by the other two officers, was put in the pot. Then the king called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four aces and a five spot.

"With a look of horror and a Samoan wail of despair, his majesty exposed to view three kings, an eight spot and a deuce. Then he fell off his chair in a faint, the excitement having been too much for his nerves. Kava in copious quantities brought him around sufficiently to enable his removal to his own castle. The paymaster shoveled his money into a sack and placed it in the trader's iron safe, but the deed for the island he carefully placed in his pocket.

"Next morning the details of the big poker game were known to nearly every inhabitant of the place, and the German and English consuls sent official communications to the American consul protesting in most emphatic terms against the action of the king in disposing of the island of Manono to an American or to any one else, and warning the consul that unless the paymaster returned the deed for the island to the king at once they would direct the attention of their respective governments to the case.

"Here was a pretty state of affairs. The officer had, no doubt, won the island fairly, and the king's action was binding, but in the tension in which Samoan affairs were at that time the German and English governments would only too willingly have taken advantage of the circumstances as an excuse for international complications, ending ultimately in a disastrous way to American interests.

"The facts were fully explained to the paymaster, and on the promise of Malietoa that he would give the officer a number of fine mats and other Samoan articles of value the deed was returned to the king and destroyed. By mutual consent of the consuls and others interested the affair was hushed up in every way and was thus allowed to die out. Malietoa took an oath that he would never again play poker."

Reciprocal.

"Yes, sir," remarked the amiable man, "I look to see an Englishman come over here and drop his h's once in awhile."

"Yes," answered the man who has been to Epsom downs, "and he likes see us go over there and drop our

OBITUARY.

DEATH OF MRS. J. C. TURNBULL, IN NICHOLL'S HOSPITAL.

It is with deep regret that the Times is obliged to chronicle the death of Mrs. J. C. Turnbull, which sad event occurred yesterday at Nicholl's Hospital, at 12.30 o'clock.

About two weeks ago the deceased lady was stricken with typhoid fever, and gradually sank until it ended in death as above.

Mrs. Turnbull was the daughter of the late John Finlay of the township of Dummer, who took up residence in Peterborough on the corner of Harvey and London streets over thirty years ago. Mrs. Turnbull's mother is still living and resides with her daughter in Guelph. She leaves a husband and six children—five boys and one girl. She was 49 years of age, and respected and beloved by all who knew her.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 603 Stewart street, on Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

GEORGE H. CARTON.

A particularly sad death is that of George Henry Carton, only son of Mr. Geo. Carton, grocer, which occurred yesterday morning at 5.15 at the family residence. The deceased young man was only 18 years of age, and gave promise of a long and useful life. Six months ago he was attacked with lung trouble, and in spite of all that love and money could do, the disease could not be stayed. He was tenderly cared for by an only sister and loving mother and father, and passed away with an assurance of eternal rest. The sorrowing family have the sympathy of the community, in which the Times joins most sincerly.

Funeral from the family residence on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. CHAS. MORTON.

With great regret the death is announced of Mrs. Charles Morton of Smith. Mrs. Morton did not recover satisfactorily from her confinement about two weeks ago and death resulted on Thursday. The deceased lady, Sarah Mahood, was the second daughter of Mr. Edward Mahood, an old resident of Smith township. Mrs. Morton leaves no family but a husband and six brothers and sisters are left to mourn her early demise. Funeral from the family residence, lot 5, concession 2, Smith, to-day, Saturday.

Would Have Been Her Answer to Your Query—When?—But Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart Snapped the Death Strings.

Mrs. B., 186 Queen street W., Toronto, gives this unsolicited testimony: "For a number of years I have been a great sufferer from heart troubles, had smothering sensations, palpitation, neuralgia thumping, was very easily fatigued. I was induced to try Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart when I had despaired living through the night. The benefit was instantaneous. I have taken five bottles and have no hesitation in heartily recommending it, and will be glad to communicate with any one desiring it." Sold by Ormond & Walsh and W. S. McDonald.

KRUGER'S IN TOWN.

Brother of the President of the Transvaal is in Peterborough.

Augustus Hopper Kruger, a half brother of Oom Paul Kruger, President of the Transvaal republic, passed through Peterborough yesterday on his way to New York, where he will embark for South Africa, presumably to fight against Britain.

The news that Paul Kruger's brother was on the train soon spread amongst the passengers, and when Peterborough was reached a Times representative, who happened to be at the station, was made aware of it and was accorded an interview.

Mr. Kruger is not at all like the pictures we are accustomed to see of his brother, although he wears his hair combed back, and has the long grey beard of his illustrious relative.

He was engaged in pouring over a C P.R. time table when the Times entered, and after shaking hands, resumed his studies. He was very non-communicative, and answered our questions gruffly. He believes implicitly that victory will perch on the banner of "Oom Paul" if it comes to war with the British. He said that he had sons and grandsons in Kearney, Neb., whom he expects to follow him to South Africa in three or four weeks. As the train was about to move, Mr. Kruger lifted his eyes and nodded as our reporter withdrew.

RAILWAY NOTES.

The opening up of the country east of Kinmount, as far as Bancroft, by the I. B. & O. Railway, is leading to the development of a large freight traffic. The townships surrounding Bancroft are well settled and stock-buyers are driving a brisk trade among the farmers. Shipments of forest produce at points along the line are increasing, and during the coming winter immense quantities will be taken out, as several mills are to be established shortly.

The traffic over the C. P. R. just now is very great.

Double-header freight trains are now quite common on the Grand Trunk.

Nerve Centre's

Rebuilt by

Grape-Nuts

THE FAMOUS FOOD

A FOOD FACT.

The food Grape-Nuts positively does furnish the necessary elements to rebuild the brain and nerve centres. Analysis will show it; food makers know it is true; and the every-day user of Grape-Nuts can take his oath that while he may not be an expert food maker, or an analytical chemist, he "knows enough to know" when his body is well nourished, and the seat of his reason active, forcible, and in perfect poise.

Grape-Nuts are as truly the main stay of the brain and the nervous system, as a good stomach is the main stay of a healthy body. Let the "little lamp of reason shine forth" when you make selection of food. All first-class grocers sell Grape-Nuts, and the Postum Cereal Co. Ltd. make them at their Battle Creek factories.

Paine's Celery Compound

Repairs the Nerves and Tissues

Banishes Disease, Gives Fresh Red Blood and Perfect Health

The nervous system is a wondrous complication, and should at all times work with perfect harmony. While the working of the nervous system is unimpared, good and vigorous health is always maintained.

The woman who suffers from nervous prostration, hysteria or hypochondria, has nerves affected that communicate directly with the brain, and if care is not excercised she may become a fit subject for an asylum.

It should be well understood that dyspepsia, liver and kidney troubles and blood diseases have a profound effect on certain groups of nerves. These nerves or sensitive agents give us the first true warnings of dangers and perils.

When the nerves indicate the first symptoms of disease, the ailing man or woman should without loss of time make use of Paine's Celery Compound, nature's true nerve food, blood cleanser and flesh builder.

Medical experience points to Paine's Celery Compound as the true and unfailing banisher of disease, the only medicine that thorougly builds up the broken down nervous system, that dissipates debility, sleeplessness, neuralgia, rheumatism and blood troubles. It is the friend that brings perfect digestion, sweet sleep, tranquility and mental peace. If you have not yet used or heard of Paine's Celery Compound, ask any of your friends or neighbors who have received new life from its use; they will gladly and joyfully recommend it.

SIMPLY WONDERFUL

Are the Results of Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets in all Disorders of the Stomach.

No one need now endure the tortures of indigestion and dyspepsia. Within reach of all is an unfailing remedy which enables a person to get the full benefit of the food eaten. The pineapple liberally yields a component known as vegetable pepsin, a product second only to the human digestive secretions in its power of digesting food. Introduced in the human system it is simply incomparable as a natural aid to the digestive apparatus. Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets are composed of this grand fruit juice. They cure indigestion and dyspepsia positively. They are eaten as candy and give instant relief. Box of 60 Tablets, 35 cents. Sold by Ormond & Walsh and H. S. McDonald.

Most Costly Case Missed.

The Times was requested to state that the most costly town lawsuit in connection with the corporation, was omitted in the Clerk's report read before the Council at its last meeting. It was the troubles over the outfall sewer by which the corporation was stuck for an enormous bill of costs. It would be interesting, even at this late day, in view of the proposed changes in connection with our civic law department, to have a statement made out and published giving the exact cost of the arbitration expenses in connection with this matter.

Jim in Luck.

The Orillia News-Letter has the following:—"About six o'clock Friday morning Mr. F. J. Daly was aroused from his peaceful slumbers by the breaking of glass in the window of his bedroom at the Daly House. Imagining someone had thrown a stone through the pane, he was on his feet in a twinkling, with an angry glitter in his eye. He failed to find the stone, but what he did find was a plump full sized partridge fluttering about the room in an apparently exhausted condition, the bird having evidently been seeking refuge from a pursuer of some kind, probably a hawk. The fowl was captured and cared for, but died from the effects of its collision with the window four hours later."

Consumption Cured

An old physician, retired from practice, had placed in his hands by an East India missionary, the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and lung affections; also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints. Having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, and desiring to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who wish it, a recipe German, English or French, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail, by addressing, with stamp, naming this paper. W. A. Noyes, 820 Power Block Rochester, N. Y.

Thanksgiving Day, Oct. 19.

For many years past there have been protests that Thanksgiving Day usually observed late in November, was placed at too late a date, and that it was liable to be characterized by inclement weather, which meant colds or worse, or a day in the house, to the citizens who should have been enjoying a genuine holiday. This year the Government decided to break away from the usage of its predecessors, and announces Thursday, Oct. 19, as Thanksgiving Day. This should be an eminently satisfactory date. About midway between Labor Day and Christmas, it will be a welcome holiday to the many toilers, whose days of respite from work are all too few. The weather of the third week in October is usually fine, in fact Canada's glorious Indian summer is usually expected about then.

As to Diptheria.

The Provincial Board of Health has issued a circular respecting diptheria. Dr. Bryce, the author of the pamplet calls attention to the fact that in London asylum, before anti toxine was used, the mortality was 33.3 per cent. and since then but 18.4 per cent. He says that it is plain that local Boards of Health in Ontario should exact every means to obtain the earliest information possible regarding cases of diptheria and to supply antitoxine for use in cases where persons are too poor to buy for themselves.

An Unnatural Mother.

There was an impromptu indignation meeting of men in front of one of the big stores on George street over the case of an apparently sick and very cold baby which had been left alone in a perambulator while its mother or nurse was absent in some neighboring store. One gentleman, who had been watching the baby for some time was most emphatic in his denunciation of the cruelty or carelessness of the little one's supposed care-taker and he was half inclined to put the case in the hands of the police.

The Big Poultry Show.

The directors of the Peterborough Poultry Association are making extensive preparations for the coming show of the Ontario Poultry Association, which will be held in Peterborough in January next. At a meeting held at the Morgan House a committee was appointed to canvas for advertisements for the prize list, 2,000 copies of which are to be printed. The popular secretary, Mr Wm Collins, is sparing no pains to make the show a huge success.

A CHILD CAN USE THEM.

Easy to Dye With Diamond Dyes—No Disappointments or Failures—Colors are Fast to Sun, Soap and Washing.

Do not for a moment imagine that it is a difficult matter to do your own dyeing. It is true the work will be hazardous and disappointing if you use the imitation and crude package dyes sold by some dealers, but when Diamond Dyes are used it is but little more trouble to get fast and lovely colors than it is to wash and rinse the goods.

Do not allow your dealer to sell you imitations of the Diamond Dyes, on which he makes large profits, but insist every time on having the true, reliable and genuine Diamond Dyes that have stood the tests of long years in our Canadian homes.

Wood for Sale.

Having purchased the old "Red Mills" at Nassau, I am tearing them down, and will have in consequence a very large quantity of fine dry pine for sale, suitable for kindling. Geo. Stevens, Ashburnham.

Partridges must be very numerous this fall according to the reports that have been received. One day last week, Master Bernard Dench, son of Mr R Q Dench, Douro, captured one in the woodshed. In the back country they are said to be unusually numerous.

Capt Rollie Griffin, of Lakefield, is registered at the Snowden House. He is in search of samples of blue clay for commercial purposes. Capt Griffin is representing one of the largest business concerns in Canada. The Cap is a hustler, and the firm is to be congratulated upon securing the services of so pushing a representative.

TOOK CARBOLIC ACID.

SUICIDE OF MRS. J. JOHNSTON, OF OTONABEE.

In a Fit of Melancholy She Swallows Nearly Two Ounces of the Poisonous Drug.

On Saturday night about ten o'clock a telephone message was received by Dr Brown requiring him to go at once to the home of Mr J Johnston, who lives at Downer's Corners, just outside Ashburnham. On arriving he found that Mrs Johnston had swallowed within a fraction of two ounces of carbolic acid. He at once pumped the stomach and applied antidotes, but the woman died about four o'clock yesterday. She was unconscious when he arrived, and remained so until her death.

It appears that the unfortunate woman had been in poor health for some time and had threatened to take her own life. She became so emphatic in this that her husband had a neighbor, Mrs Mitchell, come and watch her. About ten o'clock on Saturday night she got up and went into her bedroom, closing the door behind her. Mrs. Mitchell, who followed, found her lying on the bed, and as she entered Mrs Johnston exclaimed: "I have done it—I have taken the carbolic acid!" Mr. Johnston, who was in the next room, hastened to the nearest telephone place and called Dr Brown, with the above result.

The deceased was about 56 years of age, and is without children, or, as far as the Times could learn, any relatives in this locality.

SIGHT THROUGH X-RAYS.

A Blind and Paralytic Child Marvellously Restored.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Harriet Heilbuth, 5 years old, and for two years blind and a paralytic, has had her sight and the use of her limbs restored through the agenc of the X rays. Two years ago the child, while playing, fell from a porch to the sidewalk, a distance of 16 feet, striking on her head. The fall left her totally blind and with her right side paralyzed. A few days ago the X rays were applied and revealed a tumor the size of an egg pressing on the brain. The skull was trephined directly over the cryst as shown in the skiagraph and the tumor removed. The child was able to move her limbs on recovering consciousness, and is now gradually recovering her sight.

TWO SUDDEN DEATHS.

Mrs Thomas McGee and Mr. John Boate Drop Dead.

On Saturday Mrs Thomas McGee, who resides on lot 19, 1st concession, Emily, about 7 miles from Peterborough, dropped dead Saturday morning while polishing the kitchen stove without, so far as can be learned, a moment's warning. Mrs McGee, who was about 65 years of age, lived with her son and on Wednesday was in good health and attended the funeral of the late Mr and Mrs Rutherford. She resided with her son and has been a resident of the township for over a quarter of a century. Her husband died several years ago. Mrs McGee was in religion a member of the Church of England, and very highly respected in the neighborhood where she passed the years of her life. Deceased who was an estimable woman was preparing to go on a visit to her sister, Mrs James Grant, near Bridgenorth when stricken down.

Another terribly sudden death was that of Mr John H Boate, who resides in Emily about two miles from Fowler's Corners, who also dropped dead, after having completed milking the cows on Saturday last. The deceased, who was about 35 years of age, had been in ill health for a couple of years and had leased his farm. But of late he had improved in health and was preparing to resume farming and had done considerable fall ploughing preparatory to taking over the premises. He also was at the funeral of the Rutherfords on Thursday last and wa afterwards a visitor at the Omemee exhibition, where was met by many of his friends and was apparently, in his usual health. The late Mr Boate was married about five years ago to Miss Tully, sister of Mr James A Tully of Gough Bros., and leaves a widow and a child two and a half years of age, to mourn his sudden death. Mr Boate was a prominent resident of the township and held in high respect. At one time he occupied the position of councillor.

Infantry Versus Strikers.

Paris, Oct. 7.—Dissensions are reported among the leaders of the strike at La Creusot on account of the decision to accept the arbitration of the Government.

The Echo de Paris states that in anticipation of the march of the strikers on Paris ten battalions of infantry are ready to proceed to bar the roads to the strikers.

French Parliament.

Paris, Oct. 7.—The French Parliament, it is understood, will be convened on November 3.

BRITISH ARMY RESERVES ARE CALLED OUT

And the Army in South Africa Will Very Shortly Amount to Over Twenty-five Thousand Men.

THE BOERS' REPRESENTATIVE NOT RECEIVED.

In London the View Is That War Is Definitely Decided Upon, and That Any Further Discussions Aiming to Avert It Is Now Out of Place.

London, Oct. 7.—Proclamation summoning Parliament to meet on Oct. 17 and authorizing the calling out of the reserves was signed this morning.

The Gazette announces that summonses will be issued to-day for the number of reserves to bring every battalion ordered to South Africa to its full strength of 1,1000 men, and the men must present themselves before Oct. 17.

This forward movement there is fully counterbalanced by stories of military preparations in the Transvaal and the Orange Free State.

McKINLEY TAKES A HAND.

Washington, Oct. 7.—The State Department has received from the Secretary of the Transvaal the notification that he has appointed General James R. Oberne to represent the Transvaal in this country and asking if he would be acceptable. Assistant Secretary Hill replied that the rules of the United States Government forbid the reception of American citizens as the diplomatic representatives of a foreign Government.

TROOPS IN SOUTH AFRICA.

London, Oct. 7.—The scope of Great Britain's military preparations can scarcely be grasped by the mere reading of individual items as these appear from day to day. A fair notion of their immensity can be gained from the semi-official statement that, for the transport of the army corps about seventy ships of from 2,000 to 4,000 tons burden are required, not including a score or more of transports already on the way to the Cape. If these vessels effectively disembark their cargoes of men, horses and equipment within five weeks from their date of sailing, the programme will have fulfilled the forecasts of the most optimistic British military experts. If all the troops are able to take their places as component parts of the army corps by the end of November they will have done, according to the best available opinion, remarkably well.

Rotten Hulks.

Nor do the arrangements escape criticism. Letters begin to appear in the newspapers alleging favoritism, and declaring that some of the transports are "rotten hulks." The recent breakdown of two vessels with troops on board, is cited as substantiating this charge; but there does not seem to be any serious ground for supposing that the Admiralty is actuated by wrong motives. Although the impending army corps is a matter of prominent military interest, the troops already on the scene of probable action constitute no significant body.

Troops on the Field.

The original Cape garrison was 9,000 men, and this has been increased by 4,500. There are 12,000 men at sea on the way to the Cape, and their arrival will make the approximate total of British troops in South Africa prior to the arrival of the army corps 25,500. These troops do not include the irregular forces, the Cape mounted rifles, the Port Elizabeth and Grahamtown Volunteers, the Natal Police, the Durban Light Infantry, the Australian force, nor the regular naval brigade.

The Cape Squadron.

The Cape squadron now includes ten warships, all heavily manned; and the British first-class protected cruisers Terrible and Powerful will soon arrive, enabling the navy to land a brigade of about two thousand men.

Against this array are opposed the Transvaal and its ally, the Orange Free State, with perhaps a sprinkling of natives. This is about all that can be said regarding the Boer forces. They are virtually non-regulars, and attempts to estimate their fighting strength are hopeless, although various calculations appear daily in the English newspapers ranging from 20,000 to 125,000, the latter figure being obvously very extravagant.

Every Boer Will Fight.

The whole question was summed up today for the Associated Press by an influential member of the House of Commons, who said: "Before this is ended Great Britain will have to face every Boer man or boy strong enough to fire a gun for the sake of his country."

What Will Foreigners Do?

The part which the foreigners who are volunteering under the Boer standard, especially Americans, will take in the expected conflict, provokes much supposition and comment. The St. James Gazette's Pietermaritzburg correspondent says: "American civil and mechanical engineers have been engaged by the Boers to dismantle the Netherlands Railway in the event of a Boer retrograde movement upon Pretoria. They will certainly not meet with too considerate treatment if taken prisoners. Something like a dozen of these adventurious Yanyees are professional railway wreckers now living in comparative clover in Pretoria."

Irishmen Will Fight.

The Boer ranks will certainly include a number of Irishmen and former officers of the German army. It is said the Boers will adopt the policy they adopted in 1881, when ten sharpshooters were detailed out of each company to pick off the British officers.

BOER COMMANDERS IN COUNCIL.

London, Oct. 7.—A despatch from Volkarust says the generals in command of the Boer forces on the Natal frontier have held a council of war under Gen. Joubert, at which important movements were decided upon. Eight laagers have now been established along the border, and all arrangements have been made for an immediate advance if such a move is required. Fresh drafts of burghers are arriving hourly. There are already eight thousand men in the main camp at Zandfontein. The other border camps are well entrenched. The Boers do not expect a surprise attack by the British.

Seven troopships have now reached Durban. Four thousand five hundred troops have already landed, and it is expected that 4,500 more will be disembarked before Sunday. The Dutch volunteers will be sent to Griqualand, south of Natal, so that in the event of war they will not be required to fight their own kindred.

At Cape Town there is much anxiety lest the Boers seize the coal consigned to Cape Colony from the Free State mines. This would cripple the railway service, and also the navy, which rely on the Dundee coal fields for supplies.

In Johannesburg thousands of natives have invaded the town and are raiding all the places where they think liquor is stored.

War Decided Upon.

In London the view is that war is definitely decided upon, and that any further discussions aiming to avert it are out of place, now prevails everywhere. The military operations alone hold public attention.

The Daily News this morning asserts that an army corps will be mobilized today.

The Daily Chronicle's Rome correspondent says that the British Government has applied to Signor Marconi with a view to employing his system of wireless telegraphy in the Transvaal campaign.

The Boers are now encamped only four miles from Laing's Nek, but have not yet attempted to occupy the town, although they send their mounted scouts over the border nightly to see if the British troops are likely to repeat the tactics which proved so signally unsuccessful in the war in 1881.

The nearest point occupied by British forces now is Glencoe, but there and at Ladysmith the English are sufficiently strong to deal with any Boer attack and prevent the invasion of Natal.

The Irish corps in Johannesburg, which includes Colonel Baker's Rough Riders has issued a call to arms in aid of the Transvaal. A later despatch from Johannesburg says the Irish corps has started for the frontier.

A SYSTEM OF EXPLORATION.

United States Should Join England and Germany in Arctic Research.

Berlin, Oct. 8.—Dr. Nansen, the Arctic explorer, said to-day to the correspondent here of the Associated Press:

"The United States ought to join Great Britain and Germany in co-operative Polar exploration. Thus the three progressive nations would work for a common good of mankind and science. If the Polar districts are ever to be thoroughly explored, it will probably be due to such joint action."

Poultney Bigelow has presented a written motion for the International Geographical Congress' adoption, saying that hereafter each colonial power pledges itself to submit such new methods or questions relative to the treatment of natives as may come up from time to time to a permanent international committee empowered to decide upon them. This proposition coincides with that Andrew White, the United States Ambassador made at the recent peace conference at The Hague.

SPORTING ITEMS.

FOOTBALL.

It is likely that a game will be arranged for Thanksgiving day, October 19th, with a strong outside team.

A committee is being appointed to make arrangements for the entertainment of the Irish football team on the occasion of their visit here on Nov. 1st. It may please the girls to know that a big dance is on the tapis.

GOLF.

The match between the Bank of Commerce and their patrons, the General Electric Co., came off on Saturday afternoon. The play was of a first class character, and of course was enjoyed by the different contestants. The Commerce players were defeated, but there were no heart burnings or post-mortems. They fully appreciated the superior play of the Electric team and at times insinuated that the balls were charged with electricity. Sam Ray offered to bet a barrel of flour for the orphans' home that the Commerce team can beat any combination in Peterborough, provided the green committee do their duty and remove obstructions. The result of the game was as follows:—

Mr Carter won from Mr McGill, 1.
Mr Houston lost to Mr Barton, 1.
Mr McHarrie lost to Mr Ritchie, 7.
Mr Francis lost to Mr Holst, 2.

CURLING.

The annual meeting of the Bobcaygeon Curling Club was held on Monday evening last and was well attended. The following officers were elected: Patron and Patroness, Mr and Mrs M M Boyd; President, W A Davis; Vice-President, Thos Van Nosman; Chaplain, Rev W J Creighton; Secretary-Treasurer, R Ventress; Representatives, W T C Boyd and R K Connel. Committee, W T Comber, M Walsh, Dr Boyd and C Logie. A discussion was held on the proposed rules of the Association, that all match games should be 18 ends instead of 22. It was also decided after much deliberation that it would be best to drop out of the Tankard competition and take one season at the District Cup. The outlook is considered promising for a revival of the game.

Lumber Camps.

Bobcaygeon Independent: The Hazlitt Co., of Peterborough, is opening its lumber camps in the old Scott limits and purposes having five in operation during the winter, employing well on to five hundred men. Mr Wm Patterson, jr., took eleven men in on Monday to open a camp, and at present the five are running with small crews. This firm always prepares well ahead, and has now stored in the woods hay and oats sufficient to last till sleighing, though the road from here to Ketchecum Lake is reported to be in excellent condition. Two loads of flour went in on Monday, together with a drove of cattle. The depot farm has been managed all summer and has grown a quantity of vegetables, and there are now fully a hundred head of cattle grazing and fattening for beef. The amount of work that has to be done in rivers and roads is very large in all lumber operations, and the Hazlitt firm expend considerable sums in this way, frequently making improvements in roads, evading hills, etc., that is a public service. Chas. Stone has now a crew of men clearing the cut at Ketchecum Narrows, and it will be a great improvement. The cut next winter will be a very large one and the trade in the neighborhood necessitated by such operations will be of substantial benefit to the farmers of the district.

The local football team is kicking because it is to play the Irish team. Some people are born kickers, anyhow.

DON'T WANT THEM.

FRANCE WILL NOT ALLY HERSELF WITH GERMANY.

The Village of Bazeilles Still Bears the Wounds of the Last War.

London, Oct. 7.—The much talked of entente between France and Germany has just received a cold water ducking by the recent ceremonies at Bazeilles, according to the accounts in the French papers. The two days' fighting in 1870 around and in that village, where Napoleon's regulars fired their last cartridges, formed the sequel to Sedan. Among all the accounts of battles there are few indeed that are more dramatic or more rich in examples of heroism and horrors than the story of Bazeilles. Even the comparatively brief sketch of it in the London Times by the Duc de Fitz James, after the capture of the village by the Germans, send a shudder through the reading world. After the Crimean war, the war in Italy and the gigantic Civil War in the United States, all marked by deeds of generosity and chivalry, and all unstained by atrocity, the world was but poorly prepared for Bazeilles. Even to-day the "damned spot" will not 'out" for Germania.

The record is still red, but it is relieved somewhat by the recollection of the glorious conduct of the German officer, who, sword in hand against his own men, saved the life of the heroic Lambert, whose portrait can be seen in the figure leaning against the old oak chest in De Neuville's picture, Les Derniers Cartouches.

Every year there is something new and interesting in the ceremonies at Bazeilles. As in former years, the religious part of them was carried on this year in the private dwelling which still takes the place of the church that was shattered by shot and shell. All the principal cities of France were represented by delegations of veterans of the war of 1870. At the close of the religous ceremonies the Mayor of the Commune, M Vautier, delivered an address in which he protested against any reapproachment with Germany.

"No, gentlemen," said he; "here in Bazeilles there is a flood of hatred and rancor which is destined to separate us for ever from our enemies of 1870. With fire and sword they marked upon our hearts the recollection with the Germans! Let us hope, on the contrary, that this land, enclined by the generous blood of our brothers who died for their country, will soon raise up that vigorous growth which enables us to hope and to watch."

Bazeille would surely be a poor place to preach the blessing of socialism and anarchy linked with the obliteration of frontiers and the beautiful brotherhood of man. The village still bears the wounds of the war. Most of the houses are bespattered with bullet marks, and here and there shells may be seen embedded in the walls. Many of the houses have been left just as they remained after the war, that is to say, in ruins. They are now ivy clad. The graves of the non-combatants killed in cold blood after the capture of the place are well and carefully kept, and the stories of the victims are told and retold doubtless with many variations.

Twenty-nine years have brought about many changes for the better in most places, but this old shell-battered village limps slowly indeed along the road to prosperity. Its population broods constantly over its misfortunes in the annee terrible, and dreams of nothing but revenge. Perhaps it presents the true portrait of France at present. If this should be so, the world may witness another struggle between France and Germany, and the battle-cry of the French will be "Bazeilles!"

WILL THEY REPUDIATE?

The Central Exhibition Association Talking of Going into Bankruptcy.

Yesterday afternoon a meeting of the directors of the West Peterborough Agricultural Society (which is a chartered company under the Arts and Agriculture Act) was called to consider the situation and wind up matters connected with the late exhibition.

It is understood that some of the directors are in favor of taking the money on hand and paying a note of about $800 for which they are personally liable, and which has for some time been carried in the bank. This would mean that no prizes or other obligations connected with this year's exhibition be paid. If the other course is taken, and the show is to go on, the directors will have to borrow about $1,000 additional on their personal bond.

It would be an everlasting disgrace to repudiate, and we hope the directors will think well over it before they take this course. The Times would suggest that a subscription be started, as was done once before, and an energetic canvas for funds made. Let the proprietors of the Review and Examiner (especially the Examiner), who have had a cinch on all the printing for many years past, lead the list with, say $100 each, which represents but a small portion of their profits, and other subscriptions will follow, including the Times. One thing is certain: It will never do to repudiate.

Canadian Hay Wanted.

It is probable that the campaign in South Africa will create a demand for Canadian hay and fodder. The Dominion department of agriculture was advised yesterday by the Canadian high commissioner in London that the firm of Abbott, Broad-st., Ratcliffe, London, is anxious to obtain the names of reliable Canadian firms who could ship timothy and mixed hay to London within the next three months

PETERBOROUGH, OCTOBER 9, 1899

BOER IGNORANCE.

An element of the Transvaal fight, if it occurs, will be the fanaticism of the Boers. A great many of the Boers are both ignorant and fanatical.

Mr. Fuller, a well known South African, tells the following story that illustrates the way a great many of the burghers regard the coming fray.

The Burgher predicted victory for the Boers. And added "We will capture Cape Town and then take England."

"But," said Mr. Fuller, "it's a long way to England, and you have no ships."

"What of that?" replied the Boer. "Cannot the Lord make a passage for us as He did for the Israelites across the Red sea?"

"Of course, of course," said Mr. Fuller. "I hope it will be a wide one, or else you might get a broadside from the British fleet."

A kind of people that talk that way are as likely to be as reckless in the fight as fuzzy wuzzy, and armed with Mauser rifles, a trifle more dangerous.

HINT TO JOHN BULL.

The New York World is calling for signatures to a petition urging President McKinley to offer the friendly offices of the United States as mediator between Great Britain and the Boers.

There can be no great objection to this picturesque form of indulgence in the advertising habit.

Americans might sit down and figure out how United States public opinion would view an English petition urging Lord Salisbury to offer the services of the British Government as mediator between the Republic of McKinley and the Republic of Aguinaldo.

When Salisbury offers to umpire the differences between the United States and the patriots in the Philippines, then, and not till then, it will be time for President McKinley to rush in and offer to serve as mediator between Great Britain and the patriots in the Transvaal.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Good morning.

•• •• ••

It must have revolted Oom Paul's Puritan conscience to steal that trainload of gold. He will have to make the pages of the good book flicker to find texts to square himself.

•• • ••

A new Jersey jury last week awarded a boy $5,000 for the loss of his right hand, and another jury at the same court next assessed the value of a girl's right hand at only $1,000. The hand that rocks the cradle is decreasing in value in these days of creches, kindergartens and other labor-saving machinery.

•• • ••

That grand man, Lord Strathcona, has added another link to the long chain of noble deeds which binds him to the people of Canada, and has made his name beloved by the people of this country. He has just donated $10,000 to the proposed maternity hospital in Montreal.

•• •• ••

The much talked of Anglo-American entente has suffered a succession of severe jolts lately as the result of England's little difficulty with the Transvaal. American papers which bubbled over with brotherly love to England while Uncle Sam was thrashing the Spaniards are decidedly sulky these days. The transvaal embroglio has stirred the smouldering hatred of England that always lurks in their bosoms until it has broken out in spots in the shape of sarcastic comments on England's weakness, as the Detroit Tribune puts it, for "abutting nuisances which happen to occupy valuable corner lots."

The Wreck of the Jack Pot.

(With sundry and divers apologies for miasma, prostrations, etc., etc., to the author of The Wreck of the Woodsrow.)

On one dark night on Otonabee,
She snow and rain and blow—
De boys, she' say "I's play some draw,"
"All right," I say, "she go!"

Now, I was play dat game before
An' know, you bet your neck,
All 'bout de raise befo' de draw
But dat was down Quebec.

Wan man with' nice dress, Unat Stat,
(I find it out since den),
She work at "short card" for de biz—
(I don' know what dat ben.)

De bar-keep man she get it too,
An' prospector named Sleek—
By gos! if I hav gun dat tam
I mak dat feller seek.

Another man from fown Lindsay,
She lak to play de gam—
Was what you say de "sure ting" boy,
But I not care for dam.

When we start in I did not have
So very much monee
But after while—by gos! my fren—
You ought to hav seen me.

We hav de drink mos' ever han
I'm tak'n straight swiskee,
De boy, she's hav' de lemonad—
Pooh! Dat's too weak for me.

I raise de bet and mak de bluff
(Mos' every tam' she go)—
You see dat' sam you tink I'm swift
An' oder feller slow.

Well, long 'bout two, t'ree, four de clock
(De mon she's mos all mine),
One feller say, "to hell de luck,
We play jack pot dis tam."

Well, I not know Jack Pot ver well
(She's sheef boss at Receau),
But I not care who play de gam
So long's I get de dough.

When dey explain I see de chance
To pull off de gran coup—
Jus' fifteen minutes from dat tam,
By gos! I'm in de soup."

De man from Unat Stat, she stay,
An' raise Sleek fifty back;
Dat cos' me hundred, but I'm gam,
Dere's where I mak mistak.

De man from Unat Stat, she deal,
An' Sleek, she cut de card—
If I could see dat feller now,
Sacre, I hit ham hard.

I get t'ree king, I say, "she's ope' "
—Bar-keep trow up de han'—
But Sleek, she's raise me fifty dol'—
Saint Jean! I hear de ban'.

We draw de card—Merci! Merci!
Dame Fortune, how you sing!
I got de whole world by de tail—
By gos! I got four king!

But, den, my monee she's all up
De boy; she's bet de check—
Hooray! I bet' de house and lot!
I'm in for brak de' neck.

Dere's call all round, I sign de pap,
My house 'rains' whole dam place—
De man from Unat Stat, she smile—
Mon Dieu! she got four ace!

Dat morning very early, I guess—
'Bout half-pas' two, t'ree, four,
Dere was a fight on Otonabee—
I not live dere no more.

But now I got anoder place,
You see, she's right up dere;
I call dat claim Jack Pot—for why?
Dat claim she is not square.

•• • ••

Come all you man what hunt for stake,
Wid beeg pack om de neck,
Don't try wid man from Unat Stat
For buck de cold, cold deck.

On some dark night on Otonabee
She snow and rain and blow;
De boys she' say "le's play some draw,"
You say "good-night, I go."

Power of Public Opinion.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—As "everybody reads the Times," Peterborough's wide-awake daily newspaper, I venture to use a small space to say a few words.

Public sentiment is rapidly becoming the one governing force in the administration of the concerns of man, and it is already stronger than the self-will of president, king or potentate. It was public sentiment in Germany that taught the young kaiser that a very little autocracy would go a long way with the people. It was public opinion beginning to assert itself that caused the czar of Russia to issue a ukase abolishing the Siberian prison system.

It was public sentiment that drove the American nation to espouse the cause o the Cubians for their liberation from Spanish tyranny, and the fire of that same sentiment is spreading to all civilized people only to return to condemn those who are betraying the Cubans. And the same abhorence of injustice to human kind will surely sweep down upon those who are conspiring to reduce the Filipinos to the status of mere subjects and rule them and theirs with the iron hand of militarism. So, too, will the same world-wide sentiment hold the Town Council and its satilettes to strict account for the scandals in connection with the paving contracts.

Thanking you, Mr Editor, for your valuable space, I am, &c.

R. DAVIS.

"They Said It Was Fatal."

An instance of the way doctors may be mistaken is shown in the experience narrated by Dr. Joseph Fike, of Lost Springs, Marion Co., Kan. "Ten years ago" he says "there was an emigration from Rusland to this country, and there was a lady in the company who was badly affected with that dreadful disease scrofula. Her mouth and throat were in an awful condition, and there were lumps on the outside below the jaws the size of a hen's egg. Other doctors had been called and they said it was a fatal case.

"I was called and made my diagnosis; I felt confident that none of my remedies would do her any permanent good. It came to my mind that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was recommended for it, so I went to the drug store and bought one bottle and gave it to her to use as directed. Five bottles cured her and she is well to-day. She is married now and has three healthy children.

"If this is a credit to your medicine" adds Dr. Fike in a communication to Dr. Pierce "you can use it. I am using a good many of your medicines in my practice."

In his own profession Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., is honored as among the foremost of living specialists in diseases of the blood and nervous system. If your health is poor write to him in perfect confidence for good advice. It will be sent you in a plain sealed envelope, without charge.

For the most obstinate forms of constipation, use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Their action is prompt yet comfortable; their effect is permanent. Insist that the druggist does not give you something else.

Smoking in the Dark.

"How can you account for the well known fact that a cigar when smoked in the dark loses much of its flavor?" was asked of an alleged philosopher.

"The reason is," said the philosopher, "that when all the senses are active each sense is more active than it would be if it were doing duty alone. So that when the eye ceases to work the palate and nose become dulled. To express it figuratively, the eye is endowed with a rudimentary power of smell and in the dark loses not only its sight, but its contributing power of smell."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Cost Her Her Reason

A once renowned French actress lost her reason through a trifling occurrence. She was visiting at an ancient chateau, in the vicinity of Mentone, when a friend challenged her to pass the night alone in an alleged haunted chamber. She accepted the challenge. During the night she called for aid, and an attendant found her in a state of pitiful fright through certain uncanny sounds she had heard. Finally she developed a nervous disorder, which culminated in insanity. The ghostly visitants were rats.

Most fascinating invention of the age. Always ready to entertain. It requires no skill to operate it and reproduce the music of bands, orchestras, vocalists or instrumental soloists. There is nothing like it for an evening's entertainment. Other so-called talking machines reproduce only records of cut-and-dried subjects, specially prepared in a laboratory, but the Graphophone is not limited to such performances. On the Graphophone you can easily make and instantly reproduce records of the voice, or any sound. Thus it constantly awakens new interest and its charm is ever fresh. The reproductions are clear and brilliant.

A SENSATIONAL ARREST

A Collector of Customs Arrested on Charges of Conspiracy.

SEEMS A WIDESPREAD PLOT

His Nephews Have Been Sentenced For Scuttling a Schooner.

Information Has Also Been Laid With the Crown Concerning Wilful Destruction by Fire of Other Buildings and Vessels—Great Sensation Caused.

Guysboro, N. S., Oct. 6.—The excitement reached fever heat this morning when it became known that Enos L Munro, Collector of Customs for Whitehead, had been arrested on charges of conspiracy and arson.

The arrest of Munro will prove particularly interesting to Halifax in view of the fact that it was he who obtained a verdict against Detective Power for alleged false arrest for over $600 damages, which the County Council paid. Munro was arrested by Power on charge of

from the cashier of the Portland Packing Company. The cashier boarded at Munro's residence, and the money, it was alleged, was stolen from his room. Munro was apprehended by Power and Wright and handcuffed, and subsequently acquitted, and a suit for damages instituted. The payment of the amount by the Halifax City Council caused much talk at the time.

To-day Power's prosecutor is again in the hands of the law, and warrants have been issued for the arrest of others. The information on which the collector was apprehended was laid before Stipendiary Davidson by Munro's sister, Mrs Hugh Munro, who deposed that Enos L Munro, Granswick Munro and Howard Munro, of Whitehead, Guysboro, between October 1st and November 1st, 1897, at Whitehead, did wilfully conspire to set fire to Government buildings at Whitehead oil house and boat house. The information further charges that the accused did set fire to said buildings.

A Widespread Case.

Munro was arrested at daylight this morning at the house where he is boarding. His surprise was great. He had decided to leave for home this morning, having come here to testify for the clearance of the vessel Juventer in the scuttling case. Mrs Hugh Munro, the informant, is not only a sister of the collector, but is also the mother of Perry Munro and Arthur Munro, who were sentenced yesterday to Penitentiary in the perjury and scuttling cases.

Information has also been laid with the Crown concerning the wilful destruction by fire of other buildings and vessels.

It looks as though many more arrests will follow. The Munros hitherto have been looked upon as among the most respectable residents of Guysboro county. The family quarrel promises to eclipse any sensation made public in Halifax. Munro was arraigned before Stipendiary Davidson this morning and remanded until to-morrow for preliminary examination. Several witnesses have been sent for.

THE BALLOON COLLAPSED.

Perilous Adventure of a Female Aeronaut at the Danbury Fair in Connecticut.

Danbury, Conn., Oct. 6.—One of the features of the Danbury Fair yesterday was a balloon ascension by Miss Laura Hasbrook, a young woman from Newark, Del. She made the ascension clinging to a trapeze, which swung from a parachute attached to the balloon. She expected to cut the parachute from the balloon at the height of about a thousand feet, but was unable to use her knife. She was carried over this city. At Prospect street the baloon collapsed at the height of 500 feet and fell rapidly. The parachute ropes caught in a tree, holding it fast. The woman clung to the ropes until she was rescued by means of ladders. Then she lost consciousness.

A GREAT POKER GAME

IT MIGHT HAVE BROUGHT ABOUT AN INTERNATIONAL ROW.

The Victim Was the Samoan King Malietoa and the Victor an American Naval Officer—The Jack Pot That Caused the Trouble.

"There was a stiff game of poker played by a paymaster in the navy with King Malietoa several years ago. I guess this was about the healthiest game ever indulged in by a foreigner. Malietoa had heard of the great games played by Kalakaua, king of Hawaii, and the Samoan thought he'd like to take a little brush on this line. Well, Malietoa's opportunity to test his belief came one day when an American man-of-war—never mind which one—sailed into the harbor at Apia. His determination to take the thirty-second degree in the mysteries of the great American game was satisfied to the fullest extent. Among the officers aboard the man-of-war were a paymaster, a lieutenant and an assistant engineer, who had burned the midnight lamp studying poker at Annapolis and had prosecuted the study in season and out of season ever since they left that place. In a word, they were all three just about as smooth poker players as you could find in a month's travel.

"There was a trader among the white residents of Apia who was known to come to the front with a pretty stiff game, and Malietoa soon arranged through him a game with the officers. By invitation and appointment the king and his friends met the officers in the private parlors of a European, and before the evening was half gone Malietoa requested that the limit, a small one, be taken off. The old codger had won several pretty fair jack pots and felt his importance and ability to clean up the whole crowd. Off the limit came, and for several hours Malietoa had almost phenomenal luck, winning jack pot after jack pot. The more he won the more reckless he became, and when something was said about closing down he entered a large and emphatic protest. The game proceeded, and the healthiest jack pot of the night was on the table.

"Several hands had been dealt around without any one having expressed his ability to open the pot, when the king, with a look of surprise and a smile of pleasure and triumph combined, announced that he would open it $20 worth. Every player stayed. The paymaster drew three cards, the lieutenant the same number, the assistant engineer took two and the trader one. Malietoa showed his blood by standing out and putting $10 more into the pot. The paymaster saw this and raised him $25, while the others stayed. Then the king raised again, and the paymaster threw in $25 more. It was becoming too interesting for the other players, and they dropped out. After the king's last raise the paymaster hesitated a moment, put his cigar to one side and shoved $50 to the middle of the mahogany.

"The king put up the equivalent in Chilean silver dollars, the currency of the islands, and, drawing a small sack from his pocket, emptied its contents before him and excitedly placed in the pot the funds of the royal treasury of Samoa, amounting to $79 in silver. The paymaster's face grew serious, and he looked at his royal opponent in a hesitating, puzzled sort of way. Could this be a Samoan Ah Sin he had run against? Had this kingly copper colored son of a gun learned the art of poker playing from visiting traders years before and had he been playing possum all the evening? Having six or seven months' pay in his inside pocket, the paymaster decided to chance some of it in finding out.

"After a few moments of undecision he drew $579 in gold and silver from his pocket and added it to the pot, which now covered the table. Malietoa gave a gasp and called for a glass of kava to steady his nerves. This he gulped down and announced that he was out of funds, requesting at the same time that the paymaster take his word for $500, but there was nary a take, the paymaster only smiling and looking fixedly at the pot. Then the excited monarch offered to put up the island of Manono, one of the finest in the Samoan group, against the $500. To this the paymaster consented, and a transfer deed of the property, duly signed, attested by the trader, who was a notary public, and witnessed by the other two officers, was put in the pot. Then the king called the paymaster, who slowly laid down four aces and a five spot.

"With a look of horror and a Samoan wail of despair, his majesty exposed to view three kings, an eight spot and a deuce. Then he fell off his chair in a faint, the excitement having been too much for his nerves. Kava in copious quantities brought him around sufficiently to enable his removal to his own castle. The paymaster shoveled his money into a sack and placed it in the trader's iron safe, but the deed for the island he carefully placed in his pocket.

"Next morning the details of the big poker game were known to nearly every inhabitant of the place, and the German and English consuls sent official communications to the American consul protesting in most emphatic terms against the action of the king in disposing of the island of Manono to an American or to any one else, and warning the consul that unless the paymaster returned the deed for the island to the king at once they would direct the attention of their respective governments to the case.

"Here was a pretty state of affairs. The officer had, no doubt, won the island fairly, and the king's action was binding, but in the tension in which Samoan affairs were at that time the German and English governments would only too willingly have taken advantage of the circumstances as an excuse for international complications, ending ultimately in a disastrous way to American interests.

"The facts were fully explained to the paymaster, and on the promise of Malietoa that he would give the officer a number of fine mats and other Samoan articles of value the deed was returned to the king and destroyed. By mutual consent of the consuls and others interested the affair was hushed up in every way and was thus allowed to die out. Malietoa took an oath that he would never again play poker."

Reciprocal.

"Yes, sir," remarked the amiable man. "I look to see an Englishman come over here and drop his h's once in awhile."

"Yes," answered the man who has been to Epsom downs, "and he likes to see us go over there and drop our

OUTWITTING AN ELEPHANT.

A Hunter Saved by His Knowledge of the Beast's Habits.

Only those familiar with the "manners and customs" of the elephant have any idea what a nimble creature it really is. Massive and slow footed as it looks, it is capable, when roused, of feats that would be difficult for much fleeter animals. Especially is this the case with African elephants, which, though taller, are generally lighter than their Asiatic brethren. Moreover, accustomed for ages to lead a wild life and often depending on their alertness and speed of foot for their very existence, they have acquired a skill in gymnastics which has occasionally taken even old elephant hunters by surprise.

In illustration of this fact we are reminded of a story told by one of the sportsmen in Africa. He was "out after elephants" and had just fired at and wounded a magnificent specimen. Unfortunately for him, he had only succeeded in slightly wounding it, when, infuriated by the attack, it turned and charged him. It was a terrifying sight. With its enormous ears spread out like sails and emitting shrill notes of rage, it came thundering over the ground like a runaway locomotive. The hunter fired another shot, but missed. His nerve was shaken, and, throwing down his "express" rifle, he sought safety in flight. Near at hand was a steep hill, and to this he directed his steps, for, being but slightly acquainted with the climbing powers of the elephant, he thought his pursuer might be baffled by the steepness of the ascent.

It was a terrible disappointment to find that the elephant could climb a hill just as quickly as the hunter, nimble runner as he was. The fugitive, indeed, would have soon been overtaken if he had not thought of a really ingenious ruse. He knew that elephants never run, or even walk, down a steep incline, but always crouch down, gather their feet together, lean well back and slide down. Just as the ferocious animal had got within a few yards of him, therefore, the wily hunter suddenly doubled and ran down the hill again.

Quick as a flash the elephant turned, gathered himself together and, trumpeting with baffled rage, slid down after his victim. The hunter had just time to spring out of the way as the great beast came "tobogganing" after him, smashing trees and shrubs and carrying everything before it like an avalanche. Then once more the hunter dashed to the top of the hill, while the elephant, unable to stop itself, went careering down to the very foot, where, apparently feeling very sore and disappointed, it rose and walked wearily back to its native woods.—Chums.

Odd Disasters.

In an English coal mine a few years ago a callous youth viciously pricked a pony with his penknife. The wounded animal kicked out furiously, overturning and breaking several safety lamps. The naked flames fed the foul gases in the air and created an appalling explosion, which wrought the death of over a hundred miners.

Sun rays, shining through a decanter of water on to the cartridge of a loaded rifle, slew a sleeping man on a lounge near by. The innocent owner of the rifle was arraigned for the supposed crime and was sentenced to death, when the testimony of a shrewd detective solved the mystery and secured his reprieve.
